ADVERTISE in the LEDGER.

QUINCY NOT BROKE

Never Sounder Financially Than Now.

Answers an Attack of Henry H. Faxon.

Who Says City Is in a Deplorable Condition.

Henry H. Faxon is scattering broadcast a large edition of a four-page circular relating chiefly to taxation of property in Quincy. It is made up mainly of letters over his signature which have appeared in the Ledger during the year, and also some Ledger editorials upon which he makes some hot comments.

Concerning the editorial of Aug. 11, relative to the constantly increasing city debt, Mr. Faxon says:

"The above article would have been very sensible had not the Ledger tried to whitewash the financial policy of the present administration, and to throw dust into the eyes of unsuspecting taxpayers, in the hopes of blinding them as to the deplorable condition of affairs as they exist today.

"It needs no great financier to tell us the reason the City Council found it necessary to issue a bond for ($200) two hundred dollars, for a street improvement. The real reason was because the city is practically without a quick asset and is now, and has been for some time, living from hand to mouth.

"In the face of the necessity of issuing a bond for the paltry sum of two hundred dollars, there is small cause for congratulation that the tax rate is reduced ten cents per thousand.

"It would have been far better for the city, if instead of reducing the tax rate it had been increased to twenty ($20) dollars per thousand or even more, and pay off some of the city debt, which for several years past has been increasing at the rate of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) a year. If this policy had been followed, it would not have been necessary to issue a bond for two hundred dollars ($200,) or for the Ledger to sugar-coat the financial pill of the present administration in hopes that the tax-payers might unsuspectingly swallow a political humbug."

It is not the intention of the Daily Ledger "to whitewash the financial policy of the present administration," or "to throw dust into the eyes of the unsuspecting taxpayers." Had it been, the Ledger would not have presented the public the facts that it did relative to the rapidly increasing debt. The debt of Quincy is too large and it is a big handicap upon the city.

Quincy, however, is not in such serious straits as some other other cities, notable Brockton, which not only has a larger debt, but a very high tax rate, and no immediate prospects of reducing either.

MAYORS COMMENTS.

"The city of Quincy was never sounder financially than it is now," said Mayor Charles M. Bryant today when interviewed by a Post reporter in regard to Henry H. Faxon's statement that Quincy was "broke." "Its bonds are taken in Boston at a smaller rate of interest than the bonds of nine-tenths of the other cities in the State. If there is anyone who wants to see the truth and isn't in his dotage, let him consult the city's records. Last year the city was taxed $125,000 for the Metropolitan Park Commission. Quincy has only 30,000 inhabitants. The money was paid and the tax rate reduced.

"I have thought the High School should be attended to first, and therefore vetoed several appropriations for streets, inasmuch as the school will require a large outlay. Mr. Pratt owns some land on Independence road on the way to Braintree. He is going to put up a building there. The road has a hollow in it and whatever improvements are made in it will be permanent. The commissioner on highways did not think the money for this improvement ought to come out of the regular appropriation, and accordingly the Council passed the measure and I signed it.

The Council had adjourned for a month and the street needed to be filled in and widened at once. The fact is that the money for this improvement should have been tacked on to some other appropriation bill. As it was it had to come up separately.

"The city has been put on a business basis. Real estate is increasing in value and Quincy never was better financially than it is now."

Rascally.

It seems thieves have an eye for the beautiful as well as other people, for they made a descent Sunday night on the beautiful display of dahlias in the garden of George F. Elcock, noted in this paper last week. Mr. Elcock would have been pleased to have given the party a few blossoms, but today feels more like peppering them from a shot gun. The rascals not only destroyed several of his choice varieties, but took bulbs and all. This is discouraging to our citizens who are trying to make their estates and the city more attractive.

At Squantum.

The Wendell Phillips club of Boston held its annual outing Monday at the Squantum Inn. A business meeting was held previous to the dinner, at which officers were elected for the coming year. After dinner there was a discussion upon "The need of unification of colored Massachusetts men along industrial, commercial and intellectual pursuits." There was a large party present.

PISTOL SHOTS.

Aroused Residents of Billings Road Last Night.

About 2.30 this morning Mr. Coles, who lives on Rawson road, had occasion to go for a doctor, and had an exciting experience. When running along near the corner of Billings road and Hancock street he was ordered to stop. He did not, however, but hurried along. Pistol shots were fired after him, but he continued until he reached the house of Dr. Peirce, where he rang the bell.

The police say they made no attempt to shoot, but might have had the chase been a long one. A person having a good excuse for being out need have no fear from the police. In this case, however, Mr. Coles, did not see the policeman and did not know him to be such.

While the neighbors were aroused they are pleased to know that the police are about protecting them while they sleep.

The Quincy city council has decided that the dynamite and powder stored in that town must be moved. But here's hoping it may be taken away a little at a time. It wouldn't be nice to have it all go at once.—Herald.

Oh, no! The Quincy City Council has taken no such action. A license has been refused to a company, but that seems to make no difference. Lowell, upon the advice of experts, has requested the United States Cartridge Co. to remove two magazines in that city.

Drift of Opinion.

☞In this mechanical age the mechanical man may not reach the highest honors, but he is generally able to pay rent.—Saturday Evening Post.

☞Sir Thomas Lipton should come to Lynn for a crew. There are some people here who can "lift" anything after dark.—Lynn Item.

☞Fraternity means fraternity between North and South; it also means fraternity between black and white. We owe something to this colored race. We owe it because they are men. We owe it because they are our fellow-citizens. We owe it because they are loyal. We owe it because not yet, I believe, in a single case has one of them been found to raise a hand against the American flag, and many have been found to suffer and to die for it. And what we primarily owe them, apart from that liberty and that equality which is every man's right in this country, is education. First, primary and industrial education.—Dr. Lyman Abbot in Review of Reviews for September.

☞The new child labor law of New Jersey, raising the age at which children can be employed from twelve to fourteen years, is disturbing the glass-makers of the state, who maintain that ruin threatens the business if the law is enforced. The penalties behind the law are not severe and at the worst they attach only to the "willful" employment of children under the prescribed age, but the governor of the state is for the strict enforcement of the law, whatever the effect upon any branch of business. The glassmakers may suffer a slight disturbance in readjusting themselves, but it will be for their lasting good to get established on a firmer basis than a dependence for profits upon the small wages of child-labor. Even if the business were ruined, it is not worth saving at the sacrifice of the children.—New Bedford Standard.

NEITHER DESIRES WAR

But Turkey and Bulgaria Cannot Avoid a Clash

THE OUTRAGES CONTINUE

Turkish Troops Rob and Beat Villagers, Violate Women and Subject Christian Population to Outrages—Bulgarians In a Terrible Plight

Sofia, Sept. 1.—Both in official and revolutionary circles the opinion is freely held that war between Turkey and Bulgaria is imminent and can be averted by nothing short of a miracle. It is not expected that either government will formally declare hostilities, but that the prevailing conditions will force on a war.

There is no question that large numbers of insurgents have recently crossed the frontier. An extensive outbreak in northern Macedonia is possible any day. The Autenomye prints a telegram from Constantinople declaring that the sultan, influenced by the counsels of Germany, now favors a war with Bulgaria. The Turks here, however, take an optimistic view, asserting that there is no danger of a war, as Turkey does not desire one and Prince Ferdinand and the present Bulgarian government are not in a position to force hostilities.

The Bulgarian agent at Uskub reports that the detachments of Turkish troops sent to garrison the small towns in that vilayet have spread destruction along their route. The villagers have been robbed and beaten, the women violated and the Christian population subjected to every conceivable outrage, while the local authorities appear to be helpless to stop the atrocities.

At the village of Drachevo, six miles from Uskub, the soldiers attacked all the peasants without the gendarmes interfering on behalf of the latter. The Bulgarian agent specifies similar excesses in many other villages, and the position of the Bulgarian residents is reported to be terrible, as the cruelties committed by the Turkish authorities exceed all limits.

Prince Ferdinand has not arrived in Sofia, and the court officials declare that they are without information as to his movements.

The non-arrival here of Prince Ferdinand and the mystery surrounding his movements, although characteristic, he having always maintained similar reticence and independence regarding his movements, causes anxiety here. One report says the prince has gone through Roumania to the palace of Euxinograd, near Varna, while according to another report he is at Philippolis. In Macedonian circles it is believed that he fears to return to Sofia owing to the receipt of threatening letters.

The Turks have occupied Klissura, Albania, without resistance. A number of Bulgarian villages in its vicinity were burned.

The revolt has become general at Caza and Yenidije, 25 miles from Salonica, and is spreading to Gherghli and Tikhvesh, 65 miles from Salonica.

Sarafoff, the revolutionary leader, has arrived in the neighborhood of Salonica for the purpose of directing the movements in this district.

Some Turkish officers, on Aug. 29, sold 15 cases of Martini rifles and a quantity of ammunition to Bulgarians.

General Rising Scheduled

London, Sept. 1.—The Times correspondent at Sofia hears that he rising in northern Macedonia was to be proclaimed last night. Prince Ferdinand, he says, had a long interview at Constanza with the Roumania premier yesterday before embarking on the Bulgarian gunboat at Kustendji for Burgas.

Belgian Officers For Macedonia

Brussels, Sept. 1.—It is stated that Belgium, under pressure from Austria and Russia, has consented to appoint four officers for the Macedonian gendarmerie.

General Hasselteno Dead

Denver, Sept. 1.—General Don Carlos Hasselteno, a distinguished scholar and linguist, died at his home in this city. He was born in New Orleans in 1825 of Spanish parentage. The general's great-great-grandfather was sent by the Spanish king to America to be governor of the entire possessions in the new world. General Hasselteno was a graduate of Miami, Yale and Heidelburg universities and served in the Confederate army.

Did Well After Long Journey

St. Paul, Sept. 1.—Sixty thousand people saw Dan Patch unsuccessfully attempt to lower his world's pacing record of 1:59 at the state fair grounds here. Despite the fact that the great pacer had gone against time last Friday at Readville, Mass., and had been almost continuously on the cars until yesterday, he went a mile in two minutes flat.

$5,000,000 In Philippine Certificates

San Francisco, Sept. 1.—The transport Thomas, which sailed today for the Philippines, touching at Honolulu and Guam, carried $5,000,000 in Philippine silver certificates, accompanied by a guard of 25 enlisted cavalrymen.

Not Wanted In Peru

Lima, Sept. 1.—A motion has been submitted in the chamber of deputies to prohibit the immigration into Peru of the members of those religious orders which were expelled from France.

"LIVE" STREET CAR RAILS

Bring Trouble to a Funeral, Pleasure Party and an Ox Team

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 1.—The tracks at the Highland road terminal of the Old Colony Street Railway company became charged with electricity and before the current was broken a funeral procession had been demoralized, the team of a pleasure party knocked down and a pair of oxen shocked into uncontrolable antics. Led by the hearse the funeral procession was about to cross the tracks on the way to St. Patrick's cemetery. As the shoes of the horses attached to the hearse came in contact with the rail both animals were knocked out and before they could be gotten off the track they had wrecked the front end of the hearse. The driver of the carriage containing the mourners also got his team in contact with the live rail and narrowly escaped a runaway. The procession finally reached the cemetery by going around the end of the track.

Later a pleasure party attempted to drive across the track and both horses were knocked senseless.

A solemn ox team was next to feel the invigorating effect of electricity and became mad with fright. It was some time before the animals could be safely approached and removed from the tracks where they had fallen.

Eighteen-Year-Old Order Revived

Nashua, N. H., Sept. 1.—City Solicitor Eaton has petitioned the supreme court to adjudge the Boston and Maine railroad in contempt of court for not having built an overhead bridge at Eaton street crossing, this city. Only about $26,000 of the latter will be real liabilities.

Trimmings Wouldn't Stand Rain

Berlin, Sept. 1.—The autumn parade of the garrisons of Berlin and Potsdam, usually a splendid military spectacle, planned for yesterday, did not take place. Emperor William, owing to the fact that it began to rain, ordered the 30,000 troops who were already in the field to return to their barracks. A thorough wetting would cost each of the officers $5 to $20 in damage done to the gold trimmings of their uniforms.

Expert's Advice Disregarded

Albany, Sept. 1.—Dr. G. A. Soper, special consulting expert of the state health department in connection with the Ithaca typhoid epidemic, has resigned that position. The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

PROVIDENCE TRIP.

Trolley Excursion Through Southeastern Massachusetts.

There is no prettier month in the year in which to take a trolley trip than in the month of September. The Ledger, from time to time, has outlined trips that furnish much to enjoy and which are inexpensive.

Another such trip is that from Quincy to Fall River, New Bedford, Newport or Providence. In order to take this trip one should take a car for Brockton, the shoe city of southern Massachusetts. From Quincy the line passes through Braintree, Holbrook, Montello, the residential section of Brockton, to City Square, Brockton.

There a change is made for Taunton and the passenger has his choice of two routes. One through what is known as "The Lake Region," or "King Philip County," which is via Campello, to Bridgewater. At Bridgewater, a line can be taken for Plymouth.

Continuing on toward Taunton the line passes through, Scotland, a pretty farming village, thence past Lake Nippennicket and Pilgrim Park, through Raynham to Taunton. The run to Taunton from Brockton by this line is one hour and thirty miuutes, and the fare twenty cents.

The other or short line which, on account of its white cars is known as the "Ghost line," follows the old Brockton and Taunton turnpike through South Eastern, a part of West Bridgewater, and the village of Cochesset. It crosses the Great Cedar swamp on a trestle bridge more than a mile long, thence through North Raynham, the seat of hostilities in the King Philip war, to Taunton, where the first flag bearing the device "Union and Liberty" was unfurled.

The running time by this line is one hour and five minutes.

If the passenger desires to go direct to Providence he will continue on through the village of Westville, through Annawan Park, Rehoboth, Seekank and East Providence to Providence.

The running time from Quincy to Providence is four hours and thirty minutes if the long route from Brockton is taken, or four hours by the "Ghost line." The fare is sixty cents.

If, when arriving at Taunton, however, the passenger should desire to prolong his trip he may change for a car running direct to Fall River and Newport. This line passes through Dighton, once the port of entry for Fall River, and a view is had of the great strawberry farms from where those delicious Dighton berries are grown. From Dighton the line passes through Rock Park to Fall River, the running time from Taunton being one hour and forty minutes, and the fare twenty-five cents.

From Fall River a line can be taken for a two hours' run to Newport, the famous summer resort of the millionaires, with a fare of twenty-five cents, or a car for an hour's run to New Bedford with a fare of twenty cents.

The prettiest ride however is from Fall River to Providence by way of Swansea. This is the most beautiful trip affording a great variety of scenery, going across rivers, ocean inlets, headlands and islands of upper Narragansett bay, and giving an extended view of Bristol.

The run from Fall River to Providence is one hour and twenty minutes, and the fare twenty-five cents.

It will be noticed that the fare from Quincy by the direct route to Providence is 60 cents and by the Fall River route 85 cents.

The running time to Providence from Quincy is four hours if direct line is taken, or a little over five hours if the Fall River route is taken.

HARSH INJUSTICE

Being Meted Out to Foreigners by Venezuelan Local Authorities

Willemstad, Island of Curacoa, Sept 1.—The local authorities are hunting down all foreigners in the interior of Venezuela who dare to present claims against Venezuela in accordance with the recent protocol. Near Coro a local tribunal refused to accept the testimony of five Italians. On the latter insisting in tendering their depositions, three were arrested and thrown into jail. Two of them attempted to escape and were fired upon, one being killed. The Venezuelan government does not deny this occurrence, but is doing nothing to prevent repetitions.

Cumana, Venezuela, Sept. 1.—A gibbet was erected in a street of this city yesterday on which was hung an effigy representing a foreigner and the populace beat the dummy with sticks amid shouts of "death to the foreigners."

Two leading traders, a Frenchman and a German, were arrested in Ciudad Bolivar by order of President Castro for refusing to pay their taxes, which had already been collected by the revolutionists during the latter's occupation of the city. Many other persons were also arrested on the same charge. The French and German ministers at Caracas protested and obtained the release of their fellow-countrymen.

The Chinese Revolution

Washington, Sept. 1.—Consul McWade at Canton has sent to the state department a detailed account of the insurrection in Kwangsi province, from which it appears that in a number of engagements the rebels defeated the government troops. The rebels are reported well armed and well drilled.

Washington, Sept. 1.—Andrew Geddes, for several years chief clerk of the department of agriculture, has been relieved of office on charges of a personal nature and S. R. Burch, chief clerk of the bureau of animal industry, has been appointed to succeed him.

Still Probing Postal Frauds

Washington, Sept. 1.—The federal grand jury is expected to act at any moment on the evidence which has been presented to it regarding the acts of a former postal official, both during his term of office and subsequent legal practice.

Armed Guards Protect Miners

Randsburg, Cal., Sept. 1.—The Yellow Aster mine has started up with a small force. Armed guards accompany the men to and from work. No violence has been attempted.

ASSAULT ON A CHILD

Arouses the People of Cumberland County, Me

POLICE HAVE WIDE NET OUT

Every Roadway Within Fifty Miles of Scene of Crime Closely Watched For Appearance of Young Fellow Guilty of Outrageous Crime

Gorham, Me., Sept. 1.—Thoroughly aroused by the report from the bedside of Nina Hamblen that the condition of the 9-year-old child is critical as a result of the dastardly assault committed upon her by an unknown man, Cumberland county officers, reinforced by police from nearby towns, have redoubled their efforts to capture the criminal. The police of Portland, Biddeford and Saco have taken a hand in the hunt, and every roadway within a radius of 50 miles of the scene of the assault is being watched at many points.

The authorities believe that they have the man surrounded and are determined that he shall not escape alive. Deputy Sheriff Smith is directing the man hunt and he is satisfied that every avenue of escape has been cut off. The police say that the man is without funds and they expect that hunger will bring him to some backdoor soon. The alarm had been made so general that he is likely to be recognized wherever he appears.

As further details become known the particulars of the assault, and a fair assault proves to have been one of the most atrocious in the annals of Cumberland county. Albert Hamblen, the victim's father, is a well-to-do farmer living on the Gray road, 1½ miles from this village.

The girl has been able to give some description of her assailant. She says she was about half way home from an errand at the village, when she met a fairly well dressed young man of about 24 years of age. He was about 5 feet 8 inches tall, and weighed perhaps 130 pounds. He wore a blue serge suit and a black stiff hat. He was fair, smooth shaven and she noticed that the back of his hands were covered with freckles. He stopped her and attempted to engage her in conversation. She became frightened and tried to pass him. The man then grabbed her by the throat and a struggle ensued. Nerved by fear and indignation the little girl fought desperately. When she fell helpless the man grabbed her by the shoulders and dragged her a distance of 100 feet into the woods that skirt the highway. Here the little girl was outrageously treated. Later she was found in a semi-conscious state and taken home, where Dr. Ridlon attended her.

A farmer's wife living on the road between this village and Portland reported to the police that a man answering the description of the assailant came to her house yesterday and inquired where he would strike the car line to Portland. The woman told him that it was about two miles distant. The man's appeared greatly excited and promised her a rich reward if she would drive him to the car line as quickly as possible. The woman hitched up a team and drove at breakneck speed to the nearest point where a car could be taken and received a fare of 10 cents. A car conductor recalls picking up a passenger at that point and identifies him as the man described by the woman. The man left the car a few miles out of Portland. Another conductor says that the same man rode with him later towards Portland, but he does not remember where the fellow got off.

The selectmen of the town have interested themselves in the matter and the citizens of the entire county are stirred with indignation. There is no talk, however, of anything but legal action in the matter.

MAY NOT STAY LONG

But American Cruisers Will Pay a Visit to Turkish Waters

Washington, Sept. 1.—Late dispatches from Minister Leishman give in detail the conditions in Turkey and do not differ materially in tone from those previously sent. Minister Leishman does not, as reported in some quarters, request the withdrawal of the American ships from Turkish waters. While reports by way of London state that no attempt was made upon the life of Vice Consul Magelssen, official advices so far received show that such an attempt was made. The present status was known before the ships left Genoa, and this government did not decide to change the orders.

It is now stated, however, that should there be a calm and peaceful condition at Beirut when the ships arrive there the matter of sending them to another port will be considered and possibly adopted. The Turkish minister made no request upon Secretary Hay at the interview regarding the movements of United States war vessels and nothing in this matter was promised by the state department.

Employes' Loyalty Not Questioned

Washington, Sept. 1.—Acting Secretary Darling of the navy department has concluded that there is no occasion for any action by the navy department at this time on the proposition that all employes of the navy department and navy yards be required to take the oath of allegiance to the United States. Only citizens of the United States and only such non-citizens as have been honorably discharged from the army, navy or marine corps are eligible for employment in the naval establishment.

Another Escape From Fort Monroe

Old Point Comfort, Va., Sept. 1.—Private Valentine, a prisoner in solitary confinement at Fort Monroe, has made his escape, going through iron bars under the nose of a sentinel. When the officers at the fort discovered that five prisoners escaped Saturday they immediately placed sentinels at guard over all the cells. Valentine, guarded in this manner, nevertheless, escaped. The sentinel was incarcerated, pending a court martial. Nothing has been heard from the five prisoners who escaped from the fort.

Strike Order Ignored

Chicago, Sept. 1.—The attempt of President Callahan of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes' International Alliance to cause a walk out of all members of the union who are at work in the restaurants of this city has met with complete failure. Callahan announced that all men who refused to leave work by Monday night would be expelled. If his threat is carried out the local organization will be left with a meagre membership.

Demand For Higher Wages

Baltimore, Sept. 1.—At a meeting of representatives of the engineers, firemen and trainmen employed on all divisions of teh Baltimore and Ohio railroad it was decided to ask the company for increases in wages. No specific information as to the demands which shall be made can be obtained. It is intimated that unless the demands of the employes be granted a general strike of all classes of trainmen will be ordered.

Capps Denies Discrimination

Washington, Sept. 1.—Acting Secretary Darling has received a report from Naval Constructor Capps regarding charges of discrimination against the veterans of the Civil war at the New York navy yard. Capps says that no discrimination against veterans has been in operation. Mr. Darling considers the report as fully disposing of the charges.

Love, Murder and Suicide

Richmond, Sept. 1.—Herbert B. Bates, aged 24, shot and killed Miss Rena Gentry at her home in this city and then killed himself with the same weapon. Bates and Miss Gentry had been keeping company since they were small children and he was madly infatuated with the young woman. It is believed that she did not return his love

British and Austrian Rulers Meet

Vienna, Sept. 1.—Emperor Francis Joseph, accompanied by several notables, received King Edward upon his arrival here. After the presentations their majesties drove to the Hofberg in a landau drawn by six horses, immense crowds lining the streets. At the Hofberg the king was received by the archduchesses, Foreign Minister Golouski, the Austrian and the Hungarian premiers and the court and state dignitaries.

Hunger Made Him Surrender

New York, Sept. 1.—Frank Hornicker, 17 years of age, walked into a police station here and gave himself up. He said he had escaped from the Lyman reform school in Westboro, Mass., where he had been sentenced for burglary. He had had nothing to eat for two days, he said, and he could not endure the pangs of hunger. The Lyman school authorities were notified.

Duke of Aosta Off For Germany

Rome, Sept. 1.—The Duke of Aosta, heir apparent to the throne, has left for Germany, where, on the invitation of Emperor William, he will attend the grand maneuvers. The duke will afterwards go to Munster to pay a visit to the regiment of white cuirassiers, of which he is the honorary head.

Bryan Will Speak In Ohio

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 1.—W. J. Bryan left last night for Ohio to begin his campaign in behalf of the Democratic state ticket. He said his telegram to Tom Johnson had been misunderstood; that he had not cancelled any dates in

BLUR ON THE HORIZON

The Only Sign of Shamrock When Reliance Finished

WIND FELL TO A ZEPHYR

Prevented Defender Finishing Within Time Limit, but She Gave Challenger the Worst Beating Yet Received —Cup Conceded to Be Safe

New York, Sept 1.—Again the beautiful cup defender Reliance failed to register her third victory over Lipton's challenger because the wind died to nothing and the time limit of 5½ hours expired before she could reach the finish line. Her margin was approximately the same as Thursday last. She was less than half a mile from the finish when the gun sounded. Shamrock was a faint blur on the horizon, fully 2½ miles astern.

Reliance's failure to score the race was the more exasperating because her ultimate triumph is now conceded, even by Lipton himself, to be simply a formality. The superiority of the Herreshoff boat in any kind of weather is acknewledged by the yachting critics of both sides of the Atlantic and yesterday's duke only prolongs the agony of the contest that has already been decided.

The waning interest in the cup races was strikingly illustrated by the size of the observation fleet, if the ships which went down to the ocean race course could be dignified by such a title. Outside of the revenue cutters which patrolled the course it consisted of half a dozen sidewheelers with almost empty decks, a few seagoing tugs and a score of steam yachts.

The easterly wind and rain Sunday night had served to knock down the sea somewhat, although it was rough enough during the first two hours of the race to make the excursion boats tumble about a good deal and the yachts to plunge and stagger on their way to the outer mark. But as the day wore on the wind hauled to the north and fell to a mere zephyr, hardly strong enough to round out the enormous canvasses of the sloops, and the sea subsided to a smooth surface.

The race was spiritless from the beginning. It was laid 15 miles to windward up the Long Island shore and return. Its saving feature was the start, in which Captain Wringe, by a pretty piece of maneuvering, neatly turned the tables on the Yankee skipper and captured the windward berth. Even so, the yachts crossed the line abreast.

But within 15 minutes the defender was showing her heels to the challenger and when the float at the outer mark was reached she rounded the mark 20m. 23s. ahead of her rival. In the five times the boats have met this was by far the worst beating Shamrock has had in windward work. The only interest which remained after that was as to whether Reliance would be able to reach the finish line in time to score the race.

Proposed Memento For Lipton

New York, Sept. 1.—The initial step towards the presentation to Sir Thomas Lipton of a memento from the American people, probably in the form of a silver service, was taken when the following resolution was adopted at a meeting held at the Waldorf:

The undersigned committee, named to arrange a memento for Sir Thomas Lipton, feel assured that they represent a universal sentiment of appreciation among all classes of Americans who love sport and admire a sportsman; and, acting upon this assurance, they suggest to the general public a popular subscription to meet the end in view. The Western National bank of New York has consented to receive subscriptions. It is desired that these be national in character, since there is no state or section where the pluck, liberality and good temper of our late antagonist, ever our friend and now our guest, have not won all hearts.

Russian Minister Moves Downward

Paris, Sept. 1.—The foreign office here points out the significance of the appointment of M. Witte as president of the Russian council of ministers, which is merely an honorary post, whereas the ministry of finance, which he is leaving, is a position of great power and influence. The change practically amounts to putting Witte aside.

Hanna In Political Conference

Cleveland, Sept. 1.—Senator Hanna sat up for several hours yesterday. He desired to go to his office but his physician advised against it. Myron T. Herrick, the Republican gubernatorial candidate, and Mr. Dick, chairman of the Republican state committee, held a lengthy conference with the senator.

No New Trial For Ames

Minneapolis, Sept. 1.—Judge Elliott has denied Dr. A. A. Ames' motion for a new trial. Nothing remains between the former mayor and six years in the penitentiary for bribery except an appeal to the supreme court, although this last effort is generally credited to be a vain one.

VALUATION.

Comments of an Exchange on Assessors' Values.

The recent court decision in the Melrose valuation case presents a problem to assessors in other cities, as well as in that municipality. It raises the question as to how far the assessors in any city are justified in proceeding along the line of increasing valuations in order to keep the tax-rate down.

In a general way, says Practical Politics, the basis for the valuation of real estate is the amount which it will fetch when offered for sale under favorable conditions in the open market.

Into the calculation, of course, should be reckoned the records of other sales of similar property, in the vicinity or in equivalent sections.

Auction sales, foreclosures and similar more or less forced dispositions of property are, naturally, not to be regarded as a just basis for valuations. They are just as apt to be too low as some of the assessed values are to run to the other extreme. A reasonable medium should be observed, and any citizen has a right to object if the assessors are not conservative and regardful of property interests in their figures.

One of the serious evils of the assessing that is encountered in most cities is inequality in the estimates of property values. Cases are rare in which values are lowered when property ages and depreciates, and all too frequent, on the other hand, are the cases wherein, through negligence or worse, values have been permitted to remain stationary when they should have undergone an advance. For gross inequalities the best remedy is an overturning of the assessing board and the installation of new men to conduct their offices on business principles.

TODAY'S COURT.

William T. Kelley was fined $3 for drunkenness at Quincy.

Mad Mullah Supplied From London

Aden, Arabia, Sept. 1.—The principal sources for the supply of rifles and ammunition to the Mad Mullah's forces in Somaliland have been traced to a London firm. Since the commencement of the operations in Somaliland an aggregate of 3,000,000 rounds of Lee-Metford rifle ammunition and correspondingly large numbers of Lee-Metford and Gras rifles have been shipped by this London firm to Jibutil and Harrar, Abyssinia, by way of Manchester and Marseilles.

Philadelphia Banker Murdered

Philadelphia, Sept. 1.—Vincenzo Tilli, proprietor of an Italian bank, was shot and killed by a fellow-countryman named Giovanni Viola last night. The murderer ran from the bank and as he was pursued he turned and fired his revolver. One bullet struck Policeman Conly and he is in a serious condition. Viola was captured after a severe struggle. The police have been unable to learn what Viola's motive was in killing Tilli.

Middies Have a Month Off

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 1.—The battleship Indiana, the cruiser Hartford and the practice ship Chesapeake, the three ships which conveyed the midshipmen on their summer cruise, have arrived here. The midshipmen express themselves as having had a very pleasant time on the cruise. All the midshipmen will be given one month leave to visit their homes.

Will Denounce Libel Bill

Harrisburg, Sept. 1.—The indications are that the Democratic state convention will be a quiet, harmonious gathering. The platform will declare against the Grady-Saltus libel bill passed by the last legislature, and signed by Governor Pennypacker, and condemn the last legislature for the passage of the ballot reform bill by the Republican majority.

Italian Pilgrimage Postponed

Rome, Sept. 1.—A French pilgrimage was announced to arrive in Rome on a visit to the pope about Sept. 20, on which day the Italians celebrate the anniversary of the taking of Rome and the fall of the temporal power. Wishing to avoid possible conflicts between the pilgrims and the Romans Pope Pius has directed that the pilgrimage be postponed.

Two New Cardinals For United States

Chicago, Sept. 1.—William J. Onahan of this city, who has just returned from Rome, is authority for the statement that in the near future two additional cardinals will be created in the United States. No layman in the country stands higher in the Catholic church than Onahan. He would not discuss the men who are to be appointed.

September Magazines.

The September Review of Reviews is notable for the number and variety of topics of world-wide interest included in its survey. The Irish land bill, the British tariff debate, the Macedonian revolt, the crushing of liberty in Finland, the commercial progress of Germany, and the Panama Canal question are among the subjects of editorial discussion, while various other matters of current interest are illustrated in the cartoon department, and there are several special contributed articles.

Every housemother will enjoy the sparkling symposium, How Many Trades Must a Hdusewife Learn? in the September National Magazine. Every lover of good fiction will enjoy the six really fine stories. June Winston, Carrie Hunt Latta's new novel composed of ten short stories, begins in this number.

Everything in the September McClure's is worth reading, and it is all good reading, too. Ray Stannard Baker contributes an extremely noteworthy article on the present industrial situation in Chicago, a really amazing disclosure of what the author does not hesitate to call a new form of industrial conspiracy. "Capital and Labor Hunt Together," is Mr. Baker's startling title.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Nndoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

Whole Villages Wiped Out by Bloodthirsty Turks

NIGHT ATTACK BY TROOPS

In Which Whole Population of Nearly Four Hundred Perished—Insurgents Threaten to Retaliate In Like Manner Unless Barbarities Cease

Sofia, Sept. 2.—The Macedonian revolutionists await the anniversary of the sultan's accession to proclaim the long anticipated general insurrection in northern Macedonia, the proclamation of which was issued yesterday, signed by all the members of the insurgent general staff. The new outbreak is headed by the famous Macedonian leaders, General Zontcheff, president of the Macedonian committee, and Colonel Jankoff, who was wounded in the rising of 1902.

The new territory covers the district in the valley of the Struma at the base of the Rhadope mountain chain and to the north of the River Vardar. Colonel Jankoff is directing the movements of the bands in the southern part.

News of severe fighting is still coming in. At the village of Armensia, after a day's fighting, the Turkish troops in the night time massacred the entire population of 180 men and 200 women. The Turks have also massacred the inhabitants of the village of Velesi.

It is reported that Hilmi Pacha, the inspector general for Macedonia, fears to leave his headquarters at the palace at Monastir. The insurgent leader, Grueff, in a letter to Hilmi Pacha, demanded that he prevent the barbarous acts of the Turkish soldiers and Bashi-Bazouks, otherwise the revolutionists would massacre all the Turkish inhabitants. The insurgents have occupied the mountain pass of Gergelo, on the main line from Salonica to Uskub, and Turkish troops have been sent to dislodge them.

The town of Malkoternovo is reported to be in a state of anarchy, the Turks plundering the houses and committing unspeakable atrocities on the women.

According to the latest Turkish official estimate, about 1500 Bulgarians were killed in the recent fighting at Smilero, Nevesla and Klissura. The Turkish losses are not stated. This estimate does not include further losses in the Smilero district, where fighting was renewed Aug. 30 and continued until yesterday. It was reported that 650 Bulgarians were killed in this two days' battle.

THE TURKISH VERSION

Of the Reported Attempt on the Life of Vice Consul Magelssen

Washington, Sept. 2.—Chekib Bey, the Turkish minister, has received from the minister of foreign affairs at Constantinople a dispatch declaring that the report of the assassination of United States Consul Magelssen at Beirut was absolutely false. The dispatch gives a version of the affair practically the same as has been told before in the dispatches from Turkey. It says that the pistol was fired by a man returning from a marriage fete; that the shot was fired in the air and that it happened just as Magelssen was passing in his carriage. This, the dispatch says, led the vice consul to believe that an attempt had been made against his life. The man who did the shooting has been delivered to the judicial authorities. Chekib Bey's dispatch also asserts that order and tranquility prevail at Beirut.

The information contained in the cablegram has been furnished to United States Minister Leishman at Constantinople by the Turkish minister of foreign affairs and to Secretary Hay by the Turkish minister here.

No Unsettled Demands For Money

Washington, Sept. 2.—There is a popular impression that the United States has a number of unsettled claims against Turkey for indemnity on account of outrages on American citizens or property. At the state department, however, it is said that not a single claim involving a money indemnity is held against the Turkish government. There are on file in the department a number of complaints from teachers and missionaries, but none of these complaints have reached the stage of a claim against Turkey for any sum of money, nor do they constitute any basis for making a demand upon Turkey to be backed up by warships.

"Congratulations" In Order

Constantinople, Sept. 2.—The celebration here of the anniversary of the sultan's accession passed off without any untoward incident. The sultan held the customary reception and received the congratulations of the representatives of the powers and the state dignitaries. Last evening the city was brilliantly illuminated.

Another Veteran Dead.

Albert A. Holt, formerly of Quincy, died at Newton Tuesday, aged 60 years and 9 months. He suffered from Brights desease for nearly a year and confined to his bed for the last four months. For over thirty years he has been a salesman of paper and twine, twenty-five of which he resided in New York city. He served in the Rebellion in Company G, 42d Mass. Vol. Infantry; was taken prisoner at the Battle of Galveston, Texas, on Jan. 1, 1863, was at one time a member of Paul Revere Post, 88, G. A. R., serving as senior vice commander. Burial services will be held at 29 Pearl street, Newton, Thursday at 2 P. M.

THE SHAMROCK III WHICH CAN BE BOUGHT FOR A SONG TOMORROW NIGHT.

The one final race needed to decide whether the America's cup shall remain on this side of the pond for another year remains yet to be held.

In the minds of Sir Thomas Lipton and the general pubic there is no question but what it will stay. The Reliance, however, has won but two races and according to the rules must secure another race.

Monday she came near securing the third leg. Five minutes more would have been all that was necessary to have given it to her, and the probabilities are that if on Monday the race had started at 11.00 o'clock instead of 11.45 she would have finished within the time.

Tuesday there was no wind and today's weather is but a repetition of yesterday. The yachts were at the starting line waiting for a breeze, but at 1 o'clock it had not appeared, and the race was declared off for another day.

Tomorrow the yachts will make another try, and everybody hopes that there will be wind enough to settle the affair and have the agony over with.

Off for the Line.

No Wind.

11 A. M. The air is absolutely without life and a dull haze overshadowed the course.

Probably No Race.

11.30 A. M.—Both Iselin and Sir. Thomas express themselves as skeptical of any results today.

Waiting for Breeze.

11.45 A. M.—The yachts have arrived at the starting line and are hoping that a breeze will spring up.

Probable Postponement.

12 M.—The probabilities are that there will be no race today.

Still No Wind.

12.30 P. M.—There has been no improvement in the weather.

A Calm.

12.45 P. M.—An almost dead calm prevails. The yachts, however, will remain at the line until 1 o'clock when if the weather conditions do not improve the race will be declared off.

Race Off.

12.55 P. M.—The race for today has been declared off.

Excursionists Returning.

1 P. M.—The excursion fleet can be seen returning.

FIRST GUN FIRED.

A Testimonial Banquet to Representative Peter T. Fallon.

A large number of printed invitations were sent through the mail on Tuesday for a testimonial banquet to Representative Peter T. Fallon, to be held at the Squantum Inn on Saturday. The invitation set forth that the business, personal and political friends of Mr. Fallon thought him deserving of a reception and banquet, and that one had been arranged for as announced. Enclosed with the circular was a ticket for which the receiver was expected to pay $2.

The circular also said that there would be speaking by well-known Quincy and Boston gentlemen.

Affixed to the invitation are the names of fifty or more gentlemen of which there were about as many affiliated with the Republican party as the Democratic party.

As several of the gentlemen whose names appear claim that the circular was the first intimation they had of the affair, they cannot be said to endorse the candidacy of Mr. Fallon.

The Worcester Trip.

Many Quincy people are taking the trolley trip to Worcester. They find it requires about all day, and allows but a short stop over, but that it is a delightful trip. The start should be made from Quincy before 9 A. M., and the best way is to go to Boston by train, take an elevated train for the subway, and transfer to a Chestnut Hill car, and go to the terminus, which is also the terminus of the Worcester line. Guide books may be obtained for coupons at the Ledger office.

W. Y. C. CRUISE.

Prizes for Yachts and Launches on Both the Runs.

Commodore Wiley has returned from his cruise to Maine in the Claytonia, and with the assistance of Fleet Captain A. T. Nichols has arranged for the annual cruise of the Wollaston Yacht club to Marblehead. The start will be on Saturday at 1.30 P. M. Cash prizes are offered for the best time on the run both for yachts and launches, and the regular handicap will be given. There will be no restrictions as to sails.

Visiting among the yachts of the fleet will be in order on Sunday, and possibly a short sail.

The run trip will probably be made Monday, when the time will also be taken, and prizes awarded.

Mystic Shriners.

The Aleppo Temple of the Ancient Arabic Order of the Noble of the Mystic Shrine, which includes in its membership several Quincy gentlemen, will have its annual outing at Old Orchard Beach, Me., Sept. 5, 6 and 7, Saturday, Sunday and Monday next. A special session opens in the Huntington Chambers Hall on Huntington avenue, Boston, on Saturday at 10 in the forenoon for work and ceremony.

A special train will carry the members down east, and they will be entertained at Hotel Velvet. Vaudeville entertainment will be given at the Casino on Monday and a first class clambake will be held in the afternoon. The outing and attendant features promise to be the most elaborate of recent years.

President Roosevelt will round out next week—Sept. 15— two years as the head of this country. He has more than met all expectations, and there appears to be no opposition in his party to his renomination.

The numerous loads of furniture would seem to indicate that everybody was moving. There is a big demand in Quincy for houses.

Drift of Opinion.

☞The chief fault with the prospectus of the Pulitzer school of journalism is that the president of Harvard university was selected to map out the course. The general opinion seems to be that Mr. Pulitzer himself or some other leader of the newspaper world who knows how newspapers are made and ought to be made would have been the best architect.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞The boodle Mayor of Minneapolis, who was sentenced to prison for six years, as a penalty for his misdeeds, and appealed for a new trial, has been given an adverse decision, and he continues to work for the State of Minnesota. He will appeal to the Supreme Court, but as that body ruled against his brother, whose case was similar, there can be but little hope for him. Six years was a light sentence for his crimes, and he should consider himself lucky to get off so easily.—Lynn Item.

☞It was time that the people of Massachusetts were aroused to the fact that the legislature has been spending altogether too much money. The commonwealth sets the pace, and towns and cities follow suit. In a number of places, the property owners are not aware of the extent to which they are being plucked, since there are ways by which the manipulation of the tax rate for political effect, tends to conceal the actual state of affairs. Current obligations, for instance, are bonded, bills are shoved upon the incoming administration, while the tax rate is juggled with on lines so familiar that these scarcely need recounting. But there must be a day of settlement, and the property owner is obliged to stand in the breach.—Salem News.

—Postmaster Gen. Payne has decided to make the experiment of employing baggagemen on trains which are not provided with mail clerks to take charge of and deliver open newspaper mail. This decision has been reached after much consideration and in response to a petition filed by many of the leading newspaper publishers of the country who asked the postoffice department to provide facilities for distributing open bundles of papers along the lines from trains which carry only closed pouches.—Hyde Park Times.

UNKNOWN TO SCIENCE

A New Plague Said to Have Appeared In Cuba

SURPRISE AT WASHINGTON

Records of Marine Hospital Service Make No Allusion to Mysterious and Deadly Disease Which Is Said to Have Baffl d Best Medical Skill

Washington, Sept. 2.—The report that a new plague menaces Cuba, unknown to science and more deadly than yellow fever, as set forth in one of the morning newspapers, comes as a complete surprise to the marine hospital service, whose headquarters are in this city. Dr. Wyman at once telegraphed to the chief health officer of the island of Cuba for information regarding the report and also ordered a search made of the records of his office to see if there had been an allusion made to such an outbreak.

Nothing was found, although the marine hospital service has agents stationed at different Cuban ports, including Santiago, which is not far from Daiquiri, where the plague is said to have first appeared. Dr. Wyman hesitates to express any opinion as to the probable nature of the malady until some particulars are obtained from Cuba.

The story to which the foregoing refers is substantially as follows:

Menaced by a disease which has baffled the best medical skill of the island, the health department officials of Cuba have appealed to the authorities of Columbia university and Jefferson medical college of Philadelphia for aid in determining the nature of the disease. The most eminent pathologists and bacteriologists of those institutions are working, says the report, in conjunction with the medical authorities of the marine hospital and public health department of the United States government in an effort to determine the nature of the disease.

All the details of the investigation are refused. The disease in many of its symptoms resembles bubonic plague, but it is said to be more swift in its progress and more deadly in its effects. It first appeared some months ago in the isolated town of Daiquiri, province of Santiago. Men employed in the iron mines in that locality were affected. The disease did not yield to treatment, and the mortality was greater than in yellow fever or any kindred disease. The inhabitants became panic stricken, and an American steel company with large interests there took up the matter. Reference to the New York and Philadelphia experts followed.

Their description of the disease furnished by the Cuban physicians shows that it presents the worst symptoms of yellow fever, black fever and spotted fever. The patient is usually dead in a few hours after the first complaining of illness, and turns a bright yellow after death. It is in the death that the disease presents its most horrible phase. The victim's pulse rate rushes to 160, a heart beat which is deemed almost impossible by physicians of experience. The respiration counts 58. These organic disturbances, together with a temperature of 107 and 108, do not cause instant death, but the high fever generated soon burns out life. The disease always attacks persons who have suffered from intermittent malarial fever.

No Plague, Says Finlay

Havana, Sept. 2.—Dr. Finlay, the head of the health department, says there is no foundation for statements published in the United States that a disease resembling plague had developed at Daiquiro. There are no cases of fever there except of the ordinary kind.

AVERAGE SPEED OF 16.42

Made by Cruiser Cleveland In Her Official Trial Run

Portland, Me., Sept. 2.—The cruiser Cleveland, built at the Bath Iron works and designed for service in tropical waters, made her official trial run on the Cape Ann course, with a four-hour run against the requirement that she develop a speed of 16.5 knots under service conditions. A break in an air pump attached to the port engine delayed her by more than a minute and she was obliged to deviate from the course by a schooner which ran across her bows, but she logged an average of 16.42 knots for the four hours, while during the best part of the test she made 16.65 knots, the maximum for the trip. These figures do not include the tidal corrections, which will undoubtedly be in favor of the ship.

For some minutes previous to reaching the starting line she had been logging 16.25 knots, and she crossed it at her best speed. Going up the course from Cape Porpoise to Cape Ann, a distance of 33 miles, the Cleveland's engines worked well and everything was going handsomely when a clog occurred in the air pump and the engine had to be slowed down to allow for repairs, though the starboard engine kept moving at top speed. The end of the course was turned in good time and the ship began what was evidently to be the best of her run.

But here once more luck was against her. The skipper of the three-masted schooner General Adelbert Ames ran straight across the cruiser's bow, forcing her to leave her course and make a wide detour inshore. Here another minute and a half was lost and this was deducted from the elapsed time which will go into the official figuring.

The rest of the run was uneventful.

Dissatisfied With Booker Washington

Boston, Sept. 2.—An enthusiastic meeting of the Suffrage league of Boston was held here last night. A resolution was adopted declaring that "since President Roosevelt has given Booker T. Washington charge of the appointment of all negroes of whatever state in the union, and has made him the negro advisor as to all policies affecting colored Americans in the interests of our race, we call upon President Roosevelt to dispense with Mr. Washington as our political spokesman. We desire to record our profound dissatisfaction with the Republican party for its silence and inaction in respect to the destruction of our constitutional rights by the southern oligarchy."

Victims of Electric Cars

Boston, Sept. 2.—Mrs. Mary Nickerson, 60 years of age, was struck by the fender of a Roxbury bound car last night. She was carried underneath the car and dragged for some distance, being horribly mangled. Passengers assisted in lifting the car from the tracks. The woman was found still conscious and she even thanked those who rendered her assistance. She died six hours later. Miss A. Monahan was fatally injured by jumping from a car last night. Her head struck the pavement, fracturing the skull.

Boy Accidentally Shot Mother

Naugatuck, Conn., Sept. 2.—Mrs. J. H. Kenney, wife of a prominent business man, was accidentally shot in the face by her son, Raymond, aged 12. A slight variation in the bullet's course would have resulted in immediate death, the physicians say. It is thought the injury will not be fatal. The boy has been hysterical since the shooting. Mrs. Kenney says he was playing with a 22-calibre rifle and pulled the trigger when the muzzle of the weapon was within three feet of her face.

The Magoun relatives seek to break the will.

Derby, Conn., Sept. 2.—While going home from a theatre with a party of friends last night, Antonio Daske, aged 19, dropped dead on the street of heart disease. He was in poor health and the excitement caused by his interest in the melodrama as a spectator is supposed to have led to his death.

Held For Kansas Authorities

DID NOT MAKE SPEED

Cruiser Cleveland of the Des Moines Class Fails on Trial.

Accident marred the trial trip of the Cruiser Cleveland, built at Bath, on Tuesday, and she failed to make the required speed. The torpedo boat destroyer Lawrence was the stake boat at the start.

The Cleveland is one of the six sheathed protected cruisers, the construction of which was authorized by an act of Congress approved March 3, 1899, the other five being the Denver, Des Moines, Chattanooga, Galveston and Tacoma. Her principal dimensions are: Length on water line, 292 feet; over all length, 308 feet 9 inches; beam moulded, 43 feet 3 1-4 inches; beam extreme, 44 feet.

The Cruiser Des Moines built at the Quincy shipyard should be ready for her trial next month.

Damaged by Smoke.

The alarm Tuesday afternoon from box 171 was for a fire in the double house of William Harkins at Nos. 14 and 16 Main street. It started in a bedroom closet in the rear of the first floor occupied by the Laboski family. No one was at home at the time, and a hot fire was in progress when the department arrived, and the smoke was dense. A well directed chemical stream quickly put out the fire with slight loss, but the smoke permeated every room and caused considerable damage. The Quincy Point and Wollaston apparatus as well as the central station were promptly on hand had their services been needed. The young man who gave the alarm broke the key box with his hand and cut his hand.

KILLED FROM AMBUSH

Fate of Negro Educator Who Is Said to Have Incurred Whites' Hatred

Memphis, Sept. 2.—A special to The Commercial Appeal from New Roads, La., gives particulars regarding the assassination of L. A. Planving near Oscar, La., by unknown persons.

Planving was principal of the Pointe Coupee Industrial college, an institution for the education of negroes. While on his way home Sunday night on the main road near False River he was fired upon from a cotton field. The first shot struck the horse which the negro was riding and the second struck Planving in the back of the head, causing instant death. It is claimed that Planving had been making incendiary speeches to the negroes of the community, advising them not to work for or to have anything to do with white people, and it is believed that these alleged utterances had much to do with the assassination.

Booker T. Washington was to have visited this vicinity next month as the guest of Planving, to deliver a series of lectures.

Stamford, Conn., Sept. 2.—The reported murder at Oscar, La., of Rev. LaForest A. Planving, head of the industrial school for colored people in that town, will be made the subject of a communication from Rev. C. J. Ryder, D. D., of this city, corresponding secretary of the American Missionary association, to Governor Heard of Louisiana. Dr. Ryder's information about the murder is limited to a brief dispatch containing the bare announcement of the fact.

Postal Investigation Drags

Washington, Sept. 2.—A number of inspectors who have been investigating the affairs of the office of assistant attorney general for the postoffice department have been in consultation with Assistant United States District Attorney Taggart regarding postal matters by the grand jury. It is now anticipated that no decision of the jury will be reported before Friday. Mr. Bristow refuses to venture an opinion as to when the investigation can be closed or when his report can be placed in the hand of the postmaster general.

Agreement Violated by Miners

Kansas City, Sept. 2.—Six hundred coal miners in the Novinger district in northeastern Missouri have refused to go to work, violating the agreement made between the operators and President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers last week, that the men remain at work until the end of the conference to meet here on Sept. 10. This conference is to discuss differences affecting the 10,000 miners in Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas and Indian Territory.

Aimed at Negro Institutions

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 2.—Representative Wood introduced in the Alabama legislature a bill which seeks to take from the Tuskegee normal school, of which Booker Washington is the head, the annual appropriation of $1500 which it receives from the state agricultural fund. The bill seeks also to deprive the negro normal college at Montgomery of $1000 from the same source. The bill was referred to the committee on education.

Beef Trust's Opponents

Kansas City, Sept. 2.—Twenty-five stockmen from different parts of the western grass country met in this city and arranged to perfect the organization of a packing company to compete with the alleged packers' trust. The new company was named the Independent Packing company. The company will have a capital stock of $5,000,000 and will be incorporated under the laws of Arizona.

THE MAINE MAN HUNT

Promises to Have a Successful Termination

SKULKING ALONG RAILROAD

Railway Station Agent and Members of Two Families Saw Assailant of Nina Hamblen and Posted Pursuers, Who Are Close on His Trail

Gorham, Me., Sept. 2.—Monday night's vigil and the subsequent relentless search for the assailant of Nina Hamblen, the 9-year-old child who was brutally beaten and outraged within a half mile of her father's house, has been successful so far as establishing within a limited area the whereabouts of the assailant.

The police are satisfied that the man wanted is skulking along the line of the Boston and Maine railroad between West Kennebunk and North Berwick, watching for an opportunity to jump a Boston freight train, but frequently driven to cover by the proximity of his determined pursuers. To this locality the man was followed and at one time the officers were less than an hour behind him. From the numerous reports, many unreliable and misleading, the officers followed the most plausible clew and at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon hit upon the trail exactly.

At 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon a stranger, identified to almost a certainty as the hunted man, stopped at the Five Points station of the Biddeford and Saco electric railway. Harry Clark, the station agent, who conducts a small store in connection with his railroad duties, told the officers an hour later that a stranger answering to the minutest detail the description shown him by the officers, called at his place, and purchased a glass of ginger ale. The man was fairly well dressed but his clothes suggested that he had been sleeping in the woods. His customer appeared much exhausted, excited and in a hurry. He drank the soda hastily, proferred a nickel in payment and hurried down the road toward the town of Alfred.

The officers at once started down the Alfred road. A half mile from Five Points they learned from Mrs. Ross, the wife of a farmer, that more than an hour before the man had passed through the covered bridge at the Boston and Maine crossing near her home. The family had been watching the passing of the Fort Ethan Allen artillery, bound home from Portland, and said that the man was perhaps an eighth of a mile in the rear of the artillery.

Half a mile further on the officers stopped at the home of Peter Sewers, at the junction of Mountain and Alfred roads. The family had noticed the same man passing not more than 40 minutes before. A short distance beyond the Sewers' home men were working near the road and they were sure the stranger had not passed them. Between the Sewers' home and where the men were at work a path leads from the road in a short cut route to the tracks of the Boston and Maine railroad and it was evident that the pursued man, wishing to avoid the men in the field, took the path leading from the road and made for the tracks. Station agents along the route have been notified and are keeping a sharp lookout.

The Portland police have sent a description of the assailant to the authorities throughout the state and Sheriff Pennell advertised a reward of $100 for his capture. The incentive of a reward, however, can add little to the determination of the citizens of this section to have the man dead or alive.

The victim of the assault is improved and the physicians hold out hopes of her ultimate recovery.

A patent was issued this week to Albert Nelson of this city.

ONCE MORE CALLED OFF

Wind Too Light to Warrant Starting Race For the Cup

New York, Sept. 2.—The attempt yesterday to sail the third and probably final race of the series for the America's cup was a failure. There was not wind enough even to make it worth while to send the yachts across the line. A small fleet of excursion steamers, poorly patronized, and a few steam yachts convoyed the racers to Sandy Hook lightship and then hopelessly waited for a fair sailing breeze. A heavy pall of haze and mist hung over a sea with a surface like glass. An absolute calm was varied at intervals by faint winds from the southeast and southwest. Reliance and Shamrock III never dropped their towlines.

There was no sign either of wind or lifting of the foggy haze when at 12:30 the committee tug Navigator asked the assent of the racing skippers to a postponement and, securing it, signalled that the race was off and that another attempt to sail it would be made today. The discouraged fleet quickly started for home.

Caught With the Goods

Rochester, Sept. 2.—Three arrests were made at Honeoye Falls by United States officials. William Atkinson and wife and Millie Whitebrick, their boarder, are accused of counterfeiting. The home of the Atkinsons is in a secluded glen. The alleged counterfeiters were surprised by the officers, who secured halves, quarters, nickels and dimes and captured the mill. They were arraigned before Commissioner Hubbard last night and each held in $5000 bail.

President Finds Plenty to Do

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 2.—Tuesday was one of President Roosevelt's quietest week days during his summer sojourn at Sagamore Hill. No formal callers were received. The president embraced the opportunity to attend to a considerable amount of departmental business that had been referred to him and dispose of a mass of correspondence. The work in the executive offices here has become so heavy that it has been necessary to increase the force of clerks.

First Non-Union Glass Factory

Pittsburg, Sept. 2.—Notwithstanding the combined efforts of the window glass manufacturers and workers to keep all factories closed until late in the year, the Van Cleve factory at Kane has resumed in full. As a result it will be the first non-union glass factory in the history of the industry since the powerful organization of skilled glass workers was formed more than a quarter of a century ago.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION.

New Courses to Be Studied at Columbia University.

FOUR WOMEN ARE ON THE STAFF.

Hygiene of School and Outdoor Living to Be Taught—"Hygiene A" a Sample Plan of the Study—Bodily Failings to Be Corrected.

The increasing prominence of school hygiene as a field of instruction is indicated by the announcement that Columbia university has formed a department for the study of physical education in the Columbia gymnasium, the new gymnasium in the James Speyer experimental school and the projected Frederick Ferris Thompson memorial building, says the New York Post. At the head of the work will be Dr. Thomas Denison Wood of Teachers' college, who will be assisted by an adjunct professor, two instructors and six assistants. Dr. George L. Meylan, the adjunct professor, has been connected with Harvard university. Four of the staff are women, who will instruct students of Barnard and Teachers' colleges and the women graduate students of Columbia university proper.

The scope of the work can best be shown by the outline of a single course, "Hygiene A." Dr. Meylan makes the following announcement:

The aim of the course is to give the student instruction in the principles governing the care of the body, to the end that the highest degree of mental and physical efficiency may be obtained. The body will be studied as an organism and as a machine. The study will not be from the standpoint of anatomy or physiology. Only a broad outline of the structure and functions of the body will be given, and that only as a basis for the application of hygiene. The course will include a full discussion of the following topics: Muscular activity, its uses, its aims, its methods and the relative value of the various forms of exercise, general and special; feeding, nutritive value of various foods, relative value of various beverages, the effects of alcohol on the organism, dietaries and the abuse of stimulants and narcotics; sleep and rest, the expenditure and recuperation of energy, the general regulation of nervous activity; bathing, fresh and salt water bathing, sponge, tub, shower, douche and plunge baths, thermal baths, the value and danger of the morning cold bath; clothing, heat radiation, conservation of energy in the body, uses of clothing for protection and adornment; sanitary conditions of the home, the site, construction, plumbing, heating and ventilation; the adaptation of man to the changed conditions of his environment in the cities during the last hundred years, the change from outdoor to indoor life, the greatly increased demand for nervous energy, with a corresponding decreased demand for muscular energy; the influence of heredity, extent to which mental, moral and physical characteristics are inherited; the influence of climate on the organism, acclimation, organs most affected by different climates; tropical, cold, temperate, dry, moist climates, fertile and sterile soils, sea air and mountain air, healthful and unhealthful climates; protective measures against infectious diseases, the germ theory of disease, communicable and contagious diseases, immunity, serums, vaccination, boards of health, duties of citizens concerning quarantine regulations, water and gas supply, inspection of milk and foods.

A course by Professor Wood will treat of the physical organization of the child—laws of heredity, growth and development, home conditions necessary to the child's health, school environment, functions of the school physician, prevention of disease and deformity by hygienic surroundings, healthful postures and activities, adaptation of gymnastic exercises to the different grades and the regulation of athletics.

Particular attention will be paid to the correction of bodily failings of abnormal and deficient children. A special course in anthropometry has been arranged for this purpose. It will include the recording of personal and family history, measuring and testing the body, observation of organic conditions and physical signs, tabulation of statistics, use of graphic methods for representing bodily conditions and changes, individual prescription of exercise and hygienic regimen, corrective exercises for common deformities, such as round shoulders and spinal curvature; adaptation of movements for functional disorders and special nervous conditions. Students will have practical experience in all of the different methods and procedures studied.

Twelve hours of instruction will be offered each week to underclassmen in the classical and scientific schools of Columbia university proper. Besides class work in the university gymnasium, these students are given an opportunity to learn, free of charge, the elements of boxing, fencing, wrestling and swimming. The medical director, in addition, will hold office hours daily, acting as a consultant and adviser to any student seeking his services. Each student will be entitled to a physical examination, on the basis of which the general hygienic regimen and physical exercise best suited to his peculiar needs will be prescribed.

Rubber Heels For Students.

With the opening of the new school year in western Iowa a crusade in behalf of rubber heels for school children will be started, and the movement promises to spread over the state and find ready indorsement in the hundreds of schools of Iowa, says an Iowa Falls (Ia.) dispatch. It is maintained by those back of this innovation that such a move is essential if order and quietude are maintained in the schoolrooms during school hours. The movement seems popular wherever it has been introduced, and aside from the noise and commotion that are avoided by the change the saving to the general system of the student is a big item, as it does away with the jar usual with the leather heel.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

CLEVELAND ON FISHING.

Ex-President Says He Has Only Contempt For His Derilders.

Grover Cleveland made merry with the members and guests of the Old Colony club at a clambake on Marshall's island the other day, says a special dispatch from Bourne, Mass., to the New York Times. The feature of the day was a short humorous address he made. Mr. Cleveland said in part:

"For a number of years I have been honored with membership in the Old Colony club, but this is the first time that I have attended one of its clambakes. Therefore I rise full of clams, hot corn and enthusiasm for the welfare of the Old Colony club and zeal for its interests.

"I hope that the club will persevere in its efforts toward the unremitting preservation of the Buzzards bay fisheries, and I am willing to take out all the benefits of the club in fishing. Within the past few years I have been widely jeered and derided for spending so much of my time at fishing. For those who jeer and deride me I have only a quiet and unqualified contempt. I go fishing because I like it, and I hope that I will continue to go fishing until as near the end of the chapter as possible.

"I should like to say right here that I am more interested in the protection of the fishing at Buzzards bay than about our hoary headed infant industries. I care more for these fishing interests than I do about the policy of the next federal administration. I hope that the Old Colony club will keep up its fight for the protection of the fisheries. Let there be no relaxations or compromise. Keep up the fight unceasingly.

"Perhaps some of you are aware that an interesting event has recently taken place in our domestic circle. I am proud to say that another future fisherman has quite lately increased the population of Buzzards Bay by one. Now, some people are in the habit of telling fish stories, and some people, notably a well known physician of my acquaintance, are accustomed to weigh their catch of fish on their own private scales. Although this happy event was not the occasion for telling any unusual yarns, I put my fish scales into requisition and weighed my latest catch honestly, and the tally was an even nine pounds."

Before the merriment had subsided the presiding officer, Joseph Jefferson, who had kept moving nervously about on his seat, rose to a point of order and stated dryly that it was "quite natural for the son of a fisherman to be weighed with scales."

LIPTON HELPED HER.

How Irish Baronet Assisted Southern Girl In Getting a Home.

Among the arrivals at New York on the steamer Philadelphia the other day was Miss Reata Winfield, an attractive southern girl of considerable talent as a violinist, says the New York Commercial Advertiser. She went to London last February expecting to meet with success. The engagements failed, and she became penniless. She told the following story of her experineces in London:

"I took my little violin and went out to play on the street corners of London, hoping to secure enough to keep life in my body. The first penny I received was given me by a colored man. You can imagine the feelings of a southern girl at such a humiliation. Finally I caught a severe cold and had an attack of typhoid fever. I was cared for in Charing Cross hospital. When I recovered I secured work at £1 a week in a restaurant. A gentleman who heard my story called the attention of Sir Thomas Lipton to my plight, and he came to my assistance. It is through his kindness that I am once more in my native land. He is the first person I shall look up, and I shall depend on his advice how and where to resume my musical career."

A Plant Disliked by Mosquitoes.

A consular report to the state department at Washington says that the Deutsche Kolonial Zeitung reports the finding in north Nigeria of a plant (ocimumviride) two or three of which when placed in a room or on a veranda will remove mosquitoes. The effect is produced by the odor exhaled. This resembles thymian and eucalyptus. The natives extract an essence from the plant that is an excellent substitute for quinine. It is not only equal in its effects, but it lacks many of quinine's disagreeable attributes. The Deutsche Ostafrika Zeitung reports that a great many natives are familiar with a mosquito plant, called by them "rumbasi," which has similar properties to the one above described.

The Summer of 1903.

It will be a fine thing when the years have slipped by
And a new generation appears to the eye,
As happy as happy can be,
To tell, while young hearts are with sympathy warmed,
Of the year when the summer got good and reformed,
The summer of nineteen-three.

The zephyrs that used to be parched were so mild
That they seemed like the sigh of a comforted child
As they swept o'er the blossoming lea,
And the sky overhead as it smiled on the bay
With a canopied cloud kept the sunshine away,
The summer of nineteen-three.

It was like some old rogue who is changing his mind
And resolves to be generous, gentle and kind,
To atone for a life overfree;
And, though some backslidings occurred now and then,
It cooled off and tried not to do it again,
The summer of nineteen-three.

What It Costs
... AND ...
What It Pays

are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchant has to consider. But the most important thing is

WHAT IT PAYS.

The merchant can get space in papers of small circulation and little influence for a little less money than the same size space would cost in the DAILY LEDGER and the QUINCY PATRIOT.

DOES IT PAY

to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in a cheaper paper?

VISIT FROM A MADMAN

A Startling Incident at the Summer White House

HAD A LOADED REVOLVER

Made Three Persistent Demands That He Be Permitted to See Chief Executive—Ample Demonstration of Wisdom of a Guard Over President

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 3.—The examination of Frank Weilbrenner, who was arrested at Sagamore Hill late Tuesday night while making a persistent demand to see President Roosevelt and was armed with a revolver fully loaded, was held yesterday afternoon. Dr. G. A. Stewart and Dr. I. S. Barnes conducted the examination.

Weilbrenner's brother William was present. Justice Franklin questioned the prisoner about his movements Tuesday night. His replies were made in a quiet tone of voice, but they indicated that the man is crazy. Asked why he went to Sagamore Hill, he explained that he wished to marry Miss Alice Roosevelt.

Weilbrenner was declared by them to be insane. He will be placed immediately in the custody of Sheriff Johnson of Nassau county. His committal to a sanitarium will have to be made by the county court.

Weilbrenner is five feet eight inches high, 28 years old, has a medium-sized dark moustache, black eyes and evidently is of German descent. He resides in Syosset, about five miles inland from Oyster Bay. He was well dressed in a suit of dark material and wore an old-fashioned derby hat.

Weilbrenner was taken to Mineola, L. I., last evening and placed in the custody of the county authorities.

It appears that President Roosevelt was aware of the trouble the secret service officer had with Weilbrenner. After the man had been turned back the second time, despite his insistence that he had an engagement with the president, the officer, to make assurance doubly sure, inquired of the president about him. Mr. Roosevelt was in his library, only a short distance from the spot where the officer had stopped Weilbrenner's horse and buggy. He told the officer he had no engagement with anybody.

When Weilbrenner returned a third time with a demand that he be permitted to see the president, the officer seized him and drew him out of the vehicle over the front wheel. The noise of the scuffle attracted the president's attention. He appeared at the door overlooking the driveway from the veranda as Weilbrenner was being taken to the stables, but returned to the library almost immediately.

Weilbrenner has been practicing with his revolver recently, but he would give no reason for his interest in marksmanship and said he could not shoot very well. A revolver was found in his buggy.

It appears that one of his brothers, who attended his examination, is a metal worker and belongs to a labor union in Brooklyn. Some time ago he lost his position and went with his wife to his father's farm at Syosset. The farm is a good one, but the family is in debt for it and the father, Henry Weilbrenner, and the son who was arrested have been working hard to lift the indebtedness. The son from Brooklyn is said to have talked a good deal to his brother recently about labor unions and about the loss of his position. It is thought that the hard work and the trouble over the farm indebtedness had something to do with unsettling young Weilbrenner's mind.

The Weilbrenner incident is the first serious occurrence of the kind during the president sojourn at Sagamore Hill. It has demonstrated completely, in the opinion of officials here, the wisdom of the close and systematic guard which is maintained at all times over the president. He is exposed frequently, it is true, to assault, but every care that human agencies can devise is exercised constantly to insure his personal safety and immunity from danger. Personally he was not perturbed by the Weilbrenner incident, but, although the maintenance of the guard is often distasteful to him, he thoroughly realizes the necessity in the circumstances of having made as certain as possible the personal safety of the President of the United States.

Naval Officers Lose Their Case

Rome, Sept. 3.—The trial of Deputy Ferri, editor of a Socialist paper, on a charge of libelling the navy, brought against him by 35 naval officers, resulted late last night in judgment in favor of Ferri, on the ground that the officers were not entitled to bring a suit against the defendant in virtue of accusations which he brought against the whole navy.

German Rule Made Odious

Berlin, Sept. 3.—Incidents in the rigid anti-French administration of Alsace-Lorraine, such as prohibiting the wearing of French uniforms on the stage or using the French language on shop signs, have caused many German newspapers recently to reproach the government for unnecessarily irritating the sensibilities of the population of the annexed provinces.

PARRY NOT FRIGHTENED

Says Any Would-Be Assailant Will Require Services of an Undertaker

Indianapolis, Sept. 3.—When asked as to the rumor that he was receiving threatening letters warning him to cease his attacks on organized labor, President Parry of the National Manufacturers' association said:

"All I have to say is that the man or men who enter my premises to abduct any of my children will leave the place dead, for that is the order given the men at my home. I get letters almost daily which make some sort of threat against me, but I pay no attention to them. The men who write them are cowards and a coward is not a serious consideration with me.

"Still there is no telling what some fool may do, so I have taken precautions to place myself on equal terms with them in case one of them breaks loose. I have never tried to detect who the persons are who are directing these letters to me. However, it is but natural to believe that at least a part of them were incited by some people who are revengefully disposed towrd me because of my labor views.

"If an attack is made, you will see me in at the finish and the assailant is more than likely to be stretched out at full length awaiting the attention of the undertaker."

RELIANCE

Crosses First in Race Today.

And Soon Had a Good Lead.

Wind 5 Knots at Start and Increased to 8 Knots.

Today will probably finish up the International Cup races at New York, unless the Shamrock wins a leg. At 11 A. M., there was not sufficient wind to warrant starting the race but at 12.36 the signal was given for the start.

12.50 P. M.—When the signal was given for the start the wind was southeast and blowing about 5 knots. The wind is increasing and is now 7 knots.

Time at Start.

1.10 P. M.—The unofficial time at the start of the race was:

Reliance	1	01	10
Shamrock	1	01	40

Reliance to Windward.

1.15 P. M.—The yachts crossed the line flying the large club topsails. The Reliance was to windward.

BOB WRINGE, THE FAMOUS BRITISH TAR WHO CAPTAINS SHAMROCK III.

CAPTAIN CHARLEY BARR, SKIPPER OF RELIANCE.

A Good Lead.

1.24 P. M.—The Reliance has obtained a lead of one-eighth of a mile. The sails of both boats are well filled and the breeze is freshening.

Shamrock Bothered.

1.30 P. M.—The ground swell seems to hold the Shamrock back. She is making more fuss than the Reliance.

1.40 P. M.—The Reliance has increased her lead to one-quarter of a mile. She has just changed her baby jib for one of intermediate size. The wind has freshened and now blows 8 knots. Both yachts are making good time.

Now Nine Knots.

1.50 P. M.—Wind has now hauled to east of south, and has freshened to 9 knots.

2 P. M.—Eight miles of the 15 miles to the windward have been covered. The Reliance does not appear to be making any gain. A fog is setting in Half a Mile Ahead.

2.10 P. M.—The Reliance is now half a mile ahead. Both boats have gone on starboard tack.

Ten-Knot Breeze.

2.15 P. M.—The wind is now 10 knots, and the yachts are travelling very fast.

Official Time.

2.30 P. M.—The official time at the start was:

GRAND LAWN PARTY

By the St. Mary's Parish at West Quincy.

Base Ball, Sports and a Band.

The Tables and Those Who Were in Charge.

The old saying that success comes to him who waits, might well be applied to the lawn party under the auspices of St. Mary's church. The affair was to have been held last week but bad weather made it advisable to twice postpone it.

It came off Wednesday, and a better day would have been hard to find. The party was held on the Ward Four playground, and while no admission could be charged there were few who did not willingly contribute the price of an admission ticket.

There was a large crowd of children present during the afternoon, and they had their fill of fun. Especially interesting was it when Henry H. Faxon appeared upon the scene with his pockets full of tickets that he gave out and agreed to redeem for the price printed on the face. From the time that he arrived until he departed he was surrounded by a crowd of several hundred boys and girls who chased him about, their hands extended for tickets.

Rev. Fr. Roche and Officers Barry and Hinchon in turn tried to keep them from pressing him too hard, but they met with but little success. He finally took refuge on the plazza of an adjoining house, from which they at last drove him into the house.

With all the pushing and crowding the "Old Man" seemed to enjoy himself, and his face bore a smile and the flush of youth. If he wants to find children to treat, West Quincy is certainly the place.

Near the entrance to the ground was a long tent and in it tables were arranged for the sale of various articles. They were in charge of the following women:

Confectionery table,—Mrs. Edward Bryan, Miss Josie Barry, Miss Elizabeth McNeil, Miss Lulu Barry, Miss Nellie Pickering, Miss Bertha Dinene, Miss Rose Sullivan, Miss Lillie Falvey, and Miss Mary Drohan.

Ice Cream table,—Mrs. R. J. Teasdale, Mrs. Edward Buckley, Mrs. Phillip Garrity, Mrs. John Ryan, Mrs. John W. Burke, Miss Rose Morrissey, Miss Catherine Kelley, Mrs. M. F. O'Brien, Miss B. Walsh, Miss Nellie, Morrissey, Miss M. Reiley, Miss May King, Miss

The experts tell us that at two years of age the child's head measure and chest measure should be the same. About thirty years later the child begins to have trouble to keep his waist measure down to his chest measure and some men have the same difficulty with their head measure.

President Roosevelt went to Oyster Bay to rest. Since he arrived there he has consulted seven cabinet officers, one diplomat, two governors, nine senators and five clerks, four lawyers, six financiers, nine soldiers and twenty-one assorted notables. Such a vacation would put many men out of the race.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ However much may be accomplished by the school of journalism to be founded at Columbia university by Joseph Pultizer, it is not likely to entirely supersede the school which has found favor so long and from which so many have graduated—the newspaper office.—Manchester Union.

☞ In spite of drawbacks, business prospects are encouraging. Labor agitation is subsiding, and coming back to reason. Capital is likely to make smaller profits, but the volume of business promises to be large, and our industries are all well employed. Should prices of manufactured products decline to more normal figures the effect would be advantageous, inasmuch as consumption would be stimulated while excessive new competition would be discouraged by more normal profits.—Henry Clews.

☞ Probably the best thing that could happen to organized labor in the long run would be the complete opening of the printing office and other government shops. Half of the abuses there which are perpetrated in the name of organized labor are really political abuses, and the union is made the instrument to prevent reforms, and will just so long as the shops are distinctly union. The work is made to drag and wastefulness encouraged, not because any true union interest is thereby promoted, but because the politicians want to make work for proteges, and, having them organized in a local association called a labor union, use them to denounce effort at reform as an attack on organized labor. Thus organized labor is discredited and made to appear the patron of "graft," the defrauder of the taxpayer and the enemy of the country. If an oath of loyalty to the government can be made to block the misuse of labor unions by adventurers within them, unionists in general have reason to hope for its universal administration. —New York Tribune.

NEWS IN BRIEF

General Wade announ[ced] el Richard Eckr[t] Amo died o[f] Him from a Watery Grave.

The Hyde Park Advertiser relates the following particulars of a rescue from drowning in that town in which a former resident of Quincy was the hero:

Owing to the modesty of the principal actor in the scene, the details of an heroic rescue of a drowning boy, which occurred some three weeks ago, have been withheld from publicity. Witnesses of the brave act however, feeling that credit should be given where due, have disregarded the requests of the rescuer, that nothing be said about the matter, and a detailed statement of the facts in the case have been forwarded by them to the Humane Society, with a request that the medal of the society be awarded to Mr. Otis A. Edgerton, of this town.

Mr. Edgerton is employed in the wool sorting room of Robert Bleakin Co., near the railroad bridge over Mother brook. On the day in question, while engaged in his usual work, Mr. Edgerton heard cries of alarm from a group of small boys who were bathing near the bridge. He immediately jumped through an open window, and seeing one of the boys, Grover W. McCormick, who had been seized by the swift and treacherous current at that point, about to sink for the third time, sprang into the water.

Landing in several feet of water and sticky mud, he at once struck out to swim to the the assistance of the drowning boy, and notwithstanding being hampered by his working clothes and the clinging mud, he quickly reached the point at which the little fellow sank. He located young McCormick and dived for him, bringing the limp form to the surface, thence to the shore. The water at this point is deep and the current swift and strong, and it was no light task to swim ashore with his burden fully clad as he was.

Mr. Edgerton was inclined to make light of the incident, and asked that no publicity be given to the matter, but the witnesses, as before stated, felt that his bravery and presence of mind should be publicly recognized in some way. Young McCormack who is about 12 years old was soon able to go to his home nearby.

FAMINE IS THREATENED

In Addition to Turkish Persecution In Monastir

MORE VILLAGES BURNED

Reported Reverse For Insurgents at Smilove Now Appears to Have Been In Their Favor—Steamer Blown Up, Perhaps by Macedonians

Sofia, Sept. 3.—The reports published by The Dnevnik of a general rising in northern Macedonia is denied both in official and revolutionary circles. Well informed persons, however, assert that the report was correct, but that its premature publication disarranged the plans of the revolutionists and, therefore, it is denied.

According to reliable reports from Monastir thousands of Bulgarians in that vilayet are confronted with famine in addition to Turkish persecution. Peasants who are continually arriving from Monastir complain of the attitude of Hilmi Pasha and the Turkish atrocities.

The news is published here of an eight-hour fight which occurred at the village of Smilovo between 500 insurgents and eight battalions of Turkish troops, supported by artillery. Thirty-five insurgents are reported to have been killed, while 60 Turks were killed or wounded. On the following day the Turks returned and burned the village. Seven other villages in the neighborhood are said to have also been burned by the Turks.

According to a Salonica dispatch two days ago the Bulgarian insurgents sustained a serious reverse at Smilovo Aug. 28, when 1000 of them were said to have been killed, while the Turkish losses were insignificant.

The insurgents in the district of Adrianople appear to be less active. The Turks are pouring in an overwhelming force and the revolutionists are taking refuge in the mountains. The Bulgarian leader, Gergicoff, has been wounded and has fled to Burgas, Bulgaria.

The Russian government has declined to receive the visit of the deputation of Macedonian fugitives in Bulgaria, who proposed to go to St. Petersburg and inform the czar of the pitiable condition of Macedonia and beg his intervention. The deputation has been informed that the Russian government deems the visit quite unnecessary, as it quite understands the purpose of the deputation.

The insurgents, it is reported, have captured the seaport of Ahtaboly, near Vasiliko, on the Black sea, and the Turkish population has fled to Constantinople. The insurgents have organized a local government at the captured seaport and are giving ships their clearing papers and sanitary certificates.

The Dnevnik continues to report numbers of outrages on the part of Turkish soldiery in a number of villages.

Perhaps a Revolutionary Plot

Constantinople, Sept. 3.—Three explosions occurred on the Austrian steamer Vaskapu soon after leaving the Bulgarian port of Burgas, en route for Constantinople, by which 29 persons perished. The Vaskapu sailed from Varna, Bulgaria, and after calling at Burgas was steaming through the Black sea to Constantinople when the explosions occurred. The deck of the vessel took fire and she had to be run ashore at Misivriria bay, 18 miles north of Burgas, where she is still burning.

The destruction of the steamer is described here as a revolutionary outrage. The bomb was timed to burst while the steamer was in the port of Constantinople, but owing to the vessel being 20 hours late in starting from Varna the explosion occurred off Misivria bay.

Porte's Advice to Foreigners

Constantinople, Sept. 3.—The porte has sent a note to the foreign embassies and legations informing them that, according to police information, the Bulgarian agitators are projecting outrages against the embassies, legations and other public buildings in Constantinople. The note says the Ottoman government has taken precautions and requests the heads of the foreign missions to do likewise.

Quieting Down at Monastir

Saionica, Sept. 3.—The revolutionary movement in Monastir gives indications of extinguishment. Boris Sarafoff, who is now head of the two sections of the Macedonian general committee, has severely reproved the Monastir committee for its inactivity. Fifteen Bulgarian villages have been burned between Klissura and Kastoria.

Adrianople Said to Be Burning

Vienna, Sept. 3.—The Belgrade papers are again spreading sensational rumors that a portion of the town of Adrianople has been blown up and that the other part is burning. No confirmation of these reports is obtainable here.

Waiting For Leishman's Report

Washington, Sept. 3.—The administration has come to no decision regarding the disposition to be made of the American warships which are now sailing to Beirut. Whether the Brooklyn and San Francisco remain in Turkish waters will depend entirely upon the report which Minister Leishman makes concerning the situation in Turkey and the necessity which exists for warships to protect American interests.

Heavy Output of Coal

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 3.—During the month of August last the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Coal company's output of coal at the Woodward colliery was 64,000 tons, the largest tonnage ever mined by any single colliery in the Wyoming region. All the mines in this valley will continue to work full time during this year.

Baron's Sentence For Scorching

Paris, Sept. 3.—Baron Henri de Rothschild appeared in the police court here to answer the charge of automobile scorching. His defense was that he had a permit from the ministry of the interior as a doctor allowing him to disregard the speed regulations. He was, nevertheless, sentenced to one day's imprisonment and a fine of 10 francs.

Strangled In Straitjacket

Buffalo, Sept. 3.—John Kalf, 45 years old, a patient at the Buffalo state hospital, became violent and was placed in a straitjacket. Kalf's struggles worked one of the straps tightly about his neck. With his hands strapped to his sides he was unable to help himself and died of strangulation.

Clarke Acceptable to Bryan

Columbus, O., Sept. 3.—W. J. Bryan issued a statement accepting John H. Clarke as the Democratic candidate for United States senator to succeed Senator Hanna. He says Clarke differs from the Kansas City platform on one phase of the money question only, viz: metallic money.

Counterfeit on New Bedford Bank

Washington, Sept. 3.—The secret service has received a new counterfeit $10 national bank note on the Mechanics' National bank of New Bedford, Mass. The series is of 1882. It is a good photograph on plain paper, no fibre; numbers, seal and panel of back tinted with thin colors.

German Soldiers Guilty of Treason

Berlin, Sept. 3.—The sergeant and six privates who were recently arrested for treason at Metz have confessed that they stole two bombs, with the new secret fuses attached, for an agent of France.

The sisters in charge of the sanitarium could give no explanation for the shooting. Coroner Miller and a jury rendered a verdict of murder and suicide.

Shaw on Financial Question

Chicago, Sept. 3.—Two hundred business men listened to Secretary of the Treasury Shaw talk on "The Business Outlook" at a banquet given here last night. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. PIERCE--McINTOSH.

A Boston Young Man Comes to Quincy for His Bride.

Wednesday evening, September 2, Mr. Edwin Edward Pierce of Boston and Isabella A. McIntosh of Quincy were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Edwin N. Hardy of Bethany Congregational church of Quincy, and the home of the bride's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McIntosh of Franklin street, was the scene of the wedding festivities.

Many friends and relatives of the happy couple were gathered together to celebrate the auspicious occasion. Under an arch of white asters embellished with bay leaves and other floral settings, the bride and groom escorted by the maid of honor and best man, were placed, and the happy couple took the vows that made then as one.

The bride was beautifully arrayed in white silk lansdown, with trimmings of white cluny lace and carried flowers in sprays. The maid of honor, Miss Margaret McIntosh, cousin of the bride, wore cream silk dimity with trimmings of lace.

The inside decorations of the house were cut flowers and wall settings in vases. Supper followed the wedding ceremony after which an evening of song, instrumental music, and other gayeties were enjoyed by the large company.

At eleven o'clock the newly married pair left for the last train, en route to Saratoga, where they are to spend a short holiday. Mr. and Mrs. Pierce on leaving the house in a carriage were subjected to a mingled shower of blessings and rice. The carriage had the usual heyday decorations and some additions, which though of doubtful taste were nevertheless all in the way of jollying the fair young couple.

Among the many in the company were friends from Maine, Charlestown, Boston and Quincy. Mr. Howard Marks of Charlestown a long standing friend of Mr. Pierce was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McIntosh, parents of the bride, gave bountiful hospitality.

Among the guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barnicoat, Mrs. Thompson, Miss Annabella Henery, Miss Isabella McIntosh, Mr. and Mrs. Forbes Craig, Mr. and Mrs. John Mason, Mr. and Mrs. William Birnie, Mr. and Mrs. James McIntosh, Miss Christina Booth, Mrs. Florentia Rizzie, Miss Bertha Thompson.

Mrs. Hubert, Miss Lillie McIntosh, Mrs. Maud D. Dewson, Mr. Edwin D. Henry, Mr. Edwin MacIntosh, Mr. and and Mrs. Walter Weaver, Mr. Howard B. Marke, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McIntosh, Jr., Mr. Allen McIntosh, Mr. Harvey Field Dewson, Mr. and Mrs. William McIntosh, Mr. William Thompson, Mr. Alex. Booth, Mr. Walter L. Wood, Mr. G. M. Jastee, Mr. Robert Paul McCawn.

The bride travelled in a heavy dress of silver gray and coat to match. On their return to Quincy, where Mr. and Mrs. Pierce will have their residence, for some time at least, the bride will have many happy and reflective hours among the wealth of wedding presents she received.

The Red Men of Wollaston will initiate several candidates this evening.

POSSIBLE LYNCHING BEE

Nina Hamblen's Assailant Falls Into the Hands of Farmers

Portland, Me., Sept. 3.—The man hunt which the people of Gorham and vicinity have been keeping up since Friday last to find the man who committed the atrocious assault on 9-year-old Nina Hamblen on that day, has been without result so far, though every police officer in the county and hundreds of citizens are searching day and night for the man.

Last night the police received information that the man wanted may be making tracks for Boston along the line of the railroad, and the search was taken up with renewed vigor and some prospect of success.

In all directions officers and citizens are seeking the criminal with vigor, and if he is caught summary vengeance may be exacted. The child may die as a result of the man's assault, and this fact has spurred on the men in the chase.

Every farmer, heavily armed, is on the hunt. Horses and buggies are speeding over the county, each carriage containing a farmer ready to shoot if he sees the fugitive.

The southern and western part of the state is flooded with big printed circulars calling upon the citizens for aid. If the man is caught by any of the infuriated farmers a lynching bee may result.

House Robber Run Down

West Bridgewater, Mass., Sept. 3.—A man about 25 years old was detected robbing the home of Mrs. Mary Howland during Mrs. Howland's absence and was captured after an exciting chase by a neighbor. He was turned over to the police. Investigation developed that the house of Mrs. Hattie M. Keith, opposite the Howland home, had been robbed about the same time. The prisoner had on his person a number of small articles taken from the two houses.

Charlemont, Mass., Sept. 3.—The 34th annual gathering of the Old Folks' society was attended by more than 300 persons over 70 years old, by many over 80 and 90, and by two or three nearly a century old. Practically all towns in western Massachusetts and southern Vermont were represented.

Fined For Running Boxing Match

Boston, Sept. 3.—Nine men charged with illegally carrying on and promoting a boxing match at the Tammany Athletic club were arraigned before Judge Williams and found guilty on the two counts. They were fined $25 on each charge, making an aggregate of $450. All appealed.

Champion Makes a New Record

Revere, Mass., Sept. 3.—Albert Champion defeated James F. Moran in a 25 mile motor-paced race here last night, creating a new track record for the distance of 34:09 3-5. Champion gained about 80 yards in the first five miles, an advantage which he held to the finish.

Fatally Kicked by a Horse

Providence, Sept. 3.—William Polinski, 5 years old, while playing near a horse that was grazing in an open lot, got too close to the animal's heels and received a kick which fractured his skull, causing death.

A Lawyer's Unprofessional Conduct

Concord, N. H., Sept. 3.—The supreme court announces the disbarment of Albert P. Davis of Warner for the acceptance of a bribe and the improper use of knowledge obtained from a client.

Means Higher Prices For Cattle

Kansas City, Sept. 3.—The western cattlemen who propose to build a packing house of their own have agreed upon articles of incorporation for their packing company. Secretary Martin of the National Livestock association says the purpose of the company is not so much to fight the packing houses now in existence as to make the packers pay a reasonable price for cattle.

New Lease of Life For One

Richmond, Sept. 3.—Anders Finch, colored, was hanged at Boydton for an attempt at assault on Mrs. C. A. Geoghagen. "Doc" Bacon, another negro, was condemned to die with Finch for complicity in the crime, but was reprieved by the governor until Sept. 4.

Trunkmakers on Strike

Chicago, Sept. 3.—A strike of 700 trunkmakers, followed by a lockout, has tied up seven manufactories of trunks, satchels and dress-suit cases, practically crippling the industry in Chicago. Nearly 1000 men are idle.

African Cotton Trade Booming

Lagos, British West Africa, Sept. 3.—The development of the cotton trade in the interior is so great that the railroad officials have been obliged to run extra trains in order to bring down the large supplies to the coast.

No Easterners Elected

St. Paul, Sept. 3.—The National Society of the Army of the Philippines elected General Charles King of Wisconsin president. None of the new officers are from eastern states.

THE "MULL" HELD ON

Still Another Postponement of Probably Final Cup Contest

New York, Sept. 3.—The fourth attempt to sail what was expected to be the concluding race between Reliance and Shamrock failed miserably. They were not even sent across the line. Both were towed out to Sandy Hook lightship in a dense fog and flat calm, and then waited two hours in the hope of a wind from some other direction than the east to blow away the fog and give them speed enough to cover 30 miles within 5½ hours. The dwindling fleet was reduced to just 23 craft. Besides the New York Yacht club's tugs, the revenue cutters and the newspaper fleet, there was only one excursion steamer and a few yachts.

The two racing yachts held to their tow and circled about the fleet during the wait. The calm was varied only by a wind never exceeding three knots. At 12:30 the attempt was abandoned and announcement made that another would be made today.

Soon after the start homeward the wind for the first time since the middle of last week shifted from easterly to south and began to breeze up, an indication that the long easterly fog "mull" was breaking and that today might give the yachts the long deferred opportunity of going through the formality of sailing the third and probably conclusive race.

Army and Navy Rulings Differ

Washington, Sept. 3.—Acting Secretary of the Navy Darling has decided that for purposes affecting deserters from the United States navy the Spanish war ended Dec. 10, 1898, the date of the signing of the treaty of peace. This conclusion disagrees with a ruling of the war department to the effect that the war was not closed for administrative purposes in that department until April 11, 1[illegible], the date of the exchange of ratifications of the treaty.

Fell Under Train.

A Brockton dispatch tells of a narrow escape of two plumbers from that city who had been at work in Quincy. Robert Rolland, aged 45, of 164 Forest avenue, had a narrow escape from being killed by a passenger train at South Braintree, Tuesday afternoon. He is at work with two other plumbers on the Washington school in Quincy. They left there on the 4.50 train and had to change cars at South Braintree for Brockton. A crowd was pushing toward the car, in the midst of which was Mr. Rolland, when a small man near the car tripped and fell. Mr. Rolland was tripped and thrown directly forward, across the track beneath the moving car, but the train was stopped before the rear trucks reached him. Mr. Rolland received a bad gash in the knee and his clothes were torn.

Bethany Picnic.

Three to four hundred attended the annual picnic on Wednesday of Bethany Sunday school at Houghton's pond, and had a very enjoyable time. Barges conveyed the party, leaving the church about 10 A. M., and returning after 6 P. M. There was a bountiful supply of peanuts and ice cream. Men and women indulged in base ball with the children, rowed on the pond and otherwise enjoyed themselves.

DAYLIGHT BURGLAR.

Fellow Captured Red Handed at Bridgewater, May Be Wanted Here.

After an exciting chase across lots and through the underbrush at Bridgewater Wednesday, George Shipman captured a burglar, whose description tallies with that of the daylight burglar who has been operating in Quincy.

The fellow gives his name as Tony Rose, and the Bridgewater and Brockton police believe he is one of the gang that has been looting houses in Brockton, Holbrook, Braintree and Quincy.

The fellow had entered two houses that day, those of Mrs. Mary Howland and Mrs. Hattie M. Keith.

The fellow was seen to enter the house of Mrs. Howland by Mrs. Shipman, who notified her husband. He seized a revolver and went to the door the man had entered, but found it locked.

He called upon the fellow to come out, and a few minutes later the fellow dropped out of a window and ran. Mr. Shipman, who is a heavy man, gave chase, and finally captured him after threatening to shoot the fellow if he did not stop.

The fellow begged hard to be let off, and offered to give anything if he would release him.

Upon being searched, the fellows pockets were found to be filled with jewelry taken from the Howland house.

The prisoner said there was another man with him who ran and got away.

The man arrested is of medium height, and light complexion, and wore a straw hat. He is about 25 years of age.

The man who got away was very dark, with black hair and wore a dark suit and a slouch hat.

Attractions of the Adirondacks.

Tourists in the Adirondacks are telling of wonderful scenic effects in the great north woods. The beautiful transformations of autumn have already begun. The forests of leaves are being smeared with yellow and vermillion, changing from billows of green into seas of nut-brown and fading gold. The bracing, fragrant, bewitching smell of approaching fall fills the woodland.

The gods of the forest are calling to lovers of nature and art and out-of-doors to come while the Indian warriors of oaks and maples still stand in all the splendor of their war paints, and the air is brisk and delightful.

The trains of the N. Y. Central road reach the heart of the mountains every day, and a 2c stamp sent to G. H. Daniels, gen. pass. agt., New York, will bring further information.

Dropped a Match.

Chief Williams has learned the cause of the fire in the house of William Harkins on Main street Tuesday afternoon, about which there was some mystery.

It appears that the house was in charge of a young girl, whose mother is at the City Hospital. That morning, about 11 o'clock, the girl went to the clothes closet for her clothing and lit a match to see.

Obtaining her clothing she closed the closet door and went to the hospital to see her mother. While in the closet she dropped the match which evidently was not out, but ignited some cloth which smouldered until the fire broke out in the afternoon.

In the evening the young people, as well as those of middle age, flocked to the grounds in large numbers, and room was at a premium.

The Working Boys' Home band of Boston was present and gave a fine concert.

In the afternoon there was a series of interesting sports for which suitable prizes were given. The sport however that attracted the most attention was a game of ball between "The Copelands" and "The Rails."

The Copelands have always been called a good team, but they were no match for the Rails, being defeated by the score of 8 to 3.

Young Friends as Pall Bearers.

The death of Arthur E. Blaine, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Blaine of West Quincy, came as a great shock to the people of the community and as a genuine grief to his many personal friends to whom he had endeared himself by his sunny, unselfish and kind disposition. His funeral took place Wednesday afternoon and was largely attended. Interment being at St. Mary's cemetery. A War in Turkey Now Seems Inevitable

THE HOUR FOR BATTLE

Macedonians Think Dawn of Liberty Already In Sight

AN UPRISING PROCLAIMED

Forces of Ottoman Tyranny Declared to Be Exhausted—Smoking Hearths Give Strength to a People Who Will Yield Only to Liberty or Death

Sofia, Sept. 4.—A special dispatch from Rila, near the Turkish frontier, says a courier has arrived there with a copy of the proclamation of a general insurrection, which has been awaited. The document is addressed "To our brethren in Macedonia and Adrianople," and begins by congratulating them upon the heroic fight they have already waged. The proclamation proceeds:

"Armed only with your own strength against a mighty empire, against pitiless foes, with the power of your right hand and the might of your spirit, you have shaken the hateful Ottoman dominion. A hundred thousand of the sultan's soldiers and an innumerable infidel mob were unable to resist your advance. You have sacrificed everything before the altar of liberty. Your villages were burned, your homes pillaged, your children massacred and your sisters, wives and mothers violated.

"If a succession of valiant champions has persisted in the struggle and dyed the fatherland with their dear blood, but the greater zeal you have embraced the fight. Your smoking hearths have strengthened your manliness, the cries of children and moans of the women exasperated your souls. From the breasts of the fatherland came new champions, replacing those who have perished.

The holy flag of liberty waves more proudly over the dear fatherland. Your enemies are rendered powerless before your heroism. The forces of tyranny are exhausted. New days have come. One more heroic stroke and the centuries of tyranny will fall to the ground in convulsions of death.

"The dawn of liberty peeps already above the Macedonian horizon and awaits this stroke to shine with its full brilliancy on the Macedonian land. Prepare yourselves then, for this stroke. Be at your posts. The hour for the battle strikes. The cry of 'liberty or death' will break the chains of slavery and bring the triumph of justice."

The proclamation is signed "From the supreme central government."

No definite news has been received regarding the operations of the insurgents across the frontier. Bands varying in strength are daily passing over the border.

More fighting is reported from the district of Debre. The Turks attacked the revolutionists at the village of Dambeni and both sides suffered heavy losses.

A company of Albanian troops passing through the valley of Kitschero was slaughtered by revolutionists.

The Turkish troops made an attempt to take a pass occupied by insurgents through the valley of the Sateska river, but were defeated with great loss.

Insurgents "Led Astray"

London, Sept. 4.—The Turkish embassy here has sent out a notice published by the Ottoman government in the vilayets of Adrianople, Salonica, Kofsovo and Monastir, warning the population against joining the insurgents. The notice says the majority of those who allowed themselves to be led astray have finally expressed their sorrow and tendered their submission.

Turks Claim Victories

Salonica, Sept. 4.—Hilmi Pasha, inspector general of Macedonia, has telegraphed from Monastir that a Bulgarian band was defeated Sept. 1 between Klissura and Kastoria with heavy loss. The remainder of the band is being pursued by the Turks. Another band was defeated the same day near Venezianogratsko and 30 of the insurgents were killed. Another band of 16 rebels was destroyed near Milnik.

Greece Wants Bakhtiar Punished

Athens, Sept. 4.—Premier Ralli has requested the diplomatic representatives here to urge their governments to insist on the porte punishing Bakhtiar Pasha, the governor of Krushevo, for the excesses committed by the Turkish troops on the population of that city when they recaptured it from the insurgents.

Coast Villagers Returning

Constantinople, Sept. 4.—Official reports say that the Turks on reoccupying Klissura, Albania, killed 200 insurgents. It is also stated that the inhabitants of the coast villages are returning to their homes.

Won't Remain In Turkish Waters

Washington, Sept. 4.—It is expected that the Brooklyn and San Francisco will arrive off Beirut today and the Machias off Port Said. Upon arrival there commanders will cable full reports about the situation. Upon the character of these advices and the expected report of Minister Leishman will depend the program of the state department. As there is no intention on the part of this government to become involved in the eastern question it is desired that the ships shall go their way as soon as their mission is fulfilled.

Used Shears on Throat

Lowell, Mass., Sept. 4.—Possessed with the fancy that he was about to be removed to an insane asylum Ernest J. Harmon, a city laborer, slashed his throat with a pair of shears and is dying. Harmon had recently been wrought up over religious matters and became temporarily insane.

Pair of Alleged Highwaymen

Haverhill, Mass, Sept. 4.—Charles Jenkins was the victim of a bold highway robbery last night, and James B. Wilson and Sewall E. Clough are under arrest, charged with the crime. Both prisoners, according to the police, were released from Lawrence jail yesterday.

Movement Against Locomotive Whistling

TOO MUCH TOOTING

Petition Sent to the Railroad Commissioners.

Who Will Give a Hearing.

A Claim that Whistling is Unnecessary and Disturbs Sick.

With the increasing freight business of the city, the locomotive whistling has become considerable of a nuisance between the Adams Academy and the Braintree line. This is especially true in the still hours of the night and a petition was recently circulated in Quincy and South Quincy requesting that the whistling be discontinued.

The petition was signed by 200 or more, and a thousand names could easily have been secured. People are not only awakened every night, but where there has been sickness the shock has been serious.

George H. Field headed the petition and he has received notice that the Railroad Commissioners will give a hearing to all persons interested on Thursday, Sept. 9.

In these days when electric signals can be so effectively and safely used, there seems to be considerable unnecessary whistling. Perhaps when Quincy has its new freight yards and adequate trackage there will not be the necessity of so much shifting, or better still it can be done during the day.

—Lynn's tax rate is $18 the same as last year.

E. EMERY FELLOWS

Dies Suddenly at His Home in City of Melrose.

Mr. E. Emery Fellows, once a prominent citizen of Quincy, died suddenly on Thursday at Melrose.

Mr. Fellows was the son of the late Ensign S. Fellows, for many years one of the Selectmen, Assessors and Surveyors of Highways of the town of Quincy, They lived on Hancock street, at the corner of Hancock court, and the son succeeded to the business of the father, a tinsmith and dealer in stoves, in the building now standing on the corner.

Emery Fellows, like his father, was a prominent Democrat but never held important offices. He was for several years on the board of registrars of voters with Edwin W. Marsh, John H. Dee, Michael F. O'Brien and Town Clerk George L. Gill. He was also a fireman and connected with the John W. Hall hook and ladder truck.

When Mr. Fellows left Quincy he became a resident of Leominster. Later, when his two daughters were teaching in Melrose the family moved to that city. His business was that of a travelling salesman.

His sickness was of short duration, at first an attack of indigestion which was not considered serious. He was 54 years of age and leaves a widow and two daughters, Mrs. Barbara S., wife of Mr. Allen H. Sturgis, and Miss Mary S. a teacher.

Funeral services will be held on Sunday at 12 M. at No. 124 Myrtle street, Melrose, and about 4 P. M. at Mt. Wollaston cemetery, Quincy.

—The National Education association has more than one hundred and fifty thousand dollars in its treasury, after paying all the expenses of its Boston meeting. Moreover, the treasurer is bonded.—Charlestown Enterprise.

A city employe who works hard.

One Wife Too Many

Adams, Mass., Sept. 4.—Camille Phillips, aged 36, a painter, was sentenced to four months in jail for non-support, and held under $600 bonds for appearance before the grand jury on the charge of bigamy. Phillips was arrested in Lenox on complaint of his wife, whom he deserted in this town three years ago. He married Miss Lena Bekan in December, 1902.

Albert Gets Life Sentence

Bangor, Me., Sept. 4.—In the supreme court here Judge Peabody denied the motion for a new trial in the case of William H. Albert, convicted of the murder of aPtrick H. Jordan in this city. Albert stated that he had not the slightest recollection of committing the terrible crime. The sentence of the court to life imprisonment was passed upon him.

Bicycle Mile In Fifty-Six Seconds

Boston, Sept. 4.—Albert Champion established a new world's record for motor cycles at Charles River park track last night, by riding a mile in 56 seconds. The occasion was the benefit meet to add to the fund for a monument to the late Harry D. Elkes, who was killed at this track on May 30 last. The 2000 spectators present contributed $772.50.

Slightly Deficient In Speed

Portland, Me., Sept. 4.—The official speed of the cruiser Cleveland, as made up by the trial board, is 16.495, five-thousandths of a knot below the required mark of 16.50. This report will be made to the government, with the recommendation that the ship be accepted without further trial, at a reduction in price sufficient to cover the deficiency.

Drift of Opinion.

When the municipal appropriation for school teachers' salaries was exhausted in Salt Lake city, the citizens put their hands in their pockets and planked down money enough to continue the schools for the full year—which was rather a better thing to do than running in debt or depriving the children of schooling facilities.—New Bedford Standard.

Some one writes to the New York Sun asking the difference between a cruller, a doughnut and a fried cake. It is an incendiary question and ought to be suppressed. Not long ago there was a story which described the wrecking of the peace of a whole summer party over the dispute as to doughnuts and crullers alone. Now some one lugs in the fried cake and throws the problem at the general public.—Hartford Times.

There would be less reckless motormen and fewer corporations insisting on express speed on single track lines if there were no insistent public demanding to traverse the shortest distance between two given points in the shortest possible space of time. Speed mania, far from being the luxurious toy of the few, is a national trait, which makes too often of our railroad and trolley service a veritable juggernaut.—New Britain Herald.

SURPRISE PARTY.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tinney Presented an Oak Side Table.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tinney on Water street was the scene of a merry party on Wednesday evening, when some fifty of their friends invaded their home.

Frank, as he is familiarly called, has purchased a residence on Centre street, to which he will move in a few days. His friends on this occasion saw a good opportunity to give him and his amiable partner a little surprise and upset his house a little more, as it was already upset to a certain extent on account of moving.

The affair was in charge of Professor John Robertson, and whatever Jack takes hold of is sure to be a success. He was ably assisted by James McWilliams and M. A. Campbell, also by Miss Mary McLeod, one of South Quincy's most estimable young ladies, who in her modest unassuming manner did everything in her power to entertain the company.

About 9.30 an elegant oak side table was brought in and W. F. McCalder, in a few remarks in behalf of himself and friends, presented it to Mr. and Mrs. Tinney.

Mr. Tinney very feelingly replied, thanking his friends for this token of their kindness and hoped that they would all enjoy themselves on this occasion and come again.

Ex-Councilman Harry Nicol, who lives next door, paid a tribute to Mr. and Mrs. Tinney, as good kind neighbors and regretted they were leaving the locality, but felt sure that their good conduct would recommend them in their new neighborhood.

Songs, music and dancing followed, and a general good time was enjoyed by all until after midnight.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. F. Tinney, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Nicol, Mr. and Mrs. D. McKinnon, Mr. and Mrs. D. Tinney, Mr. and Mrs. A. Ballou, Mrs. J. Cummings, Mrs. A. McPhee, Mrs. James Tinney.

Baby Crushed to Death

Boston, Sept. 4.—While playing in front of his home 3-year-old Abraham Baker was instantly killed by being run over by a heavily loaded grain wagon. The driver, James Murphy, was arrested, but was later released when the police decided that the child's death was an unavoidable accident. The children were so busy with their play that they did not see the dray coming.

J., Sept. 4.—A boiler explosion which caused a panic for a time in the business centre of the town occurred in the engine room of the Hanson VanWinkle company, dealers in acids, chemicals and dyestuffs. FORCED TO DISGORGE

Summer Resort Swell Gives Up Pawn Tickets For Gems He Had Stolen

Bethlehem, N. H., Sept. 4.—A young man who registered as C. F. Bonner of Philadelphia, described as about 20 years of age and of pleasing personality, became a guest at the Uplands house, a large summer hotel, early in August. He attracted considerable attention by his attentions to as many of the ladies at the hotel as he succeeded in meeting. On Aug. 26 he left, saying that he intended making a trip to New York. Coincident with his departure a young woman whose acquaintance Bonner had made missed from her jewelry a diamond ring and a diamond pin, the two being valued at $1000. She communicated with her people and her father came here, bringing a detective with him. A few days later Bonner reappeared at the hotel, well supplied with funds. Suspicion was directed to him, but before the officer felt justified in making an arrest the father of the girl who was robbed accused Bonner, who, it is said, confessed to having stolen the diamonds. He surrendered tickets representing the jewelry from a New York pawn shop and begged for clemency. In order to avoid unpleasant notoriety the parties decided to let him go and he immediately left the hotel.

Boupre's Instructions

Washington, Sept. 4.—Additional instructions have been cabled Mr. Beaupre, the American minister at Bogota, reiterating the position of this government regarding the canal treaty. Minister Beaupre's latest instructions advise him that President Roosevelt will not enter into any engagement with the Colombian government which will hamper his scope of action under the canal law. This government will not indicate what its course of action will be in the event the treaty is rejected.

Abstracted $560,000 of Funds

Baltimore, Sept. 4.—Judge Dennis has signed an order removing W. T. Tucker as executor of the estate of his father, the late W. T. Tucker, a shoe merchant. Tucker had access to the money and valuables belonging to the estate and he is accused by his mother of abstracting and converting to his own use $560,000. Tucker has disappeared. He and his mother are the only heirs to the estate and she announces that she will take no further legal steps against him.

Assets, $10,000; Liabilities, $3,600,00

Trenton, Sept. 4.—Vice Chancellor Stevenson has granted an order to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed for the Ecuador company, a New Jersey corporation with an office in Jersey City. The authorized capital of the company is $5,000,000. The complainant alleges that the Ecuador company's liabilities are $3,600,000, with assets of $10,000. The company was formed for the purpose of constructing a railroad in Ecuador, South America.

Glenn Declines to Compromise

Manila, Sept. 4.—Gabriel Gabea, a native of Leyte, sued Major Glenn some months ago for 15,000 pesos damages for false imprisonment and was arrested by orders of Glenn on suspicion of aiding the Samar insurgents. Gabea now offers that if Glenn will admit that his imprisonment as an insurgent sympathizer was a mistake he will at once withdraw the damage suit. This offer was declined by Glenn.

Humors

They take possession of the body, and are Lords of Misrule.

They are attended by pimples, boils, the itching tetter, salt rheum, and other cutaneous eruptions; by feelings of weakness, languor, general debility and what not.

They cause more suffering than anything else.

Health, Strength, Peace and Pleasure require their expulsion, and this is positively effected, according to thousands of grateful testimonials, by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Which radically and permanently drives them out and builds up the whole system.

CUP REMAINS WITH US

Yankee Genius, Brains and Seamanship Triumphant

FINAL RACE OF THE SERIES

A Repetition of Former Beatings Administered to Shamrock—Reliance Finished In Dense Fog, In Which Challenger Missed Finish Line

New York, Sept. 4.—Reliance won the third and final race and the series for that famous sea trophy, the America's cup. In a dense fog, which prevented vision beyond 200 yards, she finished the race at 5:30:02 amid the acclamations of the assembled fleet. Shamrock III, after running for more than an hour in the fog, missed the finish line, passed by it and then returned to it from the opposite direction. As Reliance was then being towed through the fleet, yacht ensigns fluttering from her truck and spreaders in celebration of her victory, Shamrock III did not cross the finish line. As often said of the historic race when the America won the cup, "there was no second."

This successful result was achieved only after four futile attempts to sail off the final race and after the outcome had been admitted by even Mr. Lipton to be a foregone conclusion.

Yesterday's race was the eighth attempt to sail a race. After one fluke the Reliance won the two following races, one by 7m. 30s. and the other by 1m. 19s. A week ago yesterday the first attempt to sail the third race failed and attempts have been made every day this week. On two occasions Reliance led Shamrock to the finish line by about two miles, but failed to reach it before the expiration of the time limit of 5½ hours. Yesterday's victory means that the cup is destined to remain in America until England is able to produce a genius equal to Herreshoff in yacht designing.

Rarely, if ever, has there been a more spectacular finish than the Reliance's yesterday. After racing for more than an hour at terrific speed through a blinding fog, Reliance burst through the wall of mist upon the vision of the spectators on the fleet assembled at the finish line, and, heeling until her lee rail was awash, fled across the finish line almost before the spectators coul'd determine for a certainty that it was she. Once more the Yankee boat had added to the long string of victories in contests for the honored old silver trophy that carried with it the blue ribbon of the sea.

A fleet of less than 30 vessels went down to the familiar waters of the international course to witness this fifth effort of the Reliance to cover the course of 30 miles within the time limit. The early conditions were unfavorable, the wind being light and a heavy fog covering the course. The yachts went to the starting line, however, in order to be ready for a start if conditions improved. Towards noon the fog cleared and the wind increased to about seven knots. The committee waited until the last possible moment—1 o'clock—before firing the starting gun. Reliance crossed in the lead, the official starting times being: Reliance, 1:01.56; Shamrock, 1:02:00. As in the previous races and trials Reliance early demonstrated her superiority, outpointing and outfooting her rival in the beat to the outer mark. Pinched into the wind or with a rap full the Shamrock was hopelessly outclassed.

As the boats started the run homeward under spinnakers and balloon topsails a split about three feet long appeared in the foot of Reliance's spinnaker, but as it drew well, Captain Barr continued to carry it.

The sky was clear when, at 4:20, with almost half the course yet to be sailed, a thick bank of fog came rolling in before a southeast wind and enveloped Shamrock in a mist that shut her out of the vision of the fleet as though she had been wiped from the surface of the sea. Reliance ran along for five minutes longer with the sun glinting upon her sails until the fog bank reached and rolled over her and she too disappeared from sight.

As it caught her she felt also a heavier wind from the southeast, smothered her spinnaker and, leaning to the wind, fled at a swift pace through the mist. One by one the vessels of the fleet disappeared from view until the only evidence of their presence was the hoarse bellowing of their warning whistles as they scurried off in search of the old red lightship.

The two racers sailed in that dangerous fashion at top speed for an hour. Meantime the Navigator, carrying the regatta committee, hunted for the lightship to establish the finish line. It was 5:20 before she found it and the fleet began to gather about her. All was a blank wall of fog. Ten minutes they waited. Then Reliance, heeling low before the wind, her sails bellying hard and her lee rails dragging up the spindrift, burst through the veil of fog and upon the startled vision of the expectant watchers on the little fleet.

Hardly had they recognized the familiar features of the American craft when, with her great balloon jibtopsail fluttering into the arms of the nimble members of her crew out on her bowsprit, she fled across the line down through the lane of yachts to victory. The Reliance tug searched the fleet for the racer and towed her through it with yachting ensigns flying from her mast and spreaders, while similar flags appeared at various points on the spars and rigging of the Corsair and the whistles of the fleet saulted the defender.

Meantime the regatta committee tug whistled shrilly its guiding signals to the missing Shamrock. Reliance had crossed the line at 5:30:02 and it was after 6 o'clock when the fog lifted a bit and disclosed the challenger hove to north of the line. Captain Wringe had missed it in the fog and passed by to the eastward of it. Shamrock did not attempt to cross the line, but after a feeble salute from the fleet was taken in tow to the hook, the fleet started for home, and the series of races in defense of America's cup for 1903 were ended.

Victor and Vanquished Talk

Highlands of Navesink, N. J., Sept. 4.—When the Erin had discharged her passengers last night Sir Thomas Lipton said: "Two weeks ago I was hopeful; last week I knew I was doomed to defeat and was disappointed, but today I am almost glad in my own defeat. I want again to thank the American people for their generosity to me in my defeat." Regarding the defeat of Shamrock III he simply said: "I do not care to discuss it any more. The American boat was the better, that is all."

Designer Fife refused to talk. Captain Wringe would not talk further than to say: "We did the best we could, but the other boat was best."

Captain Barr of the Reliance said: "Reliance is a beautiful boat, had all kinds of weather and won in it. Our adversaries did the best they could with the material at their command."

Mr. Iselin, in reply to an inquiry as to the result, said: "Of course I am proud of the results. A splendid boat, a splendid crew and captain and all helped the result. Sir Thomas made a brave fight and deserved better luck."

Messrs. Lipton and Iselin exchanged visits last night and the former extended his congratulations to the latter."

The Feeling at Glasgow

Glasgow, Sept. 4.—The announcement of Reliance's victory was received here with a feeling akin to relief that the long drawn contest was ended. It is admitted that the whole fabric of British hopes was built up on the false assumption that Shamrock I was a decidedly better boat at the time of this year's trial races than when she was beaten by Columbia off Sandy Hook. Uniform regret is expressed at Lipton's failure.

Defeat Not Unexpected

London, Sept. 4.—The final defeat of Shamrock III was received in London with absolute listlessness. The chief hope expressed in the streets is that Canada will enter the lists next year and possibly succeed where the other country has failed.

Venezuela to Borrow $60,000,000

London, Sept. 4.—The Brussels correspondent of The Daily Telegraph says an agreement concerning the Venezuela debt was signed yesterday between a syndicate of Paris banks and Senor Velutini, the Venezuelan representative. A new loan of $60,000,000, guaranteed by the customs receipts, will be issued. The agreement requires the approval of the Venezuelan parliament.

Suicide of Drug Clerk

Stamford, Conn., Sept. 4.—The mangled body of a man was found beside the railroad tracks near Noroton. The man's suspenders were wrapped tightly about the neck. A notebook bearing the name of a Bridgeport druggist was found in the clothing. A man answering the description given of the body applied for a position in the drug store last week.

Month's Job on Scorpion

New York, Sept. 4.—The gunboat Scorpion has three of her decks cut through, several of the ribs bent on the port side and the frame strained. It will take fully a month to complete the repairs. The Scorpion was in collision in the East river with the steamer H. M. Whitney of Boston.

Sheriff Will Investigate

Rockland, Me., Sept. 4.—The Star is informed that Sheriff Whitcomb will come to Rockland to institute an inquiry into the disappearance of Edward Jennings, who has not been seen since the morning of Aug. 20. Suspicions of foul play are entertained by Jennings' friends.

Disastrous Railroad Wreck

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 4.—A passenger train went through Fishing creek bridge yesterday and eight persons were killed outright, six badly hurt and 16 passengers were more or less injured. Rotten timbers are said to have caused the wreck.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Patrick Gallagher, aged 24, fell from a haystack while working in a barn at Andover, Mass., and broke his neck. Death was instantaneous.

The executive committee of the Consolidated Lake Superior company decided to pay back to stockholders the $3,000,000 deposited under the proposed bond issue, which has just been declared off.

Articles of incorporation have been filed by a new company adding another mammoth industry to New Hampshire's north country business enterprises. The Madison Pulp and Building company, with a capital stock of $250,000, is the new corporation. The name of the company implies the nature of the business to be undertaken.

DECLARED INEFFICIENT

Management of Railway Censured by Railroad Commissioners

Boston, Sept. 4.—The board of railroad commissioners, in its findings on the accident on the Boston and Worcester road in July last at Westboro, in which one person was killed and several injured, finds the motorman and conductor and the management of the road equally guilty.

The report concludes: "In brief, the investigation of this accident discloses inefficient management. The owners of such properties have the immediate control over them, and it is in the exercise of this control that the due care must be found which is essential to the protection of employes and the traveling public. The remedies for the evils of careless management have been found in the civil liabilities to which it exposes the stockholders of the company, and in the criminal prosecution of those personally responsible for carelessness, whether they be officials or employes.

"It is questionable whether accidents that arise from a failure to properly manage a railway can be prevented by any other means than the enforcement of laws of this kind."

Slippery Criminals

Centre Ossipee, N. H., Sept. 4.—John Metross and Plummer Colby, who recently escaped from the jail here, were discovered by a posse of six officers at the home of Colby's father in a mountain hut eight miles from here. At the approach of the officers one of the men opened fire with a shotgun and during the fusillade which followed they made their escape from the house. No one was injured on either side. The officers arrested Colby's father and a woman living with him.

Returns to Face Charges

Boston, Sept. 4.—Orr N. Towne, Jr., was brought back to Boston from Philadelphia to answer to the charge of embezzlement from the United States government. Towne was a deputy collector of internal revenue. In the hearing it developed that the alleged embezzlement amounted to several thousand dollars, and Towne was held in $5000 bonds for the September term of the United States district court of Massachusetts.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

CAN SPARE THE NEGRO

South No Longer Needs Him as an Industrial Necessity

GRAVES' STRIKING SPEECH

Urges That the Black Man Be "Put Kindly and Humanely Out of the Way"—An Unwilling and Blameless, but Unwholesome Element

Chicago, Sept. 4.—John Temple Graves of Georgia delivered an address on "The Problem of the Races" before the 48th convocation of the University of Chicago. He said in part:

"Separation of the races is the way—the only way. If God hath made of one blood all the nations of the earth, he hath also established unto them the metes and bounds of their habitation. God did not intend that opposite and antagonistic races should live together.

"The prejudice is a pointing of Providence and the antagonism of peoples is the fixed policy by which God peoples the different portions of the universe and establishes the individuality of the nations. The act that brought these people together on this continent was a sin of the fathers—a sin of greed, an iniquity of trade—and the sorrow and suffering present is for the sin of the past—a sin against nature and a sin against God. The curse can be lifted only when nature is vindicated and God is obeyed. The problem will be solved only when the negro is restored to the 'bounds of his habitation.'

"It is neither impossible nor impracticable. The elements are willing and the way is in reach. This is not a day of impossibility. The hand of the Almighty is steadily opening the way. It may be that the islands of the sea were placed by Providence in our keeping to furnish an answer to the problem of the time.

"The south is neither cruel nor unpatriotic and the north knows it. The north is neither immovable nor vindictive and the south knows it. If either of us is mistaken, and if both of us are misunderstood we are yet one people and we must meet upon the plane of our brotherhood and our destiny.

"The chief opposition in the south would rest upon a misapprehension, which you doubtless share, that the negro is indispensable to the agriculture and labor conditions of that section. That was once true. It is no longer true. The negro no longer makes the staple or cereal crops of the south. The cotton of Texas, of Louisiana and of Mississippi is made chiefly by the white man and not by the negro. The negro is no longer an industrial necessity. This fact is from the census. It is being verified and understood by the best observers and thinkers of the states, and when that fact—that tremendous fact—now so little understood—becomes generally known in the country and in the south—then the south will stand solidly for separation.

"I appeal for Caucasian utility. I appeal for the immortal destiny of our race. This is our country. We made it. We moulded it. We control it and we always will. We have done great things. We have mighty things yet to do. The negro is an accident—an unwilling, a blameless, but an unwholesome, unwelcome, helpless, unassimilable element in our civilization. He is not made for our times. He is not framed to share in the duty and destiny which he perplexes and beclouds.

"Let us put him kindly and humanely out of the way. Let us give him a better chance than he has ever had in history and let us have done with him. Let us solve his problem—frankly, fearlessly, nobly and speedily. Let us put it behind us. Let us purify our politics of the perplexity. Let us liberate the south to vote and to think like free men upon the mighty issues of the times."

Honeymoon In West Africa

Waltham, Mass., Sept. 4.—"At home after October the first, Great Batanga, West Africa." This was engraved on the 100 invitations that last evening called wedding guests to witness the marriage of Evelyn E. Saul and Adolph N. King of Homburg, Germany. Mr. King graduated from Amherst college last June. He intended studying for the ministry, but changed to become a foreign missionary and was assigned to Great Batanga, Kamerun, West Africa.

Troops Not Needed at Present

Denver, Sept. 4.—Governor Peabody has sent a committee to Cripple Creek to investigate the conditions there and will not send troops to the gold district until the report of these officers is received, unless some overt acts should make immediate action necessary. Sheriff Robertson says he will not at present ask for troops, although the mine owners have demanded protection for their properties.

Carpenters Quit Work

Brockton, Mass., Sept. 4.—A strike has been declared by the Carpenters' union against Irving Bros., contractors and builders. The union claims that there has been a violation of agreement, but does not specify wherein. Irving Bros. say that the men were satisfied and left unwillingly when ordered to do so by the union.

Had Bad Time Off Cape Horn

Port Elizabeth, Cape Colony, Sept. 4.—A tug reports having spoken off Cape Recife the ship Afghanistan, from Ballard, Wash., May 1, for Delagoa bay. The vessel was damaged by ice off Cape Horn, lost some sails and deckload and had 12 men injured.

HARNESSING A CANAL.

Thirty Thousand Horse Power to Be Generated by Chicago Waterway.

Plans for "putting in harness" the immense water power of the Chicago sanitary canal at its termination in Lockport and Joliet are perfected by the engineering department of the drainage board and have received the approval of the board's engineering committee, says a Chicago dispatch. The plans involve an expenditure of $2,700,000.

In developing the water power of the sanitary canal the board of drainage trustees is carrying out a policy that has been contemplated since the inception of the great engineering scheme designed to give Chicago an adequate supply of pure water. It is a sequel to the successful construction work on the great drainage channel now connecting Lake Michigan with the Mississippi river and the gulf of Mexico.

An extension of the present channel for a mile and one-eighth south of the controlling dam at Lockport is necessary for the utilization of the plan.

For the extension channel a great excavation two miles long and 140 feet wide will have to be made through hard rock. Midway in this two mile cut an artificial waterfall will be constructed. Here the mammoth hydraulic and electric machinery will catch the rushing waters as they fall. It is in this fall that the power to be utilized resides.

Weight and momentum of the falling waters are the factors that make the power, which power is to be caught, as it were, in its flight, converted into electrical energy and transmitted over wires and through storage batteries and dynamos for the turning of giant wheels in factories or for the lighting of streets or the lighting and heating of residences or other buildings. That is what has been done with Niagara's mighty power, and that is what the plans just completed are to do with the water power of Chicago's $45,000,000 drainage canal.

In the development of the power at Lockport the feats of engineering will duplicate in many respects the harnessing of Niagara falls for transmission of electric power to sundry points in New York and New England and Canada.

WATCH ON POSTAL CLERKS

Many Peepholes and Secret Lookouts In Chicago's New Post Office.

Every act of every employee of the money order, registry and mailing departments of the new post office at Chicago will be liable to the closest scrutiny by means of a system now being installed, says the Chicago Record-Herald. Suspended from the ceilings of the three departments and connected with each other are lookouts in the form of inclosed observation platforms. These will enable inspectors to watch all that is going on, but the employees will never know when they are being observed, and the fact that an observing eye may be upon them at any minute is calculated to deter them from wrongdoing and spur them to their best efforts. No more thorough system of espionage was ever devised for any public edifice in the world.

Secretary of the Treasury Shaw on a recent visit expressed admiration for the manner in which the lookouts were being constructed. The fact that such structures are being erected was unknown to all save the inspection department and a few high officials of the postal service.

The officials say no reflection upon the honesty of employees is intended by the system. The responsibilities the government assumes in carrying money and other valuables through the mails warrant it in taking every precaution. In fact, the honest employees are said to welcome the strictest supervision, so that if any detail of the business goes wrong their own acts will be known in advance of the discovery of the error.

The first and second floors of the great building are honeycombed with the lookouts. The passages run through stone walls and connect in such a way that an inspector can go from one part of the structure to another in a distant section of the building in half the time that one outside the lookouts could proceed an equal distance. A system of electric signals will be operated in connection, and the course of a letter or package, from the minute it is registered until it leaves in a mail bag for a railway station, can be known by the chief inspector sitting in his office.

Hatchery For Giants.

The $2,000,000 legacy left by Count Alfred St. Ouen de Pierrecourt to his native city of Rouen on condition that provision be made for propagating a race of giants has finally been disposed of, says the Paris correspondent of the New York World. The natural heirs began litigation, which has now resulted in an agreement that the city shall spend $160,000 in founding an institute for giants, keeping $600,000 in reserve and giving the balance to the legitimate heirs. It is proposed to maintain in this novel institute a score or more of giant couples, establishing workshops for them and conditions favorable for scientists to observe the result on the progeny of giant couples.

Cotton Ginning Facts.

Preparations are being made to gather the cotton ginning statistics of the crop of 1903. The census bureau has sent out 626 field agents, each of whom will make five reports. The reports will give a complete history of the cotton crop from the time it is harvested. The first will run up to Aug. 31, the second to Oct. 18, the third to Nov. 18, the fourth to Dec. 13 and the fifth to the end of the year, with a careful estimate of the crop remaining yet to be ginned.

TWO NEW TRACKS

Being Laid Along Presidents Avenue for Freight Purposes.

Work was commenced yesterday on the new freight sidings at the Quincy Adams station, and it will not be many days before they will be ready for use, as there is but little grading to do.

The two sidings will be on the east side of the track, and will run from a point near the Water street crossing toward Braintree. One will be parallel with the Main line track, and the other parallel with Presidents avenue.

The spurs or sidings will leave the main line from the inward track, and each will be about 300 feet long. The new freight house when erected will be on Presidents avenue near its junction with Federal avenue.

Just when the new freight house will be erected is not known but it will probably be in the near future.

The new sidings will be used largely for incoming freight for business houses, and the present sidings on the west side of the tracks will be used for loading outward freight, largely granite, as at present.

Bahe--Woodward.

A very pretty home wedding occurred, Thursday evening, Sept. 3, at 53 Newbury avenue, when Mr. Henry J. Bahe and Miss Ann Lillian Woodward were united in marriage by the Rev. J. H. Whitaker, pastor of the Congregational church.

Amid a bank of ferns, begonia vines and hyderangias. The happy couple received the congratulations of a large number of relatives and friends. Mr. and Mrs. Bahe were the recipiants of many beautiful and valuable gifts. Miss Lelia Clark neice of the bride, was bridesmaid, Mr. Charles Macaloney the best man. The ushers were Mr. W. FATHER OF FORMOSA.

Missionary Who Made the Island a Christian State.

CONVERTED THE WILDEST PAGANS

Twenty-three Years Spent In Self Sacrificing Labor Now Bearing Fruit—Worshiped by Natives Who Once Sought His Life.

[Special Correspondence.]

Nagasaki, July 21.—The return to Formosa of the Rev. J. L. Mackay, the Canadian missionary who for twenty-three years labored there among the wildest heathen of the earth, was made the occasion of a public celebration. From what was probably his last visit to his native land Dr. Mackay, accompanied by his Formosan wife and his three beautiful children, has gone back to finish his life in the field in which the greater part of it has already been spent. Every Formosan dignitary took part in an elaborate reception, which was practically a recognition of the fact that the island is now a Christian state as the result of Dr. Mackay's generation of faithful work.

The adventures of this missionary have been more wonderful than those of Robinson Crusoe. When he first arrived in Formosa he was the only white man within hundreds of miles of his abiding place. He was ignorant of the language of the inhabitants, who hated all Christians. Plots to murder him were more numerous than anarchist conspiracies against the czar of all the Russias. Now he has in his mission, scattered throughout north Formosa, sixty organized native churches, four of them self supporting; a living baptized membership of 2,717, a communion roll of 1,805, and each of the native churches is presided over by a native preacher. At Tamsin he has established a college, where fifteen students are in training for the ministry.

His first home was an old stable which had been used by one of the military mandarins. The home to which he has just returned is that of a gentleman in a civilized community. The magnitude of the task which Dr. Mackay set for himself so many years ago and his success in bringing his plans to fruition can scarcely be comprehended. The missionary has botany classes of natives, and he has formed native Alpine clubs to explore the mountainous country of the interior and other scientific societies of native membership. He is even a colonel in what may be termed the Formosan militia and drills the natives in regimental tactics with the idea of subduing their taste for the hideous form of native warfare and allowing their surplus energy to find an outlet in the defense of their villages against the piratical hordes from the mainland.

Among the Lamsiloan savages of the trackless Killai plain the doctor has made himself highly esteemed. These strange persons had rarely seen a white man before Dr. Mackay's advent unless perhaps he was roasted and on the dinner table. They had been subdued by the Chinese, but had retained their aboriginal attributes. Dr. Mackay began by living among them in the most primitive fashion, studying their language and never manifesting the slightest fear or distrust of them. He soon won their confidence, and many of them have become Christians through his influence. Before he had come into personal contact with them their head hunters had more than once laid in wait for "the black bearded doctor," as he had come to be called in their dialect. Now he is venerated by them as little short of a saint.

Dr. Mackay's story of his first Formosan convert, A Hoa, is typical of the dramatic life of the missionary. The hope of establishing a native clergy was one of the inspirations of the doctor's mission even before he left Canada, and when A Hoa, a native of exceptional talents, became his servant he at once set about to form him into an instrument through which to regenerate the whole people. His patience was rewarded by the conversion of A Hoa. One day the missionary and his convert stood on the stone steps of a large heathen temple surrounded by a mob of angry idolaters. Some of them were A Hoa's old companions. He was reviled by them with scornful words, and when the missionary asked him to address the crowd he hung his head in silence. Dr. Mackay began to sing the first stanza of a good old Scottish hymn, and when he had finished A Hoa stood erect and, looking over the surging mob, in a calm, strong voice spoke the first message of Christianity ever given to that generation by a native Christian.

Dr. Mackay in emphasizing the value of a native ministry asserts with equal positiveness the efficacy of medical missions. His own knowledge of the healing art helped greatly to open opportunities for his religious work. His power to relieve their pain and cure their diseases won him from the start grateful friends and supporters. His marriage to a native woman was another long step toward success.

Aside from his purely religious work Dr. Mackay has made remarkable discoveries in the realms of Formosan geography, geology, botany, zoology and ethnology. The collection which he took home with him to Canada attracted the attention of scientists of world wide reputation, and he has written a book, "From Far Formosa," which is the recognized authority upon all matters pertaining to the island.

Beginning later than its moral development under Dr. Mackay, the industrial development of Formosa under the rule of Japan, to which country it passed as one of the spoils of the great Japanese-Chinese war, is progressing rapidly. The climate of the island is decidedly unhealthy, and the natives were at first hostile to Japanese control, but that hostility has been greatly abated. Sanitary improvements have decreased the death rate by 75 per cent, schools have been established, eleven hospitals have been built, a railroad across the island is being pushed to completion, and extensive harbor improvements have been begun.

The attempts made formerly to suppress malcontents by force of arms have been abandoned, and the present governor general has induced thousands of insurgents voluntarily to lay down their arms and return to peaceful occupations. Baron Kodoma's leniency toward insurgents has been severely criticised in Japan, but the infrequency of revolts under his administration confutes his detractors.

The Japanese government scheme for improving the material well being of the colony has been methodically mapped out to cover a period of twenty years. The fiscal programme is no less deliberate and sure of results. The colony is not yet self supporting, but every year the deficit is less, and it is expected that it will entirely disappear by 1910. The revenue is largely derived from the camphor, opium and salt monopolies.

In contrast to the remarkable advancement of the island as a whole savage life can still be seen in all its lights and shadows in the primeval mountain forests. The denizens of these forests are Malay aborigines. How many centuries the deer and boar and human beings have been hunted by these dark and bloodthirsty men history does not know.

A thousand years is as far back as the annals go, and before any annals were kept the island was theirs. Save for the encroachment of the Chinese, circumscribing their territory and furnishing them with the destructive repeating rifle, these savages of the mountains are the same as they were ten centuries ago. Head hunting is their ruling passion, and, terrible as this passion appears to all civilized persons, it must not be regarded as incompatible with the coexistence of moral qualities not always found or found but feebly developed in other savages or semisavages. In many ways these aborigines compare favorably with higher races. Like their nearest of kin, the Dyak head hunters of Borneo, whom they closely resemble in most of their distinctive features of character and in their customs, they are truthful and honest, and gross immorality when found among them is nearly always traceable to border land association with the Chinese.

Head hunting may be followed back to the petty tribal wars, and as life has no sacredness in the eyes of the savage and as an enemy has no rights it became simply a question of how their enemies should be put to death and their own real or fancied wrongs avenged. The bringing back of the head was regarded as satisfactory evidence—a sort of coroner's certificate—that the sentence of the tribe had been carried out. The number of heads brought in by one man naturally showed his status as a warrior, and in this way grew up the custom of preserving the skulls of slain enemies and the handing down of family collections from generation to generation until now many of the big chiefs boast the possession of thousands of these trophies of war.

A VACATION FOR 12,000

Extensive Curtailment In Fall River Cotton Mills

THIRTY-SIX ARE TO CLOSE

Means the Stoppage of 1,300,000 Spindles and Loss In Weekly Wages of More Than $90,000—Caused by Delay In Arrival of New Cotton

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 5.—Because of the fact that next week's work in the local mills will be broken by Labor day, a large number of mills will take the opportunity to shut down their plants for the purpose of curtailing production. While some of the mills included in the list have been shut down a week or two at a time, many have not been shut down this summer.

About 1,300,000 spindles are to be stopped next week, against 33,000 idle this week. These are located in 36 mills, operated by 18 corporations and employing about 12,000 operatives who will be idle, against 3000 for the present week. These mills pay out in weekly wages more than $90,000, against $21,000 for the present week. In operation they require about 3000 bales of cotton and produce about 162,000 pieces of cloth. With the standard of 46 yards to the cut this curtails their production about 7,500,000 yards, which, at the present market price for print cloths, would bring about $250,000.

Twenty-seven more mills will be stopped the next week, 9000 more operatives will be idle, whose wages would amount to $70,000.

The consumption of cotton will be less by 2000 bales next week than this week and production will be curtailed about 122,000 pieces. This is the largest curtailment inaugurated in years and is caused by the delay in the arrival of the new cotton crop. It is believed next week will be the last of heavy curtailing, but it will be several weeks before all the mills can obtain cotton enough to warrant steady running. The mills are taking advantage of the broken week after the manner of the week of July 4, and while the number of spindles stated will be shut down, it may be increased by tonight.

Officials of the Durfee mills are not yet certain as to their action and have made no announcement. This plant consists of three mills, operating about 132,000 spindles and employing 1100 men, with a payroll of $8600. With these mills shut down the total curtailment would amount to nearly 1,250,000 spindles. The mills, as a rule, have not enough cotton to last until cheaper cotton arrives.

The Richard Borden mills closed Thursday night until Tuesday. Hargraves and Parker's mills have been running their preparatory department on about two-thirds time and will continue. The Barnaby mill is still running five days in the week. The yarn mills are idle in some departments.

A Naval Experiment

Portsmouth, Eng., Sept. 5.—The old battleship Belle Isle was torpedoed here and sank at her moorings. A section had been constructed on the port side of the Belle Isle representing the side of a modern battleship. This was filled with an American invention which, it was claimed, would prevent a ship from sinking when the hull is penetrated below the water line. When the vessel was struck she rolled heavily and then sank.

Promise of Better Times

London, Sept. 5.—The collapse on the American cotton market has had little effect in Liverpool and Manchester, but it is welcomed as a promise of better times to come. It is considered, however, that the collapse can have little effect on the Lancashire trade for some weeks yet, and that the short time movement must continue. On both exchanges the operators are inclined to be cautious and not take too sanguine an attitude

Porto Rico Sees Prosperity Ahead

San Juan, P. R., Sept. 5.—The publication at Washington of the estimates for improvements and expenditures at the United States navy yards, including the sum of $2,617,180 for the San Juan station, has caused rejoicing here, dispelled the gloom caused by business depression and has aroused new hopes for the island's future prosperity.

Combination of Coal Rivals

Pittsburg, Sept. 5.—A report is in circulation here that a consolidation is about to be effected between the Monongahela Coal and Coke company, the river combine, and the Pittsburg Coal company, the railroad combine. The scheme is important, as it means the coming together of the two greatest coal opponents in the country.

Vesuvius Still at Work

Naples, Sept. 5.—The eruption of Vesuvius, although it still continues, has moderated to a certain extent. The mouth of the crater from side to side measures over 425 feet and is about 350 feet deep. The lava continues in a thin liquid form and now covers an area of 650,000 square feet.

Troops To Stop Gambling

Berlin, Sept. 5.—The local gendarmerie of the little district of Altenburg appear to be unwilling to forcibly close the gambling casino, as jointly ordered by Prussia and Belgium. It is said troops from both states will occupy the neutral territory and stop roulette playing.

BUNCOED OUT OF $2000

Cambridge Man an Easy Victim For Two Alleged Sharpers

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 5.—John Smith of this city has reported to the police that two men offered him a large amount of stock in a company which is floating a new book and said that within a short time the book would be very thoroughly advertised throughout the country. He said that he invested $2000 of his hard-earned money and the two men left. He immediately investigated the matter and found the affair to be a fraud. It did not take the police long to find other citizens of Cambridge who have been approached by the alleged swindlers. It is not known whether any placed their money with the men. Smith says that he would be able to identify either of the men, for they have certain peculiarities which would prevent any one from forgetting their appearance. He talked with them a long time before he gave them any money.

Hamlin Suspect Under Arrest

Portland, Me., Sept. 5.—Neal Dow Brooks was arrested by Sheriff Pennell at South Paris on the charge of having made the assault on the 9-year-old daughter of Albert Hamblen at Gorham a week ago. He was brought to this city and placed in the county jail. Brooks is 17 years old and has been living with his brother on the outskirts of the city. Brooks was seen to leave a Gorham car in this city on the day of the crime, with his clothes dirty and somewhat bloodstained. At the home of his brother the sheriff found some clothing which corresponded with the description given of that worn by the man who was seen in Gorham the day the crime was committed.

Inspecting Foodstuffs

Boston, Sept. 5.—In the prosecution of the new law which requires that foreign articles of food shall be tested at the time of importation, if there be cause for suspicion, to prevent the importation of adulterated articles, the treasury department is still calling for samples. Since Aug. 6 requests have been made upon the collector of customs at Boston for samples from at least 12 cargoes or shipments of foodstuff. Nine have been forwarded to Washington, and in the examination there six were found to be free from adulteration. and the shipments that they were taken from have been released.

No Judgeship For Emmons

Boston, Sept. 5.—Judge Emmons of the police commission is not to be appointed to the superior court bench. Yesterday several stories were published representing that Governor Bates, who is to appoint two judges shortly, would name Judge Emmons. While the names of the two appointees are not made known, it is stated on excellent authority that Judge Emmons has not even been seriously considered for appointment. It is his wish and also the governor's that he should continue as police commissioner until his present term expires.

House Robber Caught

Norwood, Mass., Sept. 5.—Word was received here last night of the arrest at New York of George Nicholas, who had in his possession $150 worth of silverware stolen from the home of Dr. Norton, which was robbed Monday night. Nicholas is wanted for breaks in Providence and in Boston. He was not suspected of complicity in the break in this town until silverware identified by a circular sent out by the local police was found in his possession.

Parents' Objections Overruled

Boston, Sept. 5.—The Post says that Helen Nolan, Brookline's noted beauty, has eloped. Because her parents thought her too young to marry she met her lover, Harry V. Fuller, and they came to Boston and were quietly married. Fuller is a young telephone inspector connected with the Brookline exchange. Miss Nolan was a telephone operator in the same place. Miss Nolan has been looked upon as one of the most beautiful girls in Brookline.

May Pay Ninety Cents on Dollar

Boston, Sept. 5.—At a meeting of the creditors of the Ara Cushman company Assignee Paul stated that the total liabilities are in the neighborhood of $335,000 and that a conservative estimate would indicate that the creditors would be paid at least 90 cents on the dollar. The assigning firm have shoe factories in Auburn, Me.

Trotting Record Lowered

Providence, Sept. 5.—The world's trotting record for geldings was lowered by the bay gelding, Major Delmar, to 2:02½ in a trial exhibition against his own record of 2:04, and the fourth day of the grand circuit meeting here was further made memorable by Dan R, who paced the first heat of the free-for-all in 2:01 3-4.

Accounts Said to Be Short

Boston, Sept. 5.—David Dunlap, 27 years old, cashier at the Boylston street office of the Prudential Insurance company, disappeared on Sunday last and Martin R. Everett, local manager of the company, says that he is short of accounts $1000 at least. Dunlap took his bride of three months with him.

Bills Raised From $2 to $5

Pawtucket, R. I., Sept. 5.—The local police believe that they have made an important capture in the arrest of Ludwig Holt, aged 25. Holt was arrested during an attempt to pass mutilated bills of the $2 denomination, which had been raised to $5.

OUR CONSUL SATISFIED

With Measures Taken Regarding Magelssen Affair

LEISHMAN FEELS UNEASY

Reports Conditions as Disturbed and Has Increased Legation Guard—Powers Land Marines at Constantinople—American Cruisers at Beirut

Washington, Sept. 5.—Chekib Bey, the Turkish minister, called on Secretary Hay to inform him that he had received from his foreign office official advices to the effect that the American consul at Beirut was entirely satisfied with the measures Turkey had taken to protect life and property there and to investigate and act with respect with the assault on Vice Consul Magelssen.

Minister Leishman has cabled the state department that owing to the disturbed conditions in Constantinople an additional detective force has been stationed at the American legation. This action was taken on the suggestion of the Turkish government, which has assured the American minister that it will use every precaution to protect all foreigners, but has warned the different embassies and legations that it would be well to strengthen the force inside the buildings. Minister Leishman informed the department that a number of governments have landed marines in Constantinople for the protection of the embassies.

While the condition existing in Constantinople as well as in other portions of Turkey is extremely unsatisfactory, the Wasnington government does not believe that there is any serious danger ahead, notwithstanding that the tone of despatches from Minister Leishman show uneasiness. At the same time every precaution will be taken to insure the safety of our foreign representatives.

It is a matter of some comment that there are only about 200 marines with the European squadron, but these, with the detectives already in the service of the legation, and with the Turkish guards assigned to Minister Leishman, will, it is believed, prove sufficient for any emergency likely to arise.

Officials of the state department, commenting upon the item from Paris saying that ships of foreign powers would be sent to Turkish waters, state that the United States is now sending ships to Turkish waters. The term "Turkish waters" does not mean Constantinople, they say, and while the whole eastern portion of the Mediterranean might be covered with warships, it was possible that none of them would force the Dardanelles. After the Crimean war a treaty was made, which has been followed up by subsequent treaties, which prohibits warships from entering the Dardanelles without the consent of Turkey, and Turkey must have the assent of all the signatory powers.

In 1898 Admiral Farragut, with the flagship Franklin, was invited and ascended the Dardanelles and the powers protested. Then it was determined that no vessel of war could enter the Dardanelles. There is a proviso, however, that in case Turkey is at war with another power she might admit the ships of a friendly power. This, it is said here, is directed at Russia.

In 1895 Turkey, under the treaty, refused to allow either the Marblehead or the Bancroft, American warships, to enter the Dardanelles.

Small ships of other nations are allowed in the Bosphorus, which have been sent through the Dardanelles, but these were called legation vessels and rated of little importance. However, they carry sailors which may be used for legation guards at any time. It is believed that in case the United States desired to send a launch or small vessel with a guard for the American legation Turkey would have a right to admit them to the Dardanelles without consulting and obtaining the permission of the powers.

The disposition of the cruisers Brooklyn and San Francisco of Admiral Cotton's squadron, which arrived at Beirut yesterday, has not yet been finally determined by the administration. No orders regarding the future movements of the vessels have been sent to Admiral Cotton, and much will depend on the character of the report he makes concerning conditions in and about Beirut and on the representations which may come from Minister Leishman as to the necessity for the presence of American war vessels in Turkish waters to look after the protection of the interests of the citizens of the United States in the sultan's dominions.

European Capitals Worried

London, Sept. 5.—The increasingly threatening aspect of affairs in the Balkans seriously occupies all the European capitals. What is to be done in Macedonia is anxiously discussed on all sides. The censorship is active at Constantinople, for the only news thus far of the landing of marines emanated from Washington. The subject is not mentioned in any Constantinople dispatches received here. According to these dispatches, although it is considered certain that the destruction of the Hungarian steamer Vaskapu in the Black sea was the work of the insurgents, the intention to kill Hungarian subjects may provoke Austrian intervention. The Austrian embassy at Constantinople, in the absence of convincing proofs, has not yet taken action. The police in the meantime are arresting Bulgarians in all parts of Constantinople and wild rumors are afloat there of other projected outrages.

The Vienna correspondent of The Times reports that in various competent quarters the danger of a Turko-Bulgarian conflict is represented to be graver at the present moment than at any previous juncture. It is believed in Vienna, he adds, that if war breaks out, it will be less on account of Bulgarian sympathy with the Macedonians than because the Bulgarians fear the untoward consequences to their own country of the return en masse of the desperate, disappointed insurgent leaders who would swamp Bulgarian public life and cause perpetual unrest if Turkey crushed the rebellion.

No British Marines Landed

London, Sept. 5.—No British marines have been landed at Constantinople so far as the foreign office is informed, but if the British foreign office needs protection the British ambassador is authorized to call upon the commander of the British guardship for guards. The foreign office considers it probable that Russia and Austria have landed marines to protect their embassies, as a result of the porte's note of warning to the ambassadors.

BANQUET TO LIPTON

Sportsman Reciprocates Esteem and Good Will of His American Friends

New York, Sept. 5.—Sir Thomas Lipton was the guest of honor of the Pilgrims of the United States at a dinner given in his honor last night at the Waldorf-Astoria. Nearly 150 men, prominent in many walks of life, were present. There had been arranged no formal speeches but the following were called upon: George T. Wilson, Sir Thomas Lipton, General Wheeler, General Corbin, Colonel Watterson, ex-Governor Thomas of Colorado and Senator Bates.

Sir Thomas was given many hearty rounds of cheers when he arose. He said in part: "As regards the cup races, we have been beaten fairly and squarely and I congratulate America on having the better boat. I wish to take occasion here to express my thanks for the courteousness and kindness shown me by the New York Yacht club. I have heard much comment for and against the Sandy Hook course. It is as good a course as any other. Although I have been without success each time I have tried I do not despair that some day we shall succeed in capturing that famous trophy. Herreshoff is the greatest designer of the age.

"While I lost the cup, or rather did not succeed in winning it, I have not lost the esteem and goodwill of my American friends, which esteem and good-will I reciprocate in the very highest degree possible. A great comfort and consolation to me in my unsuccessful effort to lift the cup is the great kindness shown me by all classes. My feeling of gratitude for this spirit is great beyond expression. I shall bear in my heart the remembrance of your kindly acts for all time."

Government Sues Sheriff

Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 5.—Acting upon instructions from Attorney General Knox, suit has been instituted by United States District Attorney Wright for the government against Sheriff Fox and his bondsmen for $10,000 damages. The government's claim is on account of the escape of Harvey Logan from the Knox county jail June 27 last. Logan is the Montana train robber.

Sir Thomas' "If"

New York, Sept. 5.—Sir Thomas Lipton is still undecided whether to challenge again for the America's cup. He said: "If I can find a man who can design a boat to beat the Yankee sloop I shall challenge again. To say that I will not challenge again is untrue. If I do challenge again it will be with a 90-footer."

Violated Emigration Law

Berlin, Sept. 5.—A man affirming that he is an American and a priest arrived at Gleiwitz, Poland, with six girls, who, it is alleged, he was taking to a convent in St. Louis. The man was arrested under the paragraph in the emigration law forbidding the enticing of young girls out of the country.

Martial Conditions Prevail

St. Petersburg, Sept. 5.—The Vostotchny Vestnik, at Vladivostock, says every passenger train on the Manchurian railroad is now accompanied by a detachment of soldiery and that the whole line is guarded by sentries.

Sullivan at Head of Eagles

New York, Sept. 5.—Congressman Timothy D. Sullivan is now at the head of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, having been elected grand worthy master at the convention here. The election was a spirited one.

HUNT FOR GIANT BIRD

German Expedition to Find the Roc In Madagascar.

EVIDENCE OF LIVE SPECIMEN SEEN

One of Its Fresh Eggs, Weighing Twenty-seven Pounds, Said to Have Been Found by the Natives—Professor Krause Will Try to Secure the Bird Alive.

For a single bird—$100,000!

That giant roc which terrorized Sindbad the Sailor and all his men was no myth, says the New York World. The "Arabian Nights" tells the truth when it speaks of that monster of the skies, which would carry off a man in its great claws. Schezerade was telling no fairy tale.

Professor Krause, foremost among the savants of the University of Berlin, is even now in Madagascar seeking the great bird which boy readers know as the roc and which scientists call the æpyornis. Arabian romance had a shorter name—the roc. The savant has been commissioned to engage whatever men and transport he needs and to spend 500,000 marks if he can bring back just one of those giant birds, long since believed to be extinct.

"Have started on the hunt" is the last cable message which the senate of the university has received. Now, it is all that those grave and spectacled German scientists can do to wait for the great day when the intrepid Krause shall return to civilization with perhaps another message:

"I have the roc itself!"

But how does Professor Krause know that there is a live roc in the heart of Madagascar? That question is most easy to answer because a fresh egg has been found. It was floating down the quiet stream toward the southeast coast, borne upon the bosom of the current that had brought it from the wild and almost unexplored interior of the great island off the east African coast.

Natives found it. With loud cries of joy they bore it to a little party of white men who happened to be near by. One chanced to be a naturalist. For a moment he was dumfounded; then he spoke. "The egg of the æpyornis," he said, "the roc of Arabian fable. The egg is fresh. It would have turned within a week. The bird that laid this egg is still alive!" The great egg was twelve inches in diameter and twenty inches long. It weighed twenty-seven pounds. Think of a chick of such tremendous weight! The white men were Germans. They cabled at once to Berlin, and back the next day came the order for Professor Krause to take command and to work his way up the river at any price to find the live bird that laid the egg. That the egg was still fresh proved that the bird could not be far away.

The expedition is equipped with everything that science can suggest. Its orders are to bring the great bird back alive and to study its native haunts, its life and its present condition. If the expedition is successful, it will be one of the notable achievements for natural history of the present century.

For a long period the marshes of Madagascar have yielded the fossil eggs of these enormous extinct birds, the rocs of days long since bygone. The natives have known of them for many, many years and have been accustomed to hunt them for naturalists by probing the bottoms of the swamps with long iron rods. All the better museums of the world have one or more of the giant fossil eggs.

For the monster birds the name of æpyornis was proposed when the first fossil eggs were found. Gradually it became accepted as the scientific name of the giant bird that had laid those great eggs. In the course of time naturalists were rewarded by the discovery of fossil bones of the bird. Some of these disinterred within recent years indicate that they belonged to birds bigger than any others known to students of natural history. The bones of the toes seemed almost as large as those of mastodons. Some of the birds had four toes; others had three. The toes can be told by the experts because of the absence of the bony bridge at the lower end of the shin bones, which are as thick and as long as those of the average elephant of today.

Many of the fossil eggs are far larger than the fresh one just discovered. Some of them have a circumference of thirty inches and a longer girth of thirty-six inches. The birds they have hatched in prehistoric times have been like the ordinary ostrich, yet possessed of wings which gave them tremendous powers of flight. They were endowed with strength sufficient to give battle to lions and tigers.

Should one of these great feathered creatures be brought back to the coast and successfully shipped to some menagerie or avairy it could easily be regarded as the most valuable natural history specimen in the whole world. An ordinary specimen, which is all that Professor Krause hopes for, would be about fifteen feet high and would weigh 2,000 pounds.

The egg that was found floating down the stream has been carefully preserved. Its contents would equal twenty dozen eggs of the ordinary hen and would easily make an omelet for the crew of a United States cruiser or provide a meal for a battalion of regular army soldiers, with hard tack and coffee to piece it out.

THE BERLINER AIR SHIP.

Inventor Preparing to Test Enlarged Model of His Aeroplane.

Emile Berliner of Washington will test in a few weeks an enlarged model of his flying machine, which is now being built in his laboratory in Columbia road, says the New York Herald. The tail of the machine will be larger in proportion to the body than in the machine which was tested on Aug. 19, and the three cylinders will be placed some distance apart rather than near together, as in the old machine.

"The two most original ideas embodied in our models are the incline at the end of the cylinders and the application of the large tail," said Edgar Berliner, son of the inventor. "The pressure of compressed air against this incline and against the tail is what raises the machine so successfully. By means of the tail it will also be possible to guide the machine. The tail will consist of plates which close over each way and can be adjusted so as to regulate the movements of the machine. An adjustment of the tail will also make it possible for the machine to descend, something like a parachute, to the ground. At present we are experimenting with propellers of various sorts to take the place of the skyrockets which have been used in propelling our models."

The Berliner model tried on Aug. 19 is seven feet long. It consists of three aluminium troughs arranged side by side and inverted. There are five and a half feet long and open at the front to admit air freely. One foot from the rear end they begin to incline and slope down to the tail, which is made of pieces of tin one and a half feet long. The horizontal area of the machine is thirty square feet, and it weighs, together with the ballast which it carries to represent the cage and person of a completed machine, about thirty-four pounds. Oak rods and metal tubing are used in fastening the main parts of the machine together.

The two skyrockets which sent the machine through the air for fifty feet at a uniform distance of three and a half feet from the ground weighed two pounds each. They were fastened just above the tail. Ballast was suspended from the aluminium portion near the tail. Here the propelling machinery will probably be suspended when a machine is constructed of sufficient size to carry an operator.

There are no wings of any sort to the machine.

THE BEIRUT AFFAIR.

Missionary Tells of a Previous Assault on Vice Consul Magelssen.

Miss Alice Barber of Joliet, Ill., who was a missionary for eighteen years at Beirut, in Turkey, and is well acquainted with Vice Consul Magelssen, attributes the present difficulty in Beirut to the lower classes, the outlaws and footpads who infest the city and make it exceedingly dangerous for foreigners at all times, says the New York Post.

"About two years ago," said Miss Barber, "an attack was made upon Mr. Magelssen while he was on his way from the cape, where the American college is located, to the main part of the city. Three men sprang from a thicket, knocked him down and took his watch and chain. He is a young man of powerful build and was formerly a football player. As soon as he recovered from his surprise he attacked his assailants, recovered his watch and gave all three of the robbers a severe beating.

"Quite a commotion was raised at the time, and the college instructors appealed to the local authorities for better protection. As a result a police station was established near there, and a detail of soldiers was stationed in that locality. In spite of this it became more dangerous for the instructors, and none of them ventured out at night unless they were armed with stout walking sticks."

KANSAS TEACHERS PROTEST

Present Resolutions Against the Trustees' Anticourting Order.

The teachers of Harvey county, Kan., at a recent institute adopted with enthusiasm the following resolutions:

Whereas, Our fathers came to Kansas in pursuance of a high and holy desire to establish the institutions of freedom and equality on Kansas soil and did heroic service in the dark and bloody days of the border war to establish constitutional liberty in this state; therefore be it

Resolved, That we view with alarm the tendency of school boards in certain parts of Kansas to adopt harsh and oppressive measures in restriction of our sacred and inalienable rights.

Resolved, That to submit to such tyranny would prove us to be unworthy children of such noble parentage.

Resolved, That, the larger per cent of our teachers being marriageable, we urge upon all the necessity of vigorous and unceasing rebellion against this attempt to deprive us of our right to court and be courted.

Labor Day will be observed as a holiday by the Daily Ledger, the office of publication being closed. No paper will be issued. The Ledger of Tuesday will have the news of three days.

Good Afternoon

There may be some doubt whether Henry H. Faxon will accomplish any reform in city affairs, by advertising our finances to the world. Those who take an interest in problems of this kind, have a warm attachment for the city, and feelings engendered because of attacks on the city will outweigh any political bias. City finances and city politics are little affairs of our own, and should be worked out at home; in the local papers; at the caucuses; on election days, and in the City Council. The tendency of all cities is toward extravagant expenditures, which should be checked.

The above comments are called forth by the following editorial in the Woburn Journal of yesterday. If all the newspapers pick it up Quincy will get undesirable advertising:

We are in receipt of a document from Henry H. Faxon, Esq., of Quincy, the ablest temperance champion of the State and prominent municipal government reformer, a bold and fearless fighter for right and justice, bearing on the debt, valuation and taxes of Quincy in which he "roasts" the Mayor and other officials of that city to all intents and purposes and rubs it in. Mr. Faxon's circular gives facts and figures which plainly show that there is a screw loose in the management of Quincy's affairs; and deep, honest probing in other cities would show an equally bad condition of things in their public business.

SCHOOL REPAIRS.

All Buildings Put in Good Condition by Commissioner Knowlton.

During the summer vacation of the schools Commissioner Knowlton has given the several school buildings a thorough overhauling and put them all in good condition.

The most extensive repairs and changes were at the Willard school. There on the first floor the partitions between a school room, on either side of the corridor, and the cloak room, were removed and a new partition put up so that two additional school rooms were obtained.

A new system of electric wiring for lights and bells has been put in, leaks in the roof repaired, chimney retopped, and the wood, iron and copper work painted, also the fence. The heating and ventilating has also been overhauled.

At the Adams building new floors have been put down in some of the rooms.

At the Coddington there has been some minor work done.

At the Massachusetts Fields, painting, repairing copper conductors and sanitaries have received attention.

At the Quincy, the floors, stairs and platforms repaired, also leak in roof. New water piping was put in.

At the Wollaston, the bulkhead doors and windows were repaired.

At the Cranch, practically nothing.

At the Gridley Bryant, a leak in the roof was stopped and some whitewashing and painting were done.

At the Lincoln, the conductors and windows were repaired.

At the John Hancock the conductors, and a little painting.

At the High some painting and minor repairs.

Aside from these the blackboards in all of the buildings have been repaired and the heating and sanitary system overhauled.

Nothing was done to the old Washington building as the new building will be ready for occupancy by Oct. 1.

An officer was needed to cover a part of South Quincy not now covered, and there was need of another day officer at the police station. He recommended that the permanent force be increased three men, whose pay for the balance of the year could be charged to receipts of the Police department. Referred to joint committee on Finance, Police and Ordinances.

Councilman Smith offered an order amending the Police ordinance so as to increase the number of permanent men from 17 to 20. Referred to the same committee as above communication.

POLLING PLACES.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Republican City committee designating polling places desired for the caucuses Sept. 25.

Councilman Bass offered an order for the same which was adopted.

Petty Breaks.

Burglars were about City Square last night but did not get much. From the nature of the places entered and the goods taken, the parties who did the job are probably local characters. The places entered were Ames' butter and egg store and the Italian fruit store in the old court room building on Hancock street.

Entrance to Ames' store was through a window on the cemetery side of the building. Fifty cents in change, a small piece of cheese, and a few eggs were taken. A Salvation Army box containing over $8 was overlooked.

In the fruit store all that was taken was a basket of grapes.

An Evening on Northfield.

At the United Presbyterian church, Fort Square, next Thursday evening to be addressed by Dr. Sherman and Mr. S. Scammell and the pastor, on what Northfield stands for. A number of photographs of the leading spirits and speakers of the Northfield Conference, of the buildings, scenery, streets, etc., will be exhibited at the close.

Prof. Parsons will sing a solo and the choir will sing an anthem. All the friends of, and those interested in this great conference are invited.

Point Well Taken.

The Ledger's policy of no discrimination was neatly justified by a reply made in the District court the other day by a lawyer. One attorney said that the Ledger ought to give the names of counsel engaged in the cases, to which the other replied, "That would be great for the lawyer who appears often, but how about the fellow who is not so fortunate?" It was admitted that the point was well taken.

Difficult to Choose.

The candidating for pastor at the Water street Presbyterian church has closed for the present and the session and congregation are trying to make a choice. Mr. Sproule, who first supplied, is much in favor and so is the minister who preached the past two Sundays. One of them will in all probability be selected.

—Booker Washington, talking to the National Negro Business League, in session at Nashville, Tenn., said:—"It is much wiser for us to emphasize opportunities than grievances. The world soon gets tired of the man or the race with a grievance. We must learn to be bigger than those who would insult us."

THE LITERARY WORLD.

Mark Twain and His Namesake—Gossip About Authors.

[Special Correspondence.]

Chicago, Aug. 31.—Mark Twain is going abroad for his wife's health, he says. This is a subterfuge. The real reason is explained by a writer in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. He is trying to get away from "Mark Twain," his namesake.

When the St. Louis harbor boat was named Mark Twain as a compliment it was not foreseen that references to the boat in the daily papers from time to time would be cause for smiles. But when we read the headline, "Mark Twain In Need of Repairs," we comprehend at once the possibilities of future references to the harbor boat. We shall expect to see further startling statements in the St. Louis papers as long as the harbor boat floats upon our waters, such as "Mark Twain's boilers being blown out," "Accident to Mark Twain's pilot house," "Thanksgiving dinner on Mark Twain" or maybe a "Champagne supper on Mark Twain' and "Mark Twain jammed in ice," though we hope not.

A parody of Elinor Glyn's clever story, "The Reflections of Ambrosine' (Harper's), is appearing in the London Tatler under the title "The Conclusions of Bandoline." Here is a paragraph from the parody:

"A wonderful thing has happened. I am affianced to Mr. Menelaus Bung. He is very rich; he makes pigs of iron. Ah, what a talent! Who but an Englishman could make pigs of iron? It is a wonderful profession. This morning Great-Great called me to her and said 'Thou wilt do as I wish, my Bandoline, and wed this Bung?' 'Yes madame,' I replied. 'I am not as the English miss, who is indelicate and thinks of loving her husband.'"

American travelers in England will be gainers by a new arrangement which makes it possible for the first time to visit Milton's cottage at Chalfont St. Giles and the graves of William Penn and Gray, the poet, all in one day. These three celebrated literary shrines are in picturesque Buckinghamshire, and quite near at hand, too are the Burnham beeches, the quaint remains of the ancient forest which once covered this part of England and which are included in the newly arranged day trip.

First, Americans who take it will be carried to Stoke Poges, the quiet village near Windsor, in whose churchyard Gray wrote his "Elegy" and in whose place of worship he lies buried and has his memorial. Milton's cottage at Chalfont St. Giles is that which the author of "Paradise Lost" got his Quaker friend, Ellwood, who lived near by, to rent for him so that he might be able to leave London, where the great plague was raging just then. When the poet came to St. Giles he brought with him the manuscript of his famous epic, which he asked Ellwood to take home, read and pass judgment upon. Of course the Quaker went into ecstasies over the work, but he remarked "Thou hast said much here of 'Paradise Lost,' but what hast thou to say of 'Paradise Found?'" That little observation led to the composition of Milton's greatest work but one, for right there in the rustic cottage the poet sat him down and began work on "Paradise Regained," which he finished about a year afterward, though not at St Giles.

Uncle Sam, though a prolific publisher, is not a painstaking one. He is careless about the indexing and arrangement of his volumes. Some idea of the work necessary to be done in compiling a history from any of his inchoate governmental reports may be gained from a statement made by Mr. Gilbert Holland Montague in connection with his "The Rise and Progress of the Standard Oil Company."

In order to gather data from one official report alone—the Hepburn report, made in 1879 by a committee of the New York legislature—Mr. Montague was obliged to read over 8,000 pages of closely printed questions and answers which make up the evidence taken by this committee. In several instances Mr. Montague was obliged to index hundreds of pages of a report before he could digest the evidence, counter evidence and refutation scattered throughout the examinations of witnesses before a committee. The first investigating committee which has carefully indexed, summarized and digested its findings was the industrial commission appointed in 1898 by the president, which investigated and reported on the Standard Oil company in 1900.

Melba In a Temper.

When Mme. Melba first tasted the sweets of fashionable life a Boston woman of fashion captured her for a dinner. The Boston woman loaded her guest with attentions, and after the dinner she said to Melba, "You will give us a little song tonight, dear Mme. Melba?" But the songstress refused. The Boston woman pleaded and said petulantly: "I am quite sure my guests will be disappointed. Really you are quite unkind." This infuriated the high spirited singer, and she answered: "My terms as a dinner entertainer are $2,000. You may see my manager if you want me to sing for your guests." Then Melba got her wraps and went away in a frenzy of anger.

What He Missed.

"An old negro living in Carrollton," relates the Bosworth (Mo.) Star-Sentinel, "was taken ill and called in a physician of his race to prescribe for him. But the old man did not seem to be getting better, and finally a white physician was called. Soon after arriving Dr. S. felt the darky's pulse for a moment and then examined his tongue. 'Did your other doctor take your temperature?' he asked. 'I don't know, sah,' he answered feebly; 'I hain't missed anything but my watch as yit, boss.'"

The Shorter Way.

"I understand that you have been experimenting with a view to discovering the philosopher's stone?" said the boyhood friend.

"Yes," said the intellectual man. "If I discover it, I shall become rich."

The Stick Insect of Borneo.

The longest known insect is undoubtedly the stick insect of Borneo. Specimens thirteen inches in length have been captured. It is an interesting example of mimetic coloring, resembling in a remarkable manner a piece of rough stick. On the bough of a tree it is extremely difficult to distinguish between the insect and the bark. Borneo is also the home of one of the largest species of dragon fly. A specimen of the subfamily æschna measures six inches and a half from wing to wing and is endowed with a correspondingly strong body.

Boston Could Stand It.

Ralph Waldo Emerson once made a crushing reply to a man who asked him whether the people in Boston did not feel alarmed. Said Emerson, "What about?" Said the man, "Why, the world is coming to an end next Monday." Emerson replied: "I'm glad of it. We can get along a great deal better without it."

A Slight Fire.

"I say, Miss De Witt," remarked young Sapleigh, "youh wesplendent beauty sets me bwain on fire, doncher know?"

"Never mind, Mr. Sapleigh," replied Miss De Witt, "the conflagration will be too insignificant to necessitate the calling out of the fire brigade."

Plain Talk.

"Shave," said the crusty patron laconically.

"Close?" inquired the barber.

"No. I'm not close, but I'm not in the habit of giving tips if that's what you're driving at."

Many seemingly unaccountable friendships hang upon a golden image.

—The National Education association has more than one hundred and fifty thousand dollars in its treasury, after paying all the expenses of its Boston meeting. Moreover, the treasurer is bonded.—Charlestown Enterprise.

The Harmless Grass Snake.

The poor, harmless grass snake is the subject of stories almost as wonderful as those related of the adder. The superstition that, however much you may hammer it, it will not die till the setting of the sun is widely held. A fable not so generally held to is that even at sundown it will not die if you should neglect to tell some one of what you have done. The rule on seeing one of these terrible creatures is to "hit it and tell"—that is, give it a good drubbing and run quickly and tell some one. The best snake story is from Leigh Sinton, near Malvern, according to a London correspondent. A laborer states that he had killed a grass snake and hung it on a tree. The blood dripped down and a toad came and swallowed some, dying instantly!

The fancy that makes this species poisonous or even harmful is a wild one, but how much more wild is that which attributes violent toxic properties to any chance drop of blood from its body! It might have been thought that the other popular belief that poisonous things cannot be poisoned would have saved the life of the poor toad.—London Express.

Turtles Tenacious of Life.

The way cats cling to their proverbial nine lives is well known, but the average turtle will make a tougher stand than nine ordinary cats. Perhaps boiling will kill a turtle at once, but any other method seems hopeless.

The severed head of a snapping turtle will bite for an hour after separation from the body. But more wonderful is the indifference of the green turtle of the West Indies to mutilation. A party of naturalists lately returned give an account of an experience which proves beyond doubt that the green turtle's indifference does not lie in its head.

A green turtle found on the beach turned and made for the water. One of the party severed its head with an ax and turned the body around. The headless turtle ran, then stopped and turned toward the water again.

BOSTON AMUSE MENTS.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The regular fall and winter season at the Castle Square Theatre begins with the performances of the coming week and the plans made by the management for the following months can hardly fail to find favor with the patrons of this play-house. Many strong attractions have been secured and a company of artists of recognized merit will ensure the same high standard in the season's productions. Lillian Lawrence, the accomplished leading lady of former seasons, returns to the scene of her many successes and is assured a hearty welcome from her many admirers after her long vacation. For the opening attraction the selection made is the romantic play "The Prisoner of Zenda" which has proved immensely popular with the Castle Square audiences in its former presentations. Patrons of the down town ticket office of this theatre are notified of its removal to No. 8 Music Hall Arcade, entrance from 415 Washington Street.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Robert Hilliard will be the star attraction at Keith's next week, appearing in a new and original sketch that is said to be quite melodramatic in character. Mr. Hilliard is to play the part of a burglar and a little girl figures in it also. The star will be supported by Edward Holland, who is also a capital actor. Among the other entertainers scheduled for the week commencing Sept. 7 are the following: Holloway Trio, the greatest wire performers in the varieties; Grace Laru a strenuous singer of "coon" ballads, assisted by pickanninies; Hal Merritt, monologue and mimetic comedian; Treloar, an ex-Harvard oarsman and athlete, in an exhibition similar to Sandow's, assisted by Mlle. Tempest; Emma Carus, vocal commedienne, lately with "The Defender;" Brothers Devan, novelty acrobats, introducing the only canine acrobat in the world, and Wallno and Marinette, the original Viohna caricature dancers, making their first appearance in this country. Monday (Labor Day) the doors will be opened at 10 o'clock A. M.

BOSTON THEATRE.

Now and then Boston gets a play that is distinctly a Boston made affair and it will be an occasion of this sort when Kathryn Osterman appears in "Miss Petticoats" at the Boston Theatre for two weeks, commencing Monday night, Sept. 14. Many theatre-goers will recognize this title as the same as that of a novel which has been very widely read in Boston and New England during the past year and a half. It was written by Dwight Tilton, which is the pseudonym for George Tilton Richardson and Wilder Dwight Quint, two Boston authors and newspaper men. The dramatization was made by Mr. Richardson, one of the authors of the book. The opening performance in Boston will practically be the first on any stage, for the only preliminary performances are on Friday and Saturday nights and Saturday matinee at the Hyperion Theatre, New Haven, Sept. 11 and 12. The production is made on a very elaborate scale with special scenery by Messrs. Rafter and Angevine. The role of "Miss Petticoats" assumed by Miss Osterman is said to afford splendid opportunities for displaying some her attractive gowns and these she has taken advantage of to the fullest extent.

What Columbus Might Have Done.

There are relatives of Columbus living in Spain at the present time. It is said that gambling debts are keeping them poor. These persons look to the United States with wistful eyes, hoping that some patriotic American will confer on them a few millions in recognition of their distinguished ancestor. This fact led a statistician to work his brain, and he published the statement that had Columbus placed $1 at compound interest at 6 per cent 400 years ago his descendants today would possess a sum amounting to more than $8,600,000,000. When these figures were published Lyman J. Gage was secretary of the treasury. His attention was called to the tremendous possibility of a single dollar, and his comment was either a sincere remark or a well adapted pun. He said, "Indeed, to me this is a story of great interest."

Honors Were Easy.

"In the church I attended as a boy," said a New York man, "there were frequent clashes between the minister and the choir. The minister thought the choir irreverent and unmusical. The choir thought him a back number. Each tried to give the other a dig on every possible occasion.

"One Sunday, I remember, there was a clash wherein the honors were about even. The minister, after the choir had sung the opening hymn, said with a significant smile, that his text would be from Acts xx, 'And after the uproar was ceased.' But the choir, at the sermon's end, retorted neatly with the anthem, 'It Is Time to Awake From Sleep.'"

MERCHANT SHIPS.

Quincy Should be Interested in the New York Appeal.

Those extraordinary terms of the Cunard and Morgan agreements, binding the Atlantic fleet more tightly than ever to the British government, have intensified the alarm already felt in America at the desperate condition of our own deep sea shipping says the Boston Journal editorially, which comments as follows:

Not for two years now has one new keel been laid in this country for overseas trade, and all but eight or nine per cent. of our ocean-carrying is monopolized by foreigners. We are creating a great war navy, but except on the coast, rivers and lakes we are losing our merchant navy, which forty-five years ago was the largest and most prosperous in the world.

Our shipowners and shipbuilders have long realized the peril of this situation, but the matter is now being taken up in earnest by men who have no interest in the shipping trade save as patriotic citizens of the republic. The New York Board of Trade and Transportation, a great commercial body, composed of merchants, not of shipbuilders or owners, has appointed a special committee to urge upon the country "the imperative need of the revival of American shipping in the foreign trade."

"The American people," declare these significant New York resolutions, "must have prosperous shipyards and a great merchant fleet as a bulwark of their trade and the indispensable reserve of their fighting navy. Shipbuilding and navigation, bringing a fair gain to capital and labor, are as vital to the nation's defence as armorclads and guns."

The New York Board of Trade and Transportation does not presume to say just what method ought to be adopted as "the best means by which our shipping may be built up." Its purpose is to arouse a public opinion which shall demand that something be done and done at once to save this great, historic interest from destruction.

The exact policy to be adopted is left to be settled by frank and thorough discussion. The board is not a political body; it is genuinely non-partisan. Many of its members doubtless are Republicans, but its president, one of the most eminent of New York merchants, Hon. Oscar S. Straus, was President Cleveland's minister to Turkey in his second administration.

Mr. Aaron Vanderbilt, chairman of this special committee on the merchant marine, has sent out a circular statement to thousands of the newspapers of the country, presenting the startling facts and figures of our maritime weakness, and inviting the press of all parties to join in the discussion and to help to ascertain the best and surest remedy. Later the assistance of all the commercial and labor organizations will be invoked. "The committee," Mr. Vanderbilt says, will not turn its back on or ignore any suggestion that may be made in good faith or sincerity."

This appeal of the New York Board of Trade and Transportation ought to meet with an especially prompt response from our States of Northern New England, which, now for the first time in their history, are not building so much as one ship for overseas trade. This movement, begun in the right way and with the right spirit, is unquestionably the most important and the most promising effort ever launched for the winning back of our old maritime strength and glory.

A NOTORIOUS CORPS.

The French Foreign Legion and Its Dangerous Characters.

The death penalty awarded a private in the French foreign legion for throwing his cap in his captain's face at Oran is an illustration of the merciless severity exercised in that famous corps. Shooting at sight is permitted the officers, who have to deal with dangerous characters from all quarters of Europe.

Nowhere is there such a corps, according to the London Chronicle. Its ranks are recruited from outcasts of all social ranks. Disgraced officers of the Russian service, deserters from the German army, broken scions of the Austrian nobility, fraudulent debtors from Belgium, forgers from Spain, homicides from America, ruined gamblers from Italy, are found in plenty in the ranks. No excuse is taken for a fault, and the slightest symptom of insubordination carries with it a swift passage to another world. It is understood that recruits are simply seeking refuge from the arm of the civil law.

The foreign legion is the only voluntarily enlisted corps in the French army. It has done excellent service against the Arabs and is always placed in the forefront of the fight.

*—President John C. Mitchell of the International Union of Stationary Firemen, after travelling extensively in the east and west and studying conditions of organized labor, takes a gloomy view of the prospects of unionism. He says the disintegration which is becoming manifest in organized labor, is due to the arrogant spirit of the labor leaders, to unwise demands upon employers, and to a too little regard for the right of others.—Whitman Times.

Five Cents On the Belt Line

By GRACE POPE

Copyright, 1902, by Grace Pope

THE hot wave had struck Montreal, and Miss Sherbrooke was too warm to think.

She went out on her high bedroom balcony and looked into the night. Her father had gone to New York, and she was going to Newport tomorrow.

Mrs. Presidder was taking her off her father's hands for the season.

But tonight Miss Sherbrooke was making the decision of her life alone.

Two men were coming to her tomorrow for a "yes" or "no," and to save her life she could not choose between them.

It had to be "no" for one. But which one? She hated that it should be for either. She was sure that she loved them both, though much surer that they both loved her. Apart from the question of love there was nothing to consider. Both were clever, both were rich and both were good looking. Both presumably were good; at least she had heard nothing to the contrary. She knew very few women, and men were so noncommittal.

She was uneasily conscious of something her father always said, "You see all the good there is in a man and are as blind as a bat to the evil."

Was she really blind? Surely it did not matter. Her father knew them both and liked them.

She looked out at the waving tree tops. It was blowing somewhere in the open. The wind that saved Montreal every night was saving it now. She should be out. That was it. But where and how?

The long, low cry of a Belt line car came swelling up through the night. She gave one startled look in the direction of the sound and hesitated, but in that hesitation her mind was made up. She looked at her watch in the electric light. It was ten minutes to 11.

The horses were out of the question at that hour, and the servants were all asleep. She had never been out alone in a car at night in her life, and she did not like to go now. But she was not afraid and could break the convenances on occasion with impunity. And she resolved to do it now.

Ten minutes later, in the most unobtrusive of dresses, she stepped off the pavement at Park avenue and walked out to meet a down car. There was one empty place on the second seat from the front at the inside, and she got into it with praiseworthy nimbleness. Then she settled herself back in the corner with a sigh of satisfaction and waited for the breeze. She knew at once almost by instinct that the man sitting next her was "nice," but in a moment she knew something else that sent her heart to her throat and kept it there, beating thickly.

Was this fate, or what? One of those other two men was sitting on the seat before her. When Miss Sherbrooke had collected her wits she knew that he had not seen her, and after a furtive reconnoiter she began to observe him more boldly.

More than half the people round her were sitting back in unconcealed lethargy and careless of everything about them but the blessed relief of the wind. Miss Sherbrooke took her cue from them at once and looked out from the ambush of her lashes.

He was sitting bareheaded at the outside of the seat with his masterful side face toward her and his bright hair blowing back softly, and when she looked at his closed eyes she felt a strange thrill of exultation. Yet she knew that their owner was not sleeping, and she knew, too, that once he had seen her she could not deceive him for a moment. He would go home with her from the car, and she should have said "yes" when she got there.

And could any woman regret it? Surely few men could hold a candle to him. She only knew of one. When she thought of that one she sighed and looked out into the night.

"Poor Swin!" she said to herself. "I believe that I love you best, but Jerry is stronger than you."

Jerry looked very strong at that moment and even a trifle sullen. Miss Sherbrooke began to wish he would smile. She wanted to see the adorable change that a smile always brought to his face.

"Tickets, ple-e-ease!"

The conductor was swinging down along the footboard, and Miss Sherbrooke discovered, with a shock of dismay, that the twenty-five cent piece she held ready was plugged. She had nothing else but her lucky penny and a five dollar bill. She knew there was nothing else, though she felt again with quiet desperation.

The lucky penny was an ordinary five cent piece with a small gold J on one side. A boy had thrown it to her on a snowball one dark night long ago as she was crying at her nursery window. She had never forgotten his cheery shout:

"Keep it till you want something awfully bad."

She might give the $5. For an instant she thought she would and risk a loud toned parley. And then Jerry moved a little.

Miss Sherbrooke seized her penny and thrust it into the box in an agony of trepidation.

She saw her penny disappear without compunction and was only glad that the man did not see the gold letter. She was blankly unconscious that the keen eyes beside her had seen it with quick recognition.

"St. Catherine! Change cars eas' an' wes'!"

There were movement and bustle on the front seat, and an enormously fat old woman stood up and dislodged two sleeping children. Clutching the younger by the arm, she signaled the retreating conductor and in doing so lurched down upon Jerry.

And then Miss Sherbrooke saw a change come over Jerry's face with a vengeance and heard four electrifying swear words. Her face and her heart hardened fiercely. She had a fine taste in swear words, and this outrageous travesty was unpardonable.

"And to a woman!" she said to herself. "Jerry Danberry, that is enough."

But more was to come very soon. A wave of people swept forward and up on the footboard. A humpback dressmaker girl jammed fast against Jerry at the entrance and strove to pass with her parcel. There was room, and to spare, on the inside, but the poor little soul never reached it.

The deliberate resistance of Jerry's legs and the threat of his half closed eyes were too much for her, and she dropped back among the crowd and made room for stronger climbers.

The car ran down into the town and soon reached the low Craig street crossing. Some people crowded out of the front seat, and a man climbed slowly into their place.

Miss Sherbrooke's face barely hid a passion of welcome and relief. What a fool she had been to compare them! Fancy Swin speaking so to a woman! And she laughed in her heart as she watched him drop solidly in front of his rival.

His smooth, dark face was toward her, with the old deprecatory droop of the mouth and the brown eyes that hid half their challenge, and Miss Sherbrooke surrendered at discretion.

But there was no challenge hiding there now. It was plain that he did not see her or even notice Jerry there before him, and Jerry's face was coolly contemptuous.

How white Swin looked and how tired! He had been playing too long in the sun again. As she watched him he leaned slowly outward to the shallow support of the side rail and rested against it inertly. The conductor swung up his box and waited, but he did not move.

"Tickets, please!" the man said again shortly. The brown eyes stared at him with an odd, helpless look, and Miss Sherbrooke grew seriously frightened. He had surely had a sunstroke or something, and Jerry was not stirring to help him. Indeed, it was only too plain that Jerry was rejoicing at his condition.

The conductor grew importunate and spoke loudly, and at last Swin said something inaudible.

"Can't find one?" the man exclaimed, smiling. "All right. I'll come back again then."

The car stopped, and in the hot silence a woman's voice sounded clearly:

"I thought they were always quarrelsome or noisy."

And a man's laughing undertone answered:

"He is too far gone to be either."

Miss Sherbrooke gave one despairing look at the faces about her, and her own turned as white as her ribbon. The truth had come on her like a thunderbolt. Swin was drunk. She did not move, nor did she faint, as the man beside her half expected, but set her teeth and sat watching the pitiful sight before her. The conductor came back and shook him, and at last Swin turned his head slowly.

"Put in 5 cents," said the man.

A puzzled frown went over the smooth forehead, but the right hand went mechanically to its pocket.

"Five cents or a ticket." The hand reappeared with a miscellaneous handful and among it a bit of blue paper. Slowly and painfully, as though he were moving in a dream, Swin singled this out from the rest and held it out.

Miss Sherbrooke recognized it at a glance, and she knew that Jerry did the same. It was an amateur blue print of herself. The conductor put it back with a grin and selected 5 cents apologetically. And then Miss Sherbrooke saw Jerry's adorable smile.

The car swung round into Amherst street, and Swin's heavy body swayed outward. Two girls near the front screamed and giggled, and an old lady clutched in the air.

"Let him fall!" cried Miss Sherbrooke in her heart, but her rage died out slowly in horror. Must she see his white face on the rails in that rabbit warren darkness?

Swin's face!

A rush of pity almost choked her. He was only a boy. After all he was only a boy, and Jerry would smile again when he saw him fall. She shut her teeth tighter and waited.

He was totally helpless now, and only his own heavy weight seemed keeping him upright.

The conductor retreated to the rear after a few backward glances and seemed to think there was nothing to fear. The front seat gradually emptied save for those two, and still nothing happened. Was he possibly safe, after all?

A sudden jerk of the car brought her heart to her throat. Swin's heavy body failed to respond as usual, and, with one sickening plunge, he was over. In falling his hand struck the rail and caught it, and he hung out unconscious, with his feet on the footboard.

The next moment the young man by Miss Sherbrooke was over the back of the front seat and out on the footboard beside him. And he was not a moment too soon. As his arm touched the heavy body the clinched hand slackened and let go, and it was well then that the arm was strong.

The whole car was on its feet with a rush and confusion of cries. But Jerry looked on with a sneer. As he moved to allow the young man and the conductor to assist Swin back into the car he said something with a laugh, and Miss Sherbrooke caught the word "swine." But Swin neither saw nor heard, and his rescuer guided him to the inner corner.

As Jerry turned his head after them he looked into Miss Sherbrooke's eyes. He turned white to the lips and made some incoherent attempt to speak, but her stare was pitiless. Jerry Danberry knew he was beaten and turned and stepped quietly from the car. And Miss Sherbrooke was left with the two men facing her alone.

To her inexpressible relief, the stranger began speaking at once in a cheerful, everyday tone.

"Now, Swin, old man," he said, "you have had a touch of sun. Lean back there now and keep still." And Swin leaned back obediently and shut his weary eyes.

Miss Sherbrooke felt two soft hands come suddenly over her eyes.

"You naughty girl!" said Mrs. Presidder in her ear. "I could not make you see me before. I wanted to introduce Jack to you—my nephew, who comes with us tomorrow. I see he has picked up an old friend. He played with him once in Toronto. The poor fellow seems quite done up."

And so Mrs. Presidder rattled on with the ready tact that left no need for reply, and Miss Sherbrooke pulled herself together. She was grateful to Jack Presidder and his aunt, but neither deceived her for a moment. She went through the rest of the ride with a very brave face and laughed gayly when she bade her escort good night, but to this day the scent of new hay as it blew from the mountain that night brings an odd, sick pain to her heart.

And it took three long moonlit weeks at Newport, with all Jack Presidder's eloquence, backed up by his aunt's tact and cunning, to wipe out the cruel stain of that horrible ride on the Belt line. But Mrs. Jack Presidder now wears the lucky penny as a pin—a penny that was ably recovered from the Montreal street railway that night while Miss Sherbrooke lay desolate on her bed and wept for her broken idols.

A Siberian Mammoth.

The wonderful antediluvian mammoth discovered eighteen months ago in Siberia has at last, after twelve months of labor and great expenditure, been safely secured in the museum of the Imperial academy in St. Petersburg. It was discovered on the left bank of the river Beresovka, in a region that for ages has been the scene of great landslips at the melting of the snows in spring. The discovery was made by a Siberian hunter, who secured one of the tusks for sale. It was of almost incredible size. Scientists estimate that the beast, entombed by a landslip, had been laid up for quite 200 centuries in the ice, which has so preserved it that the hair and hide are still intact.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 6—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—The allied forces of righteousness.—John xvii, 20-23; I Cor. i, 10-13.

The unity of the Christian church, for all practical purposes at least, such as the extension of Christ's kingdom and the overthrow of evil, is indeed "a consummation devoutly to be wished." Organic unity, as men are so differently constituted, is a dream impossible of realization, but unity in spirit, in sympathy and in service for Christ and against evil is a possibility, and should speedily become a reality.

In spite of all our differences the Christian church is essentially one church. The tendency in the past has been to emphasize the differences and to minimize the things upon which we agree, and the time has come to reverse the order. The church should emphasize to the world that it is essentially one church. (1) It believes in one God as manifested in Father, Son and Holy Ghost. (2) It has one faith—not one creed, though all denominations could accept the Apostles' Creed, but one faith—Christian faith, as distinctive from other religious faiths. (3) It has essentially the same ordinances—baptism and the Lord's supper. The forms of administration are not always the same, but the ordinances are. (4) It has one Bible. (5) It has the same forms of worship. These are praise, prayer, Scripture reading and preaching. Whether rendered in elaborate settings or in the simplest the forms are essentially the same. Our hymnology beautifully illustrates our essential oneness. Wesley, a Methodist, wrote "Jesus, Lover of My Soul;" Toplady, an Episcopalian, "Rock of Ages, Cleft For Me;" Fawcett, a Baptist, "Blest Be the Tie That Binds;" Bowring, a Unitarian, "In the Cross of Christ I Glory," and Cardinal Newman, who afterward became a Catholic, "Lead, Kindly Light." Yet these hymns are sung in all our churches. (6) The church has one fellowship. The common tie that binds us to Christ binds us to one another, and we should not only sing, but practice

Blest be the tie that binds
Our hearts in Christian love.

The Scripture constantly emphasizes the fact that the church is and should be a united church. Christ in His intercessary prayer prayed for the unity of the church, "that they may all be one, as Thou, Father, art in Me and I in Thee; that they may also be one in us; that the world may believe that Thou hast sent Me." And what Christ prayed for Paul argued for. To the divided Christians at Corinth he wrote: "Now, I beseech you, brethren, by the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, that ye speak the same thing, that there be no divisions among you. * * * Every one of you saith, I am of Paul, and I of Apollos, and I of Cephas, and I of Christ. Is Christ divided, was Paul crucified for you, or even ye baptized in the name of Paul?" And what Christ prayed for and Paul argued for we should earnestly labor for. The Christian church as one army, though divided into regiments and companies, should present a united front to the world that the world may know that Christ was sent of God and that the forces of evil may be overcome and the forces of righteousness may prevail.

Secretary Vogt's First Message.

General Secretary Vogt's first message was addressed to the Endeavorers of New York state through their state paper, Empire State Notes. It is as follows:

My Dear Fellow Workers:

I want to extend to you my hand of cooperation and at the same time assure you of my deep gratitude for your splendid achievement of increase for Christian Endeavor. It surely is an added earnest of larger things to come. Never has the need of men physically and spiritually been the subject of private talk and public consideration and the object of effort so much as now, and never so profound and widespread the conviction that the one help for that need in all its perplexing complications is Jesus Christ. Believing that no labor is worthy which does not somehow aid in bringing the world of needy men to Him who alone can save, let us wisely study and continually work that our great organization may more and more be effective to that end. Yours sincerely,

Von Ogden Vogt

Discovered the Young People.

It cannot be forgotten that Christian Endeavor, as I wrote sixteen years ago, discovered the young people to the church, discovered the power of the young people for Christian service to themselves, and thus utilized for the church and the kingdom of God this vast spiritual force.—Rev. Howard B. Grose.

President Clark's Trip.

Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark, the founder of the Christian Endeavor movement, in his recent four weeks' convention tour through the south made forty-three addresses in seven different states, with 5,400 miles of travel.

Quiz Box.

[Any question may be asked that pertains to any phase of Christian Endeavor work. Address Lock Box 674, Binghamton, N. Y.]

96. K. S. C., Scranton, Pa.—It cannot be insisted on too strongly that the Society of Christian Endeavor is a religious society. Social, literary and other features can be added as may seem desirable.

97. T. A., Oswego, N. Y.—The object of the society, as stated in the model constitution, is "to promote an earnest Christian life among its members, to increase their mutual acquaintance and to make them more useful in the service of God."

Bad Dreams
Too often seemingly trifling complaints of children are put off as things of no consequence. Every unnatural action is a symptom of disorder and deserving of careful investigation. Worms more than anything else are the cause of childhood sickness. Attacking, as they do, the stomach and bowels, the effect of their presence is felt throughout the whole system and made known by nervousness, peevishness, disturbed sleep, erratic appetite, weak stomach and general lassitude.
Dr. True's Elixir
is the surest and safest worm remedy ever compounded—but it is more than that. As a tonic and general corrective it is unexcelled. It tones stomach and bowels, cleanses and enriches the blood and sends renewed health tingling through the veins. For over 50 years the most popular home remedy. Sold at all druggists, 50c. Write for free booklet on "Children and Their Diseases."

MAY DECLINE TO RUN

Low Likely to Yield to Advice of His Friends

SUCCESS OF FUSION TICKET

Could Be Best Secured by Nomination of an Independent Democrat—Mayor Takes New View of Situation and Is Doing Some Thinking

New York, Sept. 5.—The Herald says that Mayor Low, who has practically been the anti-Tammany candidate for mayor since the fusion conference on Tuesday night, probably will yield to the advice of his friends and withdraw. It is expected that Mr. Low will write a letter to the fusion conference commission in which he will announce his desire that some other man be named for mayor. It may be that, even in the face of this, the committee will nominate him; but, even if that is done, it is said that the mayor will decline.

The mayor has been consulting with friends and political leaders of all shades of opinion since Monday. Most of them have told him that his election would be doubtful, while the nomination of an independent Democrat would make the success of the fusion ticket. This view has been shared by some of the most prominent men in the Citizens' union. They have told the mayor this very frankly, and have assured him that it is no reflection on himself or his administration, but that it is due to the peculiar political conditions in this city.

The mayor's close friend, Dr. E. R. L. Gould, said significantly that it would be a correct statement of the situation to say that the mayor is hesitating, and that it is possible he may decide to withdraw his name. In any case he will communicate with the conference before it meets on Wednesday.

"I understand," said Senator Platt, "that a complete change has come over the situation, and that the mayor has made up his mind that he does not want to run."

The Evening Post says: It is learned that Mayor Low has been strongly impressed with the talk about the comparative weakness of his candidacy in the event of a renomination. Since his return on Monday many of his best friends have been counselling him on the matter and the mayor has learned things which he had not had time to discover before. From this new aspect of affairs it is evident that the reports of the possibility of the mayor's making way for an independent Democrat are not without foundation.

Dr. Gould said: "The report which quoted me as saying that the mayor had decided to withdraw is false. It is true, however, that the mayor has taken a new view of the situation since his return and is doing a great amount of thinking."

Preferred Suicide to Lynching

Kansas City, Kas., Sept. 5.—An unknown negro caught in the act of strangling Mrs. Margaret German, a white woman, in her home at Armourdale for the purpose of robbing, escaped to the Kansas river, where he drowned himself rather than run the chance of being lynched, a crowd having chased him to the bank of the stream. The woman was seriously hurt, but will recover.

Reversal of Ordinary Conditions

Kansas City, Sept. 5.—By defying the authority of the national organization the miners in northwestern Missouri have barred themselves from drawing strike benefits, while the southwestern Coal Operators' association, having assumed the responsibility of indemnifying the operators for losses sustained during the present fight, will draw strike benefits.

Organization Completed

Washington, Sept. 5.—The Quarry Workers' International union, which has just been organized here, adopted a constitution and by-laws and James McKnight of Westerly, R. I., was elected delegate to the annual meeting of the American Federation of Labor at Boston, a national charter having been granted the union.

Support Which Failed to Support

Vinton, Ia., Sept. 5.—William Johnson was killed and five painters were injured by the collapse of the front and side walls of a two-story brick building. The building had been undergoing repairs for a month and an iron support under one corner gave way.

No New Postal Indictments

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Large Number of Buyers Testify to Sound Condition of Business

New York, Sept. 5.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: A striking contrast appears when comparison is made with the corresponding week last year. Prices were then tending upward in many branches of industry, new business was coming forward more rapidly than it could be handled, and in the security market all records for activity and high prices were being surpassed. Later events have demonstrated that the situation was unhealthy, and speculative excesses have been followed by reaction and readjustment.

Conservatism was then the exception and it is now the rule. Prospects for steady gains and their maintenance are brighter under the present system. Buyers are coming to the leading markets in great number and testify to the sound condition of business at the interior. Manufacturing plants are busy throughout New England, aside from cotton mills, and there is notable activity in wearing apparel at the south, while prospects for a large fall retail trade are bright everywhere.

Already there is traffic congestion at several points, despite the fact that crops have only just begun to move, and railway earnings in August show gains of 9.2 percent over last year and 17.5 percent over 1901.

The cereals are higher in price on the whole, although the markets are extremely irregular.

American Steamer Held Up

Pekin, Sept. 5.—Telegrams from Port Arthur give details of the reported recent stopping of the steamer Stanley Dollar, owned by an American, by a Japanese gunboat, as the steamer was attempting to enter Yongampho, at the mouth of the Yalu river, Corea, to load lumber from the Russian concession on that river. The Japanese did not forcibly oppose the vessel's entering the port, but protested strongly against her taking lumber on board on the ground that Yongampho was not an open port. The captain ultimately loaded and the vessel is now supposed to be on her way to Dalny.

Olympia Caught In a Gale

Norfolk, Sept. 5.—The cruiser Olympia, flying the pennant of Rear Admiral Coghlan, has arrived at the Norfolk navy yard. She will be docked Wednesday for repairing the injuries received on rocks off the Maine coast. On the way down the coast in a storm it was thought at one time the Olympia was sinking. Her water-tight compartments saw her safely through the blow, but not until it had become necessary to seek shelter in Tomaston harbor until the gale subsided.

$377,000 From Pius Fund

Washington, Sept. 5.—On requisition from the state department the treasury department has made out checks for $377,000 in the name of Bishop Reardon of the Catholic diocese of California. This sum of money goes to the Catholic diocese from the Pius fund. Mexico has been paying to this country the sum awarded as due from that country to the Pius fund and the division of the fund is being made by the state department.

Fight Now a Local One

New York, Sept. 5.—Through the instrumentality of Frank Buchanan, president of the International Association of Bridge and Steel Workers, all the strikes induced by Sam Parks against members of the Employers' association and Iron league in cities other than New York where they have contracts have been called off. These included contracts in Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore and Newark.

Buenos Ayres' Gift to Rome

Rome, Sept. 5.—The commune of Buenos Ayres, as a token of Argentine's friendship for Italy and a tribute of affection for the late King Humbert, whose remains were buried in the pantheon here, has offered to pave the plazza of the pantheon and the surrounding streets with Argentine wood which will be kept in repair by the donors. The gift has been accepted by the city of Rome.

Ex-Auditor and Clerk Indicted

Denver, Sept. 5.—The special grand jury has reported indictments against C. W. Grouter, formerly state auditor, and W. C. Munsell, his chief clerk. Munsell is accused of embezzling $8000 of flat tax money and the ex-auditor is charged with making no effort to collect this or to turn over other flat tax money which he collected. There are 39 counts in the indictments.

Grub Providers Called Out

Telluride, Col., Sept. 5.—The Federal Labor union, which works in harmony with the Miners' union, called out the cooks and waiters at the Smuggler union mines and in consequence nearly 300 miners working in these properties will be forced to stop work. The Federal union's action makes the tieup in this county practically complete.

Automobile Went Up In Smoke

New York, Sept. 5.—One of the most valuable automobiles in the world, a racing machine imported from France and consigned to David Bishop of Lee, Mass., was totally destroyed by fire resulting from the explosion of the gasoline tank on a railroad car float here. The machine was valued at $20,000.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

The Sensible Snail

Master Snail was an ambitious chap who wanted to make a name and fortune for himself. So one day he went to a merchant bug who owned a big building and said:

"I would like you, sir, to give me a position here."

"Well," said the merchant bug, "you seem to be a pretty smart little chap, and I will give you a position to run the elevator."

"I will take the job," said the snail.

All he had to do was to stand in the elevator car, and when any one got in and said, "Let me off at the fourth floor," he would turn a wheel and up the elevator would go to the fourth floor. And if it was the second or the third or the fifth floor it was just the same, and if any one wanted to come down in the elevator it was just as easy.

Master Snail certainly had a good position, for he got $3 a week, and think what you can buy for three whole dollars! But one day he grew dissatisfied, and he went to the merchant bug and said he thought he should be paid $4 a week.

The merchant bug stuck his feet up on his desk and looked at Master Snail from top to toe. Then he said, "My boy, I am sorry, but I cannot pay you more than $3 a week."

And what do you suppose Master Snail did then? He gave up his position? No, indeed! Like a sensible fellow, he went back to the elevator car and kept at work.

"I will hold on to this job until I get another," said he, "for I had better be getting $3 a week than be out of work and getting nothing."—Detroit Journal.

—We regret to notice how widespread has recently become the evil upon which also there has been not a little comment in these and other columns—namely, that of the use of intoxicating liquors in confections, more particularly in chocolate candies. The police of Jersey City recently made a raid on some candy shops, and seized some chocolate drops filled with rum, and one prominent candy and fruit dealer was arrested. It was noticed that the boys and girls who bought many of the chocolate drops before going to school would invariably act very dull and stupid in the class rooms. Investigation showed that the children were intoxicated. Many of the children have developed a strong appetite for drink.—Confectioner.

—It may be remarked incidentally that the best vacation month of the year is at hand, although it finds comparatively few people prepared to enjoy its beauty and charm.—Charlestown Enterprise.

IN FASHION'S REALM.

Skirted Coats to Rival Shirt Waists In Popularity.

[Special Correspondence.]

New York, Sept. 1.—We need not be alarmed about the disappearance of the shirt waist, for it is not to be discarded altogether, though the skirted coats are going to give it what the French call a bad quarter of an hour. The shape is a little more trim and close and the materials rather warmer, but yet we find many of the cottons in the form of heavy vestings and several pretty mercerized goods, also fine flannels mostly in self colors, though some are figured, bedford cord, albatross and many weights in crepe de chine, besides several weaves of fine woolen voiles. These are mostly in black, with some very tiny cord or in-run ribbon of a bright color just to take away the mourning look.

Taffeta and all the soft silks, besides many of the heavy ones, are seen, each made up in a manner to show the material to its best advantage more than to exploit a quantity of fine work. Still some of the thin silks, especially when they are for "young persons," are constructed with the usual number of fine and close tucks, overlaid with lace in many ways, each a little different from all the others. The bishop sleeve is the accepted style for all shirt waists, but even this allows for many variations.

One extremely pleasing style is shown in a fine Scotch flannel gray in general tone, with narrow red and green alternate lengthwise stripes. The sleeves are plain bishop, with the striped portion as cuff. The collar is arranged the same way, so that the stripes become ornamental. There is a stole shaped collar which is made of gray armure silk embroidered along all edges in soft green and reds, with the tiniest bit of gold thread showing at times. This waist is so very pretty that it can be developed in almost any kind of material, always seeing that the collar is in proper colors and material.

A pretty waist for evening for the daughter of the house or one of her young friends is made of rose colored liberty silk, with lace entirely covering it. Indeed the lace is the real waist and the silk but the lining. Black velvet ribbon is trained across the bust and around the shoulders. To this the lace is attached in a very dainty style, which holds the points of the lace to the velvet straps. A bow of the same is put on one side, and fancy coral buttons are set along the velvet. The sleeves are done in the same way. A belt of the ribbon finishes as pretty a conceit as one could find in a day.

A very useful and unusually neat effect is obtained in another waist, this of white mercerized vesting. There is a Garibaldi strap down the shoulders and bishop sleeves with a very narrow upturned cuff. In front are two plain plaits on each side, and the center fold is fastened with three small but fine fancy gilt buttons. The high collar is of the same material, and so is the small turndown one above the stock. With this style of waist one can wear any kind of cravat or tie. Black is always good taste and looks ladylike, but if one likes a more dressy effect there are a hundred different things that can be used.

In a few instances there are bloused waists made to wear with street attire. That is to say, there are some tailored suits of regular mannish tweed and cheviot which have the waist in blouse shape. One checked cheviot in green over two shades of gray, with tiny tufts of green wool, had the waist laid in flat folds, each stitched along the edge. The front was pouched quite full. There was a sort of cape effect over the shoulders wrought by the bias folds, and down the front there was a wide centerpiece. The high collar had a narrow embroidered white one at the upper edge. A rich black satin tie was made into a bowknot at the throat, and the ends were passed down through two slits, so that for about four inches the tie disappeared and then the ends came out again and hung loosely. The belt was of the material made pointed and stitched closely. The sleeves were bishop, but the fullness was taken in at the top and bottom by stitched folds with a bias stitched piece as cuff.

SCOTTISH GAMES.

At Caledonian Grove, West Roxbury, on Labor Day.

The Scottish clans, O. S. C., of Boston and vicinity will hold their 14th annual consecutive union picnic and games at the Caledonian Grove, Spring street, West Roxbury, on Labor Day. The affair will be the season's last great Scottish outdoor gathering, and from present indications will be the biggest of the kind ever held in this country. Eighteen clans of Massachusetts have united to make the celebration a grand success, and the list of events which has been prepared is a most attractive and distinctly national one. World famous athletes will compete, and Scottish champion lady dancers will give exhibitions of Heatherland dancer like the Broadsword and the Highland fling. There will be a great three-mile race with a first prize of $100. In addition, there will be a series of events for members of the O. S. C. and their families only, including races for clansmen's wives, sons and daughters, and a race for past chiefs of the clans. A full band will discourse the national, patriotic and favorite airs o' the Land o' Cakes, and for the patrons of the entertainment themselves, there will be dancing in the big pavilion after the leading events of the day. The total cash prizes will amount to $1200.

The Scottish national dress will predominate, the kilt, the plaidie, the bonnet, and the feather reminding the visitors of auld days in our ain countrie far across the sea. "Ye may gang far and fare waur' will be the verdict of the braw lads and bonnie lassies, wha will be there in thousands as of yore.

Last year 6,000 persons attended the games held under the auspices of the O. S. C., and at least as many are expected to make the coming events, which, as Tammy Campbell said, cast their shadows before a brilliant and festive occasion. The committee permit no strong drink to be sold within the grove, and Scottish ladies and their children and their friends of the land of Freedom are assured that no feature of an objectionable character will thus mar their thorough enjoyment.

Such a gathering is, indeed, worth going many miles to see. It will be Scotland's ain day in America, the guid braid Scotch tongue will be heard on every side, the pipes will skirl and make the bluid run warm again, the gay dresses will bring back the folks, in memory to scenes of long ago, and the meetings, with the hankshakes of auld friends, will be new memory carrying pleasure into many a coming hour. Besides the born Scots themselves there will be the Scotsmen and Scotsmen's sons and daughters from Ontario, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Cape Breton to meet and welcome. "Come one, come all" will be the watchword.

Among the celebrities will be Jamie Nicoll frae Aberdeen, wha has won prizes as the best dressed Highlander at shows in Providence, Montreal and Boston recently, and Annie Sheriff the sixteen year old lassie who carried off the prizes at Glasgow, Strathallan, Stirling and many other towns in the year past, and Bessie Muir the twelve year old dancer, another prize winner will appear. Thomas Johnston will be ring master and John Anderson will be his assistant, with Francis Morrison clerk of the ring. The following are the officers of the united clans: President, John O. Allan of Clan McLean, Lynn; Vice President, John Rule of Clan Stewart, Charlestown; Secretary, John Speirs of Clan Cameron, East Boston; and Treasurer, Robert Anderson of Clan McKenzie, Boston.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

AN ABSENCE OF NEWS

Indicates Much Worse Situation In Macedonia

A FUND-RAISING CAMPAIGN

Conducted by Revolutionists, Who Make Threats Against Wealthy People Who Fail to Contribute—Reports of Several Severe Battles

Sofia, Sept. 8.—In official quarters there is a suspicious absence of news from the interior of Macedonia and also from Adrianople, and it is feared that the conditions there are steadily becoming worse. The Macedonian organizations are straining every nerve to force Bulgaria into a war. Large and small bands are crossing the frontier of northern Macedonia, where General Zontcheff and Colonel Jankoff are organizing the insurrectionary movement, which is expected to break out in the valley of the Struma before the end of the week.

The Macedonian committees are prosecuting an active campaign to raise funds in Bulgaria. They are addressing letters to everybody in a position to contribute to the cause. The applications usually do not refer to the revolutionary movement, but ask aid for the starving and homeless fugitives from Macedonia. Where wealthy citizens decline to subscribe the organizations do not hesitate to make strong representations. A rich merchant of Philippopolis was recently told that unless he contributed $5000 his house would be blown up.

Several fights are reported from the district of Losengrad. At the Bashi-Bazouk village of Sasara the Turks lost 20 men. At Tersidere a band fought 300 soldiers all day, with the result that the Turks had 37 men killed, while the insurgents lost five. At Prespan, in the Okrida district, fighting has long been proceeding between insurgent bands and an army of 20,000 Turks. The latter are reported to have lost over 200 killed or wounded. Another engagement lasting all day has been fought at Pribilisti, Monastir vilayet, in which the Turkish loss was given as 40 and the insurgent loss as five. A band has destroyed the village of Gorino Kadieve, a notorious haunt of Turkish brigands.

The newspaper Poshta asserts that all the villages in the district of Leren are burning. According to revolutionary estimates Turkey has now in Macedonia an army of 175,000 men, with 3700 horses and 440 guns.

In an engagement at Simen the villagers joined the Turks, who were defeated. The insurgents afterward burned the villages as a punishment to the inhabitants for aiding the Turks.

The revolutionists have destroyed the lighthouse near Limanpulevo. The Sofia Velomosti states that Roumania is strengthening her military position on the Bulgarian frontier.

MAY BE TOO LATE

When Powers Finally Make Up Their Minds to Interfere

London, Sept. 8.—Special dispatches from the near east published here this morning add little fresh news regarding the situation in the Balkans. All the correspondents at Constantinople emphasize the apparent danger of war with Bulgaria, while the Sofia correspondents are equally insistent as to the prudent and correct attitude of Prince Ferdinand and his government.

Accounts from both Turkish and insurgent sources of the operations in Macedonia show that the work of extermination is proceeding unchecked and although, apparently realizing the danger of a conflagration, the powers are making some attempt to interfere, it is believed that nothing of a serious nature will be done till after the meeting of the czar and Emperor Francis Joseph at Vienna, when it may be too late.

The insurgents are now said to number 26,000 well armed and efficiently commanded men. Their leaders seemingly will stop at nothing to secure resources for their equipment.

Fresh Strawberries.

This is a very queer season, and many unexpected things have happened. We were surprised this morning by being presented with a box of strawberries picked from the grounds of R. B. Tobey, at 78 Lincoln street, Wollaston. They looked so fresh and nice that we have not as yet tasted of them.

NO P. O. BUILDING.

That Is, Not for the Present—No Appropriation.

Postmaster Hammond ascertained some weeks ago that there was a slip in the appropriation of $70,000 for Quincy's government building, and pending an investigation so that an intelligent statement could be made, he requested the Ledger to refrain from commenting on the same, but now it has become public.

Ex-Congressman Naphen, the secretary of Senator Lodge and others express surprise at the situation, and can hardly believe it possible, yet it is said to be a fact, and this is why no steps have been taken toward the erection of a building on the lot purchased on Washington street.

Probably the omission was an accident on the part of some one, but no one seems to know who. Some are inclined to criticise Mr. Naphen for not being a little more careful.

NEARLY 6,000.

Those Are the Figures of Quincy's School Army Now.

Over 600 pupils were enrolled this morning at the Quincy High school, and the problem is what to do with them. The building was originally intended to accommodate but 350. The new class that entered today numbered 253 against 197 for the entering day last year, and there are more to come.

About 100 have been sent to the old building on High School avenue. Every room is in use there and two corridors besides. At the building on Hancock street every room is in use. Seats have been placed in the corridors and the laboratories are being used for recitation rooms.

It will certainly be quite a problem how to take care of the pupils until the proposed addition is built.

AT THE WOODWARD.

The entering class at the Woodward Institute this morning was 42, and while it is impossible at present to tell just what the enrollment will be, it is certain that the school will be much larger than last year.

The building is large enough to accommodate them. This year the school will have but four classes instead of six as heretofore. This has been accomplished by abolishing the preparatory class and by consolidation.

GRAMMAR SCHOOLS.

The total enrollment of the Quincy schools is now nearly 6000, and will probably go over those figures with the Woodward. Some figures are promised in a few days.

The principals are requested to forward names of all new D primary pupils for publication tomorrow.

Thieves In Maine Postoffice

Bangor, Me., Sept. 8.—The postoffice at Van Buren was entered and the safe blown. The cracksmen are supposed to be the same who robbed the Brewer savings bank recently. Postmaster Hammond reports that $250 in cash and $287 in stamps were taken as well as $85 which had been left in the safe by another party.

Double Drowning Accident

Providence, Sept. 8.—James Cavanaugh, 12 years old, and Allen Dion, 9, were drowned in Maspaugh pond, while a companion, Joseph Bulley, 12 years old, swam ashore. The lads had floated a leaky flat-bottomed boat and paddled to a point about 30 feet off shore, where it filled rapidly with dater.

Snow on Mount Washington

Mount Washington, N. H., Sept. 8.—Snow fell briskly yesterday afternoon, whiting the rocks and exposed places for the first time this autumn. The range of temperature was from 26 to 28. The rush of tourists remains unabated, there being over 200 visitors yesterday.

Champion a World Beater

Boston, Sept. 8.—Albert Champion established a new mile motor cycle record at Charles River park last night. He rode against his previous record of 56 seconds, and made the mile in 55 2-5 seconds.

QUINCYS WIN.

Defeat the Merrymounts in an Exciting Game.

Not until the sixth inning did the Quincys score in their game with the Merrymounts, but in the seventh they passed their rivals. The Merrymounts, again took the lead in the eighth but lost the game in the ninth in an exciting finish, the score being 7 to 6.

It was a grand good game abounding in good plays. The Quincys sent only nine men to the bat in the first three innings, and Dorley was the only one to hit safely, but he was doubled up at second, Saunders, Monroe and Taylor making a hot double play.

Taylor opened for Merrymount in the first with a safe hit to left and stole second. Osgood was out on a fly to Dunn. Baker hit safely and Taylor scored on earned run. Baker retired at second and Chadbourne at first.

It was one-two-three for Merrymounts in the second, but in the third, Kolson hit safely to left and stole second. After Taylor struck out, Osgood hit safely to left and Kolson scored another earned run. Osgood was left on third.

In the fourth the Quincys got a man as far as second, Eldridge hitting safely, and advancing on a passed ball. In the fifth it was one-two-three in short order.

Merrymount did not see first in the fourth, but in the fifth they had two men on bases, one being caught out at second, and Kolson being left on second after a safe hit to right field.

The Quincys began their run getting in the sixth; Rooney got first on a wild throw by Saunders, and Flynn and Pitts hit safely. A wild pitch allowed Rooney and Flynn to score, but as only one base was allowed on a passed ball, the latter was sent back to third where he was left. Bennett caught a fly in this inning and fielded it to Taylor in time to make a fine double play.

It was in the seventh that the Quincys got in their work, scoring three runs and getting a lead of two. Duffy fanned the air, Dorley hit safely to centre and stole second, while Hayes was given a pass. Moriarty was out on fly to centre. Rooney got first on an error while Dorley scored. A single by Flynn filled the bases and a single by Pitts brought in two runs. It looked as though Eldridge's low fly to centre would result in more runs but Osgood made a long run and a sensational catch closing the inning.

The Merrymounts did not score in the sixth or seventh.

The Quincys added one in the eighth on singles by Dunn, Dorley and Hayes, and with the score 5 to 2 in their favor it looked as though they had clinched the victory.

But Merrymount opened the eighth with a base on balls by Taylor, who scored on Osgoods three bagger, the only hit of the game for more than one base. Baker followed with a single and Osgood scored. Munroe struck out. Chadbourne hit safely and stole second, and two runs were scored on errors. Saunders struck out. The four runs gave Merrymount a lead of one run.

The Quincys were equal to occasion, but they would have been blanked but for errors. Rooney and Flynn opened with singles to left, and Pitts received a pass. An error of Chadbourne allowed Rooney to score. With the bases full Dunn bunted; Chadbourne got the ball and instead of touching the home plate he threw to third and Saunders put out Pitts who was forced, and also run out Flynn. Score—Quincys, 7; Merrymounts, 6.

It looked as though the Merrymount would, at least tie the score in the ninth. After Kolson struck out, Taylor hit safely to left. Osgood was hit on the back of the neck and for a while was knocked out. He should have retired from the game, but when there was a kick against allowing Taylor to take his place in running, he pluckily took first himself against remonstrance by friends. Baker hit safely. Monroe hit a hot liner which would have been good for two runs if Dunn had not gathered it in and closed the game, with the score 7 to 6 in favor of the Quincys.

In an up-hill game at the Park on the morning of Labor day the South Quincys almost won a game from the Wollastons, the score being 11 to 9 in favor of the latter.

Concert and Dance.

The hall at the Quincy Yacht club was hardly large enough to accommodate the large number of yachtsmen and their ladies Monday evening at the concert and dance. It was high water about 10 o'clock, and the reflection of the moon as seen from the club house piazzas was beautiful. For the first hour there was a concert consisting of vocal and instrumental music. This was followed by a concert by the Braintree Orchestral club, during which dancing was participated in by most of those present.

AT WORLD'S FAIR.

The Educational Exhibition of Massachusetts Will Be Prominent.

Frank E. Parlin of this city is one of the advisory committee selected by George E. Gay the director of the Massachusetts educational exhibit at the World's Fair at St. Louis, and former superintendents and teachers of Quincy are on the committee which includes: Edwin B. Seaver of Boston, George I. Aldrich of Brookline, Dr. Thomas N. Balliet of Springfield, Dr. John T. Prince of West Newton, William C. Bates of Fall River, Dr. Eugene Bouton of Pittsfield, John E. Burke of Lawrence, Francis Cogswell of Cambridge, B. C. Gregory of Chelsea, I. Freeman Hall of North Adams, William E. Hatch of New Bedford, Charles H. Morss of Medford, Louis P. Nash of Holyoke, Gordon A. Southwort of Somerville and U. G. Wheeler of Everett.

It will be the first exposition with a building erected soley for educational purposes and the building is a large one, covering seven acres. "The object of the general educational exhibit, first, is," said Mr. Gay, "to secure a systematic presentation of all phases of educational effort in the United States, and, second, to obtain a comparative exhibit of all the systems of education in all civilized countries. The success of both seems assured. England, France, Germany and Japan have decided to make extensive educational exhibits, and other nations are giving the subject favorable consideration. The Educational building is now completed and all ready for the installation of exhibits. Education is given the place of honor in the classification of exhibits, as, in accordance with the theory upon which the classification is based, to education is ascribed the source of all progress."

With the exception of Harvard University and the Institute of Technology, which will have individual displays independent of the Massachusetts exhibit all of the colleges of this state have been asked to combine in one large display. Williams, Mt. Holyoke, Holy Cross, Wellesley and Boston colleges have already signified their willingness to enter into this combination.

The 10 normal schools of the state will be represented in the normal school section, where specimens of every branch of their work will be exhibited.

The textile schools at New Bedford, Fall River and Lowell will also make exhibits.

"Under public schools will come a host of statistical charts, diagrams, tables photographs, models, apparatus and appliances for instruction. High, grammar, primary, kindergarten, evening high, evening art and vacation schools will all come under this head. All manner of paraphernalia and specimens of work will be utilized to illustrate the methods and results of the schools.

Quincy Team Won.

The Swedish tug of war team of Quincy went to Boston last Saturday afternoon for a contest against a team from Cambridgeport. It was a very interesting contest and before they started to pull all kind of odds were offered on the Cambridgeport team, because they were a very much heavier team than the Quincys, but they soon found out different. The pull was only for one minute. The first pull was won by the Quincys by 4 inches with ease, and the second pull lasted only 15 seconds, because the Quincy team pulled the Cambridgeport team up from their clinch. The Quincy team was composed of Andrew Anderson, captain; Theo. Hermansen, anchor; Nils Dahlburg, Nils Nilson, Nils Nilson, John Alhkwist.

THE Q. Y. C. RACE.

The Ariel, Thelma, Marjorie A. and Squaw Were Winners.

Fourteen boats, including motor launches, participated in the handicap race of the Quincy Yacht club on Labor day.

There was a fairly good easterly breeze at the start, but before the finish the wind fell to almost a dead calm, and the twenty-one footers were unable to finish.

In the first class the Usona took the lead soon after the start, and held it throughout the race. Close upon her came the Ariel, who got first place on time allowance.

In the second class the Thelma had things her own way, the Clara withdrawing during the race.

In the one-design class the Marjorie A. was an easy winner, finishing with a lead of over six minutes over the Ethel S, the second boat.

Among the motor launches it was a pretty race between Mayor Bryant's Squaw, Taber's Marjorie, and Tilley's Aleppo. The Squaw finished with a lead of nearly six minutes.

The race between the two old rivals Marjorie and Aleppo was close, the Marjorie winning by five seconds only.

THE NEW PEARY BABY

Will Prevent Explorer's Wife Accompanying Him

WAS WITH LASTEXPEDITION

When She Proved a Valuable Member of the Party—Scion of Italian Nobility Peary's Only Serious Rival In Efforts to Reach the Pole

Washington, Sept. 8.—Commander Peary, who will make another attempt to reach the north pole next summer, states that the ship in which his expedition will sail northward probably will be called the Charles H. Darling, in recognition of the assistant secretary of navy and his activity in the proposed venture.

Not a whit less brave than when she accompanied her husband on his last trip in search of the north pole, Mrs. Peary will remain at her home in Washington anxiously awaiting word from the next expedition which her husband will lead. The decision was one of necessity. An heir has just arrived in the Peary home which needs the attention of the mother.

Even the arrival of this infant son, their first, in the Peary household has not shaken Mrs. Peary's interest in the subject of Arctic explorations, and she continues to share the belief of her husband that the discovery of the north pole must be made by an American.

Mr. Peary has said that he found his wife one of the most valuable members of his party when he last attempted to reach the north pole. Instead of being in the way, as many women would have been, she was ready for any undertaking, doing her full share of the work and showing that she was endowed with as much fortitude and capable of withstanding as many privations as any member of his party.

Robert E. Peary's various attempts to reach the north pole are matters of history. Lieutenant Peary has only one serious rival in this peculiar field of work, the Duc d'Abruzzi, a scion of the reigning family of Italy. Like d'Abruzzi, Peary holds a "farthest north" record, he having penetrated farther into the frozen zones of the western Arctic than any other man—latitude 83.50 north, longitude 25 west. D'Abruzzi went some miles farther north in the eastern Arctic. When Peary made his record, he also defined for the first time the northern limit of the Greenland archipelago, probably the most northerly land.

On one of his expeditions Mrs. Peary accompanied her husband, and while fast in the ice floes, with the thermometer 70 degrees below zero, their daughter was born. The lieutenant has had but one accident in his many trips north, that at Fort Conger in 1899, when he lost three toes.

In his previous expeditions Peary was backed by the Arctic club of Brooklyn, headed by Mr. Bridgman, an enthusiast in this cause.

Gompers Challenges Parry

Indianapolis, Sept. 8.—In a Labor day address here Samuel Gompers said: "I have never as yet challenged Mr. Parry to joint debate, but I say now I will challenge Mr. Parry to a debate upon the labor question and the labor movement before any economic association that he may select. I will meet him before the Indianapolis Ministerial association or the Manufacturers' association or that of any other city in America."

Maneuvers Under Difficulties

Paris, Sept. 8.—The grand autumn maneuvers of the French army have begun, in which four army corps, comprising over 120,000 men, are participating. In spite of the rain, which has greatly marred the operations, the troops suffered much from the heat and many cases of sunstroke have occurred, as many as 65 soldiers in one regiment having been taken to the hospital.

Carter Outpointed by Ruhlin

Philadelphia, Sept. 8.—Gus Ruhlin foung six rounds here last night with "Kid" Carter and the former had much the better of the bout. Carter outpointed Ruhlin in the first four rounds, but in the fifth and sixth Ruhlin's weight began to tell and Carter received much punishment.

Tin Plate Men to Resume Work

Swansea, Wales, Sept. 8.—The lockout in the tin plate industry in South Wales, due to a long standing wage dispute, has terminated as the result of a decision to refer all the questions in dispute to arbitration. Forty-one works will reopen at once. Nearly 30,000 men were involved.

Kansas City Platform Suits Them

Denver, Sept. 8.—The Democratic state convention nominated for supreme judge Adair Wilson, former judge of the state court of appeals. The platform reaffirms allegiance to the principles of the Democratic party as set forth in the Kansas City platform.

The King of Pacers

Lima, O., Sept. 8.—Dan Patch broke the world's pacing record of 2:04 1-4 on a half-mile track here. Better time would have been made, but McHenry had to hold him up on the last turn on account of his nearly breaking.

Vesuvius Cooling Off

Rome, Sept. 8.—There has been such a notable dimunition in the eruption of Vesuvius that the electric railroad from Naples to connect with the old Funicula tramway will be opened in a few days.

He referred with praise to the work by his predecessor, Rev. F. A. Friguglietti. Speaking of the setting off from the parish of the churches at Braintree and Atlantic he said that while the parish was now considerably smaller he would do his utmost to make his labor productive and hoped the parishioners would cooperate with him.

Impaired Digestion

May not be all that is meant by dyspepsia now, but it will be if neglected.

The uneasiness after eating, fits of nervous headache, sourness of the stomach, and disagreeable belching may not be very bad now, but they will be if the stomach is suffered to grow weaker.

Dyspepsia is such a miserable disease that the tendency to it should be given early attention. This is completely overcome by which strengthens the whole digestive system

Hood's Sarsaparilla

VIRTUES AND FAULTS

Are Much the Same In All Citizens of Our Country

ENEMY OF WAGE WORKER

Is the Man Who Condones Mob Violence or Preaches Class Hatred—Duty of Labor and Capital Toward Each Other and the State Defined by President Roosevelt

Syracuse, Sept. 8.—To President Roosevelt was accorded a magnificent reception by the citizens of his own state. From the moment of his arrival at 9:30 o'clock a. m. until he stepped aboard his secial train at 10:30 last night to begin his return trip to Oyster Bay he received a continuous ovation. As he drove through the streets the tens of thousands of persons banked along the sidewalks greeted him with cheers. Business houses and residences were ablaze with bunting and the American flag floated from almost every window.

The president was in excellent voice. Fully 50,000 persons were on the fair grounds when he began his address, which follows:

In speaking on Labor day at the annual fair of the New York State Agricultural association, it is natural to keep especially in mind the two bodies who compose the majority of our people and upon whose welfare depends the welfare of the entire state. If circumstances are such that thrift, energy, industry, and forethought enable the farmer, the tiller of the soil, on the one hand, and the wage-worker, on the other, to keep themselves, their wives, and their children in reasonable comfort, then the state is well off, and we can be assured that the other classes in the community will likewise prosper. On the other hand, if there is in the long run a lack of prosperity among the two classes named, then all other prosperity is sure to be more seeming than real. There are, of course, exceptions, but as a whole the standard of living among the farmers of our country has risen from generation to generation, and the wealth represented on the farms has steadily increased, while the wages of labor have likewise risen, both as regards the actual money paid and as regards the purchasing power which that money represents.

Side by side with this increase in the prosperity of the wage-worker and the tiller of the soil has gone on a great increase in the prosperity among the business men and among certain classes of professional men; and the prosperity of these men has been partly the cause and partly the consequence of the prosperity of farmer and wage-worker. It can not be too often repeated that in this country in the long run, we all of us tend to go up or go down together. If the average of well-being is high, it means that the average wage-worker, the average farmer, and the average business men are all alike well off. If the average shrinks, there is not one of these classes which will not feel the shrinkage.

It is all-essential to the continuance of our healthy national life that we should recognize the community of interest among our people. The welfare of each of us is dependent fundamentally upon the welfare of all of us, and therefore in public life that man is the best representative of each of us who seeks to do good to each by doing good to all; in other words, whose endeavor it is, not to represent any special class and promote merely that class' selfish interests, but to represent all true and honest men of all sections and all classes and to work for their interests by working for our common country.

It is an infamous thing in our American life, and fundamentally treacherous to our institutions, to apply to any man any test save that of his personal worth, or to draw between two sets of men any distinction save the distinction of conduct, the distinction that marks off those who do well and wisely from those who do ill and foolishly.

The failure in public and in private life thus to treat each man on his own merits, the recognition of this government as being either for the poor as such or for the rich as such, would prove fatal to our republic, as such failure and such recognition have always proved fatal in the past to other republics. A healthy republican government must rest upon individuals, not upon classes or sections. As soon as it becomes government by a class or by a section it departs from the old American ideal.

In the history of mankind many republics have risen, have flourished for a less or greater time, and then have fallen because their citizens lost the power of governing themselves and thereby of governing their state; and in no way has this loss of power been so often and so clearly shown as in the tendency to turn the government into a government primarily for the benefit of one class instead of a government for the benefit of the people as a whole.

The reason why our future is assured lies in the fact that our people are genuinely skilled in and fitted for self-government and therefore will spurn the leadership of those who seek to excite this ferocious and foolish class antagonism. The average American knows not only that he himself intends to do about what is right, but that his average fellow-countryman has the same intention and the same power to make his intention effective. He knows, whether he be business man, professional man, farmer, mechanic, employer, or wage-worker, that the welfare of each of these men is bound up with the welfare of all the others; that each is neighbor to the other, is actuated by the same hopes and fears, has fundamentally the same ideals, and that all alike have much the same virtues and the same faults.

The line of cleavage between good citizenship and bad citizenship separates the rich man who does well from the rich man who does ill, the poor man of good conduct from the poor man of bad conduct. This line of cleavage lies at right angles to any such arbitrary line of division as that separating one class from another, one locality from another, or men with a certain degree of property from those of a less degree of property.

Let the watchwords of all our people be the old familiar watchwords of honesty, decency, fair-dealing and common sense. The qualities denoted by these words are essential to all of us, as we deal with the complex industrial problems of today.

There is no worse enemy of the wage-worker than the man who condones mob violence in any shape or who preaches class hatred; and surely the slightest acquaintance with our industrial history should teach even the most short-sighted that the times of most suffering for our people as a whole, the times when business is stagnant, and capital suffers from shrinkage and gets no return from its investments, are exactly the times of hardship and want, and grim disaster among the poor. If all the existing instrumentalities of wealth could be abolished, the first and severest suffering would come among those of us who are least well off at present. The wage-worker is well off only when the rest of the country is well off; and he can best contribute to this general well-being by showing sanity and a firm purpose to do justice to others.

In his turn the capitalist who is really a conservative, the man who has forethought as well as patriotism, should heartily welcome every effort, legislative or otherwise, which has for its object to secure fair dealing by capital, corporate or individual, toward the public and toward the employe.

In other words, legislation to be permanently good for any class must also be good for the nation as a whole, and legislation which does injustice to any class is certain to work harm to the nation.

Among ourselves we differ in many qualities, of body, head and heart; we are unequally developed, mentally as well as physically. But each of us has the right to ask that he shall be protected from wrongdoing as he does his work and carries his burden through life. No man needs sympathy because he has to work, because he has a burden to carry. Far and away the best prize that life offers is the chance to work hard at work worth doing; and this is a prize open to every man, for there can be no work better worth doing than that done to keep in health and comfort and with reasonable advantage those immediately dependent upon the husband, the father or the son.

There is no room in our healthy American life for the mere idler, for the man or the woman whose object it is throughout life to shirk the duties which life ought to bring.

The men whom we most delight to honor in all this land are those who, in the iron years from '61 to '65, bore on their shoulders the burden of saving the union. They did not choose the easy task. They did not shirk the difficult duty. Deliberately and of their own free will they strove for an ideal, upward and onward across the stony slopes of greatness. They did the hardest work that was then to be done.

As it is with the soldier, so it is with the civilian. To win success in the business world, to become a first-class mechanic, a successful farmer, an able lawyer or doctor, means that the man has devoted his best energy and power through long years to the achievement of his ends. So it is in the life of the family, upon which in the last analysis the whole welfare of the nation rests. The man or woman who as bread winner and home maker, or as wife and mother, has done all that he or she can do, patiently and uncomplainingly, is to be honored; and is to be envied by all those who have never had the good fortune to feel the need and duty of doing such work. The woman who has borne, and who has reared as they should be reared, a family of children, has in the most emphatic manner deserved well of the republic.

It is not enough to be well-meaning and kindly, but weak; neither is it enough to be strong, unless morality and decency go hand in hand with strength. We must possess the qualities which make us do our duty in our homes and among our neighbors, and in addition we must possess the qualities which are indispensable to the make-up of every great and masterful nation—the qualities of courage and hardihood, of individual initiative and yet of power to combine for a common end, and above all, the resolute determination to permit no man and no set of men to sunder us one from the other by lines of caste or creed or section. We must act upon the motto of all for each and each for all.

We must treat each man on his worth and merits as a man. We must see that each is given a square deal, because he is entitled to no more and should receive no less. Finally we must keep ever in mind that a republic such as ours can exist only in virtue of the orderly liberty which comes through the equal domination of the law over all men alike, and through its administration in such resolute and fearless fashion as shall teach all that no man is above it and no man below it.

Fruitless Search For Treasure

Wellington, N. Z., Sept. 8.—The American expedition on schooner Herman which has been searching for the hidden treasure on Cocos island has abandoned the quest after having searched 20 islands.

Numerous expeditions have sought in vain for the treasure which was said to have been buried on Cocos island in 1835 by the crew of the Nova Scotian bark Mary Dyer, which carried away $60,000,000 in gold, silver and precious stones, placed on board at Lima for safe-keeping when that city was attacked.

Move Against Servian Regicides

Vienna, Sept. 8.—The manifesto of the Servian officers which was distributed by them among the various corps for signature and which led to their arrest at Nish last week gave the names of 68 of the regicides and demanded that they be dismissed and degraded in order to rehabilitate the good name of the Servian army and the honor of the government and the country.

TESTIMONIAL.

Banquet Given Representative Fallon by Friends.

The testimonial banquet tendered an Saturday at the Squantum Inn to Representative Fallon was attended by about 100 of his friends including a few Republicans.

Ex-Representative James F. Burke was toast-master and spoke of the good work of Mr. Fallon, He was largely instrumental in securing an appropriation for the Weymouth Fore river, and did good work in favor of improvements of Town river. As this should be urged another year it was important that Mr. Fallon be sent back to the House. He also supported all labor measures, and was interested in the Metropolitan boulevard through West Qoincy to the Blue Hills reservation.

In introducing Congressman McNary Mr. Burke sprang a surprise to the general public, stating that for some reason unknown the appropriation for the Quincy post office building was not included in the "omnibus bill" as passed.

Congressman McNary expressed surprise at this statement and promised to investigate. He also eulogized the legislative record of Representative Fallon.

Ex-Councilman James H. Elcock spoke of Mr. Fallon as a neighbor of long standing.

Ex-Congressman Conry of the 9th district spoke of the importance of returning good men to the Legislature as they were worth more the second year.

F. M. Mally of Milton, a personal friend of Mr. Fallon was the last speaker.

Big Haul of Smelts.

Most every one has heard of or seen the lone fisherman in Evangeline, but he never had the luck that the lone fisherman in this city has had. Last week George Monk of Washington street was fortunate in landing one hundred and twenty-five pounds of the largest smelts that have been caught for many a season. To say they were beauties would not half express it. This is straight goods. The reporter was allowed to gaze upon them, but could not sample. George is all right, and always going alone everything is quiet. He charms the little fish—and into his basket they go. The reporter's number remains the same as last year.

It took seven police officers to subdue the man. He finally was placed under arrest.

THOUSANDS THERE.

Grand Picnic of the Scottish Clans on Labor Day.

Clansmen from Quincy to the number of three or four hundred, accompanied by their wives and lady friends, joined clansmen from other parts of Massachusetts in Boston on Monday morning, and after a street parade with bands and bagpipes playing alternately, took trains and cars for Caledonian Grove in West Roxbury, where the annual picnic and games of the Order of Scottish Clans was held.

Several thousand were present; old men and women from the land of the heather who make a yearly pilgrimage to these grounds to renew recollections of auld laug syne; braw lads and bonnie lassies, who, though less sentimental than the old folk, are yet loyal to memories of Scotland; men and women from the lower Canadian provinces, who are none the less Scottish for having been born and reared far from the hills and valleys of old Scotia. It was a happy gathering, Highlander and Lowlander having put heads and hands together to make the occasion one of mutual pleasure.

The features were numerous and varied. There were tossing the caber, putting the shot, tug of war, throwing the hammer, pole vaulting, and other snch strenuous exhibitions. In the pavilion an orchestra discoursed music for those who cared to "trip the light fantastic toe." On a platform in the field, pipers vied with each other for supremacy in manipulating the national instrument. Highland fling and the sword dance were illustrated by adults and children.

To see little tots of six, seven and eight years execute those peculiarly difficult dances to the rapid music accompaniment of bagpipes was a treat for the eye. Nothing in dancing is so difficult as the sword dance, both for the dancer and the piper. Every move is made in unison with the music and one false note from the pipes is enough to confuse the dancer and cause him to trip on the swords.

A large amount of money was expended in prizes, ranging from a few dollars to one hundred. Some of the world's best athletes participated in the contests. Thomas Johnson of this city was ring master and under his management every event was pulled off smoothly and satisfactorily.

TODAY'S COURT.

Quincy contributed fifteen of the twenty cases before the district court this morning. Milton and Holbrook had two each, and Randolph one. Of the Quincy cases, thirteen were for drunkenness and two for disturbing the peace.

In disposing of the several cases the court took the fact under consideration that Labor Day was a holiday. Out of the sixteen cases for drunkenness all but three were released.

Two of the three men James F. Savage and Thomas Reardon of Quincy were fined $5 each.

The third man, John R. Wiers of Quincy, had his case continued until Wednesday.

Carl Carlson and Frank Johnson were fined $3 each for disturbing the peace at Quincy.

Herman and Frank Jones were arraigned for larceny at Holbrook. Case continued until Thursday.

WAR DRAWING NEARER

Situation In Macedonia Described as Appaling

FIFTY THOUSAND KILLED

In the Opinion of Officials at Sofia—Thirty Thousand Refugees Slowly Perishing of Hunger—European Correspondents Ordered to Leave

London, Sept. 9.—Everything seems to point to new and terrible developments in Macedonia. On top of the appalling accounts of the results of the Turkish methods of "restoring order" in the vilayet of Monastir come the threats by the insurgents to resort to reprisals in the same scale. The porte's anxiety to suppress news by expelling newspaper correspondents from the area of the operations is held to have but one meaning. This morning's papers comment upon the significance of the news that Russia and Austria are seeking to persuade the powers to coerce Bulgaria as showing a belief that war is inevitable.

Sofia reports that the Macedonian interior organization estimates that 150,000 women, children and old men are hiding in the mountains and forests of Macedonia. The Turks are burning the forests in the districts of Leren and Kostur, and killing fugitives who attempt to escape to the plains. The Mlach village of Gopesh, three hours distant from Monastir, has been burned by the Turks, who are reported to have thrown several of the inhabitants into the fire. The Bashi-Bazouks have destroyed the village of Stollovo.

Thirteen thousand Turkish soldiers are assembled on the frontier and are plundering the villages. The population has not complained, fearing that it may be murdered. In the district of Debritsi, vilayet of Monastir, the soldiers are reported to be naked and hungry and to be robbing all around.

Famine prevails in the district of Krushevo and the population is going into the adjacent districts.

All reports from the vilayet of Monastir agree in describing the situation as appalling. Between 30,000 and 50,000 Bulgarian inhabitants are believed to have been massacred by the Turks and every Bulgarian village in the vilayet has been destroyed. The refugees in the mountains are dying of starvation by the thousands. It is impossible to obtain precise figures. The revolutionary headquarters estimate that 30,000 Bulgarian men, women and children have been killed, while at least the same number of refugees are slowly perishing of hunger.

In official circles these figures are regarded as under estimated and Sofia officials incline to the belief that the number of the massacred exceeds 50,000. The Turks are apparently determined to exterminate the entire Bulgarian population of the vilayet. The actual details of the happenings outside the town are not available. The foreign representatives at Monastir are dependent on information furnished to them from Turkish official sources.

In government circles here the situation is viewed with increasing alarm. It is reliably reported that the Turkish forces in Macedonia number 300,000.

According to a telegram from Constantinople the porte has issued an unconditional order that all European correspondents must leave Macedonia because they are circulating false news. The ambassadors have been notified of this decision.

Turkey's Threat of War

London, Sept. 9.—A dispatch to a news agency from Constantinople says the Turkish government is preparing a circular to the powers, calling attention to the attitude of Bulgaria and declaring it is the intention of the government to pursue armed Bulgarian bands in Macedonia and even into Bulgarian territory.

Our Warships Disturb Turks

Constantinople, Sept. 9.—The Turks are much disturbed by the presence of American warships at Beirut and are making every effort to have them recalled. In spite of all assertions that the United States only intends them to be there for the simple protection of the rights of her citizens, it is quite possible that the dispatch of the warships may initiate action leading much further.

Cotton's Orders Unchanged

Washington, Sept. 9.—Cablegrams were received at the state and navy departments from Minister Leishman and Admiral Cotton giving an account of the riot which occurred at Beirut on Sunday. No new instructions have gone to Admiral Cotton in consequence of the reports. Instructions were sent to Minister Leishman to keep the state department constantly informed as to the situation, that the department may know to what extent protection is being afforded American citizens. The president was advised of the latest facts reported to Washington.

Christians Blamed, as Usual

Washington, Sept. 9.—A cablegram from the Turkish foreign office to Chekib Bey, the Turkish minister here, gives the following version of the trouble at Beirut Sunday:

"Some Christians of the city of Beirut attacked four Mussulmans and during the melee which followed four persons were injured. Three of these were soldiers. Two persons are dead, one of whom is a soldier."

Embryo Politician In Hot Water

Boston, Sept. 9.—James W. Hayes, a Democratic candidate for the common council last year, was found guilty of illegal registration by Judge Ely. Sentence will be pronounced later. Hayes registered Oct. 9, 1901, as a qualified voter, having sworn that he was 21 years old the preceding March. The evidence on which the decision was based was that Hayes was born in March, 1883, and was accordingly only 18½ years old at this registration.

War Against Cut Prices

Boston, Sept. 9.—The 29th annual convention of the National Wholesale Druggists' association has opened in this city and the 21st annual meeting of the Proprietary association was opened simultaneously. The cutting of list prices on proprietary articles will be discussed by both associations during the week, being spoken of as a trade evil which must be checked.

Dynamite Declared Dangerous By the Quincy City Council.

The City Council, after debate, adopted strict regulations relative to storage and transportation of dynamite at its meeting Tuesday and also took action relative to enlarging the High schoolhouse, removal of old Washington schoolhouse, Atlantic school lot, election officers, etc.

Twenty members were present, the absentees being Councilmen Cleverly, Diack and Meyer.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The Democrats made application for polling places for Sept. 24, and the Socialists for Sept. 22. Laid on table.

The Harbor and Land Commissioners gave notice of a hearing Sept. 9 to the Squantum Yacht club on petition for pile wharf.

Mayor Bryant asked instruction relative to removal of the old Washington schoolhouse, and sale of old Hose house at Houghs Neck. Laid on table.

The School Committee notified the Council of the resignation of Rev. William J. Foley as member of the School Committee and suggested joint convention to fill vacancy.

The Old Colony street railway sent a vote accepting extension of time for double tracking City Square.

City Auditor Sidelinger notified the Council of unpaid bills in the "Miscellaneous fire department" in 1900, 1901 and 1902, amounting to $161.85.

ELECTION OFFICES.

The list of election offices appointed at the last meeting were approved.

LICENSES.

Several applications for licenses were received and referred.

Petitions were received for poles on Copeland and Washington street, and of one company to attach to poles of other companies.

ATLANTIC SCHOOL LOT.

A petition with a long list of signatures was received, that the city purchase the Blackwell lot at Atlantic for the new Quincy school. Referred to Committee on Finance and Public Buildings.

LICENSES REFUSED.

The Committee on Licenses reported dversely on petitions for several licenses as junk dealers, common victuallers and pool rooms.

Other petitions were granted.

DYNAMITE RESTRICTED.

The Committee on Licenses reported an amendment to the Ordinance relative to Licenses, striking out the clause: "Provided, that this section (No. 16) shall not apply to magazines for the storage of powder at quarries," and substituting the following:

"No person shall keep, store or deposit at any magazine within the city more than three tons of powder and one-half a ton of dynamite, said magazines to be not less than 1000 feet from any dwelling house, and to be built of stone or of wood covered with sheet iron.

"No powder or dyanamite shall be kept or stored at quarries within a distance of less than 1000 feet from any dwelling house in quantities greater that 250 pounds of powder and 50 pounds of dynamite, the building for the storage of the same to be built of stone, or wood covered with sheet iron, to be isolated as far as possible and to be used exclusively for this purpose.

"Every person carting powder or dynamite, or other explosive compound, through the streets of the city, shall display on the vehicle in which said articles are carried the word 'Dangerous' in letters not less than 12 inches long and 4 inches wide, and also the nature of the article so carried."

Councilman Hardwick moved to lay on table, saying that time should be given to consider.

Councilman Whiton opposed delay, regarding present arrangements dangerous.

Councilman Hardwick did not think the Councilmen qualified to pass on dynamite.

Councilman Reardon opposed delay. The supply should be limited and guarded. We have had an example at Lowell.

Councilman Hardwick said the ordinance would touch a leading industry of the city, granite quarrying. Thought there might be houses within 1000 feet of quarries. Considered a granite building would be more dangerous than wooden, because in case of an explosion stone would be thrown further.

Councilman Nickerson desired to know how much the Committee on Licenses had investigated.

Chairman Hughes said the committee had not acted hastily, or incorporated their own views. That they had visited the quarries and interviewed those who use powder and dynamite. The Oriental Powder Co. had built a stone magazine which was evidence that stone was better. Grass fires made wooden buildings dangerous. The ordinance as reported was conservative.

The motion to lay on the table was lost; the report was then accepted.

Councilman Langelier moved the amendment that the letters of the sign "Dangerous" be 12 inches long and 4 inches wide which was adopted.

President Alden called Councilman Adams to the chair, and then asked if there was any limit on loads in transportation.

Councilman Hughes said the two local agents drove about in light carriages and carried only small orders. One company received at Quincy Point and one over the road from Acton, possibly in three ton loads.

President Alden argued in favor of limiting loads, and asked relative to Boston requirements.

Councilman Hughes did not recall, but Boston was very strict. Dynamite was not easily exploded, and had been known to go through wrecks without exploding. Still there was danger.

Councilman Hardwick asked if any other quarry region was required to put sheet iron over wooden magazines.

Councilman Hughes says committee was looking only for the protection of Quincy.

Councilman Whiton did not care how large the loads were if dynamite was transported quickly from Quincy Point.

Councilman Hardwick favored postponement for a hearing.

Councilman Nickerson opposed delay. Thought the last speaker should be ignored, as his family for generations had been in the granite business and he was an interested party.

The rules were suspended and the order amending the ordinance was passed on roll call 18 to 1, Councilman Hardwick alone voting on the negative.

ASSESSORS PLANS.

The Committee on Ordinances reported on the order for $1,000 for Assessors' plans. Passed to be ordained.

MOTIONS, ORDERS, ETC.

Councilman Gassett offered an order for $500 for completing the improvements to the Ward Six playground. Referred to joint Committee on Finance and Public Buildings.

THE OLD WASHINGTON.

Councilman Whiton offered an order authorizing the Mayor to sell the old Washington school building at auction, the building to be torn down within three months and the proceeds of the sale to be credited to the appropriation for the Washington school.

Councilman Nichols asked the reason of crediting the proceeds to the Washington school.

Councilman Whiton hesitated and said "I don't know; we may need it."

Councilman Nichols hoped order would not pass as it read.

Councilman Adams — The amount appropriated was kept down as low as possible. This amount can be used in improving the grounds. It seems as though this ought to be applied to this school and for no other purpose.

Councilman Nichols believed if more money was needed it should come in a regular business way. If city sells property money should be subject to action of the council. Do you know of any deficiency?

Councilman Adams—There is enough money for the building but not for all the furnishings desired.

Councilman Whiton moved to strike out that portion of the order which related to crediting the proceeds to the Washington school.

Councilman Thompson opposed. It was a business proposition, as proceeds could be used in filling up old cellar and in grading.

The motion of Councilman Whiton prevailed.

Councilman Bass hoped order would go to a committee. He understood the School Committee think the building should remain for the present. It may play an important part in the schools at Quincy Point. We may need it for an overflow.

Councilman Nickerson said he could not conceive of anyone with eyes and judgment favoring having that building remain. It is not safe and should have been torn down long ago. The old building was no value to the School Committee.

The order was passed.

OLD FIRE BILLS.

Councilman Nickerson offered an order for $161.85 to be changed to pay of firemen 1902 to pay deficiency bills in Fire Department of 1900, 1901 and 1902. To Finance Committee.

TO MEET NEXT WEEK.

Upon motion of Councilman Gassett it was voted when the Council adjourn it be until Monday, Sept. 14.

POLLING PLACES.

The communication in relation to polling places for the Democrats and Socialists were taken from the table and orders introduced by Councilman Bass passed.

HIGH SCHOOL ESTIMATES.

Councilman Nickerson offered an order for $125 to be used by the Commissioner in getting estimates of cost of enlarging the High School. Passed.

CONCRETE SIDEWALK.

Councilman Adams offered an order for $1,000 for a tar concrete sidewalk on Washington court and Curtis street; abutters to pay one-half the cost. To Committee on Streets. This is abutting the new school lot at Quincy Point.

REPORTS WANTED.

Councilman Bass offered an order that the Commissioner report at the next meeting the cost of repairing South Walnut street and Sea street and that he confer with the Metropolitan. Commissioners to see if he cannot get a payment for repairing Sea street. Order adopted.

ATLANTIC SCHOOL LOT.

Councilman Langelier moved that the order relating to the school lot in Ward Six be taken from the Committee on Finance and referred to the joint Committee on Finance and Public Buildings. Voted.

LICENSES.

The application of James F. Burke for an auctioneers' license was taken from the table and an order granting the same passed. His bond was also approved.

An order was passed transfering the license of J. E. Sprague, agent of the Oriental Powder Mills, from 73 Goddard street to their magazine in the quarries.

TO FILL VACANCY.

Councilman Nichols offered an order for a joint convention of the Council and School Committee for Monday Sept. 14, at 8.30 o'clock to elect a member of the School Committee from Ward Four. Voted.

TO DUDLEY STREET.

Councilman Nichols offered an order that Councilmen Nichols, Bass and Adams with the Mayor appear before the Railroad Commissioners and use their efforts to have them approve of the location of the Boston Elevated at Neponset, so that the connecting tracks may be laid and through cars may be run from Quincy to the Dudley Street terminal. Adopted.

Adjourned at 9.10.

Good Afternoon

Kokomo, Indiana, reports that it is infested with women burglars. Can it be said that the gentler sex has forced open another door of opportunity?

Secretary wilson is making strenuous efforts to establish a demand for American fruits in the British markets. It is appreciated that the time is not far distant when South Africa will become a formidable competitor of the American fruit producer, and only an established demand for American will prevent its being crowded out.

There seems to be unnecessary haste on the part of the City Council to dispose of the old Washington schoolhouse at its meeting this week, especially as meetings will be held Sept. 14 and 21. The building is not vacated yet and may not be until October and possibly November.

The building is occupied by the School department, which has sent no notice to the City Council regarding its plans. Some years ago the Old High School building was condemned for school purposes, but has been reopened and has more pupils than ever. The basement at the Coddington was condemned years ago, and everybody says there should be a new building, but —. It is more evident every day that the Packard lot at Quincy Point would have been the most satisfactory and most economical for the new Washington schoolhouse.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ It is said of the eighteen American missianaries in Turkey that they "might be doing much more good in the slums of the United States." Possibly it might also be said of this newspaper paragrapher that he could do more good in the slums than in writing squibs. He would probably say that he had a right to choose his own work—and so, for that matter, have the missionaries in turkey.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ The Cambridge man who was buncoed out of $2000 by a couple of sharps, deserves little sympathy. He was old enough to know better, and he had been swindled once before, though some years ago. The victim of a bunco game expects to get something for nothing, and he generally gets nothing for something. The crop of victims is always ripe for the reaper, and the sorrows of one of this class has no effect upon the others, and the swindlers take the money and give the fools the laugh. —Lynn Item.

ANNUAL CRUISE.

Wollaston Yacht Club Weather the Squall.

Pass an Enjoyable Day at Marblehead.

Exciting Run for Home Won by the Romance.

The Wollaston Yacht club is not only sporty, but as a sailing and clean, wholesome social club, there is, perhaps, no yacht club between Cape Ann and Cape Cod that surpasses it in the latter respect. Their officers are always selected for their worth without favor of clique, and this year's officers are no exception to the rule.

Their Commodore, Stephen B. Wiley, Jr., is a man of sterling character and business ability, and the same can be said of their secretary and treasurer, Geo. H. Murray and Lyman Hewitson, respectively.

It can hardly be said that their outings are strictly gander parties, for a dozen or more ladies accompanied the fleet or went by trolley to return on the yachts on this their seventh annual cruise, which started last Saturday.

The number of yachts which participated were nineteen; the members and guests numbered one hundred and four. With so many people from Wollaston given the freedom of the little town of Marblehead at one time, it was an unusual thing to walk a block without meeting one of your townspeople. It seemed like an "old home week" away from home.

As the time drew near for the yachts to start, signs of a storm appeared in the west. It developed slowly but surely, and about half past three to four o'clock when the fleet was strung along from Egg rock to the Bell buoy of Pig rocks, the storm broke in all its fury upon them. They had however—as all good yachtsmen do—prepared for it, and all came through it without an accident.

Some came to anchor, while others scudded before it. Some of the smaller craft tossed about in snch a manner that the occupants received a thorough wetting which had no bad results.

The Commodore was the only one to put through with sail on. He did, however, lower his mainsail for a short time, and our under jib and spanker. This accounts for the great differences in time between his arrival and the bunch of boats that came in about seven o'clock.

Soon after the Commodore came to anchor the storm subsided and cleared

BATTLE IN ALGERIA

In Which a Few French Soldiers Routed Over Three Thousand Moors

Berlin, Sept. 9.—Dispatches from Oran, Algeria, show that the recent defeat of the insurgents by a French force near Almoungar, in which the French lost 87 killed and 47 wounded, was one of the most brilliant of the recent feats of the French army in Algeria.

It appears that the insurgents intercepted a convoy, the escort of which, consisting of 120 men, resisted the attack of between 3000 and 4000 Moors for eight hours. The little French force suffered greatly from thirst, but after inflicting heavy losses on their assailants succeeded in repulsing them. The French relieving force found the Moors' line of retreat scattered for a mile with dead and wounded.

General O'Connor, at the head of a battalion of the foreign legation, has started on a punitive expedition and the entire foreign legation has been ordered to hold itself in readiness for active service.

Fire Fighters In Session

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 9.—The 31st annual convention of the International Association of Fire Engineers opened here. The directors refused permission to Chiefs Harris of Tampa, Fla., and Thompson of Toronto to read their papers entitled "Should Firemen be Members of Labor Unions," for the reason that the association was non-sectional and should not meddle with the question of unionism. Captain Brophy of Boston spoke in favor of an absolute command of the department by the chief. He also favored the abolishment of fire commissiorers.

Short Strike a World's Fair Grounds

St. Louis, Sept. 9.—For an hour a general strike among union artisans at work at the world's fair grounds was threatened as a result of differences between carpenters and the company which is building the intramural railway. Two thousand carpenters quit work because of the employment by the contractors of several men at lower rates than the union scale. A truce was reached when the contractors suspended the men who were objected to. The carpenters say a general strike will be called if the contractors do not finally grant the demands.

Australian Labor Legislation

Melbourne, Sept. 9.—The government was defeated in the house of representatives by the adoption of a labor amendment making the conciliation bill apply to railway servants. The ministers are considering their positions.

There was a serious railroad strike in Victoria in May which resulted in the surrender of the strikers after the adoption of a government bill providing for severe coercive measures.

Train Robbers Frustrated

Stevensville, Mont., Sept. 9.—A bold attempt was made to hold up an express train just east of here. A pile of ties had been placed on the track. The engineer slowed up and backed away as soon as he could. Three men concealed in the bushes jumped out and ran after the train, but soon fell behind. The crew secured arms and returned and threw the ties to one side, after which the express went through unmolested.

May Hunt Abraham's Tomb

Chicago, Sept. 9.—President Harper of Chicago university has secured the consent of the sultan of Turkey to an exploration of the country in the vicinity of ancient Babylon. In this vicinity are supposed to be the ruins of the temple in which Nebuchadnezzar offered sacrifices, and the explorers hope to find the tomb of Abraham.

Coal Operators Sent to Jail

Topeka, Sept. 9.—Judge Hazen sentenced John Jack and John Bell, mine operators, to jail until such a period as they might conclude to answer the questions of the attorneys in the coal trust inquiry. The men had refused to testify on the theory that it might incriminate them. The prisoners will appeal to the supreme court.

The police say that Carrao's picture has been in the rogue's gallery for 20 years.

POSTAL FRAUD CASES

Seven New Indictments by Federal Grand Jury

BEGINNING OF THE END

Of the Long-Drawn-Out Investigation —Contractor Stern, Long Sought For, Is Located at Toronto—Beavers Surrenders and Gives $5000 Bail

Washington, Sept. 9.—After deliberating for several weeks over a mass of documents submitted by the postoffice inspectors the federal grand jury in this city has returned seven indictments in postal cases, involving six different persons. All the indictments were kept off the public record and both the officials of the district attorney's office and of the postoffice department refuse to divulge names or details of the indictments until the parties indicted are arrested. It is expected that arrests will occur today.

The grand jury's action probably marks the beginning of the end of the investigation that has been in progress since the middle of last March. Voluminous evidence has been laid before the grand jury as the result of the inquiry and, while the present report of the jury disposes of most of the cases, there yet remain several cases to be passed upon. When the latter are disposed of, according to Postmaster General Payne, the investigation, so far as the work at Washington is concerned, will be at an end for all practical purposes. Several of the persons indicted live outside of Washington. They will be arrested as soon as bench warrants can be served.

Postmaster General Payne and Mr. Bristow received word of the grand jury's action shortly after that body reported and subsequently they had a long conference on the subject. Both officials refused to divulge details pending official notification of arrests.

Two other important events have occurred in the postal inquiry. Leopold Stern, the Baltimore contractor, who disappeared from Baltimore before he could be arrested on an indictment returned July 31 last for complicity in alleged fraudulent contracts for furnishing letter carrier's satchels to the government, was located at Toronto yesterday, and the long delayed surrender of George W. Beavers, the former head of the salary and allowance division, to the New York authorities, took place. He gave $5000 bail for his appearance on Sept. 15.

The postal officials have been searching for Stern ever since he disappeared. They expressed considerable vexation at the premature publicity of his whereabouts, on account of the problem of extradition that now confronts the government and the possibility of his making good his escape, now that the information has become public in advance of the readiness of the authorities to effect his arrest.

Stern is charged with paying large sums to W. C. Long of this city and A. W. Machen, the deposed head of the free delivery service. The question of extradition has been taken up with the state department. The case has features similar to that in the Greene-Gaynor case. It was then contended that conspiracy was not extraditable, but the state department took the view that the acts themselves involved alleged embezzlement, and constituted extraditable offenses. This involves the drafting of a new complaint to present to the Canadian authorities as a condition precedent to demanding the arrest and surrender of Stern.

Beavers' arrest created no surprise, for the government all along has kept advised of his whereabouts, despite reports to the contrary.

It was said last night by an official that he understood the last indictments returned by the grand jury were mostly those of persons who already had been indicted for alleged improper acts which has developed as a result of the investigation conducted by the postmaster general. There may be, however, he added, one or two additional cases.

Will Fight Extradition

Toronto, Sept. 9.—Leopold Stern declined to be seen when a reporter called at his home here. He referred all callers to his attorney. Stern's lawyer said that his client was ready to appear before an extradition judge and prove his innocence, which is interpreted as a declaration that extradition proceedings will be fought to the end. He will not leave the city, the attorney said.

"Stern maintains that no arrangement existed between him and Machen in regard to the leather straps for mail cariers' bags," said Mr. Robinett, Stern's counsel. "He performed his full contract. I believe that Stern is simply wanted as a witness against Machen and the others indicted and therefore under the extradition treaty conspiracy of this kind is not an extraditable offence. Besides, politics is so intermingled with the affair that no foreign government would be willing to hand over a fugitive."

Arbitrators For Disarmament

Vienna, Sept. 9.—The arbitration conference by a large majority has adopted a resolution in favor of again submitting Russia's disarmament project of 1898 to a congress of the powers.

MUDDLE INTENSIFIED

By Byrne's Resignation of Delaware Federal Attorneyship

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 9.—President Roosevelt last evening received the resignation of William M. Byrne as United States district attorney for Delaware. He will accept the resignation.

Several weeks ago Byrne called on the president and indicated his intention of resigning his office at an early date. His action, it is intimated, was voluntary. Byrne has completed arrangements to establish a law practice in New York city and he will remove soon to that city from Wilmington. President Roosevelt will not consider the appointment of Byrne's successor until he returns to Washington.

Wilmington, Del., Sept. 9.—The political situation in Delaware, which was recently made more complicated by reason of the action of United States Senator Allee, in having Postmaster General Payne oust Miss Huldah B. Todd as postmistress at Greenwood because she was "particularly and personally obnoxious" to Allee, is intensified by William Michael Byrne's resignation as United States district attorney.

Boy Murderer Confesses

Baltimore, Sept. 9.—Charles Jones, colored, 12 years old, confessed to the police that he murdered Miss Caroline Link in this city. Miss Link was found in a dying condition in the candy and confectionery store of her employer at an early hour of the morning of Aug. 28 and at first it was supposed she had fallen and fractured her skull. She died without returning to consciousness. The boy says he entered the store to tap the till and finding Miss Link there he struck her on the head twice and ran away.

Nothing Wrong, Says Soper

Washington, Sept. 9.—The department of justice has received word from Pliny Soper, United States attorney for the northern district of Indian territory, an answer to the allegations which have been made against him to the effect that he has been interested in leasing and re-leasing Indian lands, etc. Soper admits that he is connected with the Tribal Development company, but denies that the company has done or is doing anything that is unlawful. The department will investigate Soper's statements.

Ireland's New Dawn

Dublin, Sept. 9.—The national directory of the United Irish league held a meeting here and adopted a resolution welcoming the Irish land bill as the most substantial victory gained by the Irish people for centuries and ascribing this result to the loyalty of Irish Secretary Wyndham, the high public spirit of the Liberal party and the good will of the landlords. Other resolutions urged the tenants to negotiate the purchase of their holdings in a spirit of friendliness.

Sought Revenge With Fire

St. Louis, Sept. 9.—With a torch as his weapon some person, supposed to be the agent of a secret society, sought revenge upon Joseph Beva and endangered the lives of 30 persons. Their escape was due solely to Carlo Dalnaghi, 8 years old, who, awakening frightened, aroused his mother. The alarm was sounded instantly, and the inmates of the blazing building escaped just in time. The building was destroyed with its contents.

Cables a Great War Factor

St. Johns, Sept. 9.—Major Bland of the royal engineers has arrived here to investigate on behalf of the British government the question of the proper defense of the Atlantic cables in time of war. He will study also the problem of protecting the cables across the Grand Banks and defending the cable stations from attack. Owing to the number of Atlantic cables passing near Newfoundland the question is one of great importance.

Pius' First Official Document

Rome, Sept. 9.—Pius X has published his first official document, consisting of a letter addressed to Cardinals Vannutelli, Rampolla, Perreta and Vivesy Tute, confirming their appointment by Pope Leo as a commissioner to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the dogma of the immaculate conception. The letter is followed by a prayer to the Virgin Mary, which is the first to bear the signature of Pius X.

Predicts Johnson's Election

Cleveland, Sept. 9.—W. J. Bryan arrived here from the east for a conference with Mayor Johnson. The latter was out of the city, however, and Bryan subsequently left for Toledo. He declined to discuss national politics, but predicted that Johnson would be elected governor of Ohio at the coming state election.

Trouble Brewing In China

Paris, Sept. 9.—A dispatch from Marseilles asserts that the government has requisitioned all the steamers of two companies for the conveyance of a large number of troops and a quantity of supplies. The dispatch adds that this step confirms the report that a critical situation prevails in China.

Yankee Fisherman Caught Napping

St. Andrews, N. B., Sept. 9.—The Dominion fisheries protection cruiser Curley arrived here towing a fishing boat owned by Thomas Small of Robinson, Me., seized in Oak bay for Sunday fishing. The boat was released on payment of $50 fine.

BY SUPPORTING PANAMA

United States May Bring Colombia to Terms

NEW PROGRAM PRESENTED

Appears to Be Entirely Plausible and Capable of Causing Compliance With Wishes of United States Regarding the Isthmian Canal

Washington, Sept. 9.—Recent developments in isthmian canal affairs indicate that this country will soon be presented with a program of action of exceptional plausibility. Many public men of prominence privately express themselves as in favor of intimating to the Panama revolutionists that if they will maintain resistance long enough to be respectable this government will see to it that they are not run over by the superior forces of Colombia.

The treaty of 1846 with Colombia, which makes it our duty to maintain order, to the extent of keeping transit open on the isthmus, greatly facilitates this program. No internal warfare could go far without involving our transit line. The substitution of the Hay-Pauncefote for the Clayton-Bulwer treaty leaves the United States singlehanded in anything that it may do at the isthmus, and the commercial nations of Europe are so desirous of seeing the canal built with American money that they would not press the point that we were taking the sort of action that under our Monroe doctrine we should severely call any other nation to account for attempting.

Conditions are thus favorable for a touch of imperialism. Such an intimation to Panama many of the American newspapers are already conveying in an unofficial way which may be accepted by the potential revolutionists as representative of public sentiment. These press comments may also be intended to bring Colombia to terms by intimating that we have another recourse.

An outbreak between Panama and Colombia would open two possible avenues of negotiation to us, one with Panama and the other with the "executive power" of Colombia, for in time of war the president and cabinet have, by the constitution, full power over treaties. The present extension of the French franchise from 1904 to 1910 was made by the "executive power," in consideration of $1,000,000 legitimately paid for the privilege. Some of the congressional leaders are now claiming that the extension was illegal and that the French property reverts to the Colombian government next year. France would, in such an event, protect her own stockholders by insisting on the legality of the transaction, and in this she would be morally supported by the United States. A revolution, by giving complete treaty-making authority to the executive power, would make negotiation much easier for us, aside from the possibility of doing business with Panama.

It is said that if we should go to Nicaragua now the chances of a financial holdup there would be just as great as at Panama. It is moreover becoming evident that a canal by that route would be hardly worth building, presenting engineering problems which no man can foresee. Most of those who would be critical of any intimations of a revolution in Panama are Democrats, and so would be hostile to the administration anyway. Republicans would stand by the Panama route. It would take little nursing to involve the United States in an exercise of power not unlike that by which the Hawaiian monarchy was overthrown or the great territory of the southwest secured from Mexico.

ANNUAL CRUISE.

away to almost a dead calm, and when this condition of weather prevailed the other boats were several miles from the finish line and they did not get a breeze sufficient to give steerage way until after six o'clock. The Commodore would undoubtedly have finished first in any event as he held a good margin on all the others when the storm broke upon them.

It is all over now, and they are thankful there was no serious trouble, and it is safe to say that more than half the party are glad they had the experience for they realize that such strenuous times gives confidence and better prepares them for emergencies of that nature.

All the yachts arrived safely after a time and took a berth in the harbor that suited their fancy. Clouds still floated above them and shrouded them in darkness while they slept.

Sunday morning was ushered in with a clean suit of clothes (washed the day before) and wreathed in smiles.

After breakfast greetings to one another were in order, after which a meeting of the several captains was held on the Flagship Claytonia, the Commodore presiding.

The meeting was short as the calendar was almost clean. After deciding to start for home at 10 A. M. Monday morning, a few other minor matters was disposed of and the meeting adjourned.

A number of the members expecting friends to arrive in town by rail went on shore to meet them. W. D. Given and William Teele met their wives. Lyman Hewitson had invited C. W. Page and his daughter Susie M. Page, and met them on arrival by trolley. Mrs. A. T. Barstow also went by trolley and was met by her husband.

The annual dinner was not held this year, the company preferring to go about in small parties. The day and evening were spent in sightseeing and visiting.

Monday morning was a perfect one. A strong northwest wind gave promise of a good run home, and a scrappy time among the racers. Fleet Capt. A. T. Nichols anchored his trim little power yacht Endymion on the starting line just before ten o'clock, and at 10.01.45 the Sheila crossed the line and the race was on. The writer being on the Sheila she was called the press boat.

Inside of seven minutes from the gun, there were ten boats across the line, and as they hauled around the point of the Neck, and set their balloon jibs and spinnakers they presented a thrilling sight.

At 10.15 the scene from the "press boat"—which was leading by this time—was grand, the pretty white sails all off before an increasing wind. The Deutcia goes between Tinkers island and the Neck. The Claytonia is fast crawling upon the Sheila. At 10.20 off east end of Tinkers; the Commodore off beam and sailing fast; Pocohontas 125 yards behind.

10.27—Pocohontas off beam, fifty yards now separates the flagship and the "Doctor," with the latter well to windward. The Commodore is taking in his balloons. The press boat is holding her own well. The Doctor has not gained in the last five minutes. Sheila hundred yards to windward.

At 10.35—The Adrika has just passed to leeward fifty years off. The Deutcia is well in Swampscott bay and seems to have better breeze than those outside.

At 10.37, Romance fifty yards astern and presents a picture with all sails set and drawing well. Ex-Commodore Burgess at the wheel and looking as contented as a boy with a new top.

10.45—At this time an interesting jockeying match is going on between the Claytonia, Pocohontas and Romance, each captain looking sharp and doing their utmost to outgeneral the other.

At 10.48, the battle ends by the Commodore gaining the position the three leaders were striving for. This advantage he held to near Bass Point, when the Romance's large spread of canvas began to assert itself, putting the latter to the good which she held to the home base. The Neptune is gaining and almost abeam. At this time one could throw a lemon from one deck to another of the Romance, Claytonia, Pocohontas, Neptune and the press boat.

10.50—The West Wind is one quarter mile astern, well outside.

At 11 o'clock the situation has entirely changed. For ten minutes the wind has been light but is freshening a bit now. The flagship is getting a better wind and is leading the press boat about half a mile.

The Romance is now leading and about quarter mile to leeward of the flagship. The Neptune is abeam of the pressboat. The Deutcia and Premier have apparently found the wind softer in shore and are edging out.

11.18—The pressboat is now off Egg rock. Endymion (powerboat) has just passed to windward.

11.20—Pocohontas leading Sheila 100 yards and Neptune 50 yards. Claytonia and Romance leading about one mile.

12.15—Light wind has prevailed the past hour. The Deutcia is evidently headed for Weymouth. Mr. Baker choosing to go to his Summer home rather than continue to the club house. Deer Island light about one mile ahead, wind light.

12.40—Press boat passes Deer Island light. The Pocohontas has just passed under the bows of an ocean tug with two coal barges in tow. The Neptune will be headed off by the barges, she comes into the wind. Walter Blake who is at the wheel, is saying something, for his lips can be seen moving. He looks back at the press boat. The latter is but a doughnut's throw from her. Blake's lips are again in motion. He must be saying something, but what it is cannot be heard on the press boat. The expression on his face is the only indication that he is not repeating any of his old Sabbath school lessons.

1.10—The press boat is now leading the Neptune by a length. Pocohontas is to the good about 400 yards.

1.15—Off Moon head; Neptune is leading Sheila 25 yards. These two boats are having a warm time and cross the line almost a dead heat at 2.01.35.

It has been a very interesting race locally with just enough excitement at times to keep one guessing where they were at.

It would be unfair to conclude this story of the race without especially mentioning the little West Wind. Her performance under the skilful handling of young Hamilton C. Chase was remarkable, considering her length 16 feet 8 inches against her larger competitors. "Toney" brought her in not so far behind but that she landed a prize off the front end of the bunch.

The success of the seventh annual cruise of the W. Y. C. was a most successful one. The number of yachts (nineteen) and the number of people (one hundred and four,) who participated, are record breakers, and cannot but be appreciated by its officers and members. Commodore Wiley should be congratulated.

Appended are the names of yachts and members, also summary of races, the prizes, however, have not been decided owing to the handicaps not being figured out at this time. A well attended dance at the clubhouse in the evening ended the day in a round of pleasure.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

The Foolish Little Duck

Have you ever seen a duckling? A duckling is a small duck, and they are the cutest, yellowest little things you ever came across, without a single feather, their little bodies being covered only with fine down, from which the feathers later grow.

There was once a duckling—not a very old one either; in fact, he had just got his head thrust through the shell of an egg and taken his first peep at the wide, wide world.

"My," he exclaimed, "isn't this grand to be able to leave this old shell and see the sights!"

"But," cried a spring chicken who was standing near, "you may not like it after awhile. The rain may pour down and wet you as it did me the first day I was in the barnyard."

That gave the duckling something to think about. Presently he made up his mind as to what to do.

"I shall simply stay in my shell," said he. "When it rains I shall draw in my head, and if the water rises about me my shell will float like a boat."

Of course Master Duckling was very much pleased with his idea, and he drew in his head and went to sleep. While he slept a great storm came up, and the shell, instead of floating like a boat, sank in the water like a rock.

Master Duckling was sure that he would drown before help could reach him.

"Come out of your shell!" cried a big duck, who was swimming about in the water.

Then the duckling, with a mighty effort, burst the sides of his shell and in a few minutes was paddling around as happy as he could be.

"Isn't it a shame," said he to himself, "that I did not have sense enough to come out of my shell before?"—Detroit Journal.

Annual Flowers.

Annual plants are those that you must sow every year. From seed to seed is only a year or less. Annual plants probably comprise half the flowering plants of the world. They quickly take advantage of the moving seasons, grow, blossom and die before they are caught by the blight of winter or by the parching dry season. They are shifty plants, now growing here, then absconding to other places. This very uncertainty and capriciousness make them worth the while. The staid perennials I want for the main and permanent effects in my garden, but I could no more do without annuals than I could do without the spices and the condiments of the table. They are flowers of a season; I like the flowers of a season.—Country Life In America.

Deaf and Dumb Teachers.

"I suppose a deaf and dumb asylum is the last place to which most persons who wish to learn a language would think of going," said the principal of one of those institutions. "Yet there are several educated foreigners who came here to take lessons in English.

"The reason is that a teacher in a school for the deaf and dumb, having to talk so her pupils can read her lips, learns to enunciate clearly and distinctly and give each word its true value. The foreigners say our teachers speak so distinctly that they can acquire the language in half the time they can from ordinary instructors."

The Bird of Paradise.

Probably no famous bird has a smaller habitat than the bird of paradise, whose beautiful feathers are so highly prized in the millinery trade. No one knows why the varieties of this beautiful bird are confined to the island of New Guinea and the neighboring coasts of Australia. There are many other islands not far away where the conditions would seem to be equally favorable to their existence, but they are not found among them.

Lawn Party.

The lawn party given by Rev. and Mrs. Barr at their home, 21 Franklin street, Tuesday evening, for the young people of the church, was largely attended and a success in every way. The evening was perfect for such an occasion. The grounds were beautifully illuminated with Japanese lanterns. Music furnished by the Scotch piper, Adam Mackie of Aberdine, Scotland, and the graphaphone operated by Mr. Goss of Quincy was much enjoyed. The young people amused themselves in games of various kinds. Refreshments were served on the lawn. Mrs. Barr was assisted in receiving by Miss Mary Harper, Miss Janet Woodin, Miss Maria Patterson; and in serving by Mrs. Alex. Falconer, Mrs. William Ross, Mrs. John McPhee, Mrs. Menhinick.

A CARNIVAL OF BLOOD

Insurgents Intend to Resort to Reprisals

THE SLAUGHTER OF 65,000

Charged Against Turks, Who Have Instituted General Slaughter of Christians Instead of Fighting Insurgents—American Marines Sleeping on Their Arms at Beirut

Sofia, Sept. 10.—The Macedonian organizations are preparing a memorandum, which they will present to the representatives of the powers, in which they declare that the insurgents intend to resort to reprisals for the Turkish atrocities. The memorandum gives detailed information of villages destroyed and the massacre of their inhabitants. It declares that 65,000 men, women and children have been slaughtered and 120 villages burned. In the list of villages given only two are in the vilayet of Adrianople. The others are principally in the Monastir vilayet.

The memorandum repeats the statements recently issued by the insurgent general staff at Monastir that the Turks, instead of fighting the insurgents, have instituted a general massacre of the Christians. The organizations declare they are issuing the present memorandum because they are no longer able to restrain the bands from retaliation and henceforward the responsibility will rest with the great powers which, instead of attempting to moderate the Turkish barbarities, are calling on the Turks to speedily end the revolution.

Anarchy Prevails at Beirut

Beirut, Syria, Sept. 10, via Port Said.—Vice Consul Magelssen, when he was fired at recently, was near a police booth. His assailant is not yet known. The authorities are indifferent and thus far have given no satisfaction.

The Moslem section of the city, since Friday, has been in a state of anarchy, and 30 persons were killed, among whom, however, were no foreigners. The shops are closed, the streets deserted and the government is seemingly unable or unwilling to assure the safety of the residents.

The arrival of the American cruisers Brooklyn and San Francisco was most opportune. Admiral Cotton is on the alert and signalmen and a guard slept at the United States consulate. The men on board the warships are under arms ready to disembark on a signal from the consulate. The boats of the Brooklyn and San Francisco have reconnoitered the coast below the property of the American mission in order to select landing places in case of need.

The American mission authorities have demanded guards from the governor for the protection of the mission printing office and the mission property. An attempt to enter an American residence on Saturday was frustrated.

The Americans here think the United States government should insist on the dismissal of the vali of Beirut, a notorious bribe-taker, and to whom all disorders are attributed. The opinion here is that the powers should take action with a view to bringing Beirut under the jurisdiction of an autonomous Christian government for the Lebanon district.

Bulgaria May Mobilize Troops

London, Sept. 10.—Except that the consuls in Salonica are again asking for the protection of warships, there is little direct news this morning from the seat of the Macedonian troubles, but there is a plentiful crop of sensational statements impossible either to confirm or deny. Among the latter is the assertion made in a Sofia dispatch to the effect that it has been decided to mobilize the Bulgarian army. This is contrary to the avowed policy of the Bulgarian government, but cannot be regarded as unlikely with Turkish troops concentrated five miles from the Bulgarian frontier.

Proof of Turkish Brutality

London, Sept. 10.—The Monastir correspondent of The Daily Mail sends a graphic account of the sickening sights he witnessed in the hospitals there. The victims of Turkish brutality were mostly Greeks and Wallachians. Many women and children had wounds from Mauser bullets, proving that they had been inflicted by regular troops, inasmuch as the Bashi-Bazouks are armed with Martinis. The stories told by the victims tended to prove the worst accusations against the Turkish troops of brutalities and massacres.

PRINTING BILLS.

Politicians Backward and Credit is Refused.

The Daily Ledger has been asked when nominations may be filed for the Republican caucuses.

Had the question been asked a few days later it would have been too late as the time expires this week.

The regular notice for the caucuses will not appear in the Ledger because the Republican City Committee of 1902 has not paid its printing bill, and the Committee of 1903 appear to have no interest in it.

The politicians do not care, however, to give much publicity or a long notice. They get their lists all ready to file and then give a notice of two or three days and in that way steal a march.

The Republicans are not the only ones who have not paid their printing bills, and they also will be turned down when they seek additional printing or advertising.

Marsh Mellow Party.

A marsh mellow party was held at Miss Bertha Reed's home on Liberty square, Wednesday evening, being her fifteenth anniversary her friends presented her an elegant gold neck lace. The presentation was made by Richard Williams. Miss Bertha was so surprised that she could hardly find words to thank her friends.

Amusement consisted of games and music vocal and instrumental. Solos were rendered by Miss Celina Belleveau. Duetts by the Misses Eva Hubert and Alma LeClair. Violin and mandolin duett by the Misses Bertha and Alma Reed. Bob Smith and "his silk hat" will not soon be forgotten. A collation was served.

Those present were: Eva Hubert, Antonia Picard, Bella Stronach, Alma LeClair, Theresa Morriaty, Maggie Shirley, Anna Giles, Agnes Souter, Nellie Souter, Margaret Gill, Celenia Beleveau, Florence Brown, John Gillis Ernest Roberson, Charles Hubert, Robert Smith, Richard Williams, George Provost, Wm. Farrell, Wm. Tisdale, Ernest Rogers, Fred Lansy, Charles McDonald, James Stewart, George Sullivan, Leo Favreau, John Welsh.

Strike at Seattle.

The street railway men are making it unpleasant for Supt. B. J. Weeks in his new position at Seattle, Wash. A dispatch of Wednesday says:

All but 10 out of 160 cars usually run by the Seattle Electric Co. are in operation today, notwithstanding the decision of the electric committee of the street car union ordering a strike.

When the strike was called most of the employees discarded their badges and went to work as usual, upon the promise of President Furth that he would treat with a committee of the men in an endeavor to reach an amicable adjustment of the differences.

MURDER FROM AMBUSH

Peter Vorren Shot Down Near His Home In Vermont

HIS YOUNG SON A WITNESS

Neighbor Who Has Long Nursed What Are Supposed to Have Been Imaginary Grievances Suspected of Having Committed the Crime

Montpelier, Vt., Sept. 10.—Trudging along behind a load of wood which he was hauling to his home on the outskirts of East Montpelier Peter Vorren, a quarryman, was fired upon from ambush and mortally wounded. He fell upon his knees, but immediately regained his feet and ran after his frightened horses, a distance of 30 yards, and fell dead beside the load. His 12-year-old son witnessed the tragedy.

Bartholomew Croteau, the murdered man's nearest neighbor, was arrested, charged with the murder, lodged in the Washington county jail here, and two hours later the case had been presented to the grand jury now in session in this city. A feud of long standing between the families of Vorren and Croteau directed suspicion towards the prisoner.

Vorren was of French nationality, 46 years of age, and leaves a widow and eight children, the youngest of whom is but 4 days old. When the son brought home the news of his father's violent death the mother rose from her sick bed and before she could be restrained left the house, intent upon going to the spot where her husband's body lay. She gained the yard, where she fell unconscious. Her condition is critical.

Vorren was employed at the stone shop of Bartley Bros. at Barre and bore a good reputation.

Croteau, also of French descent, is a man of 50 years of age and lives next door to the Vorren home in East Montpelier. He is employed at Barre as a collector of garbage. He has a wife, but no children. He is called eccentric, and has long nursed what others say are imaginary grievances against his neighbor. He is said to have complained repeatedly that Vorren poisoned his garden and his fowls and to have declared that unless the authorities acted against his enemy he would take the law into his own hands.

Vorren recently purchased several cords of wood in the country four miles from his home and had for several days devoted his evenings to the removal of the wood to his home. He was making a trip about 10:30 at night and had reached a slight incline in the road about a quarter of a mile from his house. He and his son were riding on the load. At the foot of the grade he got down and, with the reins thrown across his shoulders, followed the team. The boy remained on the load. The night was clear and cold and Vorren had thrust his hands into his pockets. Suddenly, as the top of the ascent was reached, there was a movement among the berry bushes which skirt the road at this point, a flash, a shot rang out, and the driver fell to his knees.

The reins slipped from Vorren's shoulders and the horses, startled by the report, sprang forward. Apparently conscious only of the danger to the boy unless the team was stopped, the wounded man staggered to his feet, ran for a distance of 30 yards, overtook the team and fell dead as he reached for the dangling reins. Meantime a man of rather small build emerged from the bushes and disappeared into the woods near by.

The boy succeeded in stopping the horses, and then examined the body in the road, which was senseless, with blood streaming from a wound in the left breast. Convinced that his father was dead he hurried home and alarmed the neighbors. Constable Little went to the scene and then notified District Attorney Bailey and the selectmen. The law of the state requires an order from the selectmen before the body of the victim of a violent death can be removed. The body of the murdered man remained where he had fallen for four hours until an order from Selectman Kelton ordered its removal to Barre.

District Attorney Bailey began investigation at once. He ordered an examination of the body by two doctors, who found that death had resulted from hemorrhages following wounds in the left breast made by buckshot. The district attorney ordered the subsequent arrest of Corteau.

Reports From Leishman

Washington, Sept. 10.—The state department yesterday received two cablegrams from Minister Leishman. They were sent in the course of consultation with the department, and for that reason were not made public. It was stated at the department, however, that Leishman threw no new light on the situation at either Constantinople or Beirut. Some additional instructions were sent to Minister Leishman, but they went prior to the receipt of the cablegrams from him.

AN EXTRA SESSION.

ALL CROWDED.

Rapid Increase in the School Population.

But None Are Turned Away.

Situation at the High School the Most Serious.

But little school work in the way of study has been accomplished this week. The opening days have been given up largely to getting things in running order.

Several of the school buildings are very crowded and it will be necessary to do some transferring of the pupils in order to accommodate them all.

The worst condition probably exist at the Quincy school at Atlantic. There are now 455 children there. Two outside rooms are already being used, and yet the building is very crowded and it will be necessary to put in seats in all available spaces.

The Massachusetts Fields and Wollaston buildings are well filled, the Massachusetts Fields the more so of the two. By putting in additional seats the pupils will be accommodated.

The Adams, Cranch and Gridley Bryant are all right, and can easily take care of their pupils.

The lower grade of the Lincoln is crowded and some of the children have been sent to the John Hancock building.

Although two additional rooms had been provided at the Willard, the eighth grade had more than it could take of, and fifteen were transferred to the John Hancock and some to the Gridley Bryant.

At the Washington the school is crowded but they will get along until the first of the month when they will probably occupy the new building.

The Coddington is badly crowded but they can get along by using the room fitted up in the basement, condemned many years ago.

A Great Attraction.

It is estimated that George F. Elcock of Copeland street has given away nearly a thousand blossoms since his beautiful dahlia display was called to the attention of the public by the Ledger a few weeks ago. People from all parts of the city have visited him just to see the flowers, and none have gone away empty handed. The unusually large variety of rare shades attracts the admiration of all. Mr. Elcock has in the centre of his two dahlia gardens some wonderfully tall and beautiful cannas, and his asters are also very pretty.

In Observation Car.

The trustees of the Old Colony street railway company were in Quincy Wednesday making an inspection of the road. They rode in a handsom observation car. They were met at Brockton by Supt. Conway of the Quincy division who piloted them through Quincy and thence to Nantasket. There were several ladies in the party who left the car at Nantasket and proceeded to Boston by boat.

Good Afternoon.

Today is the anniversary of the Barbara Frietchie incident which occurred Sept, 10, 1862.

The weather prophet who predicted "prolonged drouths" for this summer has been drowned out.

Lord Brassey, a recognized authority on the subject, predicts that the United States is destined to become the greatest naval power in the world.

A $1000 sidewalk around the Washington street schoolhouse would be a good thing, but it should wait until there is one in front of Bethany church in City Square; on the east side of Hancock street between City Square and Elm street; on both sides of School street, and other streets where there is a large amount of travel.

Ex-Congressman Naphen shows a surprising lack of knowledge relative to the appropriation for a government building at Quincy, which was his pet scheme when a candidate for election. He is way off on the figures he quotes relative to sum specified for lot and also for building, and finally seems to have let an appropriation for building slip mysteriously through his fingers.

The amendment to the ordinance relative to licenses should have specified that magazines and powder houses in the city, where powder and dynamite are kept, should be labeled with the word "dangerous" as large or larger than is require on teams during transportation. The restrictions relative to the storage of explosives seem to be necessary, and should impose no hardships on quarry owners.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Should the state of Alabama withdraw its appropriation from Mr. Washington's school, more harm will be done the state than the school.—New Bedford Standard.

☞The address of President Roosevelt, to the labor organizations at Syracuse, was one of his best efforts. What he would say on the occasion of labor has been a subject for surmise ever since it was announced that he would speak, and no friend of the President, or any honest friend of labor can object to the sentiments he uttered at Syracuse. He preached a common gospel to the poor and to the rich, to the man who toils with his hands, and the man who applies his talents to the management of capital.—Lynn Item.

INTO SEWER TRENCH.

Man and Horse Rescued with Difficulty at East Milton.

Three West Quincy men had a narrow escape at East Milton last Saturday night. They were returning from Boston in a buggy and struck East Milton about 9 o'clock, just in time to be in the heaviest of the shower. The rain somewhat blinded the driver, and instead of keeping his horse in the street he unconsciously drove him over a pile of earth and planks into the sewer trench. The trench was nineteen feet deep and there was seven feet of water in it. The horse went down out of sight and one of the men with him. The other two escaped by jumping.

The man sank up to his neck in water and it was some minutes before he was got out. Then there came the job of getting the horse out. A tackle was rigged and the horse was hoisted part way, when the rope slipped and let him down again.

A second try was made and this time the animal was rescued. It was midnight before the animal was taken out and the party again started on their way home.

Labor Split to Come

Seattle, Sept. 10.—All but 10 of the 160 cars usually run by the Seattle Electric company are in operation, notwithstanding the decision of the electric committee of the Street Car union ordering a strike. When the strike was called most of the employes discarded their badges and went to work as usual. It is believed the effect of this will be the disruption of the Seattle branch of the Amalgamated Association of Street Car Employes.

Bad Outlook For Fishermen

St. Johns, Sept. 10.—The extreme financial depression is causing widespread popular unrest in St. Pierre, Miq. Owing to the collapse of the French cod fishery on the Grand Banks 23 firms are said to be on the verge of collapse. The French government may be called upon to provide sustenance for a considerable portion of the populatcn during the winter.

WIRES TO BROCKTON.

Quincy Point Plant Will Supply Power to Street Railways.

The Old Colony street railway has completed the laying of its underground conduits from the new power station to Des Moines road, via. Washington and Chubbuck streets. From Des Moines road they have secured a strip of land twenty-five feet wide through private property to Brockton. A line of poles has been erected on this land and work running the new feed wires will soon be commenced. These feed wires will supply the current that will operate nearly every line of cars this side of Brockton.

The erecting of the new power station at Quincy Point is a big undertaking, and will cost many thousands of dollars. It will be equipped with the latest machinery, including the new pattern of turbine engines. Some of the machinery has already arrived.

Double Drowning Accident

Middletown, Conn., Sept. 10.—Clarence Scranton, 13, and Percy Francis, 12, failed to appear at their homes for supper last evening and a search was instituted. Mr. Francis went to the river front and found the bodies in about a foot of water. It is believed that the boys were playing in a boat and it overturned. Their bodies then floated down stream into shallow water.

A Mysterious Disappearance

Wallingford, Conn., Sept. 10.—Hundreds of citizens of Wallingford are searching for J. A. Aldridge, a photographer and a prominent citizen of this town. Aldridge was at his place of business last evening and his actions were so peculiar that a friend advised him to go to a physician at once. Aldridge promised to do so and left the store with that intention. Since that time he has not been seen.

Couldn't Resist Temptation

Boston, Sept. 10.—Charged with the larceny of stocks and bonds aggregating some $800, Frank G. Christianson, 19, for five years past a clerk for Robert D. Evans, stock broker, was last night locked up at police headquarters, where he confessed his crime. His salary had been $10 a week and the temptation when he saw so many valuable securities within his grasp was too strong for him to resist.

Alleged Violation of Law

Pawtucket, R. I., Sept. 10.—The contract labor law was invoked by the striking lace makers when Adolph Choquenoy was arrested, charged with violation of its provisions. Choquenoy was taken into custody at the lace mill of the American Textile company. He came to work here two or three weeks ago, it is alleged, from France, and under contract.

Property Owners Make a Kick

Salem, Mass., Sept. 10.—Remonstrants against double tracking Lafayette street, the main thoroughfare to Lynn, were heard at a long session of the aldermen last evening. A petition in opposition was presented, signed by 60 residents on the street, representing $717,000 worth of real estate. The aldermen took the matter under advisement.

After Alleged Confidence Man

Portland, Me., Sept. 10.—Deputy Marshal Frith has started for Memphis, information having been received of the arrest in that city of Harry Bishop, supposed to be the man wanted in Portland to answer to accusations made by a Mrs. York, who claimed to have been swindled out of $4000 by a confidence game.

PRINTERS' UNION OATH

A Bar to Receiving Absolution In the Roman Catholic Church

Milwaukee, Sept. 10.—The Journal says: The slogan for what promises to be one of the biggest contentions in which organized labor has been engaged, one with the Catholic church, has been sounded by Father Ward of Beloit, who has declared that neither he nor any other priest of the Roman Catholic faith will give absolution to those who have taken the oath of the International Typographical union. The oath of this union requires that the member's allegiance to his union shall have priority over every obligation, religious or otherwise.

Father Schinner, administrator of the archdiocese, says that Father Ward is altogether justified in making such a statement and that he himself says the same thing. Father Schinner's name is included in the list forwarded to the pope for a successor to the late Archbishop Katzer.

Stern Held Without Bail

Toronto, Sept. 10.—Leopold J. Stern, the Baltimore manufacturer indicted in Washington for alleged postal frauds, has surrendered to the authorities here. Before Judge Winchester counsel for Stern informed the judge that his client was prepared to proceed with an investigation into any charge the United States government might prefer. Attorney Dewart, acting for the United States government, stated that a warrant for Stern's arrest was en route to Toronto and asked that the accused be held pending its arrival. Despite the protest of his counsel, Stern was remanded to jail without bail until Friday.

Helme Out of a Job

New York, Sept. 10.—Chief Quartermaster Helme of the construction and repair department at the navy yard has been handed his discharge from the service, signed by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Darling. He was afterward offered a position as quarterman laborer, which he refused to accept. The case involved the G. A. R., of which he is a member, the secretary of the navy having been threatened that if Helme was discharged the veterans would be heard from this fall. The president's intervention in Helme's favor was requested, but Mr. Roosevelt refused to interfere.

A Tobacco Smuggling Case

New York, Sept. 10.—The examination of Joseph Wahrman, a dealer in leaf tobacco, before Commissioner Ridgeway on a charge of buying smuggled tobacco, brought out the fact, if the confessions of two sailors arrested are to be believed, that a number of tobacco merchants in New York are engaged in buying contraband tobacco. The commissioner held Wahrman for trial in $1500 bail, which was furnished. Wahrman denied the charge and said he was a victim of circumstances. The sailors were paroled.

Banks Prefer to Sell Bonds

Washington, Sept. 10.—Applications from national banks for the retirement of circulation are reaching the treasury department in unexpected numbers and amounts. For the seven business days of the present month the applications aggregate $2,762,500. Under the law only $3,000,000 in circulation can be retired in any one month. The present movement is accounted for by the high price of bonds, the banks evidently seeing a greater profit in selling their bonds than in keeping them in circulation.

Hostile Demonstration Planned

Rome, Sept. 10.—The czar will arrive in Rome on Oct. 24 and will remain here three days. Indignant protects have been aroused by the announced intention of the Socialists to make a hostile demonstration against the czar. Signor Morgari, the Socialist leader, says the Socialists will not abstain from hostile demonstrations as in the case of visits from other sovereigns, as the latter were constitutional monarchs, while the czar had not yet granted a constitution to the people of Russia.

Counterfeiters Caught at Work

Newark, N. J. Sept. 10.—Three men were arrested last night in a house in Mulberry street in the act of making counterfeit silver coins. In the place were found silver in bars, melting pots, a milling machine, machines for trimming and finishing the coins and a quantity of coins in all stages of manufacture. On one of the men was found a photograph, apparently of himself, in uniform and a policeman's shield.

Coal Trust Case Waits

Topeka, Sept. 10.—The coal trust case will be argued in the supreme court Oct. 5. John Bell, a mine operator, who was sent to jail by Judge Hazen for contempt of court, has filed an application for a writ of habeas corpus and is released on $500 bond. No further action against the alleged coal trust will be taken until after the decision of the supreme court, which can not be before Oct. 10.

King Peter Between Two Fires

Vienna, Sept. 10.—According to private advices from Belgrade King Peter has sent a messenger to the czar to beg him to reconsider his attitude towards the Servian officers, which the king regards as partly the cause of the new revolt in the army. There is an unconfirmed rumor that in the event of the czar refusing to accede to King Peter's request, the latter will abdicate.

BUCKEYE CAMPAIGN ON

Clarke and Johnson Pitch Into Republicans

SHARP CRITICISM OF HANNA

By His Rival For Senatorship, Who Declares That Business Is on the Verge of Collapse—Talks of Trusts and Suggests Remedies Therefor

Akron, O., Sept. 10.—The Democratic state campaign opening meeting was held in this city last night, addresses being delivered by Tom L. Johnson, candidate for governor of Ohio, John H. Clarke, candidate for United States senator and Henry George, Jr., of New York. Three thousand people were in attendance.

Mr. Clarke began his speech by paying his compliments to Senator Hanna in the following words:

"'Let well enough alone,' 'stand pat,' 'continue to stand pat,' 'hands off,' 'for God's sake, keep letting well enough alone.'" This, in his own language, is the sum of the political wisdom and statesmanship in which Senator Hanna has given counsel to the people of this state and nation for several years as if, forsooth, he thought the national life of this great people and the business of it would stand still, not move, at his command.

"The business of the country has refused to stand still at Mr. Hanna's command, but, on the contrary, has run riot in speculation such as was never seen before, and now stands upon what all men fear is the verge of collapse, and capital and labor halt in daily expectation of a panic—a fear in which the president and the secretary of the treasury by their public speech show that they distinctly share. This condition has been largely brought about by the disturbance of business caused by the high tariff taxes, through which millions of dollars have been unnecessarily taken from the people and the channels of business and locked up in the United States treasury or loaned out by it to favored banks.

"While Senator Hanna has thus been urging this do nothing policy, there has been worked out unrestrained in our country the greatest industrial revolution of modern times, which has placed every branch of business and manufacture in the control of a form of monopoly, which all the world except Mr. Hanna agrees to call a 'trust.'"

As to the remedies in the way of controlling trusts, Mr. Clarke said the first is the taking of the tariff from all articles, the manufacture or sale of which is controlled by a monopoly, and the second the limiting of the capitalization of all corporations engaged in interstate commerce strictly to the value of the property invested.

Referring to the Philippine policy of the Republicans, which he denounced, Mr. Clarke said he was in favor of granting the Filipinos immediate independence, reserving the coaling stations which they have always been ready to grant to the United States, and of saying to all the rest of the world "Hands off this attempt to form a government of the free."

Mr. Johnson, in his address, said that we have in this campaign three great questions to present to the people of Ohio. These are the questions of home rule, equal taxation and the destroying of the unholy, if not corrupt, alliance between certain managers of the Republican party and the owners of valuable special privileges. No one denies that every locality should have the right to control its own local affairs. The justice of local self-government is universally conceded. This is also true of equitable taxation. And no one claims that we have either local self-government or a system of just taxation.

"Some men," he said, "will deny that there is a corrupt alliance between some Republican leaders and the owners of valuable special privileges in the state. But our hope of success not only for the Democratic party; not only for the government for the state of Ohio, but our hope in Republican institutions rests on this fact: That when the people realize the existence of this conspiracy they will not only resent it, but by their votes destroy it. Such bargains and intrigues cannot stand exposure."

Parks In a Lone Fight

New York, Sept. 10.—The Journeymen Stone Setters' association of New York and vicinity, one of the unions affected by the building tie-up in this city which have not signed the amended plan of arbitration with the bosses, unanimously voted last night to sign the arbitration plan. This action leaves Sam Parks and his union practically alone in the field against the bosses in the big building tie-up.

Determined to Kill Union

Cripple Creek, Col., Sept. 10.—One more mine, the Hull City placer, has opened with a small force, and those previously opened have increased their operating forces. The executive committee of the Mine Owners' association has issued a statement declaring that they will not cease fighting until the Western Federation of Miners has been driven out of the district.

Will Fight For Receiver

Philadelphia, Sept. 10.—Minority stockholders of the Consolidated Lake Superior company have started a movement with a view of asking for the appointment of a receiver for that concern.

BAD AUTO ACCIDENT

Barney Oldfield Has Close Call and Spectator Is Killed

Detroit, Sept. 10.—While Barney Oldfield's racing automobile was running nearly 60 miles an hour at the Grosse Pointe track in the 10-mile open event, one of the front tires on the machine exploded, throwing the car into the fence and injuring Frank Shearar, a spectator, so badly that he died in a few minutes. The car went 50 feet through the air and Oldfield received several cuts about the body and had one rib broken.

Two other high power machines, those driven by Harry Cunningham and Henri Page, came to grief because of the tires. Fortunately no one was hurt in either of these accidents.

Oldfield's sparker gave out a few feet from the tape in the race during which the accident occurred and Oldfield lost nearly two miles before he repaired the damage and started after Harry Cunningham, the only other entry. As he was turning into the stretch on his seventh mile the friction on the upper front tire burned it through and it exploded. The track is banked high at the turn and the car shot for the outer edge of the track, which is six feet above the ground beyond. Oldfield had just time to twist his brake and head for a spot between two trees. Shearar was standing against the fence at this point and the car struck him squarely, breaking both legs in several places and fracturing his skull. He was thrown 75 feet and never recovered consciousness. Oldfield had presence of mind enough to throw himself backward on the flat deck of the car, which went crashing through a low tree and landed, a wreck, 50 feet beyond.

Chafing at Law's Delay

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Papers have been served on the Chinese inspector here by Attorney Akin of Ogdensburg, requiring him to show cause why 147 Chinese prisoners detained at Malone should not be discharged or have immediate trial. The men are charged with being unlawfully in this country and have been imprisoned in the old jail barn for a month awaiting trial. The quarters are greatly crowded and in an unsanitary condition. One Chinaman has died as a result of close confinement.

Joseph Riley's Last Fight

Philadelphia, Sept. 10.—Joseph Riley, a bantamweight pugilist, died this morning at St. Agnes hospital. Riley last night engaged in a six-round bout with Grif Jones at the Southern Athletic club. The fight ended in a draw. Shortly after reaching his dressing room Riley fell to the floor unconscious and was quickly removed to the hospital. He never thereafter regained consciousness. Grif Jones, William Hohl, the proprietor of the club, and the several seconds of the two men in the bout are under arrest.

Killed Wife and Mother-In-Law

Spring Green, Wis., Sept. 10.—According to a story told by the 12-year-old son of George Brandt, Mary Murphy and her daughter, Mary Brandt, were murdered at their home. Mrs. Murphy is about 50 years old and her daughter 32. The latter is the divorced wife of George Brandt. The boy's story was confirmed later and Brandt was captured in a barn near the scene of the tragedy and confessed the crime. He gave no reason for the deed. Brandt attempted suicide by shooting, but failed.

Killed by Wrongful Accusation

Asheville, N. C., Sept. 10.—While Mrs. J. S. Boyesen of Chicago was at a hotel near Spartansburg, S. C., the room of a guest was robbed of $600 worth of jewelry. The landlord accused Mrs. Boyesen. She was not in good health, and the charge resulted in her physical collapse, causing her death last night. Before the end came she instituted a $50,000 damage suit against her accuser. Mrs. Boyesen had done considerable newspaper work and was a musician of ability.

Quincy's stringent orders regarding the storage and handling of explosives show that she doesn't mean to have a shocking accident occur within her borders.—Herald.

A list of the new D primary pupils in the various schools of the city will appear in the Daily Ledger tomorrow. These are the children who this week begin their school life.

It has been reported that Councilman George E. Adams is not a candidate for the Legislature this year. But friends insist that he shall and his name will probably be on the ballots.

It is gratifying to know that interes in the Quincy Day Nursey increases, for it was but a few days ago that Mrs. Charles M. Bryant received from the Quincy Fire Department a check of $33.50 to add to its fund.

While inspecting the new track to the Fore River yard at Newcomb Square a man came upon a small headstone marked, "Sarah, the beloved wife of D— J— B—." Beside it was a bunch of withered flowers. Securing a shovel he began to investigate and was not long in unearthing a dead cat.

John Stewart, the Wollaston beach boat builder, had some difficulty with one of his workmen on Wednesday, during which he received a severe cut on the head. He was removed to his home and a physician summoned who found his injuries not of a serious nature. Mr. Stewart is about again today.

—A strange method of cooking an egg is sometimes employed by shepherds in the east. The egg is placed in a sling and whirled round and round until the heat of the motion has cooked it.

☞One sanctimonious thief casts discredit upon all who are associated with him in the church and Sunday school, as he does not upon those who are associated with him in business. This is irrational, yet it is right. Hold the church up to the highest standard. —Christian Register.

A YOUNG RUNAWAY.

South Boston Lad Makes His Second Appearance in Quincy.

Thomas Tyner, aged 11 years, the great boy traveller has turned up in Quincy. He was found on the street at 1 o'clock Wednesday morning by an officer, and was given a lodging at the police station. This morning he was taken into the juvenile court.

The boy not only has a wide reputation as a traveller but for telling things that are not the truth. His home is at 46 Ward street, South Boston, but he prefers to wander about from place to place, rather than remain at home.

He has been picked up in Brockton, Attleboro and numerous other places by the police whose hearts have been touched by his story, as told by himself, and fed him with candy, sweets and good things to eat.

They have carted the boy to his home only to find out that running away and tramping about the country was chronic with him. This is not the first time he has been in Quincy. He was here sometime ago and Chief Hayden drove all over Quincy with him trying to find an aunt, whom the boy said his mother wanted to come into his home as she was sick. No aunt was found and it later developed that the boy had no mother and his father cannot do anything with him.

The police did not bother to take the boy back this morning as his father, who was notified by telephone, did not take enough interest to come after him.

They took him to the court and let the State agent look after his case. He decided that the boy should be taken home and delivered to his father.

Birthday Party.

Miss Rose Brown of 8 Mechanic street observed her birthday anniversary Wednesday evening by entertaining a number of friends at her home. During the evening there were vocal solos by William Biganess, Miss Mary Elcock, Miss Mercedes Donovan, Lewis Pendis, and William Burke. Harry McGrath contributed several pleasing recitations, and Miss Annie Walsh and Wilmot McDonald piano solos. Numerous games were enjoyed, and refreshments were served during the evening. Miss Brown received a number of birthday remembrances from her friends.

Station Agent in Court.

Patrick Cain, ticket agent at the West Quincy depot was before the court this morning for assault on William McLaughlin, a small boy. The testimony was that the boys were hanging about the depot and that the agent had driven them out several times. That they would go out one door and come in at another. The agent then took a feather duster and hit the McLaughlin boy over the legs with the stick end of the duster. The court found a technical assault had been made and placed the case on file.

TODAY'S COURT.

William Ellis was arraigned for assault on his wife Catherine, at Quincy. Case continued until next Thursday.

Patrick Cain was arraigned for assault at Quincy. Case placed on file.

Curious Case of Mind Reading.

A very curious case is related in the Annales Psychiques. A child of seven years, in good health, lively and robust, belonging to equally healthy parents, showed a strange facility in learning all that his mother taught him. He recited the whole multiplication table at the first trial, solved instantly complicated problems and made not a single mistake in his first spelling lesson. It was soon realized that the child did not calculate by himself and did not spell of his own accord. He was reading his mother's mind, and he did this even when his eyes were shut and his back turned, provided only that she were near him. One day she had the idea of interposing a screen between her and the child, and there was no more calculation, no more spelling. The screen was sufficient to prevent the child from reading the mother's thoughts.

A Moving Sermon.

"I once had a parishioner who was a miser," said an English clergyman. "For this man's benefit I preached one Sunday a strong sermon on the necessity of charity, of philanthropy—a sermon on the duty and the joy of giving. The miser, at whom I gazed often, seemed impressed.

"Next day I met him on the street.

"'Well, John,' I said, 'what do you think of yesterday's sermon?'

"'It moved me deeply, sir,' he answered. 'It brought home to me so strongly the necessity of giving alms that honestly, sir, I've a great mind to turn beggar.'"

HIAWATHA CLUB

Hold Their Second Annual Banquet at Houghs Neck.

The second public gathering of the Hiawatha club of Quincy was held Wednesday evening at Houghs Neck, when a banquet was served at Nortemans, followed by a dance. The club is not a Swedish one, as generally believed, but includes several of Swedish descent. The membership is not confined to Quincy, there being some members from Boston and elsewhere. The first gathering, a banquet at Hotel Greenleaf, was held about a year ago.

At the banquet this week, Mr. Adolph Sandberg, the president, introduced Mr. Edward May as toastmaster, who made the address of welcome. There was very little other speaking but W. J. Tilley happened in, and was called upon. He enjoyed himself greatly, and had a good word in particular for Edward J. Sandberg, who is a candidate for the Republican nomination for Representative, and was the guest of honor. Landlord Norteman was also introduced and spoke briefly.

The banquet included clam chowder, baked blue fish, salads, cake, coffee, etc.

Akerson's orchestra of four pieces furnished music for the dancing.

THE FIERY DRAGON.

Ancient and Mediæval Descriptions of the Monster.

Dragons were important animals in ancient and mediæval natural history. Until comparatively recent time no scientist ever thought of questioning the existence of this most formidable of beasts. The annals of Winchester for 1177 gravely state that "in this year dragons were seen of many in England." Gesner, professor of natural history at Zurich, gives a detailed description of the dragon, while Aldrovandus, in his "History of Serpents and Dragons," published in 1640, devotes fifty pages to the monster. A good specimen of a dragon would seem to have been a beast about the size of a sheep, incased in a coat of scales which shone like silver. Its back was serrated like a saw. It possessed a long tail, a pair of batlike wings, four heavily clawed feet and a wolvine head, the jaws of which were armed with very formidable teeth. The tongue was barbed with fire, and fury issued from the monster's mouth, and the head bore a crest. Dragons were the most wicked and vindictive of creatures. They seem always to have been in a towering rage and spent the greater portion of their time in rushing up and down the earth destroying everything that came in their path. The origin of dragons was a disputed point among mediæval naturalists. Some maintained that these animals were generated by the heat of India; others were of opinion that the volcanoes of Ethiopia used to belch forth the monsters. One scientist, John Leo by name, declared the dragon to be a hybrid, a cross between an eagle and a wolf.

Temperature and Atmosphere.

That a body can acquire during the night a different temperature from that of the surrounding atmosphere has been demonstrated by an English physicist. If a thermometer is taken from the window, wrapped in cotton and placed on the ground its mercury will descend seven or eight degrees. Vegetables similarly situated, and being bad conductors, may freeze at a time when the thermometer does not mark the freezing point—proof that the cold experienced by the plant may be entirely different from the temperature of the surrounding air. This low temperature of plants, however, only occurs when the night is clear, since at this time the plant sheds its heat throughout space and becomes chilled, whereas if the night is cloudy the phenomenon does not occur. This gives rise to the popular superstition that plants and buds are frozen by moonlight.

GOV. BATES HERE.

Takes Dinner at Squantum Inn With Friends.

Governor Bates and a party of friends had dinner Wednesday at the Squantum Inn, in this city. The party left Boston in three automobiles and after a tour through the Metropolitan park district and the Blue Hills they went to Squantum where dinner was served about 1 o'clock in a private dinning room.

In the party with the Governor were George H. Lowe, Gen. W. W. Blackmar, Prof. Schwamb, Henry M. Gordon, W. M. Frisbee, Private secretary Brown, Thomas F. Reddy, Robert H. Smith, Senator John Quinn, Hon. John S. Maxwell, Daniel McDonald and Rev. Herbert S. Johnson.

MILTON.

Rev. Mr. Hooks of Boston will preach next Sunday at the Mission of Our Saviour church.

Miss Laura Graham has returned from a five weeks' visit to New York.

Schools opened for the fall term this week.

Rev. George Waterhouse of the Baptist church is expected home from Europe Friday. He will go to Maine for two weeks.

The Thursday Evening club has appointed a committee to provide entertainments during the winter.

The Milton sewer pipes are being laid on Granite avenue and Willard street. It has been several years since the main streets in East Milton were free from some trench. First it was the Metropolitan water pipe, then the Metropolitan sewer. Then the Dorchester Gas Light Co. and now the local sewer. What will be the next?

A Marvelous Success.

Our readers have doubtless noted the advertisements of Karo Corn Syrup now running in our colums. It was a novel idea to put up the best table syrup in airtight friction-top cans, and the instant demand for it has been astonishing. Over six and one-half million cans were ordered of the manufacturers in the first ninety days, and the sales are increasing every day. This is but another illustration of the fact that the American housekeeper is quick to recognize real merit. Mrs. Helen Armstrong, the well-known teacher of cookery, has written a booklet of receipts for the use of Karo Corn Syrup in all kinds of cooking and candy making, which will be sent free, when issued, to anyone writing to the Corn Products Company, New York or Chicago. If any of our readers have been unable to find Karo Corn Syrup at the grocer's, it would be well to drop a postal to the Corn Products Company, giving the grocer's name and address.

Flower Supper.

A flower supper followed by a musical was given Wednesday evening at the Wollaston Methodist church. Miss Heath rendered a solo which was well received and the readings of Miss Lee were pleasing. There were also orchestra selections of high standard. The supper tables were beautifully adorned with flowers. Great credit is due Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Durgin for the success of the entertainment.

No Change In Plate Glass Prices

Pittsburg, Sept. 10.—At a meeting of the American Plate Glass Manufacturers' association here the conditions of the plate trade were discussed and owing to the unsettled condition of building operations it was decided to make no changes in prices, allowing the present quotations to stand at least for the next quarter.

A BOY IN SUMMER TIME.

"You bet this is the last time I'm gunna come to visit Aunt Mary, not even if she invites me."—Chicago Tribune.

MODESTY OF THE GREAT.

Gladstone and Darwin Felt Themselves "Ordinary Persons."

In "Studies In Contemporary Biography," by James Bryce, there occur two stories which caused some of the critics to express astonishment at the "modesty of the great." The stories are these:

"Meeting Mr. Gladstone in the lobby and seeing his face saddened by the troubles in Ireland, Mr. Bryce tried to divert his thoughts by mentioning a recent discovery—to wit, that Dante had been saved from want in his last years by a lectureship at Ravenna. Mr. Gladstone's face lit up at once, and he said, 'How strange it is to think that these great souls, whose works are a beacon light to all the generations that have come after them, should have had cares and anxieties to vex them in their daily life just like the rest of us common mortals!'

"The words reminded me," adds the author, "that a few days before I had heard Mr. Darwin, in dwelling upon the pleasure a visit paid by Mr. Gladstone had given him, say, 'And he talked just as if he had been an ordinary person like one of ourselves.' The two men were alike unconscious of their greatness."

It is only the little who think themselves great. They are like those who do not know much and therefore imagine that there is not much to know. The great do not think themselves so, just as the learned are overwhelmed by their ignorance.

Snake In a Street Car.

The snakes with which I have generally associated have mostly been the little chaps, such as the lively two foot garter snake that I had in a Kansas City street car one day. I had picked him up in the suburbs of the city, and before taking the car back to the business section of the town I buttoned him in the inside pocket of my coat. Now, anybody who has ridden over the streets of Kansas City knows that in places it seems as though the cars were climbing up the roof of a barn. When I got on the car it was full, and so I had to grab a strap in order to stand up. Presently a seat became vacant beside me and I sat down. As I did so I glanced up and there was my poor little snake hanging to the strap I had just left. Various other people noticed him at the same time, and the ensuing exhibition would have enabled any person in the car to secure a job as a circus acrobat at a handsome salary. After they had escaped I put the snake back in my pocket. The conductor was a hero and stuck to his post, but he put me off the car and kept my nickel.—W. S. Dunbar in Outing.

No Room For Him.

Several relics of exceptional value and of unusual interest to archæologists were discovered in a small town near Nuremberg, and as soon as the news reached him the director of the Nuremberg Historical museum went to the village and introduced himself to the mayor, saying:

"I am in charge of the museum at Nuremberg, and I'd like to"—

"You're too late, my good sir," interrupted the mayor. "We've already got here several merry go rounds, a bearded woman, a theatrical company composed of apes, a troupe of trained dogs and a band of Hungarian musicians, so you can readily see that we've no room for your museum."

And with these words he nodded to the director and went away.

Nature and Deformity.

Nature is very particular to conceal her deformities, and all that is worthless or ungraceful generally drops off from a tree unless it be an injury to the trunk. From such effects the tree never recovers. Go into the forests and how often we see deformed trees, some bent and twisted, some parted till the original trunk becomes like two, each crossing and recrossing the other. This was done by depression or injury to the tree in its young and tender years. Nature has no power to right a broken law either in the animal or the vegetable organism. Punishment follows, and deformity results.

Childish Amusements In Boston.

"Are you playing horse?" asked the benevolent gentleman who takes an interest in children.

"Certainly not," answered the little Boston boy. "We are amusing ourselves by the assumption that Brother Waldo is an ichthyosaurus and that I am a prehistoric man in pursuit of him."—Washington Star.

One of Them.

"I am sorry to hear your unfortunate nephew has been closed out by the sheriff," said the friend of the family. "Have you any idea what his liabilities are?"

"Yes. I've an idee he's liable to call on me fur help about the fust thing he does," responded Uncle Silas.—Chicago Tribune.

An Equine Puzzle Solved.

"Papa," said small Elmer, "I know why some pistols are called horse pistols."

"Well, my boy, why are they so called?" asked his father.

"Because they kick," replied the little philosopher.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Disappointed.

Aunt Margaret—And if you're good—real good—you'll go to heaven.

Little Dorothy—Oh, is that all? I thought maybe you were going to give me a quarter.—Puck.

Less Expensive.

"He said he'd rather face father than elope."

"And what did you say?"

"I said that father would rather have us elope."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

BURDEN IS FAST SHRINKING

Commissioner Ware Thinks It Will Cease to Be Noticed In Ten Years—He Furnishes Some Interesting Statistics and Makes Recommendations

Washington, Sept. 11.—The annual report of Commissioner of Pensions Ware places the total number of pensioners now on the rolls at 996,545, of which 729,356 are soldiers and 267,189 are widows and dependents. Mr. Ware announces that it is not probable that the pension roll will again cross the million line, the high water mark having been reached a year ago. Five of the pensioners are on the roll on account of the war of the revolution, 1116 on account of the war of 1812, 4754 on account of the Indian wars and 13,874 on account of the Mexican war. The great bulk of the roll is as follows:

Civil war—Invalids, 703,456; widows, 248,390; Spanish war—Invalids, 9200; widows, 3662; Regular establishment—invalids, 9170; widows, 2938. The roll shows a net loss of 2901 pensioners during the year. Out of a total of 304,809 applications on hand during the year 130,169 were admitted and 113,794 rejected. The average annual value of each pension is now $133. The annual value of the Spanish war pension roll has reached $1,765,310.

Commissioner Ware makes the following recommendations: Laws forfeiting pension or right to pension of any man convicted of an infamous crime; prohibiting the giving of pensions to those women why marry soldiers after the soldiers become old pensioners; and a different method of examining applicants for pension, stamping the present system as uncertain, expensive, unsatisfactory and generative of an enormous amount of political friction. Mr. Ware suggests boards constituted of experts under civil service rules which should go from place to place on fixed days, giving examinations and receiving testimony regarding the change of applicants and making reports thereon. He also recommends a law providing for superannuated clerks, vigorously urging some law of retirement and provision.

Mr. Ware says that the brueau has gained upon the current work 100,000 cases during the last two yeafs. An interesting historical analysis of pension figures shows that the actual total of disbursements in pensions on account of the Revolutionary war, war of 1812, Indian wars, Mexican war, Civil war and the war with Spain was $3,638,623,590.

It is estimated that $16,000,000 was paid in pensions for disabilities and deaths due to military and naval service in the wars of 1812 and with Mexico during the time of peace prior to the War of the Rebellion, making the payments of pensions to soldiers and sailors of the War of the Rebellion and of the regular military and naval establishment since the close of that war, and their widows and dependent relatives, amount to $2,862,240,400.

The cost of the pension system per capita of population for 1903 is given as $1.75. The system, according to Commissioner Ware, was the greatest burden to the people of the United States in 1893, since which time it has shrunk from $2.24 to $1.32 per $1000 of taxable wealth, and in 10 years, he says, the burden will cease to be noticed. Mr. Ware estimates that the unpensioned survivors of the Civil war, exclusive of deserters, is in round numbers 200,000, and says that this unknown army is meeting with disease and misfortune to such an extent that it is applying for pensions at the rate of over 14,000 per annum. In 10 years, Mr. Ware predicts, the unknown army will have ceased to be a factor.

Gambled With Stolen Money

Boston, Sept. 11.—Frank G. Christensen, 19 years old, who was arrested on a warrant charging him with the larceny of $1600 worth of mining stock from his employer, was held in $2000 for the grand jury. According to the police version of the story, Christensen bet the money on the races in Providence pool rooms.

Pittsburg, Sept. 11.—Arthur Amiezen, banker, steamship agent and foreign collector and the proprietor of the Slavia Exchange bank, is missing from his place of business, and many of his clients among the Hungarians, Slavs, Poles and Russians are besieging his closed office doors seeking the return of their deposits or assurance of their safety. Amiezen is accused by his depositors of having fled, taking their money with him. The aggregate of these sums, it is believed, will reach $40,000.

Woolen Manufacturer Fails

Boston, Sept. 11.—A petition in bankruptcy was filed here by Joseph H. Louden, a woolen manufacturer. The total liabilities as shown by the schedules amount to $321,963, with nominal assets of $316,717. Mr. Louden has been one of the most prominent of the independent woolen manufacturers in New England, with mills at Monson and Wales, which are shut down.

Didn't Wait For Car to Stop

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 11.—In alighting from a street car Mrs. Skelley, wife of a member of the police force, was thrown violently to the ground, fracturing her skull, from the effects of which she died within an hour. Mrs. Skelley had been carried past the street at which she wished to alight, and stepped from the car while it was in motion.

Perhaps Fatal Family Row

Boston, Sept. 11.—A family row between Joseph J. Dermody and his wife at their home is likely to result fatally to the latter, who is now at a hospital suffering from a rupture of the spleen. She is said to have a small chance of recovery. Dermody was placed under arrest last night on a charge of assault and battery.

STRUCK A WAGON.

Bicycle Rider Seriously Injured on Scammell Road.

John O'Hara of Newcomb place, a student of the Georgetown University, met with a serious accident shortly before noon on Scammell street. O'Hara was riding his bicycle on the sidewalk, going from Quincy avenue to South street.

Just as he reached the corner of Glencoe place a heavy vegetable wagon of the Glen Rose farm turned out of Glencoe place. O'Hara did not have time to jump off his wheel or to steer out from the team and he banged into it head first.

When his head struck the wagon he was thrown off and the wagon wheels passed over him. He was taken up unconscious and carried into the house of Simeon Scammell, and was later taken to his home in Hall's ambulance.

Dr. Jones, who was called, found that he had sustained a concussion of the brain and had received a bad bruise on the right side where the wheel passed over him.

At 2 o'clock he was reported as being in a semi-conscious condition.

New Secretary.

Fine Display of Fruit

Boston, Sept. 11.—The largest and most varied exhibition of fruit ever shown in Massachusetts opened here in connection with the 28th biennial session of the American Pomological society. The exhibition and meetings of this society attracted a large attendance of scientists and amateur and commercial fruit growers from every part of North America and even from far away Hawaii.

Unknown Woman's Sudden Death

Boston, Sept. 11.—Dressed in fine clothes and wearing elegant diamond brooches and other jewelry, an unknown woman was found suffering from a sudden illness in the South Terminal and was removed to a hospital, where she died a few hours later. Her appearance indicated that she was a woman of wealth and refinement, but thus far her identity has not been established.

Silk Dresses From Wood Pulp.

A report from the consul at Stettin seems to indicate that wooden dresses and stockings and other articles may soon become a feature of the feminine attire, for the consul writes that a British firm is now erecting at Sydowsau, near Stettin, a factory for the production of artificial silk from wood pulp by a new process. The pulp is treated with chemicals and pressed by hydraulic power through minute tubes into a further chemical bath, after which the finished produce is spun. It can be woven into any desired fabric, and the result is said to be equal to fine silk.

The World's Biggest Barracks.

The new naval barracks at Portsmouth, England, part of which have just been taken over by the admiralty, are to be the largest barracks in the world. Hammocks slung from the ceiling have been substituted for beds in the new institution.

YOUNG MAN WINS.

Rev. N. J. Sproul the Choice.

Is a Canadian by Birth.

A Graduate of the Princeton Theological Seminary.

The item in last Saturday's Ledger concerning the Water Street Presbyterian church was slightly inaccurate in that it omitted to mention the Rev. W. H. Stone as one of the candidates for pastor. A congregational meeting was held Thursday evening for the purpose of deciding which of the four candidates to call. The choice fell upon the Rev. N. J. Sproul, who received over seventy of the eighty-five votes cast on the first ballot. On motion, his election was then made unanimous.

Mr. Sproul, to whom a call will soon be issued, is a Canadian by birth, a graduate of Queens University and of the Princeton theological seminary. He is 35 years of age, married, and has three children. As was observed in the Ledger at the time of his candidacy, he is a man of pleasing appearance and has a facinating style of preaching.

Mr. John C. Scott died at his residence on Totman street Thursday after a brief illness, aged 54 years. Mr. Scott was born in Scotland, but came to Quincy a number of years ago. He learned the trade of a stone cutter, which he has always followed.

For some years he has been associated in business with John N. Kelley, under the firm name of the Manet Granite Co. Their place was on Centre street. He was a member of Clan McGregor, O. S. C., and leaves a widow and two children.

The committee voted to recommend a new 15 and also a 21-foot restricted class and a 30-foot rating class and to retain classes D, E and I.

Good Afternoon.

British humorists are describing Sir Thomas Lipton as "the last of the vikings and the first of the tea kings."

Twenty-eight years ago today (Sept. 11,1875) the Selectmen of Quincy offered a reward of $1000 for the apprehension of incendiaries.

That Wollaston is a newly settled place is evident from the fact that 33 years ago today (Sept. 11, 1875) the Union society of Wollaston held its first service. It is as attractive as it is young.

The little town of Calais, Maine, with a population of 7,655 will have a lot for a post office to cost $11,875. This is the same price as paid in Quincy, but this city is three times larger than Calais, and growing much more rapidly. The bids for the new government building at Holyoke ranged from $81,500 to $110,680. Holyoke has a population of 45,712.

It is surprising that the Quincy business men are backward in setting up in business the Boston reporter who thinks he knows just how a newspaper should be run, but is without funds. It would be a glorious chance to sink an $100 or $200. It costs money to establish a newspaper; not less than $10,000 to $20,000 in Quincy, and more would be better. Why not try the same scheme on something less expensive. For example, set a man up in the grocery business and take your money out in groceries; set another up in the dry goods business and take it out in dry goods; another as a druggist and take it out in drugs. Whether it is a druggist or a newspaper, one is pretty sure to get a good dose.

It is pleasing to note that the merchants of Quincy are friendly to the Ledger and Patriot. The publishers will give the citizens of Quincy just as good papers as they will support, and will not require cash in advance for advertising.

Drift of Opinion.

The practical joker is usually a coward and a fool, and the one sided "jokes" which he perpetrates at the expense of others often have a tragic ending. The fraternity has no member more worthy of contempt and severe punishment than the joker who a few days ago spread the news of the death of one of his intimate friends. The news reached the man's home, a little town in Virginia, and before the fact became known that "it was all a joke" the man's wife became seriously ill in consequence of the shock. People who knowing the facts, continue to associate with this joker deserve to become his victims.—New York Tribune.

Recovery of Jennings' Body

Rockland, Me., Sept. 11.—The body of Edward Jennings, the lobster fisherman, who has been missing since Aug. 20, was recovered by Warren Montgomery, who has been tending Jennings' pots since his disappearance. The body rose to the surface within easy reach of Montgomery. Deputy Sheriff Thurlow and Coroner Spofford took charge of the remains and they will conduct an inquest. It could not be ascertained from the officials whether the body bore evidences of foul play.

Dull Times at Danielson

Danielson, Conn., Sept. 11.—About 1200 employes of the cotton mills in this vicinity will soon be idle. A notice has been posted in the Quinnebaug cotton mills notifying the employes that the mills will be closed for two weeks. The Danielson Cotton company has been only producing about half of its capacity and there is little work for the employes. The mills of the Attawaugan company have been idle for a week and there is little prospect of their being reopened in the near future.

Burglars Enter Two Homes

Kingston, Mass., Sept. 11.—Bessie Cushman, 17 years old, was awakened just before daybreak by the presence in her room of three men who were engaged in rifling a chiffonier. The girl screamed with fright when one of the intruders fired a revolver point blank at the bed. The bullet grazed Miss Cushman's face and imbedded itself in the head board. The burglars made a hasty exit and escaped. The home of Daniel Bisbee was visited an hour earlier.

ANXIOUS TO GET STERN

State Department Moves For Extradition of the Contractor

Norfolk, Sept. 11.—With two long, deep furrows extending along the port and starboard sides of her underbody and a powerful stream of water gushing from a crushed plate beneath her engine room, cruiser Olympia is resting in the wood dry dock of the Norfolk navy yard.

The work of docking the vessel was a delicate task, owing to the injuries the ship sustained when she ran upon a ledge of rock off the harbor of Portland, Me., during the recent naval maneuvers, but it was accomplished safely and for the first time since the accident the damage has been wholly seen. Along the starboard side of the Olympia's bottom, for a distance of 96 feet, or from frame 22 to frame 48, there extends an indentation 2½ inches deep. On the port bottom, from frame 21 to frame 45, a distance of 45 feet, the plates are dented to a depth of 5½ inches and many are buckled.

New plates probably will have to be placed all along the damaged part of the Olympia on both sides of her bottom.

Great Britain Swept by Gale

London, Sept. 11.—A terrific gale has sprung up all over the United Kingdom. Within 10 hours the barometer fell one inch, the wind blew at a force of 70 miles an hour and torrential rains fell. All the telegraph system was disorganized for several hours and communication with Ireland and the United States was interrupted. Enormous damage has been done to property in the interior and along the sea front. Hundreds of vessels are running to shelter and it is feared that there will be serious casualties. Heavy floods are reported from Wales and snow is falling on the Grampian hills in Scotland.

Not a Pleasnt Place to Work In

Gem, Ida., Sept. 11.—All the miners employed at the Frisco mine, one of the leading producers of the Coeur d'Alene district, have walked out and the mine is closed. The reason given by the men is that they are afraid to work in the mine. The men say some peculiar force keeps up a continual bombardment, hurling rocks from slope to drift. Some of the explosions are heard and felt in town and are taken by many for earthquakes. Mining engineers say the explosions are caused by cracking rock and that there is no danger.

Squandered Fortune, Wants Divorce

Berlin, Sept. 11.—The Berlin court before which the suit for divorce was brought some time ago by Count Minotti against Agnes Sorma, the noted German actress, ordered, pending the hearing of the case, that the count shall have the custody of his 12-year-old son and has forbidden the mother to see the boy. Agnes Sorma was wealthy when she married Minotti, but it is alleged that he lost most of her fortune by gambling. It is said her health is so seriously impaired that she will never return to the stage.

THE NATION'S PROBLEMS

Outlined In a Speech by Senator Hoar at a Political Outing

Salem, Mass., Sept. 11.—As the first meeting of one of the county clubs which are so strong a factor in the Massachusetts Republican organization, the Essex club's annual outing on Baker's island was, in a way, the opening gun of the fall campaign. Senator Hoar was the principal speaker, though Ambassador Meyer, General Champlin and Mayor Peterson of Salem were also invited guests.

Senator Hoar eulogized Governor Bates; spoke of reciprocity with Canada, which he favored only under certain conditions and in limited quantities; protection, which he favored as against free trade, holding that the country has at all times been prosperous under a protective tariff and the reverse under an approach to free trade; immigration, in regulating which he believed in letting foreigners of self-supporting abilities come in, and after they are in, making good Americans of them; on the negro question, in which he held that the course now being pursued in the south in disfranchising the blacks, to say nothing of lynching them, was exactly the thing which ought not to be done, declaring that the education of the negro was his and our only salvation.

Farmers to Raise Price of Milk

Boston, Sept. 11.—That farmers are decided to ask for and obtain a higher price for milk in the Boston market was made evident at a conference held here under the auspices of the New England Milk Producers' union to discuss crop and other conditions of the milk producing business. The consensus of opinion was that the cost of production of milk during the coming winter will be higher than it has been for years, the corn crop being short of growth and of poor quality and other feed costing more than formerly.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

PATIENCE EXHAUSTED

Bulgaria May Soon Depart From Neutral Attitude

THE MASSACRES CONTINUE

Over a Hundred Villages In Macedonia Already Burned—European Tells of Almost Inconceivable Atrocities Perpetrated by Turks

Sofia, Sept. 11.—The continuous reports of wholesale massacres of the Bulgarian population and the destruction of Bulgarian villages in Macedonia are causing considerable excitement here. Premier Petroff is stated to have informed the representatives of the powers in Sofia that neither the government nor the Bulgarian people can witness with indifference the annhilation of the Bulgarian element in Macedonia and the devastation of the country, and unless the powers can find some means of restraining Turkey's terrible repressive measures Bulgaria will be forced to depart from her present attitude of strict neutrality.

While the premier's intimation was conveyed in the course of informal conversation with the diplomats in Sofia, and in no sense intended as an official communication, it may be regarded as an indication that the patience of the Bulgarian people is becoming exhausted.

Every day brings news of fresh massacres and outrages in Macedonia. The revolutionary organizations publish elaborate statistics giving the names of 111 villages burned by the Turkish soldiery, the number of houses in each, the date of the incendiarism and particulars of the number of persons murdered in each case.

Official reports arriving here are suspiciously reticent, but no doubt exists regarding the terrible barbarities practiced by the Turkish regulars and Bashi-Bazouks on helpless women and children in Macedonia.

Many wounded Turks are arriving at Monastir, filling the hospitals. The population in the district of Veles are reported to be in a terrible condition. Nearly all their villages have been plundered and destroyed. The old men, women and children are brutally flogged by the soldiers and many were killed, the Bashi-Bazouks leaving the bodies unburied.

A European merchant who left Monastir Sept. 8 has arrived at Sofia and has given an account of the terrible conditions prevailing in the vilayet of Monastir. He says Hilmi Pasha's administration has greatly disappointed the Christians, who expected that he would make an improvement in the situation. Hilmi Pasha, however, is following the lines of his predecessors, and the greatest excesses that have been committed have happened since his arrival.

Throughout the vilayet of Monastir the Turkish soldiers are daily perpetrating almost inconceivable atrocities. They dishonor the young girls in the presence of their parents and pillage and murder everywhere. Even funeral processions are halted and the corpses stripped of the new clothes in which they are dressed, according to the Macedonian burial custom. The priests' vestments are seized and the soldiers sell all their plunder openly, the officers apparently consenting.

The informant says the Christian inhabitants are terror-stricken, hourly fearing a general massacre by the Mussulmans, whose fanatical hatred of the Christians has reached the highest point. The shops are closed in Monastir, business is suspended and the streets are deserted.

Even the consuls do not dare to venture outside their homes. The country people are afraid to come to the city lest they should be robbed and murdered on the way. Europeans desiring to see the burned villages are prevented by the authorities on various excuses. The British consul wanted to go to Smilevo, but Hilmi Pasha informed him that he could not guarantee his safety, as the revolutionists had plotted to kill him.

The informant continues that it is estimated that there are over 70,000 people in the fields without shelter and starving. Hilmi Pasha has promised that he will assist the destitute people, but he has done nothing, even refusing to allow them to enter the town and beg for food.

Many cruelties perpetrated by Christians are attributed to Greek spies, headed by a Greek bishop, who, with the Greek consuls, it is said, are paid by the porte for their services. The Greeks are accused of inventing reports for the purpose of fanning the Mussulman's hatred of the Bulgarians.

The Turkish functionaries openly scoff at the idea of reforms or European intervention, declaring that should armed European forces come the Turks would immediately burn, destroy and massacre, leaving only bare fields throughout Macedonia.

Officers' Heads Brought In

Saloulca, Sept. 11.—In the recent fight at Gaadetz among the insurgent dead were eight Bulgarian officers whose heads have been brought to Demir-Kapou.

Chekib Has No New Advices

Washington, Sept. 11.—Chekib Bey, the Turkish minister, called at the state department and spent some time in conference with Acting Secretary Adee. He brought no advices from Constantinople or Beirut. He was diplomatically advised of the efforts which Mr. Leishman is making with tother foreign envoys to obtain the removal of the governor of Beirut, but was not requested to take up this matter with his government.

Beirut Recovering From Scare

Washington, Sept. 11.—Minister Leishman has transmitted to the state department a communication from Consul Ravndal at Beirut, in which the latter said that the situation there was quieter. Many shops, he said, were still closed, but the people were getting over the scare of Sunday. The text of the dispatch was not made public.

German Jackies For Beirut

Berlin, Sept. 11.—The Tageblatt says the German training ship Moltke, with 400 men on board, has left Lisbon for Piraeus, Greece, and adds that she will go from there to Beirut.

DAMAGE TO OLYMPIA

Found to Be Much Greater Than Was Generally Supposed

Washington, Sept. 11.—This government has instituted proceedings for the extradition of Leopold J. Stern, the Baltimore contractor, who disappeared when indicted by the grand jury in this city for conspiracy in a postal contract and who was located recently at Toronto. Postoffice Inspector Mater of Chicago left here last night for Toronto, where he will confer immediately with the crown's attorney and the American consul there. The state department also telegraphed the consul to request the authorities at Toronto to hold Stern under the provision in the extradition treaty between the United States and Great Britain that a fugitive can be held by either country at the instance of the other for 40 days.

Despite the expectations of the postal authorities, no arrests of the indicted parties were reported yesterday. Mr. Bristow says that all six of the persons named in the seven indictments will have to be arrested, regardless of any previous arrests on other indictments.

An Oyster Bay Tangle

New York, Sept. 11.—W. E. Roosevelt, a cousin and neighbor of President Roosevelt, is seeking a restraining order to prevent the highway commissioners of the town of Oyster Bay from interfering with his wharf at Oyster Bay, near Cove Neck, which, he claims, is also used by the president, his family and his guests. The applicant's property adjoins that of the president. The wharf, it is claimed by the commissioners, interferes with the use of a highway along the shore. Justice Herrick reserved decision.

Slaughter of Game In Maine

Augusta, Me., Sept. 11.—Wholesale illegal killing of game in that section is shown in a report just received by Chairman Carleton of the fish and game commission from Wardens Woodward and Bartlett, whom he sent up to patrol the Canadian border and St. Johns river waters. In one place, alone, these wardens found where at least 26 moose were killed. They also found a lot of beaver houses and dams, but the beaver had all been killed.

Surveyor General Bounced

Washington, Sept. 11.—Hugh H. Price, surveyor general of Arizona, has been removed from office as a result of an investigation into charges preferred against Price and his chief clerk, W. E. Murphey, of receiving illegal fees for expediting work in the office. Frank Singalls has been appointed surveyor general in Price's place. Murphey has been suspended. He has sent in his resignation, but it has not been accepted.

Commandant Won't Give Up Soldier

Pittsburg, Sept. 11.—William Crowley was shot and seriously injured by a soldier at the United States arsenal, while Crowley and several others were detected, it is said, stealing copper from the roof of the barracks. The others escaped. The police authorities demanded the arrest of the soldier, but the commandant barred the gates and refused to surrender the man.

Important Medical Discovery

Berlin, Sept. 11.—Dr. Neufeld of Koch's institute, writing to a medical weekly, reports that successful experiments have been made to produce immunity in animals against tuberculosis by injecting into the blood vessels of mules, goats and cattle living bacilli from human beings. He has been unable, however, to produce the same effects with dead cultures.

HOUGHS NECK FIRE.

Hydrant Stream Necessary to Put Out Blaze on Bell Street.

The Houghs Neck fire department was called out Thursday for a fire in the cottage of A. H. Taber on Bell street. Neighbors also rushed to the scene, and the fire was soon out, although damage to the amount of $25 had been done. Mrs. Taber had a narrow escape from being severely burned.

The fire was caused by some drops of gasolene falling into a lighted oil lamp. Near the gasolene stove was a one-burner oil stove. This had been in use, and Mrs. Taber supposed that she had extinguished it, as there was no blaze to be seen. There was a small spark, however, in one corner of the wick.

She attempted to fill the gasolene stove and was pouring the gasolene from a can into the stove when it spattered, and some of the drops went into the oil stove and took fire. The fire was communicated to the can, and in an instance it was all ablaze.

Mrs. Taber held onto the burning can for a minute, screaming for help. Then she dropped it and the burning fluid ran over the floor. By this time neighbors arrived, and with the assistance of a hydrant stream extinguished the blaze. Mrs. Taber's hands were burned somewhat but not seriously.

Three Deliveries.

Editors of the Ledger:

The mail question again arises in Atlantic. It was many years before free delivery was enjoyed by the residents of Ward Six, and now that they have that much, they see no reason why Quincy and Wollaston should have three deliveries a day and Atlantic have two. Aside from the fact that the evening mail is not delivered until past six in some parts of the town, it is unfair to the mail carrier, whose hours are extended far into the dark.

Wollaston agitated this question until three mails were delivered each day, and Atlantic means to do so too. What is the use of three mails a day if not three deliveries? Where are Ward Six's councilmen? Will they let their ward content itself with half of a good thing? Atlantic must have three deliveries a day, and it cannot have them any too soon. Post.

Investigating Riley's Death

Philadelphia, Sept. 11.—All those who were arrested in connection with the death of Pugilist Riley were last evening discharged from custody with the exception of "Grif" Jones, who was Riley's opponent in the bout. He will be detained in jail awaiting the action of the coroner. A coroner's physician made an autopsy on the body of Riley, but he will not disclose the cause of death until the inquest is held.

Railroad Men's Many Complaints

Baltimore, Sept. 11.—The conference between the grievance committee of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad employes and the company officials continued until late last evening. It was announced that satisfactory progress had been made in the consideration of the 140 demands made by the employes and that it will probably require a week to go over all the complaints.

Automobile Was Unmanageable

Tuxedo Park, N. Y., Sept. 11.—Dr. Edward C. Rushmore and Miss Cornelia Herrick, his niece, were going up a steep incline in an automobile when the power gave out and the brake would not work. The machine rushed backwards down the hill, going down a 60-foot embankment on the mountain side. Miss Herrick was instantly killed. Dr. Rushmore is in a critical condition.

Yellow Jack In Yucatan

Merida, Yucatan, Sept. 11.—According to official statements from the Yucatan government there were 128 cases of yellow fever in this city during August, of which 50 proved fatal. In Progresso, during the same period, there were nine cases but no deaths.

Mrs. E. Fullerton of Boston is visiting her mother Mrs. Davis of Billings street.

Prizes amounting to over $100 are offered in the open race of the Quincy Yacht club tomorrow.

The three blows sounded on the fire alarm at 2.20 this morning were caused by a cross of the wires.

THE SHIRT WAIST STORE.

The Fourth [illegible] Subscribed [illegible]pose.

The third death in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Eliphalet L. Beal within two months took place Thursday evening, when their year-old baby passed away. To lose three children in so short a time is a sad blow.

The Daily Ledger desires to make items of all Quincy young men and young ladies entering colleges, universities and normal schools this month. Please keep us posted.

The extremes of September noon temperature in Quincy for eight years have been 92 and 52. Those last year were 91 and 62. Thus far this month the extremes have been 85 and 63.

The grounds about the Wollaston school are especially attractive this year. The brilliant coloring of the coleus and the profusion of red geraniums produce a pleasing effect on the passers by.

Quincy officers have been busy before the grand jury at Dedham all this week. Quincy had nine cases and there were nineteen from the East Norfolk district. The grand jury will probably report Saturday.

Miss Agnes Dean entertained about twenty five young people at her home on Franklin street Thursday evening. The affair was in honor of the Oakley quartette of Dorchester who rendered some very pleasing selections.

Quite a number of the local grocers and provision dealers, members of the the Old Colony Grocers and Provision Dealers' Association, attended the dinner at the Nantasket Point Hotel Wednesday evening. President Arthur F. Faunce presided. A business meeting was held, followed by a social hour.

TODAY'S COURT.

John Dillon, A. Monti and D. Rockett were fined $3 each for drunkenness.

—It was a belief among the Egyptians that the third finger of the left hand was connected with the heart by means of a slender nerve. From that belief came the custom of wearing the wedding ring on that finger.

—The best quality of Chinese tea is very expensive and so little of it is grown that there is never any of it to import. The Chinaman knows good tea and keeps it for his own consumption.

—Chinese mandarians carry their own chopsticks to a feast, wipe them carefully at the close of the feast, and carry them home again. They are of ivory, and usually silver-tipped.

PROSPERITY IN SOUTH

Creates a New Phase In the Negro Problem

COTTON PICKERS WANTED

Large Increase In Public Work and Rapid Strides In Manufactures Taking Labor From Plantations to More Remunerative and Pleasant Work

Memphis, Sept. 11.—It is clearly recognized throughout the south that if the cotton crop turns out to be large it will be next to impossible to gather it all, owing to the scarcity of labor and the lateness of the opening of the season. The labor famine has already begun to reach the acute stage in various portions of the south, although the cotton season has hardly opened, the amount so far picked not being 10 percent of that gathered at the corresponding time last year.

From all parts of the south the cry of more negroes is heard. Labor agents will begin operations soon, although practically all southern states have rigid laws against enticing labor from one section to another. There is scarcely a county in the whole cotton belt which has enough labor to gather the crop as rapidly as it opens. Most strenuous efforts, mostly vain, are being made to recruit the forces of pickers, and most tempting inducement is held out in the shape of wages.

The cause of the scarcity is the large increase in public work in progress and the rapid strides in manufactures. Not long ago negroes had no source of income except work on plantations, but now they are leaving the farms for other work which is more remunerative and pleasant. The males are the ones who usually secure public work, and when they succeed in making good wages the women and children at home, who once did the bulk of the cotton gathering, refuse to work because they have enough to live on without labor.

To strengthen their hold on their employes, factories, railroad contractors, logging camps and all sorts of employers are advancing wages, and ablebodied, industrious negroes find their muscle commanding a larger premium than ever before. Common day labor in all portions of Tennessee, Mississippi and Arkansas is 25 cents a day higher than a year ago, and the tendency is still upward. The average day wage is $1.50. In some cases, in addition to advance in wages, hours have been shortened. Negroes realize that wages on public works are higher than on farms and that this work lasts throughout the year, while farm work is available only at special seasons.

The country press of Louisiana is now filled with advertisements of planters and contractors who are trying to entice laborers from Mississippi and other southern states, while the large planters of Mississippi are seriously discussing the matter of bringing in Italian laborers from the cities of the north, notwithstanding that this class of labor has never proven satisfactory in farm work.

A prominent planter here, in discussing the labor situation, said: "If this crop is 11,000,000 bales or over it will never be gathered. We are starting at least a month later than last year, and this means that if the crop is large about half of it will have to be gathered during cold weather. Negroes are about the only help we can rely upon and a negro cannot stand much cold weather. He can stand the hottest day that ever visited the south better than a light frost. Cold weather seems to strike through to the bone and paralyze every energy, and I feel confident that, with a large yield, a big portion of it will be left in the fields ungathered."

Made Nothing by Striking

New York, Sept. 11.—The first break in the strike of the machinists in the shipyards occurred when the Morgan Iron works, known as the Roach yards, announced that it will take back some of the men who have been on strike since June. The men will go back at the former wages and on the same conditions which prevailed prior to the strike.

A $40,000 Tobacco Smoker

Hartford, Sept. 11.—The large tobacco warehouse on the plantation of the Connecticut Valley Tobacco corporation at Poquonock, containing the entire 1902 crop of shade grown Sumatra tobacco, was destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at $40,000. The fire was probably of incendiary origin.

Negro Colony In New Mexico

Santa Fe, N. M., Sept. 11.—The Blackdom Townsite company has been incorporated here with a capital stock of $10,000. The purpose of the company is to establish a colony of negroes from the southern states in Chavez county. The name of the town will be Blackdom.

Reward For Sheriff McCord

Cynthiana, Ky., Sept. 11.—Judge Osborne has certified to the state treasurer that Sheriff McCord of Clark county is entitled to the reward of $500 offered for the arrest and conviction of the assassin of J. B. Marcum. Sheriff McCord arrested Curtis Jett.

Sought Relief In Death

Springfield, Mass., Sept. 11.—Kyran Kervick, a stone cutter of this city, committed suicide by cutting his throat with a dressing chisel. Despondency, causing temporary aberration, was the cause of the deed. He had lived for 32 years with an insane wife.

WOULD ECONOMIZE.

No Great Need of a Concrete Sidewalk at Quincy Point.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

The Ledger is right in its comments on the order calling for an appropriation of $1000 for a sidewalk around the Washington school lot. There is already a concrete walk on the Washington street front, and no particular demand for one on the Town river front. One on Washington street from South street to the bridge, or on South street from Washington to Howard would be appreciated by more people.

But Quincy Point seems to be getting the lion's share of the special appropriations of late with its Chubbuck street widening, sewer extensions, new schoolhouse, etc., etc.

More people walk on Coddington street in a day, than on Curtis avenue in a week, yet a concrete sidewalk has never been built on Coddington street.

But here is a chance to economize and save $1,000. At best the appropriation can be postponed a few years, and interest saved. G. R.

Navy Work.

A Washington dispatch says: Abolishment of the bureau of equipment of the navy department and consolidation of its work under the bureaus of navigation and construction and repair, is the radical change proposed in a plan which has been submitted to Secretary Moody for approval and which it is believed will meet the ideas of the secretary.

The electrical work now in charge of the bureau of equipment, including wireless telegraphy will be transferred to the bureau of construction and repair which in reality has under its control a large part of the electrical work on ships under the present arrangement.

To the bureau of navigation will be transferred all matters relating to the purchase and storing of coal and the location of coaling stations.

Light and Heat and Eyes.

Looking into the fire is very injurious to the eye, particularly a coal fire. The stimulus of light and heat united soon destroys the eyes. Looking at molten iron will soon destroy the sight. Reading in the twilight is injurious to the eyes, as they are obliged to make great exertion. Reading or sewing with a side light injures the eyes, as both eyes should be exposed to an equal force of light. Those who wish to preserve their sight should preserve their general health by correct habits of living and give their eyes just work enough, with a due degree of light.

Inconsiderate Fellow.

"He said he'd die if I didn't marry him."

"And still you refused?"

"Yes. I wished to find out before promising whether he really loved me as much as that or not. Oh, Harriet, I'm p-p-perfectly miserable! He seems to be wretchedly healthy, and I d-do love him so much!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Debts In China.

In China one can always borrow money on the strength of having a son, but nobody would advance him a cent if he had a dozen daughters. The former is responsible for the debts of his father for three generations. The latter is only responsible for the debts of her own husband.

Liverpool, generally called a wet place, has an average rainfall per annum of 34 1-3 inches.

☞When an automobile, going at the rate of a mile a minute, bolts the track, somebody is sure to be hurt. Such a casualty happened at Detroit, on Wednesday. There is no real place of safety when the big autos are flying at 60-second speed and they happen to bolt.—Lynn Item.

Welcome to Pastor.

Rev. Henry Hanson of St. Paul's church was welcomed back by his parishioners Thursday evening. Mr. Hanson was pleased at the hearty welcome, and much surprised when he was presented a goodly sum in an envelope. A bouquet was also presented to Mrs. Hanson.

An enjoyable evening was passed with speeches, singing, refreshments and good fellowship.

HE CAUGHT THE HOUSE.

A Yell of Applause at a Critical Point In a Play.

Edward Harrigan once said that the most trying moment in his theatrical career occurred in New Orleans soon after the civil war. He had gone south with his company and, yielding somewhat to popular request, put on "The Blue and the Gray." The play had been a success up north, but down south, with the air still full of the bitterness of the war, it was a dangerous experiment. Tony Hart was to represent the Confederate gray, so he hunted up a uniform of the Louisiana Tigers, and when he came marching on, young, stalwart, handsome, the typical soldier boy in the beloved uniform, the house, men and women, cheered and shouted and cried for all their heroes embodied in this boy. Harrigan, standing in the wings in his northern blue, waiting to go on, had just one thought —"They'll kill me!" Then he stepped out, the embodiment of the enemy, and a cold, dead silence fell upon the house. Not a hand moved for him. The audience was tense with emotion, and there was only an instant to act if the play was to be saved. Harrigan, big, kindly, good looking, came swiftly down to the front and stepped over the footlight gutter, leaning down to them. "For the love of heaven, won't you give the Yankee a hand?" he exclaimed. At once the house was caught and all the pent up feeling turned the right way. There was a yell of applause.

How the Sculptor Cellini Was Cured.

Benvenuto Cellini, when about to cast his famous statue of Perseus, now in the Loggia del Lanzi at Florence, was taken with a sudden fever. In the midst of his suffering one of his workmen rushed into his sick chamber and exclaimed: "Oh, Benvenuto! Your statue is spoiled, and there is no hope whatever of saving it!" Cellini said that when he heard this he gave a howl and leaped from his bed. Dressing hastily, he rushed to his furnace and found his metal "caked." He ordered dry oak wood and fired the furnace fiercely, working in a rain that was falling, stirred the channels and saved his metal. He continues the story thus: "After all was over I turned to a plate of salad on a bench there and ate with a hearty appetite and drank together with the whole crew. Afterward I retired to my bed, healthy and happy, for it was two hours before morning, and slept as sweetly as if I had never felt a touch of illness." His overpowering idea of saving his statue not only drove the idea of illness from his mind, but also drove away the physical condition and left him well. It was a triumph of mind. —Success.

The clematis is now attracting attention.

THE TOWN OF YAFA.

Famous In History and the Most Interesting Spot In Palestine.

Yafa is a little town that was many times destroyed alike by Jews, Assyrians, Egyptians, Greeks, Romans and Turks. It was to Yafa that Hiram, king of Tyre, sent the cedar wood "in flotes" which from there were taken to Jerusalem for Solomon's temple. Jonah sailed from this little town to Tarshish when fleeing from the face of the Lord. It was in Yafa that the humble Dorcas lived her life of good deeds and upon her dying was raised to life by Peter. To this shore the great Richard Cœur de Lion swam, girded in armor, fighting for Christendom, and won a victory for the crusaders over the Arab. Bonaparte left a memory of his cruelty here by his massacre of several thousand prisoners and the poisoning of some persons afflicted with the plague. Simon the tanner's house, where Peter learned that all nations were acceptable before God, is one of the few sights to be seen in Yafa. In the courtyard there is a large well of spring water, and from the roof of the house a most beautiful view of the surrounding country presents itself. Another site of interest in the tomb of Tabitha, which stands in the garden of the Greek monastery, close to an old fountain, among the orange groves and fruit orchards. Of all towns in Palestine, Yafa is one of the most interesting for its antiquity and its strange mixture of the oriental in its most primitive form with European civilization gradually admitted.

That one whose labor perfects any work
Shall rise from it with eye so worn that he,
Of all men, least can measure the extent
Of what he has accomplished.

SOCIAL REALM.

Miss Florence M. Gray of Botolph street who has been for the past six months in California and Mexico, returned home a few days ago, much benefitted by her trip. It is amusing to hear her tell of riding burrows astride, even women not being allowed to ride side saddle in the Yosemite, on account of the uneven weight making traveling unsafe over the precipitous paths. Her camera was her constant companion and she has brought home many views as reminders of her journey. She managed to secure a rock from the foot of the "Fallen Monarch" in the Yosemite to add to the already notable collection in her father's rockery.

MORE EXPECTED.

But Enrollment This Week Was 5,309.

Less at Some Buildings than Last Year.

Increase of 73 at High School in Three Years.

The increase in school enrollment in the Quincy public schools is probably not as large as expected. All the figures below are for the first week of school and each year were increased the second week.

Only five of the ten grammar buildings show gains over last year, the Adams 15, the Coddington 23, the Massachusetts Fields 4, the Quincy 35, and the Washington 37. The net increase is but 78.

The High school is 36 larger than last year, 31 larger than in 1901, and 73 larger than in 1900.

Here is the enrollment for four years showing an increase of 685 in three years while only one new nine room building has been added:

IN THE PHILIPPINES

CLIMATE NOT DEADLY TO THOSE WHO TAKE CARE OF THEMSELVES.

Many European Merchants and Consular Officers Live In the Hot Islands a Quarter of a Century Without Suffering In Health.

[Special Correspondence.]

Manila, July 15.—In newspapers from the States occasionally one sees denunciation of the dreadful Philippine climate, chiefly from persons who have never been here. But even American army officers and soldiers, usually soldiers, who have seen service in the islands are sometimes quoted as saying that this dreadful climate is not fit for a white man to live in—worse, that actually a white man cannot live in it.

Now, I have been here long enough to give testimony on this and several other points and purpose to put before you some of the facts in the case as known to me.

To begin, my lodging house used to be "befo' the war" a fine old Spanish residence off a main street. On the corner where our street crosses that main street is a house of drinking and eating, especially drinking, kept by a Spaniard. It used to be a famous resort of American soldiers till it was complained of as a nuisance and subdued considerably. Well, American soldiers off duty used to drift to this place and whoop it up nearly all night. What they got to drink there in those days I don't know, I never sampled it, but it had on those who imbibed it an effect apparently similar to that of fusel oil. Those were the early days of the American occupation, before things were orderly and decent, as they are now. The boys were lonely, they were 4,000 miles away from home, all was strange and uncomfortable, with the moist heat and their heavy woolen clothing. They flocked to the Spanish den, only one of hundreds, unfortunately. They drank and they laughed, they drank, and they sang and danced, then they cried and drank some more, then they sometimes yelled like madmen bereft of sense and memory.

They mingled with the natives unrestrained. If the white man has demoralized the native inhabitants of whatever land he enters newly, in course of time the native gets back at the white man with a fearful revenge. The disease and degradation of town inhabiting Filipinos are something that may not be written. The soldier who chooses to throw off all civilized restraint and go to the bad among Malay "niggers" can always find opportunity to do so. The soldier who thus chose did go to the bad, encountered the inevitable consequences and blamed the "climate." War is exactly what General Sherman said it was. Not many of our manly, clean soldiers thus degraded themselves, but even one was too many. At any rate, I have told you the truth. Nothing, not even charity, was ever made to cover such a multitude of sins as this Philippine "climate."

Now for the actual facts concerning it. It is trying to men from cold climates at first, especially during the season of heaviest rains, which come in the summer months. A white man cannot labor in the sun here all day any more than he can on the sugar plantations of Louisiana, although the Japs and Chinese do so with perfect impunity. But the white man does not need to labor in the sun. If he has brains he learns to direct the labors of those who can thus toil and reap for himself a fortune. Nature has here poured out her richest, most fruitful vegetation along all lines.

The white person who will eat sparingly, chiefly of fruits and vegetables who will drink of and bathe abundantly in the water which in most Philippine districts is so plentiful and good, who will dress lightly in linen or cotton and, above all, who will not tamper with the burning, destroying demon alcohol can under ordinary circumstances live in the Philippines in good health.

Proof—the Jesuit fathers, who have been the teachers and scientists in Manila for half a century, live often to a good old age. A Swiss gentleman who embarked in business in Manila more than twenty-five years ago and has reaped the handsome and just reward of his labors enjoys excellent health. There are consular and commercial agents from middle Europe who came here in their youth and have grown up with the country. It is well, however, for a white man to have a furlough once in about four years to brace himself up in a cool climate for several months. When the Philippines are developed, though, mountain resorts will make this unnecessary. Meantime scores of fine young Americans have been here three years and enjoy good health. They take care of themselves.

The insular government is giving serious attention to a proposition to establish an official summering place in the mountains near Manila, to which its employees could be sent when in need of a change of climate. This would answer the same purpose as India's summer capital, Simla.

PROGRESS IN PORTO RICO.

A Disinterested View of Conditions on the Island.

The two principal articles of exportation in Porto Rico, sugar and tobacco, have increased from 27,560,000 francs and 3,161,800 francs in 1901 to 31,975,000 francs and 10,570,000 francs the year following, says L'Economiste Francais. The exports of cigarettes and of leaf tobacco have diminished, but the diminution is of little importance compared with the much higher value of cigars.

The sugar cane plantations with the employment of modern methods are increasing, facilitated as they are by the creation of central factories, one of which has recently been started at Guanica. Notwithstanding the advances made, there still remains much to be done.

Coffee culture is extending rapidly. The product of the present year amounts to 350,000 bags. During the last ten years 3,500 acres have been devoted to orange plantations. They plant about seventy trees to the acre, which yield in five years about 35,000 oranges, which are usually sold at the wharfs at the rate of 5 francs a hundred, and this gives a profit of 1,250 francs to the acre.

Cotton planting is about to be renewed. The exportation of cotton reached 4,000 bales in 1865. About 300,000 acres will soon be set apart for cotton plantations.

Many mining concessions have been granted since the annexation of the island to the United States, but none so far has been worked with energy. Gold, silver, iron, copper and bismuth exist in the island and also immense beds of tin, mercury, lignite, yellow amber and nickel, without speaking of the lead mines.

The construction of railroads is going on rapidly. The entire system, it is expected, will be completed in less than three years. The French line, reorganized under the name of the American Railroad Company of Porto Rico, has obtained a new concession. It is now occupied in finishing the network of railroads in the island. An electric tramway has been started at Ponce. Another line connects Bayamon with San Juan, and it will soon be linked to a steamboat line to Ponce.

A NEW CONDIMENT.

An Expert Describes the "Wasabi," a Japanese Horse Radish.

Epicures who whet their appetites with specially prepared dishes may soon indulge in a new appetizer, for the agricultural department experts believe they have something good in store for them, writes the Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Press. This vegetable is known in Japan as wasabi and resembles the horse radish in the United States, although it is said to be quite a different thing.

Mr. David G. Fairchild, explorer for the agricultural department, who has recently returned from a trip in many quarters of the world in pursuit of choice edibles and other food products that may be adapted to cultivation in the United States, has brought back with him a few of the wasabi plants. They will be propagated and tested in the trial gardens at the department grounds.

"To any one fond of such things," said Mr. Fairchild recently, "this Japanese horse radish will prove an acceptable novelty, for there is a fresh sharpness about this appetizer that not even the finest Austrian sorts of horse radish possess.

"In Japan grated wasabi is a constant accompaniment of the raw fish which forms such a prominent part of a Japanese meal. Without it the fish would taste as unnatural to a diner as Blue Point oysters on the half shell without horse radish would taste to the average American. Wasabi is, in fact, universally used in the inns and tea houses of that country.

"A vegetable which has become to the Japanese what horse radish is to the occidentals can hardly fail to attract the attention of those Americans who are seeking new and appetizing relishes."

Snails as "Wild Animals."

"Wild animals" was the classification under which a bushel of snails, imported from Italy by a Louisville (Ky.) fruit dealer, had to pay duty in the custom house there, says the New York Times. The snails came with a big shipment of lemons and were in a closed bucket. When the customs officials found they were intended for the Louisville dealer's table they concluded that duty was necessary, but they were at a loss under what head to put them. The customs rules makes no mention of snails as food, ornaments, pets or for breeding purposes, so the officials tried snakes without any success. The Louisville man said he was willing to pay duty on them as wild animals, so the customs officials let them go at that.

Brave Alfonso.

King Alfonso had a little adventure, rather unusual with sovereigns, the other day. His majesty was walking in the Prado when a bullock broke from a herd that was being driven and, tearing away at full gallop, showed every disposition to use its horns among the pedestrians and equipages. There was a regular stampede, but the king showed his spirit and, drawing a revolver, brought the beast down with two or three swiftly delivered shots.

Blind Fish Now See.

In a cave in Silesia a pool was filled with sightless fish. About a year ago the place was utilized as a store, when the electric light was installed. Since then many of the fish have actually developed normal looking optics. Formerly when the cave was pitch dark the eyes of the creatures were covered with a thick film.

ON BULGARIAN BORDER

Turkish Soldiers Continue the Work of Massacre

FUGITIVES INTERCEPTED

Eighty Families Literally Cut to Pieces Within a Few Days—Greeks Aiding Bulgarians Against Turkey—France Orders Warships to Prepare For Trip to the Levant

Sofia, Sept. 12.—The revolutionary headquarters here has received from Burgas news of fearful atrocities committed by the Turkish Albanian soldiers in the vilayet of Adrianople. A squadron of Turkish cavalry which has been operating near the Bulgarian frontier intercepted and slaughtered fugitives attempting to cross into Bulgaria. Sixty Bulgarians were killed within three kilometres of the frontier. The whole district of Losengrad is filled with Albanian troops, who are burning villages and massacreing the inhabitants. Eighty families fleeing from various villages towards the frontier have been literally cut to pieces by Turkish soldiers during the last few days. Hundreds of old men, women and children of the district of Losengrad have crossed the frontier.

A large body of infantry and cavalry, with three mountain batteries, attacked an insurgent band in the mountains above Vasiliko. The insurgents awaited the near approach of the troops and then hurled bombs at them. After two hours' fighting the Turks were forced to retire with the loss of 20 men killed and many wounded. The losses of the insurgent force were slight.

The first indication of the Greeks aiding the Bulgarians against Turkey appears in a circular addressed by the general staff of the Eighth revolutionary district to the Greek towns and villages in the vilayet of Adrianople. It expressed pleasure at hearing that the Greeks desire to join the Bulgarian brethren in the fight for liberty and invites the Greeks to send delegates to formulate plans for joint action.

The mixed population of Greeks and Bulgarians in 15 villages of the district of Kostur have joined the insurrection.

France Will Look After Her Subjects

Paris, Sept. 12.—The orders to have a naval division ready to sail for the Levant are the result of the recommendations of the French ambassador at Constantinople to have a strong force in readiness. The foreign office is without further information from Beirut and concludes that the crisis has passed. But the official report that it is possible that the Mussulmans may attack the Christian population of Constantinople hastened the issuance of the order. A number of the officers and men being on leave of absence the ships of the division preparing to sail have secured full complements by drafting from other ships. It is semi-officially stated that the French naval division will also operate at Salonica and other points, for the protection of French residents in Macedonia.

What London Hears

London, Sept. 12.—The powers are evidently still exerting pressure both at Constantinople and Sofia to avert a Turco-Bulgarian war, apparently with some temporary success; but meantime an increasingly terrible tale of atrocities committed in Macedonia shows that the situation is daily becoming aggravated. The news that a French squadron is going to the Levant is also considered ominous, and this step by the French government will probably be followed by similar action on the part of the other powers.

The Turkish embassy in London in its denial, issued daily, of Turkish atrocities, declares it to be "absolutely false that Ottoman troops are burning villages, the truth being that it is the Bulgarians, who, at the approach of the troops, use explosives to burn the villages before leaving them and then accuse the Turkish troops of such abominable deeds."

Period of Calm at Beirut

Constantinople, Sept. 12.—Telegrams from Beirut state that calm continues there, but that many shops are closed. Nazim Pasha is acting with energy and has made many arrests and has expelled a score of suspected persons. Minister Leishman's demand for the dismissal of Reshid Pasha, the vali of Beirut, was supported by the British, French and Italian ambassadors and, owing to Reshid's powerful influence at the yildiz kiosk, it needed much diplomatic pressure, combined with the presence of the American squadron, to secure the acceptance of the demand.

Ferdinand Hidden In Palace

Berlin, Sept. 12.—A dispatch from Sofia says that Prince Ferdinand has not yet returned to the capital and that he is in seclusion at the castle of Euxinograd, all the approaches to the castle being strongly guarded. All the purveyors for the royal establishment, it is added, are searched before entering the castle. It is asserted here that the Bulgarian cabinet is playing on Prince Ferdinand's fears.

Another Trial For Stringham

Washington, Sept. 12.—The torpedo boat Etringham, which has failed to make her contract speed of 30 knots, will have another official trial, and if she falls below 30 knots the contract for her construction will be forfeited and a board of appraisers appointed to determine the amount due the company.

AN ARMED PATROL

Boot and Shoe Workers' Union Protecting Its Members at Lynn

Lynn, Mass., Sept. 12.—An armed mob of 300 men, members of the Boot and Shoe Workers' union, exasperated by the alleged failure of the police to protect their associates employed in the Morse & Logan factory, patrolled the streets in that section late yesterday afternoon, prepared to give battle to any who might attempt to molest them. The police reserves were rushed to the scene and succeeded in preserving order.

As a result of the prompt action of the police there was no general collision between the warring factions. No Boot and Shoe Workers' union men were assaulted on any of the main streets leading from the factory, but after 6 o'clock half a dozen cases of assault were reported from various quarters of the city. In each case a Boot and Shoe Workers' union workman, returning to his home beyond the streets patrolled by his fellows, had been set upon and roughly handled, although in no case was serious injury inflicted.

It is announced openly at the Boot and Shoe Workers' union headquarters that henceforth it will not be safe for any one to molest its members, and that he who does so does it at his peril.

Hotel and Other Buildings Burned

Pascoag, R. I., Sept. 12.—A hotel owned by Eugene Griffith, with the stable adjoining, together with two adjacent buildings, owned by William Hanniver, were burned this morning by a fire that started in the hay loft of the stable, entailing a total loss of about $27,000. In the stable were 11 valuable horses, all of which were burned, as were a lot of carriages and stable fittings. The town has no fire department, depending for protection against fire upon the mills in town.

Old Officers Step Out

Boston, Sept. 12.—Although it was expected that Charles L. Watrous would be re-elected president of the American Pomological society, he declined to serve another term and J. H. Hale of South Glastonbury, Conn., was chosen the head of the notable body of men interested in fruit culture. William A. Taylor of the United States department of agriculture gave up the office of secretary of the society, after several years' service. Professor Craig of Cornell university was elected secretary.

City Must Pay Big Damages

Boston, Sept. 12.—Two suits brought against the city of Boston by the Boston Belting company have just been decided. One is an action for damages caused by the diverting of the waters of Stony brook from its natural course. The other is an action of tort brought by the same company and based upon the same action by the city. In the damage petition the company is awarded from the city $95,694. In the action of tort the city will have to pay $89,991.

Students Indicted For Theft

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 12.—The Middlesex county grand jury found true bills against Guy B. L. Hunt, Floyd E. Rich and Barry C. Eastman, all students, on the charge of breaking and entering the Harvard Co-operative society's store in this city. The indictments allege that the defendants stole $1100 worth of merchandise from the society. There is another indictment for forging and uttering against Rich and Eastman.

Once Rich, but Died In Poorhouse

Winchendon, Mass., Sept. 12.—Horace Whitcomb, the oldest and, at one time, one of the wealthiest residents of Winchendon, died at the town farm, aged 96 years. Several years ago, by saving and successful speculation, Whitcomb amassed a fortune, and once owned many excellent building sites in Winchendon, but later lost all he had. For eight years he had been an inmate of the town farm.

Result of Jennings Inquest

Rockland, Me., Sept. 12.—After an all day's session the coroner's jury at Stonington, which had been considering the case of Edward Jennings, the lobster fisherman, rendered a verdict to the effect that death was due to accident. There was some sensational testimony during the inquest and it is not positively settled that the case is ended with the verdict of the coroner's jury.

Perhaps Fatal Stabbing

Boston, Sept. 12.—A street row in which Martin Coyle, 20 years old, was dangerously, perhaps fatally, stabbed, took place at South Boston last night, and John Marinus is in custody, charged with the assault. A dispute arose from some cause, not yet made clear, when Marinus, it is claimed, gave Coyle a deep stab wound in the bowels.

Mistaken For a Deer

Bennington, Vt., Sept. 12.—Joseph Buprey accidentally shot and killed his guide, Fred Barbour, at Moose pond. Buprey was on a trail near the shore and Barbour was in a canoe paddling toward the land. Buprey heard the splash caused by the oar, and, thinking it was a deer, fired. The bullet entered Barbour's breast.

Two Thirds of Town Burned

North Anson, Me., Sept. 12.—Only 14 buildings were left standing in the village of Eustis, Me., by a fire which consumed more than twice that number. The loss is about $50,000. Eustis is a little settlement in the Rangeley region. The fire started from a defective chimney in the Coburn hotel.

Sentence None Too Heavy

Woodsville, N. H., Sept. 12.—Upon his own confession of guilt Frederick Davis of Lebanon was sentenced in the superior court to 20 years' imprisonment in the state prison for a felonious assault upon his stepdaughter.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

The Foxy Elephant

Once upon a time a great crowd of men went out to catch a number of the big elephants to show them in a circus. The elephants heard that they were coming and they made all haste to get out of the way.

But there was one big fellow who thought that he could deceive the men and decided to try a daring plan. Taking a seat on a large stone at the side of the road, he filled a pipe with tobacco, and was puffing away contentedly when the men came along.

"Isn't that a funny elephant?" said one.

"It certainly is," replied another. "Just see him sitting there smoking his pipe and paying no attention to us at all. I should think that he would be afraid that we would carry him off to the circus."

"It is really strange," another one added.

Then they all sat down and watched the elephant for a little while and talked about what would be the best thing for them to do about him.

"I'll tell you what I think," finally said one of the men; "this elephant is already a circus elephant, and he would not run away from us if he could. The best thing to do is to leave him here and go on after the others. When we have caught them we can come back and get him."

So they all went off to catch the other elephants, and, of course, no sooner had they got out of sight when Mr. Foxy Elephant made tracks for a safe place where they never could get him. —Chicago Tribune.

STRONG IMPROVEMENT

In the Industrial Outlook In Textile Centres

FALL RIVER MILLS TO OPEN

Will Be a Million More Spindles Running Next Week Than Ran This—Situation In Northern New England Considered to Be Most Satisfactory

Boston, Sept. 12.—Despite the continued high selling price of raw cotton in the market and the dullness in manufactured cottons reported by the mercantile agencies, the industrial outlook in the textile centres of New England has distinctly improved since a week ago. Beginning Monday, Fall River will make a net gain of 1,000,000 spindles in operation, with a corresponding increase in hands employed, money put into the pockets of workingmen, and raw material turned into finished product.

More than that, it appears that the season of curtailment is nearing an end in Fall River, and that when the mills that are to be idle next week start up again it will be to run on the normal basis. New Bedford mills are again in receipt of sufficient orders to keep the plants in operation.

These reports from the two cotton centres of southeastern Massachusetts are especially encouraging, since it is from this section that come also the most pessimistic reports.

The northern New England cotton centres seem conndent and contented with their industrial prospects. Lowell has been running full since the strike, and no sign of curtailment is visible. The Nashua mills started this week, with raw cotton enough to carry them over till Dec. 1, when their agents anticipate lower prices. There is no change in the satisfactory situation at Manchester, where the mills have had little trouble. The Hamilton mills at Amesbury have curtailed production to about one-half the normal output; but, on the other hand, two Lewiston mills which have been closed have completed all arrangements to open again the first of next month.

It is true that conditions in the cotton mill business are not yet returned to normal. Cotton is high and cottons are low. By curtailment, voluntary and forced by strikes, the stock of manufactured cottons has been lessened; but the prices of the raw material may be influenced by the reported short and inferior crops in certain sections.

The Fall River Situation

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 12.—One million more cotton spindles will run in Fall River next week than ran this; 9400 more operatives will work; $70,000 more will be paid out in wages; 2400 more bales of cotton will be used; and 126,000 more pieces of cloth will be made. It appears now as if the greater part of the season of curtailment in this city was over, and it is confidently expected that soon the mills will be running steadily, with the exception of those engaged in installing new machinery.

Not all the mills will run next week however. Five corporations, operating seven mills, will stop production. Those involved are the American Linen company, Stafford, Cornell, Luther and Border City No. 1. They operate about 300,000 spindles, as against about 1,300,000 idle this week. The five corporations employ about 2600 operatives who will be idle, as against about 12,000 during the present week.

Of the seven mills which are to shut down next week the Cornell and Stafford cannot start up again until their new boiler plants, now in process of construction, have been completed. This may be in two or three weeks. The Wampanoag mills of late have been doing their curtailing by shutting down alternate weeks. They will commence running steady on Monday. The American linen mills will start up again Sept. 21.

Nashua Mills Well Supplied

Nashua, N. H., Sept. 12.—The outlook for the cotton industry in this city the coming season seems to be very promising. The Nashua Manufacturing company and the Jackson company's mills started up this week, after being shut down for eight days, and are now running in all departments with a full complement of help. Notwithstanding many of the mills in this section are short in their supply of raw cotton, both corporations here are well supplied.

Plenty of Work at Lowell

Lowell, Mass., Sept. 12.—No curtailment in the production of the Lowell cotton mills is apprehended. The mills have been running full time since the strike was called off, and in an interview the agent of one of the largest mills in the city said he knew of no probability of any curtailment, either in hours of labor or number of hands employed.

Mary Operatives Going Back

New Bedford, Mass., Sept. 12.—The cotton situation in this city has been different from that existing elsewhere in the fact that there has been no scarcity of raw material. A number of the mills curtailed production while awaiting orders. These have now begun to come in and many of the operatives who were idle have been taken back.

British Squadron Won't Visit Us

London, Sept. 12.—The British admiralty authorizes a contradiction of the statement that a British squadron will visit the Unied States.

CZAR'S VISIT TO ITALY

Will Be Somewhat Unpleasant If Socialists Carry Out Program

Rome, Sept. 12.—Deputy Ferri, the Socialist leader, in answer to the movement against the announced intention of the Socialists to hiss the czar on his approaching visit to Rome, publishes in Avanti an article in which he quotes a letter from the secretary of the international Socialist bureau at Brussels expressing agreement with the Italian Socialist party in its proposed action against the czar and declaring horror for czarism and its crimes. Deputy Ferri announces that the Socialists have decided on a parliamentary manifestation against the czar, consisting of a proclamation signed by all the members of the extreme left and addressed to the Italian people and the foreign parliaments, in which will be set forth the reasons for the protest against the crimes committed by Russian despotism. There will also be a popular demonstration which, besides public hissing of the czar, will include resolutions by communal councils against the Russian emperor, meetings of protest, the distribution of pamphlets and leaflets and the flying of flags at half mast.

Deputy Ferri represents the most extreme section of the Socialist party. The moderate section, led by Deputy Turati, opposes Ferri's action.

Probable Victim of the Mafia

New York, Sept. 12.—Arcangelo Rainio, formerly connected with the secret service in Italy, was shot dead in the hallway adjoining a saloon. It is suspected that two members of the Mafia committed the murder. He called on Teresa Gianzzo, a beautiful young woman, who lives over the saloon. About an hour later two shots were heard and two men were seen running from the house. Rainio had been shot through the back of the head. The girl disappeared immediately afterwards. An Italian was arrested on suspicion of being concerned in the murder.

Many Casualties From Storm

London, Sept. 12.—While the details of the havoc wrought by the great storm which raged over the British isles are incomplete, the reports show that the devastation was general and it is feared that the loss of life is much greater than was at first supposed. Over 50 serious casualties to shipping is reported. All sorts of vessels were caught in the gale and many foundered, several with their entire crews. The bodies washing ashore continue to swell the terrible list of fatalities

Rampolla Withheld News

Rome, Sept. 12.—Drs. Lapponi and Mazzoni defend themselves from the criticisms of Professor Cardarelli, who published a long article to demonstrate that Pope Leo died of tuberculosis cancer, by giving out a statement to the effect that both Lapponi and Mazzoni, after examining the patient, understood his true illness, but Cardinal Rampolla absolutely refused to have it officially announced in the medical bulletins.

Loss of Over Five Millions

New York, Sept. 12.—The underwriting syndicate of the United States Realty corporation, which put up $11,000,000 in cash for the purpose of carrying through a merger of local building construction companies, has been formally dissolved. The payments to the subscribers gave a return of about $500 on each $1000 invested, indicating a loss of more than $5,000,000 on the entire transaction.

Philippine Officers Sentenced

Manila, Sept. 12.—Customs Inspector Coates and Lieutenant Osborne, constabulary supply officer, both stationed at San Fernandino, were convicted of misappropriating government funds. Osborne was sentenced to 10 years and Coates to eight years' imprisonment. Dean Tompkins, treasurer of the province of La Union, was convicted of forgery, but sentence has been reserved.

Croteau Before Grand Jury

Montpelier, Vt., Sept. 12.—Investigation of the complaint against Bartholomew Croteau, charged with the murder of Peter Vorren, has begun before the grand jury. Among the 30 witnesses summoned was Joseph Goslant, aged 11, stepson of Croteau. It has been learned that a week ago Croteau deeded all his property to his wife.

Built Before Christian Era

Berlin, Sept. 12.—A castle which is believed to have existed 400 years before Christ has been brought to light near Cassel.

A CHINESE AMERICAN

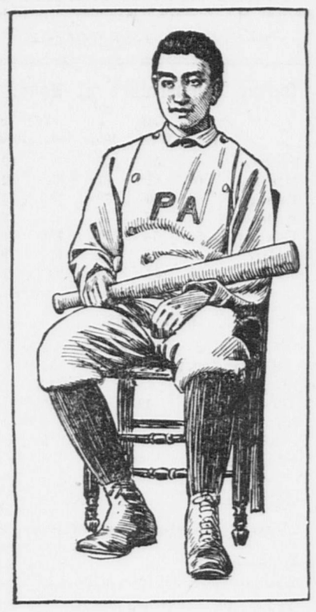
SIR LIANG CHEN TUNG, NEW MINISTER AT WASHINGTON.

A Baseball Enthusiast Who In His School Days Helped to Win More Than One Game For Phillips Andover Academy.

[Special Correspondence.]

Washington, Sept. 1.—Sir Liang Cheng Tung, the new Chinese minister to the United States, is even more of an American than his popular predecessor, Wu Ting Fang, a fact which is chiefly due to his having received his education in this country. Men who knew Pi Yuk Liang, as he was then called at Phillips Andover academy, at Andover, Mass., twenty-five years ago, entirely forgot his nationality. He was one of themselves, a rollicking, clean, well mannered, sport loving boy.

He was one of the best students in his class, and in athletics, where a Chinaman would be least expected to shine, he was among the foremost. The stories of his baseball prowess, his old classmates say, are not exaggerated in the least. He was a splendid pitcher, and his mastery of the curved ball won more than one game for the old academy. In one notable contest between Phillips Andover and its traditional rival, Phillips Exeter, it was a "three bagger" knocked out by Pi Yuk Liang which crowned his team with victory. In addressing an after dinner audience at the celebration of Andover's one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary Sir Liang described this game with a fluency of which no admirer of the national game would be ashamed.



LIANG CHEN TUNG AS A BASEBALL PLAYER AT PHILLIPS ANDOVER ACADEMY.

"I shall never forget," he said, "the game with Exeter in 1881, in which I happened to take part. We had been defeated the year before on our own grounds and were straining every nerve to recover our lost laurels. The game was now to be played at Exeter. Feeling that the reputation of our school was at stake, every member of the nine went into the game with a determination to win, encouraged by a contingent of faithful supporters who had come over from Andover. Our opponents were first at the bat. The batters were easily disposed of by our left handed pitcher, Hubbard. Then our turn came. In a twinkle we had two men on bases. I was next at the bat. I smashed the ball to center for a three bagger. This gave us a commanding lead, which our opponents could never overcome. The result of the game was immediately flashed over to Andover, and when the train arrived there with the victorious nine we were met by the whole school with torchlights, a brass band and an omnibus drawn by enthusiastic students. Rome could not have received Cæsar with greater pride."

An oriental who can play baseball in this fashion need have little doubt of his success in a diplomatic mission to the American nation. Sir Liang has been too busy to frequent the Washington baseball park during the present season, but he expects to renew his youth when the next contest for the championship pennant begins.

Pi Yuk Liang was one of a number of Chinese boys who were sent to the United States by the Chinese government to learn "how they do things in the west," a lesson in which they were so quick that the emperor was constrained to recall them lest they be turned into "foreign devils." It is said that Pi Yuk's baseball playing was regarded as the most ominous indication of the evil effect of American education upon youthful Chinamen. However, Pi Yuk was not long exiled from America, being sent back here to act as interpreter for the Chinese legation under Minister Chang Ying Hoon. When that minister returned to China, Liang went with him. He afterward held many important positions in the government service and was secretary of the Chinese envoy to Victoria's diamond jubilee, at which time he was knighted by the English queen.

The new minister is extremely democratic and is fond of everything which brings him into contact with the people of this country. He is bringing up his two little boys, aged respectively eight and six, in American ways, and they play with the other children of the neighborhood either in the legation grounds or on the daisy sprinkled hill across the way. His sixteen-year-old daughter has not the same freedom, Chinese conservatism with regard to the treatment of women being too strong to be broken even by so advanced a man as Sir Liang.

THE BULGARIAN CAPITAL.

Sofia a Bright and Bustling Town That Suggests Paris.

A wide, smiling valley, and, far beyond, the steep incline of an endless mountain range, the Vitosch chain, still snow capped when we saw it against a bright blue sky, while nearer the earth was clad with a cloak of the softest verdure, a lush green seeming to round the contours of outline here and there. Such, says the Pall Mall Gazette, was the first impression of the panoramic setting within which we found enshrined Sofia, the Bulgarian capital, from which source many of the reports of the recent massacres in Macedonia reach the public. It is as bright and modern looking a little town as, say, Baden-Baden, and indeed more reminiscent of some small German residenz stadt in style and structure than anything one generally associates mentally with the near east. Two days are, of course, not much in which to judge of any place. It is merely the obvious then that strikes the visitor's eye and is retained upon his mental retina, and therefore to our mind the name of Sofia is lastingly associated with sundry broad and shady streets, boulevards beneath which we watched with untiring interest the constant flow of traffic, the coming and going of soldiers, mondaines, peasantry and curious semioriental figures.

It was late spring, and the sun's heat had something of the coming summer in it, yet these stolid, slowly moving figures wore their fur caps and long skin coats, of which the sheep's wool turned inward forms the lining. Most of them led their oxen, harnessed to cumbrous carts, while again near these the smart electric trams whizzed by—a strange and incongruous mixture of the east and west. The most picturesque element in the street traffic was the peasant women, many of the girls being quite beautiful, their garments gay with red and blue embroideries and their persons loaded with barbaric looking silver ornaments, silver coins even glinting here and there amid their long, thick raven plaits. Another touch of color was given to this scene by the numerous different uniforms which distinguished le militaire, the general appearance of which reminds one of the Russian military dress, although the men seemed of a better physique, generally speaking. Toward evening this picture became even more animated, for the inhabitants of Sofia love the open air. The cafes and restaurants then assume the aspect of some lesser Paris, pretty faces, elegant toilets, music and laughter dominating the scene in the smartest town quarter.

Large Wheat Acreage In Kansas.

Kansas farmers are sowing 20 per cent more wheat than last fall, when the total acreage was 5,200,000, says a Topeka special to the New York Times. This year's wheat crop, as shown by the thrashers' returns, is nearly 100,000,000 bushels and will add to the farmers' surplus $50,000,000.

September.

September, thou art like a lady fair
Who, having lately left her youth behind,
Still has a silvery laugh, a witching air
And still to youthful dreaming is inclined.

September, thou art like a lady who
Has reached the fullness of sweet womanhood,
Whose cheeks are crimson still, who, smiling, too,
Still thinks the world is beautiful and good.

September, thou art like a lady fair
Who still may charm with smile or sigh or glance;
Who, showing here and there a soft gray hair,
Still is the spirit of a sweet romance.

September, thou art like a lady who
Looks forward half in dread and half resigned,
Who fancies that she still is clinging to
The joyous youth which she has left behind.

Probate Notice.

Wanted—Apprentice Blacksmith.

To Let—Two Connecting Rooms.

Good Afternoon

Mrs. Carrie Nation threatens to go on the stage. Won't somebody ax her not to?

A race between the Shamrock III and Prof. Langley's Buzzard might send Sir Thomas home with one victory to his credit.

It is a pity, but it is none the less true, that there is no administration without its portion of "graft" and scandal, but never was an administration which laid the axe to the root of its scandals with the energy displayed by President Roosevelt.

Drift of Opinion.

☞There seems to be an opinion in some circles that a place in the State House of Representatives would be a little small and crowded for a man of the calibre of John D. Long. It may be said in answer to this objection that the choice of the ex-governor might lead to the fashion being adopted of choosing men for places of this kind that would make the offices larger and more dignified and notable in every way than they are at this time.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞The last session of Congress made a liberal appropriation for a site for a new public building at Quincy, in which was to be housed the post office, and it was supposed a large sum went with it to erect the building. It has just leaked out that the appropriation was side-tracked at the last moment, and now all the work of securing the money will have to be done over again. To an outside observer it looks like a game of politics, in which Quincy has been buncoed.—Hyde Park Gazette.

☞Public officials generally in Massachusetts seem to regard themselves as poorly paid, and the commission which is giving hearings on the subject has had before it representatives of many boards who furnish reasons in abundance why their salaries should be increased. County commissioners appear to be in evidence, which is something of a surprise, inasmuch as it is pretty generally the opinion that this species of office holders are in possession of what is known in the language of the day as a "graft." Perhaps the efforts of this class of office-holders are put forward in order to give the public the impression that there is nothing more than a salary coming to them. It is undoubtedly true that there has been a manifest improvement in the conduct of county commissioners durthe past ten years. Unquestionably at one time there was a "graft" of large proportions, and that fact was demonstrated unmistakably is the case of Middlesex and Norfolk counties. Today things are decidely different.—Banker and Tradesman.

—This year's apple crop has been estimated at 48,000,000 barrels, and an equal distribution would give more than half a barrel to every man, woman and child in the country.

COLLAR AND CRAVAT.

Ways In Which They Affect the Appearance of the Wearer.

Men who do not want to look any fatter in the face than they can help have an easy means of accomplishing their purpose. Not all of them are aware of the effect that may be created by the form of a collar or cravat.

"The stout man who wants to look as thin as he can," said a haberdasher's clerk, "ought to wear a tie of the kind known as a four-in-hand. Preferably it should be dark in color and drawn tight. That carries down the line of the face and lengthens it to a degree that tends to make the face look thinner.

"Another aid to making a man look thin is in the height of his collars. Stout men who want to look thin should wear high collars and closed ones. Any collar that opens in front makes one look stouter under nearly every circumstance. Such collars are becoming to the thin men.

"The fat man should avoid the kind of tie that has a horizontal effect. This will add pounds to his appearance—in his face, at least.

"On the contrary, this cross effect will make the thin man look stout. The broad scarfs have little effect on a man's looks one way or the other. When he wears them it is the collar that makes the difference.

"He should therefore see that he wears a high one that does not open if he wants to look as thin as possible, whereas if he wants to seem stouter an open collar will produce that effect for him."

First Type Cast In America.

It was a good man, Christopher Sower, who made the first punches and matrices and cast the first type in America. The anvil he made them on is still preserved. They were for a German Bible which he published.

"The price of our newly finished Bible, in plain binding, with a clasp, will be 18 shillings," he said, "but to the poor and needy we have no price. John the Baptist sent the message to Christ, 'Art thou he that should come, or do we look for another?' and Jesus sent back word, 'The poor have the gospel preached to them.'"

Sower's German Bible was printed in 1743 and was the first Bible published in America in any European language.

Thoroughly "Done Up."

"Have you done up my shirt yet?" asked the patron of the laundry.

"It is just out of the ironing room," answered the clerk, "and we will have it done up for you now, so that you may take it along with you."

"All right. I hope it has had better luck than the last one I had done up here."

"Better luck?"

"Yes. You did it up so completely in the ironing room that it wasn't worth doing up in the bundle."—Judge.

CAN'T AFFORD IT.

City Finances Against Destruction of Washington Schoolhouse.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

The present financial condition of the city and the ever increasing school enrollment demand that the old school building at Quincy Point should be renovated and not sold.

Aside from an aesthetic point of view, the wisdom of disposing of the old school building at Quincy Point for a few dollars may be seriously questioned.

It may be stated that the increase in the number of pupils just enrolled in our schools is at least six hundred more than last year. The new brick school building will accommodate reasonably four hundred and fifty pupils and has now opened with four hundred and twenty in attendance.

These facts show that the old building must soon be used again or additional rooms rented which would probably not be so well adapted for school purposes as the rooms in the old building. The city should not sacrifice a business policy to architectural effect in view of its present financial condition.

The old building should be properly renovated—not destroyed—as it is still suitable for use if its capacity is not overtaxed. If it detracts from the architectual effect of the new building in its present location let it be moved a short distance on to land abutting Washington court.

Day Nursery.

There will be an important and special meeting of the Day Nursery Association at three o'clock next Tuesday afternoon in the Council Room at City Hall. A full attendance is promised of all the officers and directors of the Association. The recent generous and voluntary gift received from the Quincy Fire Department will be publicly acknowledged and the last details in connection with opening the Day Nursery will be decided. These meetings are always very informal and interesting, and it is not necessary to be a member of the Association or even in sympathy with the object to receive a cordial welcome. Every one is most earnestly invited to attend.

Handsome Monument.

The Granite Railway Co. shipped a very handsome sarcophagus monument this week to Wooster, O. The bottom base was 10 by 7 by 1-6; the second base 8-2 by 5-2 by 1-3, and the die 7 by 4 by 5. The monument was all polished and one of the handsomest jobs that has been shipped from Quincy for some time.

The Tenth Coupon.

The boys and girls are watching for the tenth "Regdel" coupon. Those who missed the first coupons can begin at any number; at 5, at 8, at 10, or at any number. All that the Ledger requires is ten consecutive coupons from the Ledger and one from the Patriot. The coupons will not stop with No. 10, but only fifty games are to be given away.

Hard Luck.

John Mead, driver of McNiff's milk wagon, is at the Hospital suffering with blood poisoning. Several days ago he was cut on a glass bottle. In the Spanish American war it will be remembered he was shot in the thigh, later on he had a rib taken out. He has a wife and two children.

An Arrest.

An Italian, who gave his name as John Sander, was arrested at Braintree yesterday by Officer Hunt, upon suspicion of being the man who held up Mrs. Mary E. Mann at South Braintree last Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Mann's story of the affair was that she and her little daughter were on their way home, when Sander stepped from the bushes and first asked to go home with her and then kiss the little girl. She turned back toward the village and the man followed her as far as the railroad crossing.

Sander was arraigned for being idle and disorderly and was sent to the house of correction.

It is alleged that Sander has been holding up women in Braintree for several days past and last night was caught trying to peek into the window of Patrick Readon's house on Pearl street. Mr. Reardon caught the fellow and turned him over to Officer Hunt.

The Renewal a Strain.

Vacation is over. Again the school bell rings at morning and at noon, again with tens of thousands the hardest kind of work has begun, the renewal of which is a mental and physical strain to all except the most rugged. The little girl that a few days ago had roses in her cheeks, and the little boy whose lips were then so red you would have insisted that they had been "kissed by strawberries," have already lost something of the appearance of health. Now is a time when many children should be given a tonic, which may avert much serious trouble, and we know of no other so highly to be recommended as Hood's Sarsaparilla, which strengthens the nerves, perfects digestion and assimilation, and aids mental development by building up the whole system.

—The coaching and trade parade, and the automobile exhibition and race, will be special features at the Weymouth Fair this year, and samples of shoes from all the manufacturers in town will be shown in the hall. The Salem Cadet Band stands high in rank and should prove a big drawing card. More than twenty-five different organizations about town have manifested their intention to participate in the coaching and trades parade, and the management hope to receive an entry from every organization, trade, or business house in town. This is a new feature and can be made a most attractive one.—Weymouth Gazette.

An Aggravating Speech.

One of the wits of the parliament house is said to have observed on the occasion of Judge Deas' promotion to the honor of knighthood, "The queen may make George Deas a knight, but no one will ever make him a gentleman." Deas was quite able, however, to hold his own, and he punished the wits when they came to make their maiden speeches before him. "Prisoner at the bar," he once said to an unfortunate wretch on whose behalf an infant advocate had been feebly urging "extenuating circumstances," "everything that your counsel has said in mitigation I consider to be an aggravation of your offense."

Two Ways of Doing Business.

The industrious man—the plain, everyday kind, we mean—gets to his work early. Three hours later the man of marked executive ability drops in to see that the industrious man keeps steadily at work. If everything is going well the man of marked executive ability leaves for the day, for there is no need for a display of his peculiar qualities. If everything is going ill the man of marked executive ability quits at once in order that his reputation may not be compromised by his presence.—Boston Transcript.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

A dramatic novelty is the offering at the Castle Square Theatre next week, the play being a society drama in four acts called "Virginia's Honeymoon." It is announced as an adaptation from the German, by Charles Ross, a resident of Boston, and will have its first production on any stage at the Castle square. The time of the action is just previous to and during the war with Cuba and the scenes occur within the residences of the Back Bay district of Boston. The characters have been drawn from the social and military circles of the "Hub" and the story deals with the love affairs of two prominent male characters both of whom are contestants for the favor of the heroine. The plot of the German story upon which the play rests has been adapted so as to make the action suited to local surroundings and the author has condensed the scenes and situations with a view to rapidity in its action. Four interiors make the stage settings for the play. "Virginia's Honeymoon" is announced for a single week only and the usual distribution of boxes of chocolate bonbons will be made at the Monday matinee.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

All of greater Boston in search of novelty in amusement will visit Keith's the week of Sept. 14, for an act is to be put on there that has been the talk of New York all summer long, attracting to one of the most noted roof gardens not only the everyday amusement seekers but all of the "400" in the metropolis or adjacent thereto. Ned Weyburn's minstrel misses is made up of 17 lively and prepossessing girls who give a minstrel first part that it would be hard to beat. They black up in view of the audience, something that has not been done on the stage for many a day. The surrounding show is fully up to the standard of the star act and includes among others: Frances Gerard, a wonderful European equilibrist; the Albani troupe of instrumentalists, consisting of four women and a man, all talented musicians; Mr. and Mrs. Breen, comedy jugglers, and Cherry and Bates, trick and fancy bicycle experts. It will be one of the notable shows of the season in many respects.

BOSTON THEATRE.

There will doubtless be much curiosity to see the play of "Miss Petticoats" when it has its first Boston production at the Boston Theatre next Monday night, September 14, when a two weeks' engagement will be inaugurated. Interest in this coming important production is aroused because of the natural curiosity to see how the scenes and characters of Dwight Tilton's famous novel are depicted on the stage in George T. Richardson's dramatization. Kathryn Osterman, among a great many other well known feminine stars, sought this play as a starring vehicle and the requirements for an adequate interpretation of the heroine (Miss Petticoats) seemed to point more naturally to her and she became the fortunate possessor of the dramatic rights. The seats are on sale this week and in view of the immense local interest it will be only natural if there is a very large advance demand for them.

—A vesper service will be given Sunday evening at the Pilgrim church, North Weymouth. A. J. Sidelinger is the conductor and Herbert Hayden the organist.

The Mystery Of My Client

By... HOWARD FIELDING

Copyright, 1902, by Charles W. Hooke

A POLICEMAN named Postley, regularly assigned to duty in the city prison, called at my office late one afternoon with a message that Stanley Montagu wished to see me. The name is suspiciously pretentious, yet I am informed that the man got it by birth and christening. He has borne simpler names to which he was not entitled; the police have a list of them. In fact, Mr. Montagu is a bad man, and at the time when he sent for me he was in jail for one of the most important robberies within the recent history of the city—the Ramsdell burglary, in which more than $70,000 worth of jewelry was stolen.

"He wants you to take his case," said the policeman.

"I didn't know that he had any case," I responded. "Weren't some of the diamonds found in his pockets?"

"Well, not exactly in his pockets, as I understand it," was the reply. "Two or three small things were found in his room. The great bulk of the stuff has never been found at all."

I was aware of this fact. Indeed, I had certain facilities for learning about this case, for I was acquainted with Warren Ramsdell, the brother-in-law of the lady whose jewels had been stolen. I had heard of Montagu's arrest from Ramsdell on the evening when it was made and before any account of it had been printed in the papers. He had then mentioned that a few of the least valuable articles had been recovered.

I felt indisposed to take Montagu's case, first, because I believed him guilty, and, second, because of my acquaintance with one of the Ramsdells, but I had a considerable curiosity to see Montagu and talk with him. Moreover, I do not like to refuse point blank the reasonable request of a fellow creature who labors under the great disadvantage of being in prison. Therefore I went to see Montagu in order that I might find out what he had to say for himself.

The hour was rather late for a consultation that day under the strict rules of the prison, nevertheless I succeeded in a room of the institution which is sometimes used for that purpose. Montagu was a tall and slender man of forty years or thereabout, having iron gray hair upon a remarkably well shaped head. His face was smooth shaven, thin and of the cast suggesting the vague descriptive term "distinguished."

"GOOD DAY, MR. WILLARD."

"Good day, Mr. Willard," said he. "You know about my case, I suppose?"

"Very little," I replied. "What I do know makes me hesitate to have anything to do with it."

Montagu glanced slowly around the room, bestowing a peculiar smile upon the various articles of furniture, as if he had been saying to each of the chairs and tables: "Nobody hidden behind you. Of course not. Pray excuse me for thinking of such a thing."

Then he turned to me.

"A guilty man is entitled to his legal rights the same as an innocent one, isn't he?"

"Certainly," said I. "There is no reason why a conscientious lawyer should not protect a guilty man against injustice and even against any undue severity. Do I understand that you intend to plead guilty?"

"Well, I haven't made up my mind," said he. "Of course I don't stand any chance. A man with a record like mine is convicted as soon as he's brought into court."

"If you didn't do the thing," said I, "fight it through."

He smiled at me for about a minute without speaking.

"It's possible, you know," said he, "for a man to be tired of this sort of business. He may want to quit and be straight, you understand. He may see a reasonable chance. But if at my age the poor devil is going to prison for ten or fifteen years what's the use? Now, see here," he continued in a more assured tone, "if I decide to plead guilty will you take my case?"

"This includes the restitution of the stolen property?" said I.

"Of course," he replied.

"Then I'll do my best for you," said I.

"Now, I wish you'd let me have a day or two to think things over. In regard to the restitution of the property, there are certain matters which I want to discuss with you later. In the meantime will you see Mrs. Ramsdell and find out exactly what was taken? I don't want to be held for stuff that I didn't get."

There was something peculiar in his manner which excited my curiosity. After I had left him I gave hard thought to the circumstances of the robbery. The Ramsdell residence had been entered in a bold and ingenious manner from an adjoining mansion which happened to be deserted. Mr. and Mrs. Ramsdell were dining out that evening. The robber was discovered by a maid who had gone up to her mistress' room just before the latter returned home. It was not long after 10 o'clock, and there was plenty of time for the news to get into the next morning's papers. A list of the stolen articles was published, and the value was set as $70,000. Meanwhile I had heard the story from Warren Ramsdell, whom I had met in a club shortly after midnight. He had told me that the value of the jewels was about $55,000 and had neglected to mention a diamond necklace which was the highest priced article in the published list.

Montagu had been arrested next day upon a description furnished by the Ramsdells of a mysterious and suspicious looking character whom they had seen lurking about the house.

Now, so far as I knew, the original published estimate of the value of the property, including the necklace which I have mentioned, had never been contradicted. Doubtless Montagu had seen this list, and beyond question he was in a position to know whether it had been accurate. Supposing that the diamond necklace had not been in the strong box, naturally Montagu would be unable to return it, and he would insist upon a definite statement about it before opening serious negotiations.

Society women sometimes get into debt and pawn their jewels without the knowledge of their husbands. I have faith to believe that the indiscretion is rare, but I am told that it does occur. If such had been the fact in this instance it was conceivable that Mrs. Ramsdell might have told the reporters a fib. It would be necessary to settle this point before anything could be done for my client, and with this in mind I tried to find Warren Ramsdell, since there seemed reason to believe that he was in his sister-in-law's confidence. But as the young man had gone to Chicago on business I was under the necessity of calling at the Ramsdell house upon this very delicate business.

Mr. and Mrs. Ramsdell were at home, and, to use a figure of speech, they fell upon my neck when I hinted at a possibility of securing a restitution of the property. They were perfectly willing that I should compound a felony by defeating justice in the case of Stanley Montagu and even urged me to corrupt the district attorney, the grand jury, the police and the court in the interests of my client if he would only give up the jewels.

Still, upon the personal side I was much moved by the lady's great grief at her loss. She seemed to be a woman of a very strongly sentimental nature. There were some of those jewels, gifts from her husband in the early days of their love, that she could not speak of without bursting into tears.

When I left the Ramsdell house I was a fierce partisan of the fair victim of this robbery, and yet we had decided to do our best to save Montagu from the consequences of his crime. I went to my client and told him that restitution would probably result in his release, but I was forced to add the information which I had received from Mrs. Ramsdell in the most positive manner that the published list of the stolen jewels was correct. His only reply was this:

"They ain't doing right by me."

I could not get him to explain that statement nor to say anything upon the subject except that he wanted a day or two for consideration. Surely if it had not been for pretty Mrs. Ramsdell's influence upon me and the memory of her great joy at the prospect of receiving her own again I should have had nothing further to do with the affairs of Stanley Montagu.

To make a long story short, I spent more than five weeks in negotiating for the return of those diamonds. I would bring Montagu almost to the point, and then he would slip back again. He would declare that he was being tricked or would insist that one or another of the articles mentioned in the printed list had not been in the robbed safe.

Finally the man coolly told me that he was dissatisfied with my conduct as his counsel and had decided to get another lawyer. I was discharged from the case, and a shrewd little rat of the law whose reputation is not of the best was engaged in my place. The interview which I had with the Ramsdells afterward was harrowing. I had raised their hopes only to dash them down again.

Meanwhile Montagu had been indicted, and an early day had been set for the trial. Old Ben Briggs, my successor in the case, made no move to open negotiations with the Ramsdells.

Upon the trial, which you may be sure that I attended, Montagu pleaded not guilty with a bold front. Now, to tell the truth, the district attorney's case was not strong. His knowledge that Montagu was negotiating for a return of the plunder had prevented him from working up the evidence. But that knowledge could not be used in court. With me it was a professional secret, and nobody else knew anything about it except as a matter of hearsay. The district attorney's people and the police knew only what Ramsdell had said, and that was not evidence.

Yet, considering that Montagu had been seen hanging about the house, that some trifles from the plunder had been found in his room and that he was a known thief, it seemed to me that a conviction might be expected. But to my utter amazement Montagu produced absolutely unimpeachable evidence of his innocence. A very respectable family—father, mother and three children—backed by a visitor or two, swore positively that Montagu had been in their house during the entire evening of the robbery. They had known him under a different name and had had no idea of his real character; neither had they guessed that their friend was the prisoner under arrest for the Ramsdell burglary until the day before the trial, when they were so informed by his attorney.

There was no doubt that these witnesses were telling the truth, and it became a physical impossibility that Montagu should have been the actual burglar. As to the jewelry found in his room, the evidence of servants in the house where he lodged was introduced to show that a mysterious man had got in with some plausible excuse during Montagu's absence and that upon my former client's return he had complained that the door of his room, which he had locked on going out, was ajar.

The absurdly conspicuous position of the jewelry in the room also had its effect upon the jury, as indicating conspiracy. It became clear that the fellow might have cleared himself immediately after arrest if he had chosen to do so.

Nothing else but an acquittal was possible, and Montagu left the court a free man. I left it a very much puzzled and fiercely angry man, for beyond a doubt I had been made a tool by this rascal for some purpose which I could only conjecture. The Scotch-Irish obstinacy which I inherited from my grandfather asserted itself, and this fellow Montagu became to me as if he had been my natural food and I a beast of prey.

When he left the court building I was on his track, and for an hour or more I had some interesting experiences in "shadowing." It became obvious to me presently that another person whom I recognized as a detective of the regular police was also on Montagu's trail, and Montagu must have perceived it also, for he began to dodge and double and finally "shook" us in a manner really quite clever.

For some minutes I watched the detective madly rushing around the neighborhood. It was futile, and upon a sudden inspiration I went into a barber's shop and had my beard removed. Then I bought a hat of a style that I had never worn before and a rather "loud" overcoat. After these precautions I rode in a cab to a railroad station, where, to give myself confidence in my own judgment, I immediately bought a ticket for Chicago. A few minutes later I was aboard a train, riding in the same car with Stanley Montagu. I rode with him all the way to Chicago, followed his trail with great difficulty for a few hours in that city and eventually traced him to a hotel where I was fortunate enough to secure the next room to his.

My first act was to bore a hole through the partition, and by means of this aperture I was presently able to observe a confidential and very joyous interview between Montagu and another man, who divided with my former client an enormous roll of money. The other man was Warren Ramsdell.

The game then became perfectly clear. When jewels of great value are stolen their description is flashed all over the world, and their sale becomes very difficult. But by associating himself with a known criminal and by putting up a job by which it would immediately appear that that criminal had the jewels and could be induced to return them Ramsdell had stopped all the usual precautions and had made the sale of the jewels easy and safe.

Having heard the conversation of these rascals, I stepped around to the hall door of their room and kicked it open. I entered with a revolver in my hand and a perfect readiness to shoot somebody gleaming from my eye. This state of feeling is always perceptible and never fails to have its effect upon the other parties concerned.

The result was that I obtained a complete record of the disposal of the jewels, by means of which all except a very few of the smallest were subsequently recovered. But, after all, my mysterious client escaped punishment, for Mr. Ramsdell felt obliged to shield his own brother, and the case against the two thieves never came to trial.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 13—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Feasting that maketh lean souls.—Ex. xvi, 2-5; Ps. cvi, 13-15. (Temperance.)

Feasting is not generally supposed to produce leanness, and yet it is known to all that there is a feasting—a feasting of the body—that does produce a leanness—a leanness of soul. Indeed, spiritual leanness is usually an accompaniment of physical feasting. Feasting and drinking are not productive of spiritual growth. Excess in either produces the opposite result. As an illustration of this truth, the topical reference gives us the instance of the Israelites in the wilderness. Between Elim and Sinai the children of Israel murmured against Moses and Aaron and said, "Would to God we had died by the hand of the Lord in Egypt, when we sat by the fleshpots and when we did eat to the full, for ye have brought us forth into this wilderness to kill this whole assembly with hunger." God gave them food. The psalmist says, "He gave them their request, but sent leanness into their souls." Their bodies were fed, but their souls were starved. In their prosperity they forgot God and neglected to live in vital and living communion with Him, and were constantly wandering from Him and falling into temptation.

The application of this subject to temperance is easily made and readily understood. Intemperance in drink is disastrous in many ways, but it is especially disastrous to the spiritual life. The soul is lean indeed when the body is full of wine instead of the spirit of God. Drunkenness dwarfs and destroys soul life. It makes it impossible for a man to live in vital and living communion with his God, it makes him an easy victim to the temptations of life about him, and the Scriptures clearly state that the drunkard shall not inherit the kingdom of heaven.

Along all lines intemperance is a deadly foe to spirituality. And this is one of the strongest reasons why it should be avoided and opposed by all who do avoid it. We should not only obey the injunction, "Be not drunken with wine, wherein is excess, but be filled with the Spirit," but we should also strive to lead others to obey this command and as far as possible to make it impossible for men to become intemperate. Total abstinence should be practiced and preached; the saloon should be courageously opposed and prayer offered to God for its speedy overthrow. In doing these things we shall be opposing one of the greatest destroyers of spiritual life and make it possible for thousands who are spiritually debased now to be filled with the spirit of God.

BIBLE READINGS.

Prov. xx, 1; xxiii, 1-3, 20, 21, 29-32; Isa. v, 11, 22, 23; Matt. xxiv, 48-51; Luke xxi, 34; Gal. v, 19-26; Eph. v, 18-20.

Platform of Principles.

In the early days of the movement Rev. Dr. Clark drew up the following, a good thing to repeat today for the benefit of the younger generation:

First.—The Society of Christian Endeavor is not and is not to be an organization independent of the church. It is the church at work for and with the young and the young people at work for and with the church. In all that we do and say let us bear this in mind and seek for the fullest co-operation of pastors and church officers and members in carrying on our work. The Society of Christian Endeavor can always afford to wait rather than force itself upon an unwilling church.

Second.—Since the societies exist in every evangelical denomination, the basis of the union of the societies is one of common loyalty to Christ, common methods of service for Him and mutual Christian affection rather than a doctrinal and ecclesiastical basis. In such a union all evangelical Christians can unite without repudiating or being disloyal to any denominational custom or tenet.

Third.—The purely religious features of the organization shall always be paramount. The Society of Christian Endeavor centers about the prayer meeting. The strict "prayer meeting pledge," honestly interpreted as experience has proved, is essential to the continued success of a Society of Christian Endeavor.

Fourth.—The Society of Christian Endeavor sympathizes with temperance and all true moral reforms, with wise philanthropic measures and especially with missions at home and abroad. Yet it is not to be used as a convenience by an organization to further ends other than its own.

A Hint For Committees.

So whenever you hear a good thing just put it down, because if it is good for you it will be good for somebody else, and we should pass the coin of heaven around just as we do the coin of the realm.—D. L. Moody, "Pleasure and Profit In Bible Study."

In South Africa.

Two new societies have been organized in the Zoutpansberg district, South Africa, by returned prisoner of war Endeavorers from St. Helena.

98. D. O. N., Wilkesbarre, Pa.—The constitution provides that "Each committee * * * shall make a report in writing to the society at the monthly business meetings concerning the work of the past month."

99. W. V. P., Dover, Del.—The Christian Endeavor Hymnal is published by the united society. It is the book used by the immense chorus at the Denver international convention.

WOMEN THEIR VICTIMS

Sluggers at Boston and Newton Elude the Police

NEGRO ATTACKS A DOCTOR

She Is Thrown Down and Chatelaine Bag Torn From Her Waist—No Trace of Man Who Has Committed Four Assaults at Newton

Boston, Sept. 12.—The greatly dreaded slugger who has often before made his appearance in the Back Bay made his appearance again last evening, and made a savage attack on Dr. Mary Hayes of 8 St. Joseph street. She was knocked down and robbed on West Concord street while on her way home. The street is only dimly lighted, and the slugger, who was a strongly built colored man, got safely away.

Dr. Hayes had just reached Newland street, when she was suddenly seized by the throat and thrown to the ground. The slugger tore from her waist a chatelaine bag and rushed off. The screams of Mrs. Hayes attracted the attention of tenants of adjoining houses, who rushed out, and for a few minutes there was a lively chase.

The assailant of Mrs. Haayes was fleet of foot, however, and disappeared down Newland street.

For nearly an hour the street was thoroughly searched, the police joining in, but not the slightset trace could be found. The description given by Mrs. Hayes answers exactly to the man who committed the numerous holdups in the Back Bay and the methods are the same.

She describes him as being colored, about 5 feet 8 inches in height, probably about 160 pounds in weight, was dressed in dark clothes and wore a black hat. This is exactly the same description as given in the other cases in that section.

The chatelaine bag contained only about $5, a bunch of keys and some minor articles. Mrs. Hayes, although not badly injured, suffers severely from the shock. She was able to go home, after reporting the affair to the police.

Four Assaults at Newton

Newton, Mass., Sept. 12.—The police admit having no trace of the slugger who yesterday made a vicious attack upon Myra Hastings, 14 years old. Furthermore, they have given up the search on the ground that nothing can be done.

This is the fourth time the slugger has operated in different parts of Newton recently, each tme attacking a woman and making her fight to the limit of her powers in defence of her life and honor. Each time he has failed in his purpose and each time he has escaped.

But his attacks have had their effect on the people of all the Newtons, putting the women, and particularly the mothers, in a state of consternation. In spite of the statements of the police that there is nothing serious in it at all, people are now demanding the facts and particulars, which the police have thought it wise to keep back in order to prevent alarm. The victims describe their assailant as being about 25 years old, 5 feet 9 inches tall, hair and complexion dark.

Increase In Miners' Wages

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 12.—Mine workers and operators of the anthracite region have been notified by C. P. Neill, who was appointed by the anthracite strike commission as the computer of prices at tide water, that the miners are entitled to a 5 percent increase in wages, in accordance with the recent advance in the price of anthracite to go into effect during the month of September.

Claims to Be Making Money

Trenton, Sept. 12.—The United States Cast Iron Pipe company has filed its answer in the suit instituted by Andrew H. McNeal for the appointment of a receiver. McNeal charges among other things that the company is operated at a loss. The answer denies every charge made by McNeal. It is stated that the company is prosperous, its net earnings for the last fiscal year being $1,222,000.

Fishermen Had Poor Luck

St. Johns, Sept. 12.—The French warship Manche, which has returned to St. Pierre from the Grand Banks, reports that 54 French fishing vessels have made only a quarter of their average catch of codfish, and also that a number of American vessels have had poor success. The season generally has been disastrous.

Czar's Visit Cut Out

Bucharest, Sept. 12.—The projected visit of the czar to Bucharest, to act as godfather at the christening of Prince Nicholas, (son of Crown Prince Ferdinand Victor) who was born Aug. 18, has been countermanded on account of fear that the Roumanian police would be unable to sufficiently insure the czar's safety.

Parks Led Union Astray

New York, Sept. 12.—President Buchanan of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Irenworkers has annulled the charter of local No. 2 of the Housesmiths and Bridgemen's union, the organization of which Sam Parks is the virtual head, and has suspended the local union.

Further Laurels For Delmar

Syracuse, Sept. 12.—Major Delmar went a mile at the state fair in 2:01 1-4, breaking the world's record of 2:01½ for geldings, made by himself here last Tuesday.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Good Reports From Many Branches of Retail and Jobbing Trade

New York, Sept. 12.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Despite the interruption of a holiday, the week has brought increased activity in many branches of business. An encouraging symptom is the decreased complaint regarding collections, accompanied by more discounting of bills. Weather conditions have been favorable for retail trade, distribution of merchandise expanding, while there are frequent reports of larger jobbing fall business than last year.

Owing to the lateness of the crops there is little complaint of traffic congestion.

New England manufacturers continue busy on fall and winter footwear and at many points it is difficult to secure sufficient labor. Wholesalers report deliveries of nearly all varieties on time or with little delay, but facilities are taxed in order to keep up with business.

The cotton goods demand is not improved. On the contrary, buyers are encouraged to delay placing contracts, and mills are not seeking business. Practically no stocks of goods are held by the mills, and the exhausted condition of supplies promises to maintain quotations after cotton has fallen.

Long Chase Rewarded

Boston, Sept. 12.—After a long chase, which has lasted several months, George Nichols, who has just been brought here from New York on several charges of larceny, was identified by a policeman as the man who assaulted him with intent to kill. The officer, J. F. Donovan, states that Nichols is the man who fired a shot at him while escaping arrest last May, a report book in an inside pocket turning the bullet. Along the roadside nearby was afterwards found silverware strewn in every direction, amounting to $1200, stolen from the home of Wallace Pierce.

Hopes to Negotiate In Gotham

Havana, Sept. 12.—Senor Menocal, chairman of the commission appointed to negotiate the $35,000,000 loan, in an interview last night said: "It is my preference and hope that the loan be placed in the United States. We realize that it is better and more convenient to place it there than elsewhere. After presenting the matter and becoming definitely acquainted with the loan situation in New York I shall proceed to London and take up the matter with London and Paris bankers. No definite proposition has yet been received from any source."

Gain For Railroad Employes

Baltimore, Sept. 12.—After the adjournment last night of the conference between the officials of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad and the committees representing the employes of the road 25 of the 140 grievances presented by the labor unions had been considered. Thirteen of the demands had been acceded to by the officials of the company and 12 of the grievances had been either refused by the company or laid aside for further consideration by the conference. The conference is unfinished.

Tuskegee Won't Be Cut Off

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 12.—A bill introduced last week in the Alabama legislature taking from the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial institute a portion of the appropriation made yearly by the state, has been considered by the committee on education to which it was referred and decision unanimously reached to report adversely on it. The appropriation now being made will be continued.

A Let-Up on Cent Coinage

Philadelphia, Sept. 12.—No more cents are to be made by the United States mint here for at least a year, unless a special order is issued from the United States treasury at Washington. This is the latest instruction from Washington, due to the enormous production in the last five years, 3,000,000,393 pennies having been shipped from the Philadelphia mint.

Quiet at Cripple Creek

Cripple Creek, Col., Sept. 12.—Peace prevails throughout the district. The water supply of the La Bella Power company, which was shut off temporarily last night by order of the water commissioner of Goldfield, is now guarded by soldiers and the plant is furnishing power to mines which are operating with non-union men.

Forty-Seven Years In the Navy

BRITISH OFFER TO THE ZIONISTS

Features of Territory Tendered For Jewish Settlement.

A HEALTHY AND FERTILE REGION

Sir Harry Johnston Regards the Uganda Plateau as Unparalleled In Tropical Africa—Well Watered and Covered With Noble Forests—Climate Favorable to White Men.

When the British government recently offered the Zionist conference at Basel so considerable a stretch of territory in east Africa for Jewish settlement it volunteered to give away one of the most remarkable as well as one of the most interesting tracts of land in the world today, says a special cable dispatch from London to the Philadelphia Press. The great plateau of the Uganda region is not only one of the very few in all Africa where white men may live and prosper, but it is a land as well which is both inviting in all those respects which should make life worth living, and abounding, too, in much of the mystery and glamour which have for so long hung over the central stretches of the dark continent.

The Victoria Nyanza region, where the Nile takes its birth, lies 3,820 feet above sea level, a land remarkable for its forests and plains and unique in its Mau escarpment, a mighty stone wall thrown up by nature with a regularity almost as marked as though it were man made, which faces upon a sunken valley, called "The Great Rift." About this rise mighty mountains, which are almost beyond question those which figured in the geographical stories of the ancients as "the Mountains of the Moon."

When, even in comparatively modern times, the coast lands of Africa had been opened up by discovery and no mountains of any unusual size had been found it was affirmed that these Mountains of the Moon could have existed only in the imaginations of those who first wrote of them. But the geography of today has found in such peaks as Mount Kenia and Mount Kilimanjaro, which rise 18,000 and 19,000 feet above the surrounding country, full warrant for all stories of the past.

Sir Harry Johnston, who undoubtedly knows more of the Uganda region than any other man living, in his report on the country made as special commissioner for the Uganda protectorate describes it as unparalleled in tropical Africa. He declares it to be admirably watered, fertile and cool, covered with noble forests and but sparsely inhabited. He adds that it is quite as healthy for Europeans as Great Britain itself. A very interesting feature of his report has to do with the various vegetable growths of the country, which would seem to be remarkable for the size they assume. Plants which in the temperate zone are properly regarded as small attain in the Uganda a growth many times that which is characteristic of them in lands farther north.

As for the people—and, one might also say, "as for the neighbors which the Jews will find awaiting them"—they make up in peculiarities what they may lack in numbers. The tract of territory which has been offered by Great Britain is perhaps 200 miles long by 90 or 100 miles in width. In that there are now living seven distinct tribes of African natives, one of them already in a state of some civilization, but the other six characteristically barbarous, though Sir Harry Johnston is the authority for the statement that all of the them are well disposed toward the white man and willing to study and imitate his ways. The Baganda people wear European clothes—that is, Turkish garments—and most of them speak a little French or English. The other peoples of the region still go in the state of undress so long associated with African natives.

Probably the strangest of the tribes are the Kavironidos, whose cannibal traditions still prompt them to file their teeth to needle-like points, and the famous Kiagwe dwarfs, a tribe of diminutive hunters which wanders over the greater part of eastern Africa between the Victoria Nyanza and the vicinity of the Indian ocean.

Power Without Water or Coal.

A new motive power has been discovered by S. F. Stearns, the inventor, who is now in New York putting in a plant which it is claimed will reduce the cost of generating power 40 per cent, says a Joplin (Mo.) dispatch. In its operation there is no need for coal, boilers or water. The power is said to be supplied by some sort of combustion which, properly distributed, will do the work. Mr. Stearns has interested with him in the enterprise J. A. Hardy, a millionaire mine owner of Webb City, and F. M. Cummings of Joplin. One of the devices was recently installed in a big mining plant near Joplin and is said to be a success.

Queen Lou.

What makes the cloud of dust arise across the yellow track?
What is it in the midst that moves with speed that doesn't slack?
Why do the people crane their necks? Why do their eyeballs flash?
What is the noise of breaking things? It's records gone to smash!
For Dillon, great Lou Dillon, makes them wonder where they're at
By circling round the magic course in just two minutes flat!

Lou Dillon, Louie Dillon, you're the greatest of 'em all!
You knocked the props from under and you gave 'em such a fall!
You clinched your fame forever as around the course you flew.
Lou Dillon, Louie Dillon, here's a double health to you!

DISCREET INDISCRETION.

How the Insubordination of a Diplomat Averted Hostilities.

An example that can never be overlooked when the right of an ambassador to exercise his own discretion is in question is that which occurred in the career of Lord Lyons when he was our ambassador to the United States. He was a persona grata there. "All I can say, Lord Lyons, is, 'Go thou and do likewise,'" was Abraham Lincoln's genial method of receiving the British ambassador's announcement of the Prince of Wales' marriage. Lord Lyons did not take the advice, but he remained a very effective ambassador in spite of his bachelorhood. When the grave difficulty over the Mason and Slidell case arose Lord Lyons was instructed from home to present an ultimatum, afford twelve hours for its acceptance, and, the latter not being forthcoming, he was to break off relations and leave the country. The twelfth hour expired, Slidell and Mason were not surrendered and there remained apparently only the dire prospect of war. "Give me another twelve hours," said Seward, the secretary of state. It was an entire contradiction of official orders, but, nevertheless, "I will," said Lyons. From 6 o'clock that night until 6 the next morning Seward battled with the recalcitrants. Then Lyons received an intimation that the Confederate envoys would be given up. So by the insubordination of an ambassador war was saved.—St. James Gazette.

Bismarck's Best Cigar.

Unlike Napoleon, Bismarck was a hard smoker. He once told this story to illustrate his love of the weed:

"The value of a good cigar is best understood when it is the last you possess and there is no chance of getting another. At Koeniggraetz I had only one cigar left in my pocket, which I carefully guarded during the battle as a miser guards his treasure. I did not feel justified in using it. I painted in glowing colors in my mind the happy hour when I should enjoy it after the victory, but I had miscalculated my chances. A poor dragoon lay helpless, with both arms crushed, murmuring for something to refresh him. I felt in my pockets and found only gold, which would not be of the least use to him. But stay! I had still my treasured cigar. I lighted it for him and placed it between his teeth. You should have seen the poor fellow's grateful smile. I never enjoyed a cigar so much as that one which I did not smoke."

The Angel Child.

"Martha," said her mamma, "I trust that while you were at your Aunt Martha's you said nothing to offend her."

"Oh, no, mamma," declared the angel child. "I was careful to say things which would make her know that you and papa liked her for herself alone."

"That was proper."

"Why, when she asked me if you folks had named me Martha so that she would leave us her money when she dies I told her that papa and you had talked about that and that papa said we mustn't think of such a thing."

"And what did she say?" asked mamma eagerly.

"Nothing. She just laughed and said I was a good girl and I'd better run along home when I told her what papa said about her going to have a pocket made in her shroud."—Chicago Tribune.

Condiments and Digestion.

People with weak digestions will always be found to be fond of condiments, as the tendency of these things is to stimulate the glands of the stomach and cause them to produce a larger supply of digestive juices. Pepper, mustard and other like spices stir up the liver and are useful to people who from necessity or other causes lead sedentary lives. Vinegar dissolves the cellulose in raw vegetables, and that is why it tastes so well with cabbages and salads, for there is no better judge than the palate of what is good for the stomach. The oil is added because it protects the stomach from the biting acid.

The Thumb.

Thumbs have been appreciated ever since the world began. The ancients used to call the thumb the other hand. Barbarous kings used to swear and make compacts by their thumbs. In Rome it was a sign of favor to wring and kiss the thumb and of disfavor or disgrace to lift it up or turn it outward. A man who was hurt in his thumbs was excused from serving in the Roman wars. Some of the scoundrelly citizens used to cut off their thumbs so as to remain at home and get rich. Teachers used to punish their pupils by biting their thumbs.

Weymouth Fair.

The annual fair of the Weymouth Agricultural and Industrial Society has for several years been an honor to the town in the agricultural way but this year a new victory will be scored. In the past, too little attention has been given to the "Industrial" feature of the town but a new departure will be made next week. The several manufacturers in town have signified their willingness to make exhibits and everything pertaining to Weymouth's industries is expected to be there. This new feature will be a move in the right direction and the society will have an uplift along the line of what its name signifies.—Weymouth Transcript.

ALMANACS ARE ANCIENT.

They Were Made by the Greeks as Far Back as A. D. 100.

According to Theon, the commentator on Ptolemy, almanacs, as we understand the word, were constructed from about the year 100 A. D. by the Greeks of Alexandria, but the dates of festivals and other events of national interest had been exposed on marble tablets in Rome 200 years B. C. Lalande, an authority on the subject, states that the earliest almanac of which the author's name is preserved was that of Solomon Jarchus, who lived in the middle of the twelfth century.

A primitive English calendar or almanac was called the "prime-staff," "rein-stock" or "clog almanac." It was made of wood, bone or horn, about eight inches long, like a square ruler. On this the days were marked by a series of notches, every seventh being of larger size. The festivals were indicated by symbols, as were the golden number and the cycle of the moon.

Specimens of this "clog almanac" may be seen at the British museum and in museums or libraries at Oxford, Cambridge and Manchester. Some of larger size were hung "at one end of the mantle-tree of their chimneys" for general use, and smaller ones were carried in the pocket or on the walking stick.—Pearson's Weekly.

EDUCATION IN TURKEY.

Timely Facts About the American Colleges.

Owing to the widespread interest regarding the imperiled American Christian colleges for young men in Turkey, the American board of commissioners for foreign missions is about to issue a report on the subject, translated from the Turkish, says the Boston Transcript. It comes from Aintab, central Turkey, and contains the following:

These colleges, according to the order of their dates of establishment, are: Robert college, at Constantinople; Syrian Protestant college, at Beirut; Central Turkey college, at Aintab; Euphrates college, at Karput; Anatolia college, at Marsovan, and St. Paul's institute, at Tarsus. Beirut college, in the growth of its courses of study, variety of branches, accommodation of its buildings and completeness of its equipments and apparatus, has been making very rapid progress, so that the value of its present property is not less than 100,000 lire, nearly $400,000. The number of its teachers in various branches is more than forty, ten of whom are professors. There are now 1,489 students in the colleges, 771 of whom are Armenians.

There is one point in which none of the others can be compared with Robert college. The latter holds the greatest number of the officers in governmental departments. It is able to show among its graduates lieutenants, generals, commanders, judges, mayors, governors, ambassadors and even cabinet members and prime ministers, and these are not merely some exceptions, but nearly one-fourth of its graduates have attained one or the other of these high positions. This superiority may be ascribed partly to its high standard of education and largely to its important geographical situation in a central point between Asia and Europe. Many famous Armenian professors in Constantinople, also well known merchants, physicians and editors, are graduates of Robert college. The Euphrates college has suffered most from the disturbances. The tendency in its vicinity to leave the country has been so strong that, besides the number of the students being diminished, many hopeful graduates and even teachers of the college have left the country for foreign lands.

DOWIE'S GREAT HOST.

Eight Trains to Bring 3,000 Restorationists to New York.

Dr. John Alexander Dowie of Chicago, who will invade New York next month with his 3,000 restoration host, has fixed up his train schedule, says the New York World. The host will virtually camp in Madison Square Garden for two weeks, and the 3,000 will attempt to call at all homes and business places of Greater New York with a card and the salutation "Peace to Thee."

The card reads in part: "Zion restoration host and organization of the Christian Catholic church in Zion in obedience to the command of Jesus Christ to 'Go and make disciples of all nations,' is going forth by thousands throughout the world bearing the Master's message of 'Peace' to all people. They bring to you today a message from a man of God, sent in fulfillment of the prophecy to prepare the world for the coming King. They ask you to read and consider."

Then follows a long Dowie interpretation of the Scriptures. A band, a choir of 100 and a junior choir of children will accompany the host.

The train leaves Chicago on Oct. 14, arriving in New York Oct. 16. The schedule follows:

English Smugglers.

Smuggling was carried on with great boldness in England a century ago. When Samuel Pellew was appointed collector of customs at Falmouth early last century he found corruption the chief characteristic of the service. One day he surprised a party of his own men attempting to smuggle in a cargo of wine in broad daylight. Pellew, who was a conscientious man, so worried the smugglers that they threatened his life repeatedly and posted bills offering a reward for his assassination. One smuggler, who kept a public house, erected a battery of guns to defend his illicit goods, and when a sloop of war exhibited what he considered a too inquisitive spirit actually fired on her. The vessel's guns were too low to reply with effect, but her crew landed in boats, attacked the house in the rear and leveled it to the ground.

The Difference In Two Words.

Did it ever occur to you to think of the difference in significance of the two words "seems" and "appears?" We say "it seems to be true" or "it appears to be true." Are those expressions identical, or if there be a difference what is it?

There is a difference, and it consists chiefly in the strength of the expression. If we read a story and say, "That story seems to be true," we mean that it has the semblance of truth and we infer that it is true. If we say, "That story appears to be true," we mean that the statements made in it or the incidents related go to show its truth.

In other words, "appears" refers to the actual presentation of something to our view; "seems" refers to an inference of our mind as to the probability of a thing being true.

A POET'S ALOOFNESS.

The Manner In Which Wordsworth Was Regarded by His Neighbors.

The worthies of Wordsworth's village in the lake country of England had their own ideas of his value as a man and as a poet. When questioned after his death as to his personality they readily admitted that he was kind to those who were in sickness or need. They could count on him on a pinch. But he did not hobnob with his neighbors.

"He did not notice them much," said an old man in answer to questions asked by the author of "Lake Country Sketches."

"A Jem Crow and an auld blue cloak was his rig," continued the old man. "And as for his habits, he had noan. Niver knew him with a pot i' his hand or a pipe i' his mouth."

After deep probing the author brought out:

"Yes; Wordsworth was fond of a good dinner at times if you could get him to it. That was the job."

Then the poet's aloofness was again touched upon.

"He was forever pacing the roads and his own garden walks and always composing poetry. He was ter'ble throng in visitors and folks ye mun ken at times, but if he could get awa' fra them a spell he was out upon his walk.

"And then he would set his head a bit forrad and put his hands behint his back. And then he would start a-bumming, and it was bum, bum, bum, and go on bumming for long enough right down and back again. I suppose, ye ken, the bumming helped him out a bit."

Not a Good Looker.

From the mountains of Camden, Me., comes a story of a Philadelphia merchant who has a summer cottage in that village and who wished to exchange a lively horse which he owned with a French Canadian who had a more gentle animal, which women and children could drive. The Frenchman was willing to trade, but for some reason insisted upon repeating to the visitor that the local horse did not "look" as well as the one belonging to the Philadelphia man.

An exchange satisfactory to both parties was eventually made, and the first time the visitor's wife took the new horse out for a drive she discovered that the beast was as blind as a mole. A few days later, when the rusticator met the Frenchman, he said:

"See here, you rascal! That horse you swapped with me for mine was stone blind. Why didn't you tell me of it at the time?"

"Ah'm bin try tell you all Ah'm bin know how fer to tell. Ah'm bin say my horse was no look lak you horse—say so seex, nine tams. Ah'm no bin blam' eef you no hear me."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Trees Shaped by the Wind.

The effect of wind upon trees is powerful. Even the presence or absence of forests may be determined by the character of the prevailing wind or the conditions that modify it. The wind acts as a drying agent, giving a special aspect to many plants. When it is almost always from the same quarter the plants show greater development upon one side. Trees are smaller on the windward edges of forests, and trunks and branches are bent to leeward. The deformations are most marked near the sea or in flat regions. The cherry, plum, walnut, black poplar, ash and certain pines are very sensitive to the wind, but mountain pines and certain firs offer great powers of resistance, and these are recommended for reforesting wind swept lands.

History Made Palatable.

Joseph Salvador, the French historian, and Jules Sandeau, a novelist, made their meeting at a public reception the occasion for a dispute as to the respective places which they occupied in the world of letters.

"The reading of history is like a pill—it needs the sugar coating to make it palatable," argued the novelist.

"Ah, but it is the ingredient which cures, not the coating," remarked the historian.

"Then let us divide honors," said Sandeau, "for if it were not for my sugar coating your historical facts would dry on the shelves."

The Duration of a Dream.

One evening Victor Hugo was dictating letters to his secretary. Overcome by fatigue, the great man dropped into a slumber. A few moments afterward he awoke, haunted by a dream which, as he thought, had extended over several hours, and he blamed his secretary for sitting there waiting for him instead of wakening him or else going away. What was his surprise when the bewildered secretary told him that he had only just finished writing the last sentence dictated to him.

THE SHIP'S PURSER.

Some of the Things That Make His Life at Times a Burden.

The lot of the purser is anything but a happy one. From his title one would think that he had only to look after the finance of the vessel, but in reality his office, so conveniently and picturesquely situated at the top of the grand staircase, is really as busy a bureau as any in Capel court or Wall street. It is no doubt legitimate enough to expect the purser to be quite au fait with the monetary matters, to explain to the Britisher the difference between a dollar and a crown or to the American that the greenback is treated with scorn and contumely in Europe, but our American friends are par excellence the interrogators of the world, and to them the purser is simply a walking encyclopedia.

He is expected to tell them all about the ship—that's right enough—but they want to know all about the passengers as well, who they are, where they have come from and where they are going, how much they are worth and any little titbit of news about their social life. He is also asked about every hotel, beginning at Liverpool and ending at Rome, the best shops whereat to purchase different articles, who will give the best discount for cash, where the questioner's wife can best be rigged up in European fashion and the most likely resort at which his daughter might run across some impecunious scion of British nobility.—Harry Furness in Strand.

Position of Wood and Its Durability.

The problem has troubled many why two pieces of wood sawed from the same section of a tree should possess very varied characteristics when used in different positions. For example, a gate post will be found to decay much faster if the butt end of the tree is uppermost than would be the case if the top were placed in this position. The reason is that the moisture of the atmosphere will permeate the pores of the wood much more rapidly the way the tree grew than it would if in the opposite direction.

Microscopical examination proves that the pores invite the ascent of moisture, while they repel its descent. Take the familiar case of a wooden bucket. Many may have noticed that some of the staves appear to be entirely saturated, while others are apparently quite dry. This arises from the same cause—the dry staves are in the position in which the tree grew, while the saturated ones are reversed.

A Reminiscence of Fanny Kemble.

Fanny Kemble is remembered by old residents of Germantown and Philadelphia as a superb horsewoman. She had a fiery temper, which matched that of her husband, Pierce Butler, and speedily brought about one of the most noted divorce trials reported in the law books. In her youth she was remarkably beautiful, and in the role of Juliet she was the personification of dazzling loveliness. She was noted for her keenness of wit even in the days of her old age. Once when an impertinent street lounger stepped up to her while she was looking in the window of a bric-a-brac store and said, "Are you fond of antiquities?" Mrs. Kemble quickly unpinned her veil and, turning on the man her aged face (she was then seventy-three), asked, "Are you?"

WITHIN PRISON WALLS

Counterfeit Dimes, Quarters and Half Dollars Were Made

INSPECTORS HAVE PROOF

In the Form of Some of the Coins, Together With Metals and Dies Used—Disclosure Follows Other Irregularities Lately Discovered

Philadelphia, Sept. 14.—Following closely upon the exposure of gross irregularities in the cigar department of the eastern penitentiary came the public announcement last night that the illegal coinage of minor silver pieces has been carried on by convicts in the big institution. No details of the counterfeiting scheme can be learned from any of the officials connected with the prison or from the government officials that have been assigned to the case. The fact that such a daring scheme had been carried on in the penitentiary was made public by George Vaux, Jr., one of the prison inspectors, who summoned newspaper men to his home and voluntarily made the disclosure. He gave out a brief statement, which is as follows:

"Dr. W. D. Robinson and George Vaux, Jr., who are at present the visiting inspectors on duty at the Eastern state penitentiary, made the statement that there has come to their official knowledge that within a short time an attempt has been made by certain convicts now confined in the penitentiary to manufacture counterfeit silver coins. But a few pieces were made, and a number of these have come into the possession of the inspectors, together with metals and dies used, the attempt thus being nipped in the bud. The evidence in the case is not yet complete, but all that has been secured has been submitted to the United States authorities."

Mr. Vaux refused to give any more details than contained in his statement. From other sources, however, it was learned that dimes, quarters and half dollars were the coins manufactured. The discovery was made several days ago and United States secret service officials were immediately called in. Their investigation, it is learned, is still in progress, their principal object being to learn whether there was collusion between the convicts and employes of the institution.

It is believed the discovery of counterfeiters in the prison was the result of the investigation now being carried on in the place as a result of the irregularities in the cigar department. These irregularities became public matter last week, and pending an investigation, Warden Daniel Bussinger and the overseer of the cigar department were temporarily relieved from duty and the penitentiary placed in charge of Rev. Joseph Welch, the chaplain.

It is alleged that thousands of cigars made by convicts are unaccounted for, that thousands of them did not contain internal revenue stamps and that in many instances the law requiring prison made cigars to be stamped "convict made" was ignored. How long this has been carried on is yet to be learned.

The government of the penitentiary is vested in a board of five inspectors appointed by the governor who serve without salary. This board is now making an inspection of each branch of the institution and has employed an expert accountant to go over the books. In addition to this the internal revenue officers are carrying on a separate investigation. Warden Bussinger has been permitted to engage an accountant to protect his interests in the matter of his accounts.

Indicted Men Missing

Washington, Sept. 14.—Information has come to light which seems to indicate that Isaac S. McGiehan and George H. Huntington, members of the Columbia Supply company, were given advance information of the indictments returned against them by the federal grand jury here last Tuesday. It is said both these men disappeared from New York before the warrant could be served on them.

Rain Hurts Washington Crops

Spokane, Sept. 14.—Reports of damage done to the grain and hay crops are coming in from all sections of eastern Washington except in the Big Bend. For the past two weeks rain has fallen in heavy showers nearly every day. A fair estimate of the wheat harvest is that two-thirds has been cut. Much of this is stacked in the fields and is swelling from the continued downpour.

QUINCY LEAGUE.

Wollastons Win and Are Tied for First Place.

The rival base ball teams of Wollaston met in the Quincy base ball league at Merrymount park on Saturday, and it proved a one-sided contest, the Wollastons defeating the Merrymounts 13 to 5.

Fountain and Benson was the battery of the Wollastons and their opponents made only a few scratch hits.

Kolson and Chadbourne, the battery of the Merrymounts did good work.

The Wollastons made 15 safe hits and the Merrymounts 8. Wollaston was credited with 4 errors, and Merrymount with 8.

The score by innings:

ANOTHER VICTORY.

The Wollaston Parks Finish a Successful Season.

Wollaston Park finished their schedule Saturday afternoon by defeating the Eagles of Readville 17 to 1.

Up to the fourth inning it looked like a close contest, but the Park boys got at the bat in the fifth inning and almost batted the pitcher out of the box.

The support given to Gram was excellent, and only three safe hits were made off him. Treadway, Welsh and Kappler also played a fine game.

Fennor of the Eagles played the best game for their side by striking out 14 men, Lee and McKenna played a good game, getting Welsh and Woodman out on a difficult double play.

The most notable feature of the game was the foul fly caught by Gram while running through the crowd.

Sheriff, Deputy and Crook Killed

Edna, Tex., Sept. 14.—Sheriff Wharton and Deputy Burgh arrested W. T. Lander on a charge of attempted swindling. Lander was taken to jail, but when the officers attempted to search him he drew a revolver and opened fire. The first bullet struck Sheriff Wharton and the second mortally wounded the deputy. The sheriff, in falling, drew his revolver and fired point blank at the prisoner, killing him instantly. Wharton when picked up was dead and Brugh died an hour later.

Launching of the Maryland

Newport News, Va., Sept. 14.—The United States 15,600-ton armored cruiser Maryland was launched at the yards of the Newport News Shipbuilding company. The intensity of the sun's rays caused the melting of the tallow with which the ways were greased and the big keel, instead of gliding down the incline, clung to her cradle. When she was finally released the warship dipped her stern heavily and grounded in the mud. No injury was sustained by the Maryland, however.

RUSSIA IN CHINA

Another Move Which Gives Czar's Government the Upper Hand

Pekin, Sept. 14.—Russia has presented the Chinese government a new scheme for evacuating Manchuria, further prolonging the time for evacuation, originally fixed for Oct. 8, and proposing certain new conditions, in addition to most of the conditions included in the last scheme. Russia now proposes to evacuate New Chwang and Mukden province Oct. 8, Kirin province four months later and the third province a year later.

Among the new conditions Russia stipulates that she shall maintain military posts on the road from Tsitsihar, capital of Hielung-Kwang, to Baglovestchensk and on the Sungari river. The reason Russia gives for maintaining these posts is that they are necessary to protect the commerce of the railroad. There is a vaguely worded clause prohibiting heavy duties on goods transported by the railway, which the diplomats construe as exempting Russian goods transported on the railway from the surtax which the British, Japanese and American treaties substitute for the likin duties. The scheme also contains a provision that Chinese troops shall protect the branches of the Russo-Chinese bank when necessary.

Prince Ching, president of the foreign board, says that he considers the Russian conditions to be very reasonable.

A Protest From Japan

Shanghai, Sept. 14.—The Japanese minister at Pekin has entered a strong protest against the new proposals of Russia regarding the evacuation of Manchuria, which have excited angry surprise in Japan.

Salvationists' Hard Job

Cleveland, Sept. 14.—Colonel Holz, who will command the Salvation Army corps during its trip into the mountain districts of Kentucky and Tennessee, was given a farewell by the local army branch last night. In an interview he said: "Our object is to carry Christianity to the mountaineers of the southern states. These people are practically without Christianity. We feel that we should get in touch with these mountain people; have a band of salvationists personally visit them and try our methods on them. I can only say that we are hopeful; our methods may not work at all. The coming trip will tell the tale."

Auto Went Into Canal

Syracuse, Sept. 14.—A 20-horse power automobile owned by Dr. John G. Lyman of New York, went through an open bridge into the Erie canal. With Dr. Lyman at the time of the accident were Armand W. Brand and W. T. Rynard. The party did not notice that the bridge was up for the passage of a boat until it was too late to stop the progress of the machine. None of the occupants was seriously hurt.

Lipton Has a Bad Attack

Utica, N. Y., Sept. 14.—When Sir Thomas Lipton arrived in this city this morning, en route for the west, he was suffering from cramps and indigestion to such an extent that a doctor was summoned and remained with him until the time for the departure of the train carrying Lipton. His condition for a time was quite serious.

Our National Anthem

Washington, Sept. 14.—The navy department has issued an order declaring "The Star Spangled Banner" the national anthem and directing whenever that composition is played all officers and men shall stand at attention unless they are engarged in duty that will not permit them to do so.

Hoosiers Saw an Airship

Indianapolis, Sept. 14.—A torpedo-shaped airship, about 30 feet long and containing two men, passed over Indianapolis Sunday afternoon. It came from the northwest, circled over the southern part of the city at a height of 700 feet, and disappeared in an easterly direction.

Shooting and Kicking Tragedy

Norwich, N. Y., Sept. 14.—In a fight at McDonough Tracey H. Burrows was kicked to death by Frank Gole, whom Burrows had just shot in the neck. Burrows had accused Gole of escorting his wife to a county fair.

Secretary Hill.

The funeral of Dr. Frank A. Hill, the well known educator, who died at the home of his son in Brookline Friday, will be held at the Shepard Memorial Church, Garden street, Cambringe, on Tuesday, at 4 P. M.

A patent has been issued to M. T. Harrigan of Wollaston for a channel-laying machine.

FROM PHILIPPINES.

The Body of Lieut. Bumpus Has Arrived in New York.

The body of Lieut. Edward A. Bumpus, who was killed in the Philippines in 1901 is expected in Quincy this week for burial in the family lot at Mt. Wollaston, where a memorial has already been erected.

A dispatch from New York under date of Saturday reporting the arrival of the transport says: The duration of the Kilpatrick's trip was due in part to a heavy monsoon encountered in the Indian ocean.

The ship touched at Colombo, Ceylon, and Aden, Suez, Port Said, Malta and Gibralter, the officers of the 5th regiment being entertained by a dinner by the royal artillery and royal engineers at Malta.

Both the regiment and the transport received high commendation from British officers who inspected them on the journey, the transport arrangements on the Kilpatrick being held to be the best in the world.

Among the dead on board were the bodies of Lieut. Vicars, slain at Bacolod; Capt. Connell, and Lieut. Bumpus of Quincy, Mass., and other victims of the Balangiga massacre in Samar in December, 1901, and Lieut. Lee of the engineers and others killed at Lipa, Batangas.

London, Sept. 14.—The Vienna correspondent of The Daily Mail declares that the Hungarian political crisis has become so acute that the abdication of Emperor Francis Joseph as King of Hungary is freely discussed in the latter country, and there is a strong feeling in favor of Hungary's right to choose its own king, the candidate favored being the German emperor's son, Prince Eitel.

NEW SYNAGOGUE.

Hebrews Dedicate Their Church Edifice.

Greater Part of Cost Has Been Paid.

Several from Out of Town—Many Speakers.

The Hebrews of Quincy now have a synagogue of which they may be proud, and as the greater part of the cost has been paid they are in a strong financial condition, and ready to do a good work.

The new edifice was formerly St. John's hall on School street, which has been remodelled and improved and is now well adapted to the uses of the new society. The auditorium is 30 x 60, and has seats for 150. At the head of the hall is the ark of the testimony where the scroll or holy books are kept. Directly in front of this and entirely separate is the altar where the services are conducted. This is nearly in the centre of the auditorium so that there are seats at the sides and almost in the rear as well as in front.

The dedication services on Sunday afternoon were largely attended, exceeding the seating capacity of the edifice, not being confined wholly to Hebrews. There were also people from Boston, Dedham, Everett, Charlestown and elsewhere.

David Abrams was master of ceremonies for the occasion. The doors were officially opened by Henry Litchman, the president. The holy book was escorted from the old place of worship to the new synagogue by Louis Berman and Joseph Lobowitch. While the scroll were thus being placed Rabbi A. I. Mannerortz and the choir of the Bowdoin Place Synagogue of Boston chanted a selection.

Elisha Greenwood, Esq., the well known Hebrew attorney of Boston, was made chairman, for the day, and made a stirring address which was well received.

Rev. W. B. Barr, pastor of the United Presbyterian church across the way was introduced, and extended the right hand of fellowship and was heartily applauded. He spoke in very congratulatory terms and encouraged the new society.

Other speakers were: Walter Pinel of the Christaldelphian church, Chief Rabbi R. S. Shocher of Boston, and Israel Hirshberg of Boston. The sermon of the Rabbi was able and interesting and pleased the people.

After the speaking a collection was taken, which netted about $185 in cash and nearly as much more in pledges. The purchase of the building and the remodelling have cost about $3,500, and the society will start with a mortgage of but $1,000.

Refreshments were served in the lower room to the out-of-town friends and guests.

Probably the society would not have realized its new synagogue for many years, but for the great interest taken by Henry Litchman. About ten years he started the society with meetings which for three years were held at his house. Since then they have been held in halls. It was Mr. Litchman's ambition to get a church, and it has now been realized.

The building committee, appointed about a year ago, are: H. Berger, chairman; Louis Grossman, Louis Berman, Joseph Lebowitch, Samuel Castleman, W. Lebowitch and Samuel Cohen.

The contractor who remodelled and fitted up the edifice was W. F. McCalder, who did a good job.

The present officers of the society are: President, Henry Litchman; Vice President, Louis Grossman; Secretary, Benjamin Asnes; Treasurer, David Silverman.

The society which is limited to men numbers 32.

Hanging over the entrance outside the synagogue during the dedication was an American flag.

The new church will be known as Ahavath Achim.

Hisses For Combes

Paris, Sept. 14.—On the occasion of the unveiling of a memorial to Ernest Renan, the historian and Orientalist, at his native town of Trekuier, Brittany, some demonstrations were made against Premier Combes in the villages through which his carriage passed. Hisses and offensive shouts were raised by the peasants, who are fanatical Catholics.

THREE IN LINE.

For the Nominations for Representatives.

Freeman, Hall and Sandberg to Run.

No Contests in Any of the Wards for Delegates.

Probably many will be surprised to learn that the time has expired for filing nominations for the Republican caucuses, very little notice having been given. Although the caucuses are to be held next week, Saturday night was the last date on which nominations could be made.

In some wards no list at all was filed, but the committee made out a ticket.

There is no contest in any ward for delegates to any convention.

Contrary to expectations there are but three who aspire to be candidates for the Legislature and two are to be nominated directly by the voters who attend the caucuses.

The names filed for Representatives are: R. R. Freeman of Ward Five, who was in the General Court of 1903; Hon. John O. Hall of Ward One, recently Mayor of the city, and Edward J. Sandberg of Ward Four, who made a strong run last year.

Season at Houghs Neck.

The season at Houghs Neck is rapidly drawing to a close. Many families have already left the beach for their winter home and others are leaving every day. New arrivals are few and far between. Taken as a whole the season cannot be said to have been a successful one financially for those who look for a living by selling fish dinners, groceries or soda. There have been some large crowds at the beach, but there have been so many cold and stormy days that what was made in one day was lost in the days that followed. There have been a number of undesirable parties at the beach this year. More even than last season. They have kept quiet during the day and evening until the officer left for home. Then, however, it is reported that they have made Rome howl.

A VICIOUS YOUNGSTER

Tries to Kill a Five-Year-Old Child In a Spirit of Revenge

Meriden, Conn., Sept. 14.—Calmly remarking that he was going to kill her, Charles Peckham, a boy from the Connecticut school for boys paroled out to Westfield farmer named Crowell, deliberately shot Gertrude Crowell, aged 5. The bullet struck her in the middle of the forehead and it was only by chance that she escaped instant death. As it was, a flesh wound was the only result which, it is thought, will not be fatal unless blood poisoning sets in.

It is supposed that Peckham shot the child in a spirit of revenge, as he was to be returned to the school today. Gertrude Crowell, with a little sister, started out to meet their father, who is a milkman. Peckham called the children into a field and then deliberately shot the little one. Peckham, who is 15 years old and probably weak minded, fled after the shooting and is still at large.

Will Recover From Smashup

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 14.—Michael Kane, 35, a carpenter, was at work last Tuesday on a staging 40 feet from the ground, when he fell. He struck on his feet, but was dashed against the side of the building. He had a fractured skull, a broken jaw and an injury to the spine, which the physicians say amounted to such a dislocation that some of the bones were half an inch apart. It was thought that he had no chance of getting well, but his condition has improved and the hospital surgeons now believe he will make a complete recovery.

Complaint of Armenians

Boston, Sept. 14.—At a mass meeting of Armenians from all over the United States held in this city resolutions were adopted that President Roosevelt be petitioned to intercede to protect the lives and property of Armenian-Americans in Russia. The protest will strongly condemn the whole Russian administration as conduced in defiance of law and morality and take the ground that the czar has confiscated the property of citizens of this country without process of law and that therefore indemnity should be given.

Body Buried In Sand

Greenfield, Mass., Sept. 14.—The discovery in Green river of the body of Miss Mary E. Kelliher, 24, solved the mystery surrounding her disappearance on Aug. 25 last. The feet protruded from the sand at the bottom of about five feet of water, the body having been buried deeply by the action of the water. A disordered mind caused Miss Kelliher to take her own life.

Fire In Coal Pockets

Boston, Sept. 14.—After two hours' hard fighting the firemen succeeded in controlling a fire in the coal pockets of the Burnham Coal company, which destroyed hundreds of tons of coal and caused a loss of $10,000. A detail of men with three lines of hose, assisted by the employes of the company, worked all day in extinguishing the smouldering fire.

Woman Robbed by Footpad

Nashua, N. H., Sept. 14.—Mrs. Auguste Gaedeke, proprietor of a millinery establishment in this city, was returning to her home a little after midnight and was passing through an unfrequented locality when a man stepped from behind a tree and demanded her pocket book, which contained $75. She handed it over and the man disappeared.

Valuable Naval Acquisitions

Newport, R. I., Sept. 14.—Torpedoes were successfully fired at three vessels of the United States navy by the submarine boats Adder and Moccasin, participating in the first of three torpedo tests to be made in connection with the naval maneuvers. In real warfare each of the three torpedo boats would easily have been sunk.

Subscriptions Came Freely

Salem, Mass., Sept. 14.—At the old home Sunday service in the Wesley Methodist church $14,025 was subscribed at the morning service and the remainder of the church debt, which amounted to $15,000, was wiped out at the evening service. Addresses were made by pastors of the church in the past.

Canoe Fatality

Lowell, Mass., Sept. 14.—By the overturning of a canoe in a canal here a young man and two girls were thrown into the water and one of the party, Miss Emma Palm, aged 18, was drowned. The other two reached for a cable which stretched across the water and reached the shore in safety.

Alleged Forger Captured

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 14.—Clarence W. Thompson, wanted on a charge of forgery, was arrested at the home of his grandfather, R. L. Weatherby, at Westboro, by seven officers who surrounded the house. Thompson had been arrested in Worcester, but bolted from police headquarters.

From Frying Pan to Fire

Boston, Sept. 14.—Upon the completion of a term in the Hampden county jail at Springfield for forgery, William L. Santmyer was arrested and brought to this city charged with the larceny of $500 from a Washington resident. Santmyer was held in $2000 bonds.

Fell Under Car Wheels

Gardiner, Me., Sept. 14.—In attempting to board an electric car at Farmingdale last night Louis Brooks, 21, of Waterville, fell under the wheels and was instantly killed.

The Brockton Fair.

The Brockton fair, which occurs Sept. 29 and 30 and Oct. 1 and 2, this year will be larger than ever before. More land has been added to the fair grounds, more departments have been added to the exhibits, more talent has been secured for the stages and more entries made for the races and athletic sports than ever before. Changes in the several departments of the fair have been numerous and of much importance. A new and wider gate has replaced the old one that has hitherto given admittance to the grand stand, and the oval inside of the race track will be divided into two sections, one for such sports as running, jumping, pole vaulting and football, and the other for carriages. It is predicted that the stage performances this year will far eclipse anything that has ever been given at the Brockton fair in this line in previous years, for many of the most celebrated vaudeville artists have been engaged for the event.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

The Wollastons by winning their game with the Merrymounts on Saturday are tied with Quincys for first place in the Quincy base ball laague. But two games remain to complete the league schedule; the first two clubs will meet on Saturday to decide the championship. OPEN REGATTA.

Wind Was Light But Seventeen Sail the Course.

An open race under the rules of the Boston Bay association was sailed under the auspices of the Quincy Yacht club on Saturday afternoon at Houghs Neck. Generous prizes were offered by ex-Commodore John Cavanagh and there were a large number of entries, confined however to the third, fourth and fifth classes.

An easterly breeze prevailed at the start but it shifted to the south and was light and variable, so much so that only one of the yachts in the third class completed in the three-hour limit, but this was enough to bring in the class. The Wawenock beat the Omeme in this class over three minutes. The Eclipse was third but is protested by the Hustler.

The Thelma won by over three minutes in the fourth class, her nearest rival being the new May G.

The Louise in the fifth class had a cinch, defeating her nearest rival, the Beth nearly ten minutes.

—No worthier successor to Secretary Root in the War department could be found than Gov. William H. Taft. True, he will be greatly missed in the Philippines, where his services have been of incalculable benefit in settling disputed questions and in bringing order out of chaos in the much distracted archipelago, which came into our hands unexpectedly after a long period of Spanish misrule. His long stay in Manila has been detrimental to his health, and he is deserving of a respite from burdensome cares in a disagreeable climate, even if he has to assume others equally, if not more, important at home.—Mass. BUNCOED BANKERS

Slick Individual Has Given Boston Police the Slip

Boston, Sept. 14.—No trace has been found of the smooth-talking man calling himself Norman H. Poor, who swindled E. H. Gay & Co. out of $15,000 worth of bonds last Thursday. His boldness and cleverness have amazed the police officials.

Messenger Hooper, who delivered the goods, reports that when he called at Poor's office on Thursday Poor had the check ready and handed it to him. The check later proved to be worthless. The messenger did not see Poor make it out.

This will cause the police no end of trouble. They will have to show that Poor forged the check. They hope to be able to prove that the writing is the same as that on the check given to Harris & Co. Ten thousand circulars were sent out yesterday by the police to all the large cities.

The man is pronounced one of the slickest swindlers that the police have had to deal with in years. Twice within nine months he has operated, and he has carried away $30,000.

The first job was when this slick stranger went to the banking house of N. W. Harris & Co. and gave a forged check for $15,000 in return for railroad bonds. Only $5000 worth of these bonds were ever traced. It is thought the balance were sold in Europe.

Today at 3 o'clock, when the New York and Boston exchanges close, the police will be able to tell whether the bonds were sold in either city since Thursday.

Wind Blew Ninety Miles an Hour

Nassau, Bahamas, Sept. 14.—A severe hurricane here came without warning by cable, the wind blowing 90 miles an hour. Great damage has been done to vegetation and farm produce, while the fruit crops have been ruined. Many houses were damaged, but no loss of life has yet been reported. The shipping around this island (New Providence) was badly damaged. No news from the other islands has yet been received.

Train Went Down Embankment

Dassel, Minn., Sept. 14.—An eastbound passenger train on the Great Northern railroad was wrecked one mile west of this place. An unknown man was killed. Several passengers were injured, but none fatally. The entire train went into the ditch. The day coaches turned completely over and went down a 25-foot embankment. The train was running very fast and that the casualties were no greater was miraculous.

New Globe Theatre.

Messrs. Weber and Fields on Saturday evening gave a private view of their new Globe theatre to a party of about 200; and the verdict was not only favorable, but genuinely enthusiastic. The new Globe is unquestionably something entirely out of the ordinary in the line of theatres and will rank high among the many beautiful playhouses of Boston. It is located at the corner of Washington and Beach streets, and only a walk of five minutes from the South Station. During the evening the orchestra played a brilliant program and lunch was served on the stage. The long tables were beautified with several large sheaves of cut flowers. Both Messrs. Weber and Fields expressed themselves as more than satisfied with their new theatre and were warm in their praise of architect Vinal's skill. Resident Manager Victor Mapes assisted Messrs. Weber and Fields in entertaining their guests. The reception lasted from 8 until 10, at which hour Mr. Hackett's company took the stage for a rehearsal of "John Eamine of the Yellowstone," with which the Globe theatre will open tonight.

EXPLOSION OF ALCOHOL

On Deck of the Olympia With Fatal Results

SAILORS HAD SMUGGLED IT

Was Being Emptied Into Tank on Cruiser When Fumes of Spirits Became Ignited—Corporal Roasted to Death and an Apprentice Dies

Norfolk, Sept. 14.—Lieutenant Commander Van Dozer, executive officer of the cruiser Olympia, has given out an official statement of the facts attending the explosion of a barrel of alcohol on the cruiser's deck Saturday night, causing the death of Corporal Yerkes, U. S. M. C., the fatal injury of Apprentice Seifert and the serious injury of Classmaster-at-Arms Caster and Apprentice Spavey, in addition to the burning of the cruiser's forward awnings and awning supports. The explosion resulted indirectly from the smuggling of alcohol into the navy yard by members of the cruiser's crew.

The statement of Lieutenant Commander Van Dozer says: "The entire crew of the Olympia were returning aboard after 40 hours' shore liberty, when a five-gallon water breaker full of alcohol was discovered in the forward turret. The executive officer at once ordered a thorough search of the ship and yard in her vicinity to find any other spirits that might have been smuggled. The cruiser is in dry dock and all her small boats are lined along the wharf near the dry dock. Between two of these boats two men were discovered. One fled and escaped in the darkness. The other was placed under arrest. Where the men were hiding was found a full barrel of alcohol. It was, by order, carried aboard the Olympia to be emptied into the alcohol tank on the aft deck.

"This tank being full, the barrel was carried forward by Corporal Yerkes, Seifert, Spavey and Caster. In the meantime the crew was called to quarters and every man accounted for.

"While the men were in line answering the roll the detachment with the barrel began pouring its contents into a tank on the port side of the forward turret. They had scarcely begun when, in a manner yet to be ascertained, the fumes of the spirits became ignited and exploded with terrific force. Both ends of the barrel were blown out, followed by a torrent of burning alcohol that spread in a flood of flames over the forward maindeck.

"Yerkes was struck in the head by a stave from the barrel and fell into the burning mass. He was roasted to death. The other men were struck by flying fragments of the barrel, but were knocked away from the centre of the fire and thus two of them escaped fatal injury, but Seifert was horribly burned and so injured that he cannot recover.

"It was first thought a tank of smokeless powder had exploded and the crew for a moment broke ranks, but in a second recovered from the suddenness of the shock and turned to with a will to save their injured shipmates and extinguish the fire, which already was gaining headway on the cruiser's deck. This done, the injured men were hurried to the marine hospital."

Seifert died last night.

Irish Parliament Predicted

Dublin, Sept. 14.—John Redmond, speaking at Aughrim, said the Irish party would find an entirely new situation when parliament next met. The English parties would be broken up and the Irish party would wield a power as it never before possessed. He counselled a continuance of the policy which resulted in securing the Irish land bill, which he valued above all as opening the way to obtaining an Irish parliament.

FOR CHAMPIONSHIP.

The Theodora Finishes First But Did Not Round Right Buoy.

The third and last championship race of the Wollaston yacht club was sailed on Saturday. The Theodore, Pocahontas, Neptune and Sheila were entered in the first class and had a close race. The Theodora was never better handled and gained on each leg. Unfortunately while leading she rounded the wrong buoy off Long island, shortening her course, and finished with a big lead. The Pocahontas lost to the Sheila and Neptune on time allowance.

The West Wind had it easy in the third class.

The race of the power boats was interesting from the fact that the Winona broke her wheel rope when she came to the line. Capt. Gardner was plucky, however, and with his arms down a hole aft, and a handicap of seven minutes, he steered the boat from directions received from a man forward. When Mayor Bryant came to the line in the Squaw he said he would not enter the race but desired to sail over the course. He finished first, but the Winona really made the best actual time. s

—Every one of these warm days means millions to the country. The crop report shows that September is expected to do the work of August. The cotton crop is enormous and speed the day when New England mills may begin to convert it into yarn and webs. The wheat crop is bursting the bins of the West, but the corn needs till the middle of the month. The labor famine has changed from the West to the South and now the cotton planter is bidding for pickers of the article so much needed in the North.—Lewiston Ledger.

BULGARIA'S LAST WORD

Will Go to War Unless Powers Immediately Intervene

TURKEY NOT UNPREPARED

Has Profited by German Advice In Recent Years—Suspicion That Russia Is Aiding Revolutionists to Check Austrian Influence In the Balkans

London, Sept. 14.—Rumor from Vienna and elsewhere is very busy this morning regarding the Balkan crisis, and while it is impossible to confirm the more sensational statements, there is accumulation of evidence that some violent solution cannot long be delayed.

The Sofia correspondent of The Daily Telegraph sends another long dispatch warmly defending Bulgaria's patient and quixotic attitude of loyalty towards the porte and the powers, and denouncing Europe's indifference to the wiping out of a large Christian community. He says:

"Bulgaria has displayed unexampled moderation. Her last urgent request to the powers was that they should compel Turkey to suppress the rising by legitimate methods of warfare, but to spare women and children from indignities and massacre. But even this Christian Europe has refused and now Prince Ferdinand's government, having carefully considered the question and aware of the disastrous consequence which the powers threaten Bulgaria if she intervenes, has decided that it cannot longer neglect its sacred duty to prevent the Christian population being done to death.

"In a couple of days more the die will be cast and Bulgaria will do her duty. An official communication will be made to the powers in the above indicated sense and forthwith the necessary measures will be taken and only countermanded if the powers immediately intervene. This is Bulgaria's last word. The moral responsibility will fall upon Christian Europe even if the material consequences have to be endured by Bulgaria."

A dispatch from Constantinople to The Standard says large forces are being collected to the north and northwest of Constantinople, where, in the event of war, the first fighting is expected to occur, and though allusions to any plan of campaign is strictly censured it may be assumed that German advice during recent years has not left Turkey unprepared this time.

From Vienna comes the semi-official statement that Austria has again proposed to the powers to admonish Bulgaria, but that so far nothing has come to the proposal. The Neues Pester Journal, often well informed, accuses Russia of openly assisting the Macedonian revolutionists, even sending them arms, her object being to gradually exclude Austria from influence in Balkan affairs. The paper even alleges that the Austrian government has asked Count Lamsdorf, the Russian foreign minister, to explain this ambiguous dealing.

The Albanian and Turkish troops collected in the vilayet of Adrianople appear to be pursuing their usual tactics of burning and plundering the villages and killing the peasants instead of making an attempt to break up the insurgent bands.

Very little news is filtering through from Monastir, but all reports agree that the position of the Christians is desperate. The Turks are making a clean sweep of the whole Bulgarian element. The Albanian soldiers in the vilayet of Adrianople are stated to be entirely beyond control. At Kostursco the influential beys complained to the officers of the excesses committed by the troops. The officers resented the criticism and told the soldiers that the beys were friends of the revolutionists, whereupon the soldiers burned the beys' farms.

The Turks have burned the villages of Almagik and Erikler, in the district of Losengrad. They beheaded 22 Bulgarians at Almagik in the presence of their families.

Twelve thousand troops are assembled around Malkotonovo and are engaged in pillaging and burning the villages. The population everywhere is fleeing to the forests and mountains. All the Turkish population in the district of Losengrad has received arms; even the boys have revolvers.

The Albanian soldiers proceeding from Odrin to Losengrad plundered the villages en route, robbed the churches and burned the village of Korakoj. Another body of Albanians going to Vasiliko, on the Black sea, was attacked by a band and is reported to have suffered a loss of 100 men. A band led by the insurgent chief, Atamasoff, was surrounded by Turkish troops at Kokushko. After six hours' fighting the insurgents cut their way through the soldiers by throwing bombs. The Turks lost 20.

The final arrangements for a revolutionary outbreak in eastern Macedonia have been completed, but for some inexplicable reason the rising hangs fire. The whole district is divided into six sections.

Christians Afraid to Return

Constantinople, Sept. 14.—Calm continues at Beirut, but trade is at a standstill. Reshid Pasha, the dismissed vali, left Beirut Saturday for Constantinople. The Christian refugees encamped in the mountains refuse to return to Beirut in spite of the promise of the authorities to protect them.

The Dust In the Air.

The air of cities is impregnated with dust and filth. To combat their deleterious effects the streets should be freely ventilated and watered. Wind and rain are the great destroyers of dust. From the fields the wind lifts the debris of vegetation—pollen, seeds, spores of fungi and bacteria; the dust of the soil—silica, silicate of aluminium, carbonate and phosphate of lime and peroxide of iron. In and proceeding from volcanic regions fine particles of carbon and dried mud are taken up and wafted hundreds or even thousands of miles. In and round about cities and towns the finely ground dust of the pavements, fragments of straw, hair, stable manure, debris of insects, soot, epithelia from floor sweepings or shaken from rugs, carpets and bedding, together with gases and other volatile emanations from factories, rendering establishments, abattoirs, tanyards and compost heaps of all sorts, though not of the air, are in it, in so much as to be in some degree almost everywhere present.—Sanitarian.

A Canny Scot.

A canny Scot lived in a small settlement some miles from the neighboring town. The distance, however, could be considerably lessened by cutting through a large estate. This practice was accordingly so much resorted to that the owner gave peremptory orders for all trespassers to be turned around and sent back the way they came.

One time, however, the Scot in question, having occasion to take some articles to town in a wheelbarrow, decided to run the risk and was about half way through when he saw the owner in the distance. Not relishing the idea of retracing his steps, he bethought himself of a scheme, and, promptly turning the wheelbarrow to face the direction from which he came, he sat down upon it as if resting.

Soon the owner came up and, seeing him there, roughly ordered him to turn around and go back.

As "back" was in this case his objective point, the Scot obeyed and went on his way rejoicing.

Did Not Look Right.

The intelligent compositor, one of the kind that figures in many an anecdote, worked on an Arkansas paper at a period when a well known novelist was editor. One day the printer undertook to set up the word "doughnut." He spelled it "donut."

"See here," said the novelist, "don't you know how to spell 'doughnut?' You've misspelled it here."

The intelligent compositor came over and gazed at the proof and scratched his head in perplexity.

"Well," he admitted, "that doesn't look right, but it had a 'w' in it once, and somehow that didn't look right either."

Set His Own Novel.

B. L. Farjeon was one of the very few writers who set up work in type without the medium of manuscript. When the novelist first turned to fiction he was editor and publisher of the Otago Times, which was printed at his own offices at Dunedin, and many of the chapters of his novel "Grif" were transferred direct to type by the late Mr. Farjeon, who was one of the most rapid compositors of his time. He was a firm believer in charms and attributed much of his good fortune to a New Zealand greenstone which he wore for many years on his watch chain.—London Tit-Bits.

The Home Product.

"I should think you would be ambitious for political distinction."

"No," answered Mr. Cumrox, "I don't care for it. My daughter has studied painting and her pictures of me are funny enough without calling in the aid of any professional cartoonist."—Washington Star.

The Single Misfortune.

"Misfortunes never come singly, you know, Miss Priscilla."

"Alas," said the poor maiden, shaking her head, "the single misfortune is the worst of all!"—New Yorker.

PEARY'S ARCTIC TRIP.

Explorer's Plans For Finding the North Pole.

STEAM TO BE CHIEF MOTIVE POWER

Powerful Engines Are to Be Placed In Stanch Hull of a Wooden Vessel to Withstand the Ice—Fuel Will Be Taken In a Tender—Negro Body Servant to Accompany Him on Last Dash.

The expedition in quest of the north pole which Lieutenant Peary is to conduct next year will be unlike any of its predecessors, says a Washington special to the New York World. Instead of depending upon sails as the chief part of the motive power the explorer will depend almost entirely upon steam. Sails, if used, will be the auxiliary power.

Acting Secretary Darling, who is one of the heartiest supporters the explorer has, said the other afternoon that the lieutenant's idea was to use a stanch wooden hulled craft of not over 400 or 500 tons, but to have in that hull as powerful machinery as he could find. The vessel will be named after Mr. Darling.

Peary's plan is to make his base on Grant Land and winter at Cape Columbia or some point farther west. From that point he will have his Eskimos transport his party across the hummocky ice that exists between the eighty-third and eighty-sixth degrees of latitude. The men who are to make the dash are not to engage in any of the toil of getting across the ice hummocks, but are to preserve their energies for the last stage of the journey, which will be a little more than 300 miles long The Eskimos are expected to transport this party about 100 miles.

"I have not determined the number of men who will accompany me in the run for the pole," said Lieutenant Peary. "It will not, however, consist of much more than twenty-five men, probably not more than twenty. It will depend upon the number of Eskimos I shall be able to get to go with me to the base that is to be established on Grant Land.

"The only man I know positively will be in the last dash will be Matthew Hansen, the colored man who has been with me on former expeditions. I would not think of going without him. He is now in New York serving as a valet, but he will go with me whenever I am ready. I have three Eskimos in mind who will go with me.

"Dogs only will be used in dragging the sleds across the ice between Grant Land and the pole. They are better than men in every respect. They travel faster and are more faithful workers. They require less food, and in case of dire necessity they can be used as food for the members of the party.

"I feel more confident of success than before any of the other trips I have undertaken."

It is altogether probable the explorer will buy an ocean going tug that has a wooden hull in a good state of preservation. This he will have braced so the maximum of resistance to ice pressure will be produced. Into this hull powerful engines will be placed.

A supply of fuel will have to be taken north in a tender and perhaps transported to Grant Land by the most laborious methods, so as to enable the tug to return, if she gets that far north, with the least possible delay after the dash to the pole has been made.

The money for the enterprise has not been raised, but President Roosevelt and Acting Secretary Darling are such good friends of the project that their influence will be put back of the efforts the explorer intends making to procure the necessary funds.

THE BERLIN SUBWAY.

Lessons Learned From the Disaster In Paris.

The Berlin Tageblatt reports that, notwithstanding the assurance of the electrical underground railway authorities in Berlin to the effect that the line is proof against accident similar to that which occurred recently in Paris, the official commission appointed to investigate the conditions under which the line is worked has ordered the installation of a number of additional safety appliances.

These include the more adequate lighting of the tunnels by a system entirely impervious to external influences. It has also been decided that any employee on the trains shall be enabled to shut off the currents at any point so as to prevent the approach of other trains.

Experiments are to be made with a special air shaft capable of dispelling the most blinding smoke. All the men employed on the line are to undergo a special drill to enable them to act promptly in cases of emergency. Printed instructions are also to be issued to the public. The company is especially asked to avoid overcrowding.

Novel Streets For London.

In his evidence before the London traffic commission the other day the chief engineer of the London county council described three new types of street to meet the congested traffic difficulty, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger. One of these involved a scheme to divide the road into two parts—one reserved for motor and other quick traffic and the other for surface trains and slow traffic, with a subway for single decked trains. Another type suggested embodied a double subway for quick and slow tram traffic, and by a third it was proposed to run the trams in two tubes at a deep level. All included the usual pipe subways.

TODAY'S COURT.

Several drunks were before his Honor this morning.

The cases of Julia Gay of Weymouth, Anthony Mullen of Weymouth, William Norrie of Weymouth, Patrick Shea and John Parker of Quincy, were continued.

Martin Bjorkman, Carmine Rati, Edward F. Barry, John Johnson and Patrick Fallon paid $3 each.

Peter McNulty was arraigned for assault on an Officer and also for drunkenness. Case continued until Sept. 19.

APPEAL TO THE POWERS

To Check Systematic Devastation of Macedonia

BULGARIA'S PLAIN WORDS

Indicate That Probabilities of Turco-Bulgarian War Are Greater Than Ever—Turkey Said to Have Powers' Endorsement to Crush Rebellion Without a Display of Mercy

Sofia, Sept. 15.—The Bulgarian government, through its foreign representatives, has addressed a note to the great powers declaring that the porte is systematically devastating Macedonia and massacreing the Christian population. Further, it says, Turkey has mobilized her whole army, which cannot possibly be for the sole purpose of suppressing the revolution. Therefore, the Bulgarian government appeals to the humane sentiment of Europe to prevent the continuance of the massacres and devastation and to stop the mobilization of the Turkish army. The memorandum concludes with the plain statement that unless the powers intervene Bulgaria will be forced to take such measures as she may deem necessary.

While it is possible that a Turco-Bulgarian war may even yet be averted, the probabilities of such an encounter were never greater than at the present moment. The note to the powers, the most decided step yet taken by the principality, was dictated not only by the alarming reports of wholesale massacres and devastation daily arriving, but even more by the indifference of the powers towards the severity of Turkey's repressive measures.

People here consider that the anxiety of the powers seems to be manifested chiefly in repeated admonitions to the porte to suppress the revolution with all speed and energy possible. Telegrams from Constantinople assert that the ambassadors had urged the sultan's government to suppress the insurrection without any consideration of mercy and not to hesitate to burn and destroy the villages or take any other steps which might be deemed necessary.

These dispatches, though of doubtful origin and possibly not worthy of serious acceptation, are not entirely out of harmony with the reports previously received here. The Bulgarian ministry, there appears to be little doubt, in face of the strongest pressure from within and without, has endeavord to maintain strict neutrality, but it appears very possible that the government may now depart from this position.

Warned by previous disastrous experiences, the revolutionary leaders have decided to adopt only guerilla tactics in eastern Macedonia. The policy of occupying towns and villages has proved a mistake, as it has usually resulted in Turkey reoccupying the villages, destroying everything and killing the inhabitants, the insurgents being hampered in their operations by the women and children. A guerilla warfare is expected to exhaust the Turks much sooner, while the unhampered bands can move more easily and more rapidly. It is hoped that the new tactics will result in the women and children being spared unnecessary dangers.

The insurgents now have nearly 2000 men armed with rifles in eastern Macedonia and thousands of peasants are ready to join their forces when a general rising has been proclaimed. This step is being delayed until the supply of rifles, cartridges and dynamite is received. New bands, aggregating 1600 men, are reported to be on their way to the frontier. The Turkish forces now in eastern Macedonia are estimated at 17,000.

The peasants are welcoming the insurgents everywhere with the greatest enthusiasm. The bands are experiencing great difficulty in obtaining arms. It is believed that not a single rifle can be found in Sofia outside the garrison.

The Bulgarian government is reported to have protested against Austria's action in intercepting the 10,000,000 cartridges ordered in Hungary for which Bulgarian money has been paid to the contractors.

A panic prevails in the town of Veles. The soldiers permit no one to leave Veles and the peasants in the surrounding villages have all been killed and their villages destroyed. Complaints made to the civil and military authorities have been without avail.

Severe fighting has occurred near the town of Okrida, in which the Turks lost heavily, but the bands were forced to retire. An engagement between the Turks and insurgents has taken place at Ribartzi, near Kitschevo, and there again the Turks had many killed and wounded, while the insurgent casualties amounted to three. The villages of Tzetina and Skotchivir, in the same district, have been destroyed and their inhabitants massacred.

No Restriction on Working Hours

Washington, Sept. 15.—Secretary Cortelyou, having had his attention called to a statement to the effect that a rule had been adopted by the department of commerce and labor providing that boats working in harbors and ports should not be navigated more than 12 hours continuously out of 24, said that no such rule had been adopted or considered and that there was no restriction whatever upon the number of hours a steamer should be navigated provided she had sufficient crew to insure safety at all times.

The BEST is None too Good for Our People.

AWAY FOUR WEEKS

J. Walter Bradlee of Milton Is Missing.

A Summer Resident at Rock Island.

Widely Known as Auctioneer and Office Holder.

Selectman J. Walter Bradlee of Milton, well known in real estate circles in Milton and Boston, and prominent in Norfolk county republican politics, has disappeared, says the Globe.

His business and social friends began to note his absence from town late in August, but as that was during the hight of the vacation period, nothing in particular was thought of it, as it was surmised that Mr. Bradlee was away for that reason.

A week or so ago his close personal friends began to suspect that there was something wrong, as nothing had been heard of Mr. Bradlee. His wife told those who inquired that she had not seen or heard of him since the morning of Aug. 20, when he left his home at the usual hour to attend to business. She has been looking for his return daily since Aug. 20, and has not yet given up hope that he will return.

Mrs. Bradlee has consulted lawyer Fred H. Williams of Brookline, and the latter has been waiting patiently for two weeks, hoping that Mr. Bradlee would return.

Mr. Williams is an old friend of the Bradlees and Mr. Bradlee has acted as agent for the former in managing property. Just before Mr. Bradlee's disappearance he called on Mr. Williams at his Boston office and the two talked over the former's affairs. Mr. Williams says that he has gone over Mr. Bradlee's affairs and has endeavored to straighten things out.

"So far as I have been able to learn, Mr. Bradlee's indebtedness can all be taken care of, if he will return and resume his business," said Mr. Williams to a Globe reporter yesterday. "I know nothing of his whereabouts," he added. "I hope he will return for his family's sake. He seemed to be devoted to his children, and when his wife was sick last summer he was kind and attentive to her. I don't think there is anything in the stories about family troubles leading to his disappearance. Mrs. Bradlee, I am sure is anxious for his return."

Some of Mr. Bradlee's personal friends said last evening that they have noticed of late that he had kept late hours and had contracted bad habits, and they expressed the fear that his mind has been temporarily affected.

Mr. Bradlee's father, whose name he bears, was one of the shrewdest politicians of Norfolk county and figured prominently in the famous Elijah Morse campaigns for councillor and congress. While suffering from an attack of the grip, a few years ago, the elder Bradlee hanged himself. The senior Bradlee was very popular in Milton and the son inherited much of his father's popular ways.

Mr. Bradlee is about 37 years old. He has been prominent in town affairs and has always been regarded as one of the leading and most progressive business men of the town. In 1901 he was a member of the legislature. He is a Mason and belongs to a number of political clubs.

The family of Mr. Bradlee have for a number of years been summer residents at Houghs Neck, his father being one of the earliest to discover the beauties of that resort.

Overheated Stove.

The alarm from box 143 on Station street at 3.55 Monday afternoon was for a fire in a house on Wilson street owned by Joseph Vogel and occupied by John Murphy and another family. It was caused by an overheated stove, and the loss was about $10.

GOURD ---- FORSAITH.

A Couple Well Known in Quincy Married Among New Hampshire Hills.

Monday afternoon, Sept. 14, was the occasion of a quiet wedding at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Squires Forsaith, in Antrim, N. H., when their daughter, Edith Belle, was married to Mr. Ernest D. Gourd of this city.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. R. Cochrane, D. D., pastor of the Presbyterian church of Antrim.

The bride was handsomely gowned in white chiffon, trimmed with Brussels net and satin, over white taffetta; she wore a veil of Brussels net, and carried a bouquet of bride roses.

Miss Nell Forsaith, a sister of the bride, acted as maid of honor.

Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by Miss Wyman, of Hillsboro Bridge.

The house decorations were goldenrod and autumn foliage. After a wedding luncheon, Mr. and Mrs. Gourd started on a brief journey, after which they will go to their home on Goffe street, Quincy.

Miss Forsaith was recently a teacher at the Coddington school in this city.

Razors Stolen.

The hardware store of William Westland was entered some time last night, by breaking the office window in the rear. The complete stock of razors were taken; also several knives and some cutlery, in all to the value of $50.

The window is ten feet or more from the ground but there is a dividing fence between the estates which helped the fellow some. He probably tried to enter through the cellar first, and is thought to have left that way.

Depot Robbed.

The railroad depot at Sharon, in the western part of this County was robbed early yesterday morning. The aged gateman, James Horne, was resting in the gatehouse between 2 and 3 A. M., when suddenly he was confronted by four young men, all well dressed. One pointed a revolver at him, at the same time enjoining him to make no outcry. After tying and gagging him they blew open the safe in the depot and took all the money, about $400, with them.

—There are in the Weymouth public schools 2,066 pupils, thirteen less than last year.

CITY COUNCIL.

Opposed to Further Delay of Appropriation.

Vacancy on School Board Filled.

By the Unanimous Election of James F. Burke.

The public received a little light at the City Council meeting last night as to the delay on the appropriation for the enlargement of the High school building. The committee is unable to get together on a plan, and some of the members are more anxious to carry their point than they are to give relief where it is very much needed.

Only sixteen members were present at the meeting, the absentees being Councilman Adams, Diack, Hardwick, Johnson, Meyer, Smith and Whiton.

NEW CONSTABLE.

The appointment of Charles H. Tower as constable, by the Mayor, was confirmed.

WOODWARD TRUSTEES.

Mayor Bryant again called attention to the desirability of amending the ordinance relative to Woodward Fund. His Honor is of the belief that the trustees should serve without pay, and the City Clerk and City Treasurer had accepted appointments with the understanding they should not receive extra salary. The Mayor thought however that $1200 was too small a salary for the City Clerk and the City Treasurer and recommended that the ordinance relative to salaries be amended making the salary of the City Clerk $1,500 and the salary of the City Treasurer $1400. Referred to Committee on Finance and Ordinances.

Several applications for minor licenses were received.

The Committee on Streets reported new location for light on Hall place, and for poles on Washington street, Copeland street, and Grand View avenue.

MORE POLICE.

Without a question the report in favor of amending the Police ordinance, increasing the force from 17 to 20, was adopted under a suspension of rules by a unanimous vote, 16 to 0.

BILLS TO BE PAID.

The Finance Committee reported in favor of the payment of the unpaid bills of 1900, 1901 and 1902 in the Fire Department, and the order was passed under suspension of the rules.

PLAYGROUND IMPROVEMENT.

The joint Committee on Finance and Public Buildings reported favorable on the order to appropriate an additional $500 for the improvement of the Ward Six playground, and the order passed unanimously under suspension of the rules.

SALE AUTHORIZED.

The joint Committee on Finance and Public Buildings reported an order authorizing the Mayor to sell the old Hose house at Houghs Neck. Passed.

HIGH SCHOOL ORDER.

Councilman Polk offered an order appropriating $45,000 for the enlargement of the High school building on the north side according to plans of R. and H. Gould, $4,000 to be paid each year until 1909, and then $5,000 per year until all is paid, interest at the rate of 4 per cent.

Councilman Nickerson moved to lay on table.

Councilman Nichols asked why.

Councilman Nickerson said the Council at its last meeting had voted $125 to secure estimates under the plans and to specifications submitted, and had received no report. The order was introduced without the knowledge of the Finance Committee, and was unfair to the other architects.

Councilman Nichols saw no objection if order is referred to the Finance Committee. The Council and its com-

Good Afternoon

The price of radium has fallen. It is now quoted at $100,000 an ounce.

Today is the semi-centennial of the restoration to Rural lodge of Masons of its charter—Sept. 15, 1853.

A public office may be a public trust but that does not mean that a public official has a right to take stock in every trust company that comes this way.

Sunday seemed to be a special day for the dedication of Hebrew synagogues. Temples were dedicated at Brockton, Salem and Malden as well as Quincy.

Mr. Carnegie in saying England and the United States are to be one, has won some very severe press criticisms. However from diatribe to eulogy is but a step.

Woburn which in 1880 was larger than Quincy, has but 2500 school children. This city now has over twice that number.

Mme. Hunt, president of the Western milliners' convention, says the "Poke hat" represents a "moral crisis." There appears to be a waste of rhetoric as well as of money in fashion.

Drift of Opinion.

☞It has been reported that putting the tax rate to $9.20 was a trick.—Raynham Journal. Trick or no trick, if you have selectmen, or voters, or any forces that can work the same result in Bridgewater, send 'em over and we'll roast an ox or two for them.—Bridgewater Independent.

☞The rest of Europe would like to expel the Turk, no doubt; but jealously of each other among the powers, and uncertainty as to what the attempt might bring forth, are enough to make caution supreme.—New Bedford Standard.

☞J. D. Long should not be jollied into allowing his name to be used for the legislature again. He has received the limit in the way of honors at the hands of the American people, and should he attempt to run for the legislature again deserves to fail of an election.—Beverly Times.

☞Massachusetts has a new law, in effect at the beginning of the present month, which requires all automobiles to be registered and numbered, the figures to be conspicuously displayed on the rear of the machines. This may not exactly make back numbers of the horseless carriages, but it enables the vigilant guardians of public rights to identify offenders against the laws regulating speed.—Troy Times.

☞There is no justice, of course, in condemning Hon. Tom L. Johnson's candidacy in Ohio on account of his great wealth. In his case, as in the cases of all rich men in politics, the question for which the voters should seek an answer is whether without his wealth he would be occupying his present position before the people.—Providence Journal.

☞On the subject of child labor the movement we represent is also on positive ground. The child, male or female, should be in the schoolroom until its fourteenth year, and in some instances longer, and the system of depriving any child from so doing in order to send it to the mine, workshop or factory, under any guise whatever, is a blot on our civilization as well as on popular and representative government. To be strong and mentally happy demands opportunity for the young body and mind to grow at least into the rudimentary stage of maturity before requiring the performance of manual labor.—James Duncan, secretary National Granite Cutters Union.

THE CITY COUNCIL.

mittees had laid themselves open to criticism by the delay on High school enlargement, and the school was overcrowded.

Councilman Nickerson would have the criticism placed where it belongs, on the Council of 1902 and the School Committee. There had been no delay in the Finance Committee. There should be no undue haste now.

Councilman Polk opposed laying on the table. The enlargement of the High school had been before the City Council long enough, and should be advanced. It was taken from the Committee on Public Buildings and referred to the joint committee to hurry it along, but had caused delay. It was a scandal and a shame to crowd 600 pupils into a building designed for but 350. There had been but one set of complete plans before the committees.

Councilman Nickerson asked how long the Committee on Public Buildings had considered plans.

Councilman Polk reiterated that the committee would have reported before the summer vacation if it had not been taken out of their hands.

Councilman Langelier took issue with Councilman Nickerson who claimed that the Finance Committee had done all the work. Said committee had really done nothing on the Gould plans, but they had secured a fourth set of plans. It was not the Committee on Public Buildings that had caused delay as that committee had two plans early in the year. I have never seen specifications for the Wright plans, but the Gould plans had specifications.

Councilman Nickerson, in answer, said that it was at his personal request that Mr. Gould appeared before the committee. He was anxious to put through the enlargement, but not with undue haste.

Councilman Polk said that the gentleman could hardly claim that it was at his personal request, as the committee passed a vote requesting the architects to appear.

Continuing Councilman Polk asked if there were complete plans for the Wright building. He claims that there were not. It was not fair to Messrs Gould to juggle with their plans so long. I have attended every meeting and have not seen complete plans and specification for the Wright building.

Councilman Thompson claimed there were complete plans by both architects before the joint committee. He favored laying on the table.

At the request of Councilman Polk, the communication of the School Committee in June, approving the plans with some changes, was read.

Councilman Polk claimed that the communication spoke for itself. That the committee immediately referred the communication to Messrs. Gould and that within a week the changes were ready to submit back to the School Committee.

The Washington school building at Quincy Point was started last November and was still unfinished. The enlargement of the High should be started right away, so that it will be ready next September. He would like to have order come to a vote tonight. He had heard there was an effort to delay until next year.

Councilman Nickerson had no doubt but an appropriation order would pass before Nov. 1. He doubted if the enlargement could be made under the Gould plans for $45,000.

Councilman Polk said the architects stood ready to give bonds to do it.

Cauncilman Nickerson continued to doubt. He had heard what the architect said as to bonds. He asked if Councilman Polk had not voted in favor of securing estimates.

Councilman Polk said he did, and that he would not go back on it. That did not interfere with this order. At the next meeting we should have estimates and the order could be amended if necessary.

Councilman Nichols would like to have the talk go on. Those outside the committees were getting some light on the delay. From some of the talk, he should think the order was on its final passage. He considered order in line of advancement. The question had been in the Council nearly a year, but little progress had been made. He had heard lots of rumors relative to the Gould plans. Anything was better than nothing. A sign of life is favorable.

Voted adversely on motion to lay on table.

President Alden then referred order of Councilman Polk appropriating $45,000 to the joint committee on Finance and Public Buildings.

VACANCY FILLED.

At 8.30 P. M. a joint convention of the City Council and School Committee was held to fill the vacancy on the School Board occasioned by the resignation of Rev. W. J. Foley elected from Ward Four.

The members of the School Committee present were Messrs. Porter, Hallowell, Smith, Safford, and Miss Adams.

Charles Alden was elected chairman and C. A. Spear, clerk.

Councilman Reardon placed in nomination James F. Burke.

A ballot was taken which resulted in Mr. Burke receiving all the 19 votes cast, and he was declared unanimously elected.

The convention then dissolved.

HIGH SCHOOL FIGURES.

Councilman Polk continued his aggressive fight for the enlargement of the High school with a motion that the Committee on Finance and Public Buildings report at the next meeting on the estimates for the work.

Councilman Nickerson said it would be impossible.

Councilman Polk claimed it was possible. Further that the figures could have been presented this evening if the Commissioner of Public Works had carried out the wishes of the Council.

Councilman Langelier asked the Commissioner of Public Works if he had specifications with all the plans.

Mr. Knowlton—Yes.

Councilman Langelier then asked the secretary of the committee, Mr. Sidelinger, if specifications had ever been before the committee.

Mr. Sidelinger said those for the Gould plans had. Specifications for the Wright plans had been requested, and when I received them I handed them directly to the Commissioner.

Councilman Langelier—Are there any specifications for the Parks plans?

Mr. Sidelinger—I understand they were sent by the architects to the Commissioner.

Councilman Langelier wanted to know if there were four complete plans and specifications, and was answered in the affirmative.

Councilman Polk asked the Commissioner if he had referred plans for estimates.

Commissioner Knowlton said he preferred not to answer.

Councilman Polk thought Council could judge from the answer.

Councilman Nickerson opposed motion requiring report.

Motion was voted down.

REGISTRATION.

Councilman Hughes offered an order amending Ordinance 43, relative to meetings of the Board of Registrars, requiring meetings in each ward previous to the City election, Referred.

Minor licenses were granted, and at 8.45 the Council adjourned until Sept. 21.

Sold Liquor to "Posted" Man

Franklin Falls, N. H., Sept. 15.—What is thought to have been the first case tried in this state under the law forbidding the sale of liquor to a posted person was tried in the Franklin police court and resulted in Moses Shepard being held in $400 for the superior court. Shepard was found guilty of selling liquor to Albert Arlin after it had been publicly announced that the sale of liquor to Arlin had been prohibited.

The great gelding covered the mile in 2:00 3-4, half a second behind his own, made at Syracuse last Friday.

Attack on Turkish Strike Breakers

Peabody, Mass., Sept. 15.—The yard of the Eastern Kid company was the scene of a small riot last evening, when 50 Greek strikers attacked 12 Turkish strike breakers. The weapons used were stones and clubs. The police succeeded in rescuing the Turks, who were escorted to their homes. Considerable excitement prevails and further trouble is anticipated.

Investigating Olympia Explosion

Norfolk, Sept. 15.—The bodies of Corporal Yerkes, U. S. M. C., and Naval Apprentice Seifert, killed by the explosion of alcohol on the cruiser Olympia Saturday night, were sent to Philadelphia for burial. An official investigation to determine the cause of the explosion has begun. A lighted lantern being brought too near the alcohol is generally accepted as being the means of exploding the spirits.

Guarding Against Smallpox

Albany, Sept. 15.—The state health department is urging extraordinary precautions against a smallpox epidemic in the town of Hoosack and village of Hoosack Falls. Upward of a dozen cases exist at Bennington, Vt., which is connected by trolley line with the Hoosack vicinity. It is hoped that general vaccination will keep it from crossing into this state from Bennington.

—Mt. Olivet Chapter, O. E. S., held its first meeting of the season on Thursday evening at Masonic Hall in Lewiston. A delectable supper was served at 6.30 and after the meeting, a very pleasing program was given, consisting of music and readings. Kate A. Hayden of Quincy, Mass., a sister of one of the officers, read several selections in charming style and the members present are hoping they may have the pleasure of hearing her again. This chapter is in a flourishing condition and plenty of good work is expected to be done this coming year.—Lewiston Journal.

CABINET BREAK LIKELY

Important Phase In British Political History

BALFOUR IS UNFLINCHING

Will Neither Resign Nor Dissolve Parliament—May Effect a Compromise In the Line of Fiscal "Inquiry"—Hoots For Chamberlain

London, Sept. 15.—The ministers kept secret the discussions of yesterday's cabinet council so effectively that the speculation as to the results is almost nugatory and the government press organs today offer the most conflicting accounts of what took place at the meeting.

The Daily Telegraph, which is probably the best informed, asserts that the cabinet crisis was postponed until this evening and the discussion of the fiscal question will be continued at the resumed meeting today, but that whatever may be the upshot Premier Balfour will neither resign, dissolve parliament nor summon an autumn session. The Daily Telegraph also scouts the idea of a royal commission being appointed to consider the whole fiscal question.

The Standard, on the other hand, asserts equally positively that the fiscal inquiry was finished and that the adjourned meeting will deal with foreign policy. It understands that the question of imposing preferential tariffs or of any innovation in Great Britain's fiscal policy has been shelved until an appeal can be made to the country, and that during the existence of the present parliament the action of the ministers will be confined to discussion and inquiry.

Amid these conflicting reports an agreement is found in the most authoritative quarters on one point, namely, that Premier Balfour has again succeeded in inducing his colleagues to agree to some sort of compromise which will keep the present ministry in office, though it will probably be slightly reorganized, and that this compromise is most likely a continuance of the policy of "inquiry." Any action on the fiscal question will thus be shelved and for the details of the compromise it will probably be necessary to wait for Mr. Balfour's promised speech.

Inasmuch as Prime Minister Balfour will open the great fight at Sheffield and will be quickly followed by Mr. Chamberlain at Glasgow such further meetings can only be regarded as continuation of the session of next Monday. It is reasonable to suppose that these men will be divided into at least two parties, who in a fortnight will be contending against one another with the British electorate as judge and jury. October and November will be months of speeches.

Not since the fateful days when the cabinet framed an answer to President Kruger's ultimatum had such crowds gathered around Downing street. From early morning loiterers assembled there in the hope of catching a glimpse of the political leaders.

Mr. Balfour, who arrived in London from Scotland, went to Downing street early. There a number of treasury officials were closeted with Balfour's secretaries, going over the statistics on which the cabinet is supposed to base its decision for or against free trade. Mr. Chamberlain, who was the central figure in the proceedings, came from Birmingham.

Upon the arrival of Chamberlain at Downing street he was loudly hooted. A crowd of laborers employed on the new government buildings in course of erection nearby joined in this unusual demonstration against the colonial secretary. Mr. Chamberlain showed his customary indifference to this reception. The police eventually were obliged to form double lines from Balfour's house to the foreign office, so as to enable the cabinet ministers to enter the latter place.

Palma's Triumphal Tour

Havana, Sept. 15.—President Palma received an enthusiastic send-off from Havana on his departure on a tour of eastern Cuba. The inhabitants of the smaller villages on the railroad assembled at the station and cheered as the beflagged locomotive and handsome train passed through. At the larger towns the rural guards were drawn up and saluted, bands played and the officials paid their formal respects to the president.

Permanent Receivers For Railroad

Jersey City, Sept. 15.—Vice Chancellor Pitney has made permanent the appointment of Messrs. Hardenberg and Rose as receivers for the Cohila and Pacific Railroad company, operating between Saltillo and Terreon, Mex. The bill of complaint says the road is without funds to operate.

Court Officials Were In Peril

St. Johns, Sept. 15.—Steamer E. N. Graham, with Newfoundland supreme circuit court aboard, ran on the rocks near Little Bay. The judges and court officials were rescued from their perilous position by boats from the shore. The vessel was afterward brought into harbor here for repairs.

Repair Shops Hard Pressed

Reading, Pa., Sept. 15.—The Reading railway car shop employes have been notified that hereafter they will be required to work 13 1-4 hours a day instead of 10 1-4 hours. This increase is due to the rush of work in the repair department.

TABLES ARE TURNED

Sombre Joke on Warden Bussinger of Eastern Penitentiary

Washington, Sept. 15.—Just one glint of humor lights the sombre character of the news about the discovery of a successful coin-counterfeiting plant run by the convicts in the eastern state penitentiary of Pennsylvania. Two years ago, when the secret service was still running down trails in the famous Lancaster counterfeiting conspiracy, and had locked up two of its victims, Taylor and Bredell, in Moyamensing prison to await sentence, it made the startling discovery that these experts were actually manufacturing bogus notes in their cells, with an apparatus smuggled in to them and occupying no more space than a cigar box.

Warden Motherwell was much chagrined at finding that such a thing could go on for any time undetected under his very nose, but he could get no sympathy from Warden Bussinger of the eastern penitentiary, who could not understand how that sort of thing could possibly exist in an institution properly conducted. It is now apparently his turn to look elsewhere for consideration.

More Crookedness Unearthed

Philadelphia, Sept. 15.—Following closely in the sensational discovery of a counterfeiting plant inside the walls of the eastern penitentiary, it is learned that a shortage of 300,000 stockings has been discovered in the stocking department. They disappeared since the first of the year.

Swindling Nobleman Caught

Rochester, Sept. 15.—A clever arrest was made here by Detective Maguire in the person of one Jules De Agreneff, known as the "count." Maguire spotted the fellow from a description sent out by the Omaha police stating that he was wanted in Nebraska for forgery. He is supposed to be a Russian nobleman. He speaks several languages fluently and documents with him vouching for his rank as a Russian nobleman. The count was caught just in time as he had already succeeded in getting acquainted with a responsible business man. He is about 38 years of age.

Cuban Outlaws Show Fight

Santiago de Cuba, Sept. 15.—Reports of the presence of an armed party at Sevilla caused Governor Yero to send a force of rural guards who located the party and attempted to arrest them. A fight ensued in which Major Betancourt was severely wounded, but no outlaws were captured. The general opinion is that it is the intention of the outlaws to make a spectacular demonstration, demanding the payment of the revolutionary army when the president arrives here next Thursday.

Duel to the Death For Love

Abita Springs, La., Sept. 15.—Frank Allison and Marshall McGhee were rivals for the hand of a young woman and Allison challenged McGhee to a duel. McGhee promptly accepted the challenge and pistols at 10 paces were named. The men met at the appointed hour and place and both weapons were discharged at the same instant and both men fell dead, one with a bullet through his brain and the other with a bullet through his heart.

Preparing For Tillman Trial

Spartansburg, S. C., Sept. 15.—Attorneys representing the state in the case of James H. Tillman, charged with the murder of Editor Gonzales, have asked for the revocation of the order appointing Judge Townsend to preside at the coming trial. The objections are on technicalities. Justice Pope will announce his decision later. The term of court during which Tillman will be tried will be convened Sept. 21.

Lives Lost In Storm

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 15.—Further details of the disaster by the recent storm came by mail and by passengers on in-coming trains. Steamer Inchulva went ashore near Boynton. The ship's steering gear broke and she floated at will, finally breaking into three pieces. The captain and mates and 14 of the crew were saved. Nine men were drowned. Two lives were lost at Tampa. The property loss is heavy.

Turkish Ambassador Thrashed

Vienna, Sept. 15.—Djeved Abdallah Bey, the physician to the Turkish embassy here, attacked and thrashed the Turkish ambassador, Nedim Bey, whom he accused of sending unfavorable reports concerning him (Djeved) to the porte, thereby preventing him from securing a better position. The assault took place in the Turkish embassy in the presence of the secretaries and a visitor. Djeved has been dismissed.

Wanamaker Sued For Slander

Beaver, Pa., Sept. 15.—The slander suit brought against former Postmaster General Wanamaker by Thomas Robinson, ex-superintendent of public printing, has been called. The legal talent engaged on both sides is of the highest order. The plaintiff claims that during a political speech he was slandered by the defendant.

ROBBERIES OF INDIANS

Will Be Investigated Under Bonaparte's Supervision

HE IS GIVEN FULL CHARGE

Numerous Charges Against Indian Territory Officials Will Be Taken Up With the Certainty of Conviction of Those Implicated In Deals

Washington, Sept. 15.—Charles J. Bonaparte of Baltimore, with whom Secretary Hitchcock has been in negotiation during the last week, has consented to undertake the investigation of the charges affecting the administration of Indian Territory.

Mr. Bonaparte was, and still is, one of the special counsel retained by the president for the prosecution of the postal thieves and grafters. His appointment does not mean necessarily that he will be unaided. He is simply given charge of the whole business, with an absolutely free hand, and his wishes will be consulted as to any staff of assistants he may need in his work. He is to organize his campaign on any lines he chooses, carry it out in his own way, and take as long or short a time as he deems for the best interest of the government. He will simply be looked to for results, without having to account for his methods.

It has been from the start Secretary Hitchcock's desire to find a man who will not hesitate to take a scamp by the neck and drag him out wherever found, regardless of the "influence" behind him. Mr. Bonaparte's career as a civil service reformer has proved that he has a keen scent for rascality, absolute fearlessness, and no squeamishness about calling a spade a spade when it comes to facing a lawbreaker or when it comes to making a report. He is a member of the Indian Rights association, of the board of Indian commissioners and of the executive committee of the National Civil Service Reform league.

There are numerous reports and charges against officials on file in the department which will be taken up in the course of the investigation, but they have not been given to the public, and in several instances the existence of the papers has been denied. It is Secretary Hitchcock's manifest purpose to shape and control the investigation without regard to public opinion, and he does not intend to allow newspaper publications to give any sudden or surprising turns to the work which he has decided to intrust to the special investigator.

The experience of Postmaster General Payne during the past summer has established a permanent warning, which Mr. Hitchcock has been prompt to appreciate. However, without this experience of Mr. Payne's, the secretary would have pursued, no doubt, the same course, as it is in line with his lifelong rule of administrative action. Whether the scope of the investigation will be such as to require the presentation of evidence before any grand jury and the prosecution of any person because of the gigantic robberies that have been in progress against the Indians, is not made the subject of prediction among interior department officials.

Nor is there any disposition to indicate whether there will be included in the scope of the investigation the matter of leases of coal and oil lands, which has been conducted in a manner to segregate nearly all these properties in one control. At best, it is expected that the investigation will not conclude the whole subject of complaint, and that eventually there will be an investigation authorized by congress, probably by the house of representatives.

Seventeen Charges Against Harvey

Guthrie, O. T., Sept. 15.—S. M. Brosius, special agent of the Indian Rights association, has finished gathering evidence against George I. Harvey, in charge of the Pawnee sub-agency at Pawnee, and has left to resume his inquiries in Indian Territory. Brosius preferred 17 specific charges against Harvey, who is accused of brutality to children in the schools, of irregularities in the leasing and sale of Indian lands and of manipulating Indian moneys to the advantage of himself and banks which he is interested in. Inspetor McNichols of the Indian department is at Pawnee investigating the Brosius charges.

Carpet Weavers Give Up Strike

Philadelphia, Sept. 15.—The ingrain carpet weavers of this city, who number about 3000 and who have been on strike since June 1, have voted to return to work under the old conditions of employment. The loom fixers, without whom the weavers cannot carry on their work, are still firm in their determination to stay out.

Rough Rider Salvationists

Cincinnati, Sept. 15.—The first use of cavalry in the Savation Army will be made this week in a march through the feud districts of Kentucky. Those who will ride with Staff Captain Escom and Colonel Haly have arrived here in rough rider uniforms. The officers will work in Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia.

Money For Agricultural Sections

Washington, Sept. 15.—Secretary Shaw has designated about 50 national banks in various parts of the country as depositories of public funds and ordered about $4,000,000 deposited with them. Most of the distribution was in the cotton and grain growing districts.

MOTHER LOCATED.

Held in $3000 Bonds for Abandoning Her Infant.

The abandoned infant found at Merrymount park on Saturday by a man connected with the sewer station, proves to have been more than a few hours old, and it was at the park undiscovered about two days having been left there by a girl on Thursday.

With the baby were two bottles one containing alcohol and the other an eye water. On the later was a druggists label, which the druggist was unable to locate, but upon which a doctor was able to give a name.

The name was not that of the mother but Inspector McKay happened to visit the mother in search of the name given, and the girl broke down and admitted all.

Her name is Selma Akeson who has worked largely in Quincy but was at the time in Dorchester. The baby was born July 7, and a Quincy couple took care of it. They tired of it however and told the girl to come and get it which she did last Thursday.

The girl was arraigned in court for mans laughter. She waived the examination, and was held in $3000 bail for the grand jury.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

PLEADS GUILTY.

Denato Salucci Retracts Plea of Not Guilty.

Sentenced to Jail For Five Months.

For Assault With Dangerous Weapon on D. C. Mahoney.

The criminal session of the Norfolk Superior court opened at Dedham on Monday.

The Globe reports that Denato Salucci of Quincy, accused of assault and battery, armed with a dangerous weapon, on Francis C. Mahoney and Daniel C. Mahoney at Quincy, Feb. 7, 1903, changed his plea of not guilty to one of guilty.

In moving for sentence in the latter case Dist. Atty. French related the circumstances as follows:

"The assault occurred at a dance and was the outcome of a row. The man assaulted, Francis Mahoney, was the ticket-taker, and the woman assaulted is his wife. Hearing a row in the hall about midnight, Mahoney went in to stop it. He took hold of Salucci, who, it seems, was not the aggressor in the row, and led him to the door to put him out. Others crowded around the two, shouting and jeering. Salucci apparently became frightened and he tried to cut his way out, regardless of whom he hit. He did not know who he cut, and his only desire was to get out. The man has already served seven months and one week."

John W. McAnarney of Quincy, who was counsel for the defendant spoke in his behalf.

Judge Lawton sentenced Salucci to five months at the house of correction.

Michael Donovan of Boston, charged with larceny from Catherine Tucker at Quincy, July 12, 1903, retracted his plea of not guilty, entering one of guilty.

Cider Apple Sauce.

Cider apple sauce is an old time dainty which deserves better than to be forgotten. It differs from apple butter, as the quartered apples are not boiled to pulp, but preserved in the clear sirup of the condensed cider. Boil sweet cider down to one-fourth or one-fifth its quantity and add solid subacid apples, pared, cored and quartered, with one-fourth their weight in sugar. Boil them very slowly till they look lucid without losing their shape, take out carefully with a wooden skimmer without breaking and boil the sirup till it is thick, then pour it over the apples. No spice goes into this to impair the high flavored apples of which it should be made. It should be a light amber preserve, thick as honey.

Grain In Shock and Standing Buried Under Snow and Water

St. Paul, Sept. 15.—Snow and rain has damaged crops in the northwest during the past week to the extent of millions of dollars. Nearly all the grain in shock, estimated at 50 percent, and all the standing grain, much of it flax, is buried under snow and water. The rainfall has been eight inches in 48 hours.

Rain and sleet and snow prevail all over the northwest. Railroad tracks are washed out and trains are abandoned. The trains from the Pacific coast have been pushing slowly through deep snow for two days and are from 10 to 20 hours late.

Minot, N. D., Sept. 15.—Two feet of snow covers the ground and trains are greatly delayed. A special from Kenmare says one foot of snow covers the ground, with snow still falling. It is said to be the worst storm in three years. At Medira the snow is 10 inches deep.

The Latest In Unionism

Pittsburg, Sept. 15.—The Pittsburg firemen have secretly organized a union and will receive a charter from the American Federation of Labor this week. The organization starts with 550 members and the intention is to follow with the unionizing of Allegheny fire department. When the two cities are thoroughly organized an international association will be formed by the federation, with the object in view of securing better pay, with shorter hours for the fire fighters, and a release from all political coercion.

Airship "Mystery" Explained

Indianapolis, Sept. 15.—The announcement by many citizens of Irvington that they had seen an airship caused great excitement here. A number of well known business men offered to make affidavits that they had seen two men in it; one said he had called to them. In a field several miles from Irvington some boys later found a large torpedo-shaped paper-covered affair with a canopy and two dummy figures in it. It was 30 feet long and is believed to have been a model of an airship.

Alleged Counterfeiters Held

Newark, N. J., Sept. 15.—Commissioner Whitehead held the three alleged counterfeiters, who were arrested here last week, in $5000 bail each for the federal grand jury. The prisoners gave their names as William Donohue, Frank Singleton and James Healy. A letter found on Donohue stated that the writer would buy all the counterfeit coin that Donohue had to dispose of. This letter was dated Sept. 15, 1902, indicating that the business had been going on for some time.

Lynching Defended by Minister

Newark, N. J., Sept. 15.—At the colored conference here Rev. J. C. Love of Montclair defended lynching. He declared that the crimes of certain southern negroes were such as to call for the most severe and cruel punishment. Rev. R. A. Motley of Jersey City said: "The trouble is that you people here in the north are fretting yourselves to death about the negro in the south, while the negro there is contented and happy."

Murphy Won't Have Devery

New York, Sept. 15.—C. F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, makes a statement intended to make his position clear in regard to W. S. Devery, who is contesting for the Tammany leadership of the Ninth assembly district. "It makes no difference to me," he said, "if Devery wins his primary contest in the Ninth or not. Devery will never get into Tammany hall—leader or no leader—while I am in it."

Roumanian Students' Protest

Bucharest, Sept. 15.—The university students at a meeting here protested against the atrocities perpetrated by the revolutionary bands and Turkish troops upon Roumanians in Macedonia. After the meeting the students made a hostile demonstration before the Ottoman legation and Bulgarian diplomatic agency. The police interfered and dispersed the students. Much excitement prevails here.

Haytien Disturbers Exiled

Port Au Prince, Sept. 15.—Callisthene Fouchard, ex-minister of finance and formerly a candidate for the presidency, who was exiled as a measure of public safety, has left for Kingston, Ja. Pierre Soneque, who was also a candidate for the presidency in opposition to General Nord, has likewise been banished, and will shortly quit the country.

Eleven Thousand to Take Part

Washington, Sept. 15.—Plans for the forthcoming army maneuvers at Fort Riley, Kas., are announced at the war department. The maneuvers will commence on or about Oct. 15. They will be participated in by troops from many of the western forts and militiamen from six states, making a total of more than 11,000 men.

CAUGHT SHERIFF NAPPING

Slick Individual, Said to Be Wanted at Newport, Secures His Liberty

Lenox, Mass., Sept. 15.—A man registered at the Curtis hotel, one of the most exclusive hotels in the Berkshires, under the name of Fritz Hunter of New York, was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Dunn on charges of grand larceny at Newport, R. I., aggregating $1100. Dunn took Hunter over to Lee, six miles away, where he was arraigned before Judge Casey, who ordered the case continued until today and instructed Dunn to lock the man up.

Hunter was brought back to Lenox and just before dark last night the two men reached the police station. As they alighted from the wagon Hunter dodged under the officer's arm and dashed down the street, with the officer in hot pursuit, but being fleet of foot he escaped into the woods. Dunn returned to the police station and immediately notified the police of all the surrounding towns, as well as the city of Pittsfield. As the country in this vicinity is well wooded for many miles it is thought that the fugitive will be able to elude the officers for many days, if he does not escape altogether.

May Become a Corporation

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 15.—A committee has been appointed by the New England Milk Producers' union to investigate the feasibility of incorporating the union under the laws of Massachusetts. The majority of members of the union are said to favor incorporation and it is believed the committee will recommend such action. The union will also endeavor to straighten out the affairs of the practically defunct New England Milk Producers' company, organized under the laws of New Jersey in 1900, and which numbers many New England milk producers among its stockholders.

MISRULE OF THE TURKS

Responsible For Organization of Insurrection

BULGARIA MAKES A REPLY

To Accusations of Ottoman Government and Declines Responsibility For Macedonian Happenings—No Important Step Pending a Reply to Note to the Great Powers

Sofia, Sept. 16.—Replying to notes of the Turkish representative here in which it was alleged that the insurrection in Macedonia was the work of Bulgarian bands who had crossed the frontier, the Bulgarian government has replied, refuting the accusations, reviewing the history of the insurrection and claiming that the outbreak was the direct result of the existing form of government in Macedonia which had forced the youth of the country to flee abroad and gradually organize the insurrection. Bulgaria also declines all responsibility for the events at Adrianople, which, it is claimed, are due to the persecution of the Bulgarian population. Finally, Bulgaria states that the Turkish government is prolonging a situation filled with perils to the principality and points out that there is danger of a catastrophe disastrous to both countries.

No important step is likely to be taken at the present critical juncture, pending the return to the capital of Prince Ferdinand and a reply from the powers or some intimation from them in response to Bulgaria's note.

The air here is filled with rumors of mobilization. It is alleged that the first three divisions of the army having their centres at Sofia, Philippopolis and Slivno have been called out. In official quarters, however, it is declared that the only step actually decided upon is the summoning to the colors of the men of the first three divisions who retired from the army during the last three years. This will give a force of some 10,000 men, who will be chiefly employed in strengthening the troops along the frontier.

It is expected that a week will suffice to enable the ministry to judge of the extent to which its final appeal to the powers is likely to prove successful. Doubts are expressed in diplomatic circles whether the Bulgarian note will bring any decisive results, but there is every disposition to recognize the sincerity of the ministry's attitude and its complete justification for issuing such a document in view of the immense forces that Turkey is gathering in threatening proximity to the Bulgarian frontier.

It is stated that the porte has protested to Austria against Austrian and Hungarian firms being allowed to furnish the Bulgarian government with cartridges at the present time.

The revolutionary headquarters have received news of a terrible situation at Losengrad. The whole district is filled with Turkish and Albanian troops and Bashi-Bazouks. Twelve villages have been burned and over 100 families have been massacred. Many of the women and girls captured have been sent to various harems. About 400 widows and orphans have arrived at the frontier village of Tekendje from Losengrad.

A telegram from Burgas says the authorities of the town of Losengrad have ordered the Bulgarian families to be removed from the Greek districts. The decree causes great fear among the Bulgarians.

All the Bulgarian prisoners in the town jail at Losengrad have been killed by Mussulman prisoners, aided by the prison guards.

Russia's Finger In the Pie

London, Sept. Sept. 16.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of The Daily Telegraph claims to have the highest diplomatic authority for saying that Russia's Balkan policy is to isolate Bulgaria by refusing to stop the Macedonian massacres and inducing the powers to remain inactive. Then, when Turkey has defeated Bulgaria, Russia will insist on stepping in and occupying Bulgaria under the pretext of protecting her. Thus Bulgaria would become Russia's vassal.

Salt Properties Brought $337,500

Ithaca, N. Y., Sept. 16.—Pursuant to an order of the supreme court the properties of the National Salt company were sold at public auction. S. D. Halliday of Ithaca was the purchaser, for $337,500. It is generally believed that Halliday represented President Fuller of the International Salt company.

Knocked Out by Initiation

Bluffton, Ind., Sept. 16.—Ralph McBride, 17 years old, died here as the result of an ordeal, incident to initiation into a high school secret society. The grand jury returned indictments against nine students in connection with the affair.

Third of Family to Die From Fall

Leominster, Mass., Sept. 16.—Eliza T. Smith, a widow, 88 years old, died of injuries received by falling down stairs. She was of a family of four children, three of whom died as the result of injuries received by falling.

Mohammedans Sack Monastery

Berlin, Sept. 16.—A dispatch to The Tageblatt from Constantinople reports that the Russian monastery at Jerusalem has been sacked by a Mohammedan mob and that all of the monks there were murdered.

Suspected of Being the Slugger

Boston, Sept. 16.—William Epps, a negro, was arrested at his home, charged with a number of recent street robberies, by which women have been deprived of their purses. It is claimed that a chatelaine bag of one of the victims was found in his room. Epps was identified as a man who had recently completed a two years' sentence for assaults and robberies from women.

Attempt at Train Wrecking

Gardner, Mass., Sept. 16.—A big rock on the main track of the Fitchburg road was discovered just before an express ran through, preventing a wreck. The rock was rolled up onto the track just beyond a curve where trains travel very fast down grade. Section men removed it in time to prevent delay to traffic.

THE VOTING LISTS

Board of Registrars Drop 398 in Revision.

Ward Three Now the Largest Ward.

Wards Four and One Are Very Close for First Place.

In the revision of the voting lists this year 398 names were dropped by the Board of Registrars, reducing the total registration from 4,914 to 4,516. The decrease is about the usual one, and the probabilities are that before the State election in November over 400 and perhaps 500 names will be added, putting the total over 5,000.

The largest decrease was in precinct 2 of Ward One, but was nearly as large in precinct 2 of Ward Four, precinct 2 of Ward Two, and in Ward Five.

Ward Five is the only ward not divided into precincts and 756 voters are eligible to vote in one place.

Otherwise the largest precinct is Precinct 1 of Ward Three with 488.

Ward Three is the largest ward with 878 voters, but Ward Four has 853 and Ward One 852. Ward Five has 756, while Wards Two and Six are closely bunched for last place, the former with 597 voters and the latter with 580.

The number of voters on the lists at the last city election and at the present time is shown by actual count of City Clerk Keith to be as follows:

	Nov. 12, 1902.	Aug. 31, 1903.	Decrease.
Ward 1, Pre 1,	432	404	28
Ward 1, Pre. 2,	500	448	52

Ward 6, Pre. 1,	341	312	29
Ward 6, Pre. 2,	293	268	25
	4,914	4,615	398

There are 53 females on the lists, one less than last year.

The Ms lead in number of names, there being 514. The Cs are a good second with 421, while the Bs, Ss and Hs have over 300 each. There are no Xs and but 1 U, while the Qs and Zs are under 10.

Cruiser Maryland Afloat.

At high tide Tuesday afternoon, says a special dispatch to the Herald, the Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Company succeeded in releasing the armoured cruiser Maryland, which hung on the end of the launching ways last Saturday.

After fully investigating the condition of the ship the officials of the yard made preparations for an extraordinary effort and when the tide was at its flood work was begun. The experts at the yard had figured out that the best way to handle the ship was by purchases from the piers and by hydraulic jacks, pushing on the bow. Four hundred tons of the latter pressure was brought to bear on the huge steel hull and after a start was made the balance of the work was comparatively easy. The ship is uninjured.

PLEADS GUILTY.

Of Entering House of Charles W. Clifford.

Assault Case Placed on File.

Constant Krobeck on Trial for Murder of Fred Peterson.

Swift justice has been meted out to James Johnson, alias Sam Scott (colored), indicted on two counts of burglarizing the home of Charles W. Clifford in Wollaston on the night of Aug. 4, last, and of committing assault with intent to kill Clifford and George H. Heal on the same date. He retracted his plea of not guilty in the Norfolk superior court Tuesday afternoon and was sentenced on one charge. Judge Lawton imposed a sentence on the first charge of a term in state prison of not less than 17 or more than 20 years. The other case was placed on file.

Johnson, it will be remembered was in the house with burglarous intent, when he was discovered by Clifford and Heal. He attacked both men, and seriously slashed them with a razor or knife. It was some weeks before they recovered.

The colored man is reported to have taken his sentence of 17 years very coolly, there being a smile on his face. Quincy and vicinity will, however, feel safer with him behind the bars, and will not soon forget the clever work of Inspector McKay who without a clue followed the fellow up, arrested him the same day, and secured convincing proof of his guilt.

OTHER CASES.

Guiseppe Clemente, charged with assault with a dangerous weapon on a fellow Italian at Needham was found guilty.

George A. Everett who pleaded guilty of larceny at Stoughton, had his case placed on file.

The jury was out at adjournment in the case of Martin F. McNiff charged with breaking and entering at Avon.

This morning, the case of Constant Krobeck of Quincy, charged with the murder of Fred A. Peterson at West Quincy, March 15 last, was called.

Good Afternoon.

The biggest man in Ohio has just died, but so long as Tom Johnson lives, the conceit of bigness will not perish from the Buckeye state.

Representative Burkitt is in Washington. He declares that Nebraska will give President Roosevelt the largest majority ever given to a Republican president.

Now that the Massachusetts, a former favorite on the Sound line of steamers will be burned for her old junk perhaps the new steamer building at the Fore River plant in this city, may be named the Massachusetts. We would be better pleased if she was called the "Quincy, Massachusetts," or "City of Quincy, Mass."

The prompt arrest of Johnson alias Scott, the Negro burglar at Wollaston Aug. 4, has been followed by an equally prompt sentence, the fellow having pleaded guilty in the Superior court, making a trial unncessary. It was just six weeks to a day, Tuesday, when Scott was sentenced, that the deed was committed. The victims of the assault have nearly recovered, and the country will be rid of a dangerous character for at least seventeen years.

The choice of Republican candidates for the Legislature this year is considerably simplified by a reduction of the number of aspirants. Two nominations are to be made and there are three in line. At the present date it looks as though the contest might be close. Richard R. Freeman has served one year, and naturally should have another year, but there are two factions in the party, and his renomination is not certain. Edward J. Sandberg made an excellent run in the caucauses last year. Ex-Mayor Hall is one of the best known candidates, which fact will help him in his canvass. The nominations will be by direct vote in the caucuses.

Drift of Opinion.

☞If we bring up boys and girls in an atmosphere of vice and crime, we need not be surprised if, as men and women, they become dangerous and the occasion of great expense to society. It is vastly cheaper to begin with the children.—Christian Register.

☞Apparently there is to be an effort to restore the duty on anthracite coal at the coming session of congress. The period of suspension will soon be over, but the presumption that the duty would be dropped altogether without remonstrance does not appear to be well founded. For a duty that amounts to nothing, the producers are remarkably anxious.—New Bedford Standard.

Fill his poor head full of figures and facts,
Keep on a jumping them in till it cracks.
Once boys grew up at a rational rate,
Now we develop a man while you wait.
Rush him through college, compel him to grab
Of every known subject a dip and a dab.
Get him in business and after the cash,
All by the time he can grow a mustache.
Let him forget he was ever a boy,

—Mr. Edison, the inventor, gets to his factory as early as any of his men, and frequently on the following morning at five o'clock he may still be found at his table or bench, totally oblivious of the fact that perhaps twenty hours have flown by since he entered the laboratory. He seems tireless and is almost always in good spirits. Mr. Edison doesn't take many vacations, but when he does decide to go off for a rest he spends a week or two uneasily and restlessly at his place near Palm Beach, Fla., staying there as long as he can stand it. Presently some new problem presents itself to his busy mind, and a morning or two later his assistants arrive to find Mr. Edison already at work.

WORTMAN'S ACQUITTAL

Looked Upon With Disfavor by Secretary Moody

DID NOT EXERCISE DUE CARE

In Directing Target Practice on the Massachusetts, With the Result That Nine Lives Were Sacrificed—Nation Expects Much of Naval Officers

Washington, Sept. 16.—Secretary Moody has disapproved the findings in the case of Ensign Ward F. Wortman, U. S. N., who was tried by court martial and acquitted of the charge of culpable inefficiency in the performance of duty. Wortman, on Jan. 15 last, off San Juan, was in charge of the third gun division on the Massachusetts, including the two 8-inch guns in the starboard after turret, when one of them, during target practice, exploded, injuring nine enlisted men, all of whom afterward died.

The court of inquiry found Wortman guilty of error of judgment in giving an order to open the breech of the gun for the purpose of returning to the electrical firing while the gun was loaded and the lanyard was led out and hooked to the trigger. The court recommended that no further proceedings be had in the matter. The secretary, however, ordered a court martial on the basis of the finding. Wortman was acquitted by this court.

Secretary Moody differs from the court's finding that there was insufficient evidence to prove that the lanyard led out and was hooked when the order to open the breech was given.

In his review the secretary says: "The case can be stated in a few words. Being under orders to fire by electricity and seeing No. 5 (of the crew) had cocked the lock and thus broken the circuit, the accused ordered the breech to be opened with the gun loaded, the lanyard led out and hooked to the trigger of the lock.

"After a careful review of all the evidence I am of the opinion that the accused failed to exercise the care which was required of him; that in giving the order to open the breech of the gun under the circumstances which the evidence proves he was negligent; that the death of nine enlisted men resulted from his negligence, and that in what he did and failed to do in the premises he was guilty of culpable inefficiency in the performance of duty.

"Officers in the naval service are selected with great care; they are trained and educated by the nation and required to meet a standard of mental and physical excellence which is beyond the reach of the average man. Much is expected of them and, happily, the expectation is not often disappointed. They are placed in charge of complicated mechanism; they deal with the most dangerous forces known to mankind; they command men whose duty it is to obey without questions. In the exercise of these high functions there is rightfully demanded of them knowledge, discretion, prudence and a care and foresight proportionate to the consequences which may follow any default. Ensign Wortman failed to exercise the care and skill and foresight which the United States has the right to expect from one who holds its commission as an officer of the navy."

The action of the secretary does not affect the court's finding.

Death of Ex-Senator Kelly

Washington, Sept. 16.—James K. Kelly, formerly United States senator from Oregon, died at his residence here, aged 84. He was a native of Pennsylvania. In 1870 he was elected to the United States senate, where he served one term and on his retirement was appointed chief justice of the supreme court of Oregon, which position he held until 1882.

Bill Devery Turned Down

New York, Sept. 16.—The primaries, both Republican and Democratic, passed off much more smoothly than had been expected. In the Ninth district the hottest fight in the city was waged unsuccessfully by William S. Devery against Frank J. Goodwin, who won by 404 votes.

Block of Stores Wiped Out

Marle, Mich., Sept. 16.—A fire which originated in Klosser's candy store here, and which is still burning, has destroyed an entire block of stores in the heart of the business district. The damage already done amounts to about $700,000.

Creditors Mourn His Departure

New York, Sept. 16.—The World says: Benjamin J. Ogden, mayor and leading lawyer of Keyport, N. J., has disappeared, leaving debts of $100,000 and small assets. He had in his hands numerous large trust estates for settlement.

SEDITIOUS SOCIALISTS

Learn That They Cannot Insult American Flag

San Juan, P. R., Sept. 16.—Eduardo Conde and Leonidas Guillot, two Socialists, who spoke in a recent meeting of the American Federation of Labor, were put on trial for insulting the American flag and threatening the life of Governor Hunt. Their speeches teemed with abuse of the government. One of the prisoners was accused of advising the workmen, upon the return of Governor Hunt on Oct. 4 from the United States, to parade, carrying black flags, and then to make demands upon the government. If these demands were refused, the speaker added, the alternative of killing Governor Hunt remained. The other orator was said to have declared that the American flag was a rag fit only to cover rascals and criminals. The accused denied the charges.

They were tried before Justice Kopel, convicted of anarchistic conduct and sentenced to six months in prison. Justice Kopel says the flag is higher than the law and anarchists need never expect any mercy in his court.

The case has established a precedent as a Porto Rican official warning that attacks on the flag and government must stop. The Americans and loyal Porto Ricans are jubilant, while the Socialists are angry at the decision. The convicted men will appeal from the judgment.

Florida Storm Wrought Havoc

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 16.—Further news of the storm continues to arrive, though a large part of the storm swept area has not been heard from. Wires are still down and it is impossible to get trains through on account of washouts. Three negroes were killed by falling timbers near Gainesville. A dwelling and several cottages were wrecked. At Mulberry the phosphate plants are reported as greatly damaged. At Bartow the roof was blown from the Bartow house and from the residence of the president of the south Florida mill college. A number of mules were killed by the falling of a shed at Phospharia. From all parts of the state great damage to the turpentine industry is reported.

Subsisted Twenty Days on Grapes

Pascoag, R. I., Sept. 16.—Weak and emaciated, William Corey of Kingston was found in an unused outbuilding at the farm of William Eddy, near this place. The man's cries for help were overheard by a passing fisherman, who rendered the much needed assistance. Corey says that he fell ill 20 days ago while wood-chopping. No help was near, so he dragged himself to the outbuilding and waited patiently for the appearance of a possible passerby. His only food supply for a period of nearly three weeks was the green grapes which grew abundantly near the outhouse, and which he managed to obtain after much exertion. Cory will recover from his experience.

Serious Result of Fight

Lynn, Mass., Sept. 16.—The police last night discovered Tony Melus, a Polander, lying unconscious and bleeding on the sidewalk on Elmwood street, suffering from a bullet wound in the abdomen. Later Melus regained consciousness long enough to charge John Raulen with having shot him as the result of a fight a few days ago. The police are looking for Raulen. Melus may not recover.

Benque Declared Insane

New York, Sept. 16.—Francis V. Benque, who was arrested on the charge of having written threatening letters to Secretary of State Hay, was brought before Justice Clarke in the supreme court and committed by him to the Manhattan state asylum. Doctors who had examined Benque submitted a certificate setting out that he was not in full possession of his faculties.

All the men were in an exhausted condition when taken off the bark, having pumped incessantly for several dys in an effort to keep the vessel afloat.

I., have instituted two suits for sums aggregating $40,000 against Brooklyn branches of the International Association of Machinists for damages alleged to have been caused by recent strikes.

SALVATION ARMY.

Desirous of Raising Funds for a New Hall in This City.

The Salvation Army has for many years maintained a work amongst the Scandinavian speaking people in this city in a hall at No. 5 Franklin street. A good work has been accomplished amongst the ever increasing masses of people who do not attend any of the regular places of worship, and many a young man and woman has been rescued from a life of sin and carelessness.

The good work is still going on, but Capt. Stromgren says we find that more could be accomplished if we had a more suitable place, so we have decided to build a hall of our own.

We shall need for this purpose at least $2000, of which some has already been subscribed, but to enable us to avail ourselves of the splendid opportunity that is offered, we require the remaining part at once, and will gladly receive the smaller as well as larger donations, which will, I am sure, be much appreciated by those on whose behalf we ask it.

A house-to-house canvass of the city is being made, and many small sums should in the aggregate raise the necessary funds.

Burrage Hospital.

The Burrage hospital for crippled children on Bumkin island, which opened June 18, has closed. During the summer 203 children have been treated there, the largest number in one day having been 135. The season has been very successful, and a number of operations for hernia, appendicitis, etc., have been performed, and the patients have made a good recovery. The majority of all the patients have been crippled children, who have seemed to be greatly helped by the treatment, the good air and the healthful surroundings. The superintendent has been Dr. J. Morris Strong and the matron Miss Bertha Carvel.

Floating Hospital.

The report to the Boston aldermen by the directors of the Randidge fund excursion shows that the excursions, fifty-four in number, covered the period from July 6 to September 5 inclusive, Sundays excepted. The number of children, enjoying the benefits of these outings, exceeded twelve thousand. The unusual number of stormy days occurring this season, which, in whole or in part, prevented the carrying out of the plans for the children's pleasure, together with other reasons, caused a reduction in the total number of excursionists, as compared with last year.

The usual happy results have attended the excursions of this year, and no accident has occurred to mar the pleasure of the little ones.

A SHAM BATTLE

Shows the Submarine Torpedo Boat to Be a Distinct Success

Newport, R. I., Sept. 16.—A pretty exhibition of mimic warfare, important as illustrating the effectiveness of the navy's submarine craft, was given off Benton Reef lightship, when the submarine torpedo boat Adder succeeded in torpedoing the torpedo boat Craven.

The Craven ran down the harbor and cruised about, awaiting the attack. The Adder followed an hour later. As soon as Fort Adams was cleared the Adder plunged beneath the surface and remained for 45 minutes, during which time officers and crew enjoyed lunch. On getting outside the harbor the Adder was once more sent to the surface, but only her conning tower was exposed. The Craven was sighted a short distance outside the lightship.

The Adder again plunged and when within 300 yards of the Craven a wooden torpedo in the shape and size of a regular projectile was fired. The shot was a good one and the torpedo struck the Craven amidships with considerable force, sufficient to perceptibly jar the boat. The crew of the Craven was taken totally unawares, and was unable to man the guns or the torpedo tube in time to fire a shot before the torpedo struck them.

HUNTING FOR HUNTER

Berkshire Officers Apparently Think He Has a Bad Record

Lenox, Mass., Sept. 16.—Every available officer in Berkshire county has been engaged in a search, without success, for the man known here as Fritz Hunter who escaped from Deputy Sheriff Dunn after he had been arrested at the request of the Newport, R. I., officers, given a hearing in Lee and remanded to jail here for further appearance.

The officers are now inclined to believe that beneath the veneer of the gentleman there will be found a desperate criminal if Hunter is captured and his record laid bare. What their reasons are for this conclusion beyond the somewhat spectacular manner of his escape, in which an element of boldness was not lacking, is not clear. From what is admitted by the police, however, it is certain that the arrest was an important one and the escape exceedingly unfortunate.

R. F. Outcault, whom Hunter represented as the president of the Press Artists' league in which he was interested, has issued a statement repudiating Hunter and any knowledge of the man.

Negroes Want Free Libraries

Influential negroes have already sent a memorial to Mr Carnegie suggesting the idea and a delegation will call upon him. It is pointed out that the negroes of southern cities in which Carnegie is establishing libraries will be barred from the privileges of the institutions. Mr. Carnegie's recent donation to Tuskegee institute showed that he is interested in the colored people of the south.

BRITISH FISCAL POLICY

Outlined In Pamphlet by Premier Balfour

SAYS HE IS A FREE TRADER

As Far as Contemporary Circumstances Will Permit—Chamberlain's Proposals Not Referred to, Causing Speculation as to His Attitude

London, Sept. 16.—Premier Balfour last night issued the advance sheets of a pamphlet on the subject of "Insular Free Trade," in which he presents at length arguments in favor of a change in Great Britain's fiscal policy. In introducing the pamphlet Balfour says his purpose in issuing it is beause it would be impossible to put all the important points of this question within limits of a single speech and, therefore, the pamphlet may be a fitting preliminary to the speech which he will shortly make. This undoubtedly refers to the speech he will make at Sheffield Oct. 1.

Mr. Balfour says he approaches the subject from the standpoint of a free trader as far as contemporary circumstances will permit. He continues:

"I am a free trader, but not of the pattern which holds that the doctrine of free trade is so universal in its application and so capable of an exact expression that every conclusion to which it logically leads must be accepted without hesitation and without reserve."

The premier points out that as a result of England's policy of retaining a fiscal policy made for a free trade country in a world of free traders, not for a free country in a world of protectionists, the rate of her export trade has not increased and, in fact, has seriously diminished. Compared with past years some departments show no increase, while others show symptoms of decay. The premier asserts that there is no reason to expect an improvement. Meanwhile Germany, America, France, Russia and even Great Britain's self-governing colonies continue to build up a protected interest within their borders.

Mr. Balfour says the mistakes made by the free traders half a century ago have left Great Britain bearing all the burdens and enjoying only half the advantages which should attach to the empire. He devotes considerable space to the effect of protection upon combinations in countries in which protection exists. This, the premier points out, is to the disadvantage of the British manufacturer, who is unable to compete with the manufacturer who is able to sell abroad at a lower price than he charges for the same article at home. He gives an instance of German steel in this particular, saying that it is selling cheaper in England than the English manufacturer can possibly produce it.

Mr. Balfour declares that the optimists who advocate a continuance of the free trade policy in place of the injury worked by protection on Great Britain's interests are foolish and their arguments little short of reckless. The only possible hope of a mitigation of the evil is through negotiation which, he says, can only appeal to self interest in foreign protected countries and, in the case of the colonies, to self-interest coupled with sentiment.

Mr. Balfour concludes: "Were I proved to be wrong, my opinion on the fundamental question would remain unchanged. Where we fail others may succeed. It cannot be right for a country with free trade ideals to enter into competition with protectionist rivals, self-deprived of the only instrument whereby their policy can conceivably be modified. The most essential object of our national efforts should be to get rid of the bonds in which we have gratuitously entangled ourselves. The precise manner in which we should use our regained liberty is important, yet after all, only a secondary issue."

The publication of the pamphlet immediately after the momentous cabinet council indicates that it embodies a statement of policy accepted or acquiesced in by the majority of the cabinet. If this assumption is correct it means the abandonment of the idea of a preferential tariff with the colonies and the taxation of food in favor of a system of retaliatory duties. Even this, however, is tentative. Mr Balfour in his speech Oct. 1 is expected to elaborate and explain his case and then the cabinet will closely watch its reception by the conservative delegates.

What will be Colonial Secretary Chamberlain's attitude is the burning question of the moment. The most striking feature of Balfour's pamphlet is that from the beginning to the end it does not refer to Chamberlain's proposals. There is not a word about the threatened breaking up of the empire or preferential tariffs and the colonies are scarcely mentioned. On the contrary, the whole line of Balfour's reasoning is opposed to tariffs for purely protectionist purposes. Hence, Chamberlain is faced with the alternative of either abandoning preferential tariffs or prosecuting his campaign unsupported by Balfour.

DROPPED DEAD.

Archibald NcNeil, a Granite Polisher Was Returning from Work.

Archibald McNeil aged 56 years, who worked Tuesday as his trade as a granite polisher dropped dead near his home on Kidder street about 5.30 P. M., when returning from work. He was employed at the polishing shop of William McInnis & Co. The excessive heat of the day probably conduced to the fatashock.

Mr. McNeil was unmarried. He was a native of Little Sands, P. E. I. The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon at 2.30.

Lipton Ill.

Sir Thomas Lipton is reported seriously ill at Chicago with a stomach trouble.

AUTUMN OUTING DRESS.

The Fancy For Spotted Borders to Plain Materials.

The jaunty costume illustrated, while designed as appropriate for yachting, will be equally useful for seaside wear, mountain and country use in its general features, as little is demanded for these purposes beyond a short cut skirt and any neat blouse or coat arrangement.

One of the taking developments of the present season, where decoration is concerned, is the fancy for spotted borders to plain materials. On all sides we have seen, and are destined to see, this form of ornamentation, and very charming is it in its simplicity, especially so after the almost bewildering mass of tucks and insertion, braids and buttons, which has been prone to crowd into the first place.

The design is well adapted for serge—for instance, blue with a blue or red and white spotted border.

The skirt is one of the new box plaited designs. The box plaits are arranged at intervals all round, one straight down the front and one either side of the back, where they touch, the placket hole being placed between them and securely fastened with hooks and eyes. There is no reason, however, why this necessary but sometimes treacherous adjunct should not be more conveniently arranged beneath the first box plait on the left side.

The seams in every case are directly underneath a plait and are thus perfectly invisible in the finished skirt, while they most skillfully fit the figure from the hips to the waist without the aid of darts. The plaits, after they are pressed down, are finally stitched at the edges.

The border, which is simply a strip cut on the cross four inches wide, is laid on, run or stitched at the bottom, turned up and lightly run down by hand at the top, the edge here being afterward finished by a coarse featherstitch in either purse silk or flax thread, as desired.

The pretty bodice is also laid in box plaits, one down the center and one either side of the front, while at the back one is arranged each side in such a way that they slope inward toward the waist, the back being perfectly tight fitting. The sailor collar is a separate affair and really finishes the little coat bodice, but a plain vest and collar may be adopted instead.

A SMART AND USEFUL COSTUME.

The bodice is worn outside the skirt, coat fashion, and is mounted at the waist into its band.

Fruit Pastes.

The purest fruit pastes are simply the juice of fruits boiled to a solid, curdlike jelly, with only sugar enough to correct the acid developed by heat. The juice of pears without sugar will jelly by long baking in a covered dish. Apple juice with one-fourth of quinces makes a rich confection. All that it requires are fruit juice, boiling and care. Set the juice over a quick fire till it boils fast, then draw to the back of the stove, lower the fire and let it simmer for hours, finishing in a closed dish in the oven. Thick stoneware is the only thing to boil this in without danger of scorching and instantly ruining the paste.

A PEEP INTO THE FUTURE.

—New York Evening Telegram.

HOME BUILDING.

The Cost of the Average House Per Square Foot.

Taking the country as a whole, are the conditions favorable just now for home building? This question was asked of a number of architects and builders in different sections.

It is as good a time to build as it is likely to be is the opinion of the men interviewed. The price of material is rather high, but wood, which of course in house building is generally the principal material, is "up" to stay, and plumbing and masonry are probably on a fair basis.

The early fall is a good time to begin house building in the northern latitudes. The foundations may then be put in under favorable conditions, the work well advanced before frost and the structure closed in before snow flies, while the interior may be finished to advantage during the winter, when the artificial heating gives a dry air and an even temperature. This enables the flooring and other finish to be fitted nicely and the varnish and paint to dry in.

A house begun in September could very well be finished by February or March, five or six months being sufficient time for the average work to be carried out to advantage. This is, on the whole, rather less expensive than to build in the spring, as there is less delay on inside work.

Experience shows that the average two and a half story house with the usual fittings can be built for $3 or $4 per square foot of ground covered, according to the quality of finish desired. The advance in the cost of building has been from 20 to 30 per cent in the past ten years.

Many architects urge their clients, where they can afford it, to build of brick rather than wood. The cost of brick is relatively less today than it used to be. Wood shrinks and swells and burns. Wood has to be painted and grows shabby with time. Brick takes on a better tone and texture with time, does not shrink and swell and won't burn. Vines will grow on the brick wall. Repairs are less; insurance rates are less. The brick house is cooler in summer and much more economically heated in winter, and, built with a hollow wall, it is entirely free from dampness. The cost of a brick over a wooden house is 10 to 15 per cent as a general thing, but the difference is made up in smaller bills for coal and paint.

The tendency now is toward fewer and larger rooms; to have at least one large living room in the house; in the smaller house to make the hall a reception hall, doing away with the reception room or parlor. The kitchen is being more carefully planned, as people realize the importance in the daily comfort and economy of the convenient and well planned kitchen. There was a time when the superficial features were given undue consideration and when a house was planned with reference to the rare occasions of party and reception. Today a wiser idea prevails, and the daily life of the household becomes the controlling influence.—Good Housekeeping.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

STORM OF GREAT FURY

Causes Extensive Damage on Land and Sea

WIND OF HURRICANE FORCE

Swept the Coast From New Jersey Up Into New England—Shipping Buildings, Telegraph and Trolley Lines Suffer—Crops Damaged

New York, Sept. 17.—Greater New York and its environs for several miles in all directions were visited by the fiercest wind and rainstorm known hereabouts in years. The day began with rain, which increased as the wind, blowing from the east, grew stronger, and for two hours the combined fury of the elements wrought damage on land and water amounting in the aggregate to many thousands of dollars. The gale culminated in a wind velocity of 54 miles an hour and the guages at the weather bureau registered 1.30 inches precipitation in two hours. Then the storm subsided.

Several persons were injured by being blown off fire escapes and wagons, or by being forced against walls by the onslaught of the storm, and not a few of them are in hospitals, nursing bruises and cuts.

The gale was especially severe at sea, causing havoc to the shipping down the bay, where many vessels were sunk or wrecked. The worst of the damage was reported from Staten Island. The entire fleet of the Staten Island Yacht club at anchor was either sunk or wrecked. The pilot boat Hermit was driven ashore and there was a collision between a schooner and a barkeptine. Tugboat James Kay was wrecked in Hell Gate. The captain and crew swam ashore.

The hurricane burst on the centre of the city, loosening the 250-foot spire of St. Bartholomew's Protestant Episcopal church. The steeple of the South Congregational church was also loosened. The steeple of First Place Methodist Episcopal church was blown off.

Trees were torn up and telegraph and telephone wires were torn down and broken in all parts of the metropolitan district.

The storm in the upper bay was the worst experienced in many years. The wind blew with terrific force, attaining a velocity of nearly 60 miles an hour. At the Narrows fierce squalls raised a mountainous sea and much damage resulted to craft and wharves along the Staten Island shores.

Scores of plate glass windows along Broadway were broken, the vicinity of the "flatiron" building at Twenty-Third street suffering severely in this respect. In the "flatiron" itself 40 windows were smashed. Occupants of the building say they felt the huge structure sway in the gale. Many were so badly scared that they left the building.

Gustav Wickman was instantly killed during the heavy part of the storm by being struck by a broken trolley wire.

Mrs. Hander Sonntag of Carlstadt, N. J., while crossing a street in that town, was struck on the hand by a live trolley wire that had been blown down by the wind. Death occurred instantly.

At Jamaica, L. I., the storm wrecked half of the new extension to the grand stand at the Acqueduct race track. A workman was badly hurt by the falling timbers.

According to Weather Forecaster Emery, the storm was altogether unexpected. It generated somewhere out in the Atlantic and swooped down on the New Jersey coast. This storm, Emery said, had no connection withever with the tempest that a day or two ago devastated the coast of Florida.

Wind Seventy Miles an Hour

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 17.—The tropical storm which struck the New Jersey coast was one of the severest experienced for a long time. The wind, while it lasted, kept up a speed of 70 miles an hour. The storm was terrifying to a degree, but the damage was not as great as at first was believed. A conservative guess places the entire damage at $25,000 to $30,000. The telegraph and telephone lines leading out of the city are down and the fact that the city was cut off from connection with the outside world started wild rumors that the great resort had been entirely swept away.

—A church census of Boston will be taken Oct. 17

The Storm In Connecticut

New Haven, Sept. 17.—Southwestern Connecticut came within the radius of the storm which swept up the Atlantic coast and the fury of the elements did greater damage than any disturbance of a like character in the month of September for a great many years. In this city the high wind ripped up and mutilated the elms on the city streets to an extent that was surprising. Lawrence O'Neil was blown overboard from a harbor craft and drowned. At Bridgeport the falling trees carried down telegraph and telephone poles and put out of commission the street lighting service and compelled cessation of many lines of trolley cars. Here also was the centre of trouble for the telegraph and telephone companies, all lines running westward being lost, especially trunk lines routed through that city. This resulted in cutting off New Haven and other places east of Bridgeport with New York city. At many places small craft were dashed to pieces on the shore. The crop damage has been considerable, to add to the disheartening experiences of the farmers this year.

New England Shipping Safe

Boston, Sept. 17.—The centre of the vigorous atmospheric disturbance which caused such havoc in New York and down the Jersey coast passed across western New England in a northeasterly direction last night. The storm, while causing considerable damage in the interior, had little effect upon the shipping along the coast. It was accompanied by very heavy rain squalls and before midnight a number of small washouts had been reported from various points. No wrecks were reported along the coast, although a large fleet left Vineyard Haven during the day, bound round Cape Cod.

Worcester County Caught It

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 17.—The storm that passed over Worcester county was the worst that has been experienced in several years. The wind did considerable damage in Leicester, the electric light plant and srvice being crippled. Crops were levelled to the ground, with considerable damage, and in Gardner there was much damage by the wind. In this city signs were blown down, wires were badly tangled and several small frame structures were wrecked.

Hartford Boy Killed

Hartford, Sept. 17.—The storm blocked trolley traffic and crippled the electric light service here. Richard O'Brien, 9 years old, while walking on Canton street, was struck by an electric light wire, which was carried down by a falling tree, and he was instantly killed. Much damage was done to the electric light wires.

President's Strenuous Day

New York, Sept 17.—President Roosevelt rested on his train last night after a day of varied experiences. While en route from Oyster Bay to New York on the naval yacht Sylph he passed through a terrifying wind and rainstorm, during which the vessel was in imminent danger. Subsequently he visited the immigration station on Ellis Island, and made an inspection of the institution. After dining on the Sylph last night he went on the revenue tug Chamberlain to Jersey City, where he boarded a special train which is to convey him to the battlefield of Antietam, where will occur the ceremonies incident to the dedication of the monument erected to the memory of New Jersey soldiers who fell in the Civil war.

Brought Her Pilot Along

New York, Sept. 17.—The large number of passengers on the steamer Oceanic, from Liverpool and Queenstown, had a very disagreeable voyage as far as weather was concerned. On leaving Queenstown a terrific southeast gale prevailed and the steamer was obliged to bring her harbor pilot, John Whalen, to this city, being unable to land him before leaving the Irish coast.

Five Lives May Have Been Lost

Anglesea, N. J., Sept. 17.—The oceangoing tug Spartan, which was engaged in towing three coal barges between Philadelphia and New England ports, foundered during the storm on the ocean at the entrance to Delaware bay and it is feared five of her crew are lost. The other 10 members of the crew were rescued off floating wreckage near Cape Henlopen by the fishing

NEW VOTERS.

Big Registration for a First Night.

Ward One Has Passed Ward Four.

The first opportunity for registration as voters was on Wednesday evening and the number was unusually large for the first night, there being 33, against 6 at the first meeting last year, and 18 at the first two meetings last year.

Under the new law it is not possible to have names restored to the list within a certain time, so all who apply hereafter must qualify.

The new voters are divided among the wards as follows; Ward One, 13; Ward Two, 3; Ward Three, 6; Ward Four, 7; Ward Five, 1; and Ward Six, 3.

The registration is so close in Wards One, Three and Four that Ward One passed Ward Four Wednesday night and is now only 19 behind Ward Three the largest ward. There promises to be a ward rivalry.

A special to the Daily Ledger at 1.30 this afternoon from the observatory on Blue Hill reported the wind at that time to be blowing 36 miles an hour.

The indications are showers tonight and tomorrow, and cooler weather.

Republican Rallies.

There was a meeting at Republican state committee's headquarters, Wednesday, of the committee on rallies, at which the number of rallies and the speakers were discussed. The assignments will be made later. Gov. Bates, Lieut. Gov. Guild, Atty. Gen. Parker, Congressmen Powers, Roberts, Gardner and others will be on the stump during the campaign. Congressman McCall is reported as of the opinion that rallies are not necessary this year, but this view is not shared by the State Committee managers.

SCHOONER SUNK.

Was the Hattie A. Marsh of New London.

J. B. Mehaffey was the Captain.

Leaves a Widow and Several Children at Wollaston.

Capt. J. B. Mehaffey, whose wife and children reside on Safford street, Wollaston, lost his life at Delaware Breakwater on Wednesday morning, during the storm, only one member of the crew being saved.

Capt. Mehaffey's home was for a number of years at Quincy Point, when he was master of the Fannie & Fay, in which Quincy granite quarrymen were interested.

For the last two years he has been captain of the Hattie A. Marsh, transporting granite and paving stone from Maine to the Middle states.

A dispatch from Delaware Breakwater to the Post says: The southern storm which had been coming up the Atlantic coast for several days struck the Delaware capes early Wednesday morning with almost volcanic force, and, as a result, at least five lives were lost. The storm lasted from 3 A. M. until 7 A. M. The wind reached a maximum velocity of 80 miles an hour, and the rain fell in torrents.

The most serious accident reported was that which befell the schooner Hattie A. Marsh, whose captain, J. B. Mehaffey, and four members of the crew were drowned. The Marsh hailed from New London, Conn., and was bound from Painters Point, Me., for Philadelphia, with a cargo of paving stones. She was caught in the terrific wind storm outside the new stone breakwater. The captain tried to reach the harbor of refuge, but before he could do so the vessel had to anchor and try to ride the storm.

Her anchor, however, did not hold, and the schooner with her dead weight of stone was dashed on the rocks of the harbor of refuge. The steam pilot boat Philadelphia went to the rescue, but only succeeded in saving Mate Norman Campbell and one seaman. The rescued men were taken to the Lewes life-saving station. They were in a very exhausted condition when picked up.

In the old harbor, southwest of the marine reporting station, three schooners dragged their anchors and collided. They were the Emily F. Northam, Adeline Townsend and Seabird. The Seabird, which was a two-masted vessel, sank, and her crew was rescued and landed on the point of Cape Henopen. The men were cared for at the life-saving station. The Northam had her jibboom carried away and her yawl stove. The Townsend lost her headgear and jibboom.

The barges Elmwood, Gilberton and Kalmia, laden with coal from Philadelphia for Eastern points, were sunk in Delaware Bay westward of the Brown Shoal. Their crews were rescued by the tug Tamaqua, which was towing the barges. The tug Spartan, which was towing the coal barges Tiverton, Hammond and an unknown barge, is reported to have sunk. The barges are anchored at Bear Shoal. There are no tidings of the Spartan's crew.

It is reported that three coal barges were sunk on the ocean off the Capes and that their crews are probably lost.

An unknown bark is anchored off Ocean City, Md., with distress signals in her rigging. The pilot boat Philadelphia has gone to her assistance. The barge Marcus Hook, from Philadelphia for New York, was almost wrecked.

—One of the statues of Queen Victoria was executed by Edgar Boehm, a sculptor of Hungarian origin. This monument stands at Windsor. There are also monuments of the queen at Liverpool, Glasgow, Aberdeen and Edinburgh, and at Bombay and some of the Australian towns.

Good Afternoon

September seems to be a popular wedding month, but just wait until October comes.

Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow continues his silent pursuit of the postoffice "grafters" and every once in a while brings in a big bag. Incidentally Mr. Bristow is daily demonstrating his qualifications for the position of Postmaster General, which is certain to be vacant in the near future.

Why are the transcontinental railroads maintaining an extravagant and expensive lobby in Bogota, charged with defeating the Panama canal treaty? Because the roads are aware that once the isthmian canal is completed they will be compelled, by the competition of water freight carriers to lower their own freight rates.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Of 23 cities thus far reporting their tax rate for 1903, 11 have a higher rate than Haverhill and 11 a lesser rate. This doesn't necessarily mean that $17.-60 per thousand is the happy medium which philosphers tell us should be sought after, and it will be more in sympathy with the feelings of the average taxpayer to refer to it as the mean rate, which is also a strictly correct term.

☞The idea of placing state and county prisoners at outdoor work, especially at work which will increase the resources of the state, is an excellent one, and we predict for the project a bright future. The Grafton colony of the Worcester Insane asylum illustrates what can be done with insane patients, and there is no reason why the same success should not attend similar efforts with prisoners in our penal institutions. —Worcester Gazette.

☞Gen. Miles in going about the country finds that the people do not want war, but peace. Certainly a truthful statement. Who has doubted it? Who believes that any sane human in these piping times of peace doesn't prefer conditions as they are to the conditions prevailing in wartime? When a man can get his portrait two columns wide in the newspaper and get a half column of glory and adultation because he can play golf, what's the use of his going to war?—Brockton Enterprise.

Loyal Ladies' Lawn Party.

Mrs. Bernard Hart of Willard street, West Quincy, gave a lawn party in honor of the Loyal Ladies' of Clan McGregor Wednesday evening. Being a respected member of the order a large number turned out and they were well repaid, for a more enjoyable evening could not be had. Dancing was enjoyed to the strains of the Scottish instrument, (the bagpipes played by Mr. Mackie). All kinds of indoor games were indulged in and most interesting "The Black Hole," a new game.

During the entertainment Mrs. John Stronach of Liberty street the president in a very fitting speech presented Mrs. Hart with a beautiful rocking chair on behalf of the order, to which she feelingly responded. Ice cream, coffee and cake were served at intervals during the evening, and the common wish was that each one had a lawn that the party might be duplicated.

CAPACCIOLI--LALLY.

Milford Bride Won by Former Resident of Quincy.

In St. Mary's church at Milford on Wednesdays says a dispatch to the Globe from that town, Miss Mary Gertrude Lally, daughter of Mrs. Delia Lally, was married to Albert Foster Capaccioli of Milford, formerly of Quincy. The ceremony was at 9 o'clock, Rev. Fr. James V. Hanrahan officiating, and celebrating a nuptial mass.

The bridal party entered the church preceded by the ushers, Dr. Francis H. Lally, Thomas Powers, John Lally and William Moran. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Ella Lally of Milford. Thomas Joyce, also of Milford, was best man. At the conclusion of the nuptial mass, just before the party left the church, Dr. Lally sang "For All Eternity." Mendelssohn's march was the recessional.

The gown of the bride was a white swiss muslin over white silk, with trimmings of lace insertion. She wore a bridal veil and carried a bridal rose bouquet. Her attendant was gowned in pearl silk and she carried a cluster of chrysanthemums. The traveling dress of the bride was blue broadcloth.

After the ceremony, the bridal party was driven to the home of the bride's mother, 72 High street where the happy young couple were the recipients of cordial congratulations from many friends. Fully 150 guests were present. Dinner was served on the lawn.

Mr. and Mrs. Capaccioli were given a very large number of wedding presents, including gold coin, cut glass, silverware, etc. They left on an afternoon train for a honeymoon trip to New York city and Niagara Falls. They will be at home to their friends after Nov. 1, at 72 High street, Milford.

Regdel in Demand.

The tenth Regdel coupon was printed yesterday, and there was a call for one game within two hours. Several games have already been delivered. Those who did not begin with No. 1 can begin with any number, but it should be remembered ten consecutive numbers are necessary, and that only fifty games will be given away. Those obtaining games are requested to write to the Daily Ledger to tell how they like it.

SCENTED DANGER

Swindler Poor Skipped When Almost Within Grasp of Police

Lynn, Mass., Sept. 17.—Although the officers at work upon the case are very reticent, it is learned that they have obtained trace of Norman C. Poor, the man who obtained $15,000 worth of stocks and bonds from the messenger of E. H. Gay & Co. of Boston, in this city last Thursday by giving a forged check in payment therefor, and that they are close upon his trail.

On Monday a stranger appeared at a bank in Mount Morris, N. Y., and desired to sell some railroad stocks. The bank officials had no description of Gay & Co.'s stocks, but they did have a description of Poor, and, believing the stranger to be the man wanted, they made an appointment with him for the following day, and notified the authorities. Poor, if it was he, scented danger, and left town that night, and when the officers reached Mount Morris he had several hours the start of them.

The officers are confident that they will be able to locate the fugitive and effect his capture within a short time.

He had recently been appointed lay reader of the Episcopal church by Bishop Codman and preached at Long Cove last Sunday.

The bullet entered Mitchell's neck and went downward into his left lung. The doctors regard the wound as dangerous. The person who fired the shot is unknown.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

LIPTON IS LAID UP

Suffering From Appendicitis and May Have to Undergo an Operation

Chicago, Sept. 17.—Sir Thomas Lipton is suffering from appendicitis. He complained of pain in his stomach when he arrived in Chicago and a few hours later was compelled to take to his bed in his apartments at the Auditorium Annex.

A consultation was held by the doctors late last night and they gave the friends of Sir Thomas to understand that the necessity of an operation, while not obviated, was not immediate.

When the physicians were leaving Dr. Senn remarked to Dr. Thomas, as they descended in the elevator: "We shall be lucky to pull him through this without an operation."

Dr. Thomas made no reply, but his manner indicated that he did not dispute the opinion expressed by Dr. Senn.

Frost Strikes Western States

Kansas City, Sept. 17.—The temperature throughout Kansas and western Missouri last night was low and at many points frost was apparent.

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 17.—Frost came to nearly every part of Nebraska last night and in the north and western portions of the state the damage is considerable. Grains were not seriously hurt in any portion of the state.

St. Paul, Sept. 17.—Reports received here show from heavy to killing frosts from Huron, S. D., to North Platte, Neb. Killing frosts at Huron, S. D., Sioux City, North Platte, Neb., and Bismarck, N. Concessions to Miners

Philadelphia, Sept. 17.—The contract miners of Cox Bros. & Co. have obtained from the board of conciliation the right to select and hire their own helpers, a right which is considered of much importance to the men and their union. The protesting company withdrew its objections, only stipulating that the company should have the right to object to the selection by the miners of lawless or otherwise objectionable laborers. The board also decided that the laborers working in the Cox Bros.' mines should receive an advance of 10 percent.

Yellow Jack In Mexico

Laredo Tex., Sept. 17.—The quarantine established against Nuevo Laredo, Mex., by the state and federal authorities is being most rigorously maintained, it having been demonstrated beyond a doubt that yellow fever exists there. The quarantine authorities have decided that all traffic must cease between Laredo, Tex., and Mexico points and therefore no more trains will be allowed to cross the international bridge. There is a general exodus.

President Not In the Contest

New York, Sept. 17.—President Roosevelt's attention having been called to a letter of District Attorney Jerome in which mention was made of the president's position in the coming mayoralty campaign in this city, the authoritative statement is given out that the president has not interfered and will not interfere in any way either for or against the nomination of any candidate for mayor.

Telephone Service Ruined

Kansas City, Sept. 17.—Fire in the five-tory telephone building here burned all the toll boards and damaged the main switchboards so that for possibly three months there will be no telephone service in the business district and no toll service between Kansas City and any outside place. The loss will be about $150,000. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Armenians Started a Riot

Baku, Caucasia, Sept. 17.—Disorders among Armenians caused by the transfer of the Armenian church property to the state broke out here. The troops fired on the crowd of Armenians, who retaliated with revolvers and stones. One man was killed and 20 were wounded. Three of the latter died.

Autumn in the Mountains.

The White mountains have gained the title "the foremost summer resort in America," and as the summer season is passing, preparations begin for the second season of the year, the autumn.

Beginning with the middle of September, the mountains take new life. They are more beautiful than at any other time of the year. Hundreds of guests are pouring in, and the pilgrimages to the interesting places are daily occurrences.

This is the time to go through the Crawford Notch. The dazzling beauty of the foliage, the glittering cascades, the music of the songbirds transport one into a paradise. The Summit daily receives its quota of visitors, and the clear view at this season is remarkable. Mt. Washington has changed its surroundings and is more beautiful than a month previous. The Intervale is still magnificently grand, but the beauty is a trifle more marked; the sameness of the green verdure is no longer observed. The master hand of Nature has produced a picture far prettier than a painter's possibility. The same at Crawford, Bartlett, Jefferson, Lancaster, etc.

This is the season, then, to visit the mountains. The Boston & Maine railroad excursion rates to the White mountains take effect Sept. 15. Tickets will be good going to Oct. 10 and returning not after Oct. 12.

Low rates will be in effect for all side trips. Special rates will be made at hotels, etc.

For information in regard to stations and railroad rates, see Boston & Maine posters, or send to the general passenger department, Boston & Maine railroad, Boston.

Tickets will be on sale at this station and other principal stations on the Boston & Maine railroad.

Another Charge of Extortion

New York, Sept. 17.—Sam Parks appeared before Judge Newburger and pleaded not guilty to the indictment found against him on Monday last, charging him with extortion in having demanded and received $500 from Louis Schmitt of the Tiffany studio to settle a strike.

Corn Crop Under Water

Lacrosse, Wis., Sept. 17.—The Mississippi rose two feet more during the night at this point and the situation in this vicinity is becoming alarming. Root river has inundated thousands of acres of corn in Houston county, Minn. Farmers are moving their stock to the highlands.

Bulgaria Need Not Expect Any Help From the Powers

BLOODY MACEDONIA DRAMA

Will Be Enacted Unless Order Is Speedily Restored—Turkish Army Rapidly Mobilizing—Further Massacres by Sultan's Soldiers

Sofia, Sept. 17.—Although no formal replies have been received to the Bulgarian government's note it is stated that the representatives of three great powers have instructed their counsels to Bulgaria to remain quiet, as in the event of a war with Turkey Bulgaria need not expect any help in foreign quarters. It is further reported that the same diplomats visited General Petroff and endeavored to persuade him to postpone the mobilization of Bulgarian forces, but the premier declined.

One of the ministerial organs, in an editorial on the government's note, says it hopes it will be the last time that the Bulgarian government will issue a note. If the powers do not intervene to restore order in Macedonia, Bulgaria will undertake with the feeble forces she possesses to do what is expected of her and give Europe the pleasure of witnessing a bloody drama in Macedonia.

A telegram from Burgas reports that a general massacre is beginning throughout the district of Losengrad. Turkish troops and Bashi-Bazouks attacked a Greek village near Losengrad, killed 25 peasants and destroyed the church, schools and many houses. The Turks attacked the village of Paoulevo and killed everybody they found on the streets. A fight is reported from Petchonitza between a band of 100 insurgents and 300 Turks. The insurgents, who occupied a strong position, fired on the attacking Turks, killing 25.

A telegram from Uskub says the mobilization of the Turkish army is proceeding rapidly, while dispatches from Constantinople assert that the military party is urging the sultan to order his troops to cross the Bulgarian frontier without a declaration of war, which the party regards as unnecessary, inasmuch as Bulgaria is a vassal state of Turkey. The sultan is said to be still hesitating.

By Way of London

London, Sept. 17.—The efforts of the powers, according to the latest telegrams, are directed both at Constantinople and Sofia toward an endeavor to avert war. It is stated taht all the ambassadors at Constantinople have drawn the porte's attention to the danger of permitting a continuation of the excesses in Macedonia by the Turkish troops and irregulars.

The Daily Chronicle says it understands that Great Britain has decided on a still stronger step in the dispatch of a British squadron in support of her diplomatic endeavors at Constantinople to put an end to the massacres. It is impossible, however, to confirm or deny The Daily Chronicle's statement.

Most of the special correspondents in the near east consider war inevitable, but think it may yet be delayed, neither the Bulgarians nor the Turks being really prepared for it. The former are not sufficiently armed, while Turkey does not feel safe until her lines of communication are less at the mercy of Bulgarian insurgent bands.

A Vienna paper asserts that Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria has sent a trusted agent to King Peter, inviting Servian co-operation against Turkey.

The correspondent of The Daily Telegraph at Sofia says Bulgaria's reply to the porte's protest against the continual crossing of the frontier by bands and the smuggling of arms and ammunition from Bulgaria was couched in most uncompromising language, leaving no prospect whatever of an amicable arrangement.

A dispatch to The Daily Mail from Sofia says Prince Ferdinand will grant an audience to John B. Jackson, the United States agent at Sofia.

Turks Report Victories

Constantinople, Sept. 17.—Official dispatches report that in an encounter which took place between the Turks and a large body of insurgents at the village of Kermon, near Lake Prilepe, the insurgents were routed and had over 100 killed and a great number wounded. In the same vilayet the insurgents set fire to the village of Kachin. One hundred and fifty houses were burned and six women perished in the flames.

Salonica, Sept. 17.—An insurgent band of 450 men was annihilated by the Turks Sept. 14 between Istib and Kratova. Another band which attacked the railroad near Demirhissar was repulsed with loss.

Powers to Warn Bulgaria

Vienna, Sept. 17.—The Tageblatt understands that the powers have arrived at a decision to make a new collective representation at Sofia, warning Bulgaria against commencing a war.

White Star Line's Acquisition

New York, Sept. 17.—It is officially announced that the White Star line has taken over the Boston-Mediterranean and the Boston-Liverpool services of the Dominion line. A fortnightly service will be conducted to the Mediterranean from this port by three steamers. The Boston-Liverpool service will be maintained by two steamers

CITY BREVITIES.

Windy today.

Highland Park closed Tuesday evening.

A portion of the Ward Six playground has been sown with grass seed.

John J. Kemp is confined to his home on Newcomb street by sickness.

Mrs. Charles E. Goldwaithe of Brockton spent Wednesday with old acquaintances in this city.

The only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Swingle is seriously ill at their home on Hancock street.

Mrs. William W. Penniman of Elm place has been spending the past week with relatives at Scituate.

Half the piles have been driven for the foundation for the new clubhouse of the Squantum Yacht club.

Charles Crane leaves today by trolley for a three weeks' visit with relatives at Marthas Vineyard and Monument beach.

Walter H. Cobb and Miss Cobb will accompany the Massachusetts Odd Fellows to Baltimore, for the 70th annual session of the Sovereign Grand Lodge.

Mrs. Lydia E. Manter has the sympathy of her many friends and acquaintances in this city in the loss of her husband, whose death occurred at Barre, Vt., on Thursday Sept. 10,

Mrs. Oliver Hapgood of Wollaston was elected on the executive committee at the reunion of the Emery Family Association at Hotel Berkeley, Boston, on Wednesday. Rev. Rufus Emery of Newburyport is president, and Jesse Emery of Roxbury secretary-treasurer.

The steamships arriving from abroad report very rough passages, and the Commonwealth due in Boston tomorrow with five or more Quincy young ladies, probably will not be an exception. There was a terrific southeast gale on Sept. 10, the day of the departure from Liverpool, and there have been other storms.

Miss Catherine Welsh of this city and Mr. Michael Hogan of Norwood were united in marriage Tuesday evening at the parochial residence of St. Catherine's church at Norwood. They were the recipients of many costly and beautiful wedding gifts. They will reside on Munroe street, Norwood.

During the gale this noon, the front door at the store of D. E. Wadsworth & Co. slammed to and the whole plate glass was broken in pieces about an inch square or less. It was the most complete wreck of a pane 3 by 5 feet that we ever saw. Some of the glass was thrown 25 feet into the street.

The Patriarchs Militant of Massachusetts, who are going to attend the Soveriegn Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows at Baltimore will also extend their excursion to Washington and include Philadelphia and New York. They go Friday and A. W. Stetson of this city is a special aid de camp on the staff of the department commander of Massachusetts. They will return Sept. 25.

KROBECK CASE.

May Not Come to Trial This Term.

Important Witness Is Missing.

The Quincy Pickpocket Gets Sentence of Four Years.

The case of Constant Krobeck of Quincy for the murder of Fred A. Peterson at West Quincy, March 15 last, did not come to trial in the Superior Criminal court at Dedham on Wednesday as expected.

The government requested a delay because an important witness is missing. It is doubtful for this reason if the case is tried at this term of court.

The pickpocket arrested at Quincy July 12 for larceny on an electric, was sentenced. His name is Michael Donovan, alias Robert Hilpen, alias Michael Dooley, alias John Sullivan of Boston. He was given a term of not less than three and one-half nor more than four and one-half years in the state prison. He had served a previous term of four years in the same institution, and had just completed a three months' stay at Deer Island.

John J. Colbert, for larceny in a building at Walpole, was sent to the Dedham house of correction for three and one-half years.

William B. Hussey, for breaking and entering the dwelling of Horace A. Hussey at Milton, Aug. 13, 1903, was given two years in the Dedham house of correction.

In the case of John Henshaw, charged with keeping a liquor nuisance at Hyde Park, the jury returned late in the afternoon a verdict of not gnilty.

Did Not Explode.

That dynamite is not always dangerous was illustrated at Gloucester on Wednesday.

A regular car, in charge of Clark Harmon, motorman, and Clarence Noble, conductor, was coming from Bay View toward Squam, and when on the sharp curve near Bennett's pines, the motorman noticed something across the rail. He was unable to stop the car before the wheels passed over the object.

The investigation nearly took away the breath of all on board. The article proved to be a large stick of dynamite, enough to have blown the car into pieces. Imbedded in it were two brass-covered caps, carefully placed so that the car wheels would discharge them.

That this was not done in something short of a miracle. The wheels of the car cut through the pasty dynamite and exposed the caps, which were not touched, and thereby prevented an explosion.

The dynamite was brought to Gloucester and the police notified. They immediately commenced an investigation.

The motive for destruction is thought to be animosity against the railroad company.

TODAY'S COURT.

Andrew Fitzgerald of Quincy was arraigned for assault on Ellen Fitzgerald, his wife. Continued until Saturday for hearing.

The Nebular Hypothesis.

The nebular hypothesis survives in name, but with connotations indefinitely diversified. Regarding the modus operandi of cosmic change there is no consensus of opinion. That there was in the beginning a solar nebula all are agreed, but whether it was gaseous or pulverert, whether it shone with interrupted or continuous light, how it became ordered and organized, how it collected into spheres, leaving wide interspaces clear, the wisest are perplexed to decide.

His Position.

"Say, Chimmie, see dat man gettin' on de car? Dat's the postmaster general."

"Aw, gwan! He ain't no general—ain't got no brass buttons nor stars nor not'in'."

"Aw, he ain't no soldier general. He's de man wot hands out letters at de general delivery windy."—Kansas City Journal.

Insects Used For Medicine.

The cochineal insect is in some cases recognized as a medicine and at one time had a reputation for wonderful virtues. Honey and wax, often used in pharmacy, are insect products, while galls, used in medicine for the astringent properties and the gallic and tannic acid they furnish, are also the work of insects.—London Tit-Bits.

An Affecting Scene.

Mr. Younghusband—Darling, you have been weeping. What is it, my sweetest love?

Mrs. Younghusband—Horse radish!

LEWIS SENTENCED.

From Ten to Fifteen Years for He and Jackson.

Albert Jackson and Charlie Lewis, the two crooks who attempted to take the lives of patrolmen while the latter were arresting them, were each sentenced to from 10 to 15 years at hard labor by Judge Sherman in the superior criminal court in Boston on Wednesday.

Lewis is a professional house breaker who was sentenced on three counts of entering dwellings and stealing silverware. While escaping through Milton on a bicycle with the plunder from one of his expeditions attached to the wheel, Lewis was halted by a patrolman.

He turned quickly and without stopping fired point blank at the officer the ball striking the officer in the breast. His heart would undoubtedly have been pierced had it not been that he had a thick book in his inside pocket.

As Milton is in Norfolk county, the grand jury will have to act on this case. Mention of the assault was made in court, but he was only sentenced on the burglary count.

Jackson is the Negro who nearly killed Patrolman M. J. Sullivan of div. 4, Boston, with a fish knife during a struggle in Park square on July 4.

Whistler and His Model.

James MacNeill Whistler once owed a female model $5 for sittings. She was a Philistine of the Philistines, who knew nothing of her patron's fame and was in no way impressed with his work. One day she told another artist that she had been sitting to a little Frenchman called Whistler, who jumped about his studio and was always complaining that people were swindling him and that he was making very little money. The artist suggested that if she could get any piece of painting out of Whistler's studio he would give her $50 for it. Although skeptical, the model decided to tell her "little Frenchman" of this too generous offer and selected one of the biggest and finest works in the studio. "What did he say?" asked the artist who had made the offer when the model appeared in a state of great excitement and looking almost as if she had come second best out of a scrimmage. "He said: 'Fifty dollars! Good heavens! Fifty dollars!' And he got so mad—well, that's how I came in here like this."

Henley's Sufferings.

In fifty-four years of his life—he was born in 1849—W. E. Henley never knew what a day's perfect health meant. When little more than a boy he was attacked by a disease which necessitated the amputation of one foot. He was told later by the doctors that the sacrifice of the other leg was necessary were he to live. The fame of Dr. Lister had reached Henley, and, penniless and almost friendless, he determined to try Edinburgh infirmary. Thither he traveled third class in physical suffering such as few have known, and when he reached the infirmary his whole possessions amounted to a few shillings. His confidence in Lister was justified and his leg was saved. He was and remained a cripple, but neither hopeless nor helpless. His astounding nimbleness under these conditions suggested to Robert Louis Stevenson the physical sketch of John Silver.

The Red Sea.

Here is an interesting theory: What made the Red sea red? The blood of locusts. Read a few lines from Exodus: "And the locusts went up over all the land of Egypt and rested in all the coasts of Egypt; very grievous were they. Before them there were no such locusts as they, neither after them shall be such. For they covered the face of the whole earth, so that the land was darkened. And the Lord turned a mighty strong west wind, which took the locusts and cast them into the Red sea. There remained not one locust in all the coasts of Egypt." The Red sea today is no more red than any other sea. Its reddening was temporary.—New York Press.

What Is Gossip?

There has been complaint from the beginning of history that women are "curious." What is curiosity? It is the uneasy appetite of an ill fed mind. People fully educated and fully employed are not curious. Civilized woman has inherited the mental growth of man and then has had to confine that enlarged capacity to precisely the same field of activity which was sufficient for a squaw. Women have been accused for centuries of a tendency to "gossip." What is gossip? It is small talk about other people. The tendency to this vice is a reaction from the persistent presence of our own affairs.—Success.

Eugene Field's Sarcasm.

Eugene Field was once presented to a "sister poet," to whom he tried to say pleasant things. At last the lady inquired condescendingly, "Do you ever write yourself?" "A little," replied Field modestly. "And what did you say your name was?" "My name is Field—Eugene Field." "I have not heard of you before, Mr. Field," said the lady, with oppressive frankness. "No, madam," said Field, "nor I of you; but you might at least have pretended you had, as I did. Good afternoon."

No man really feels his importance until after his wife calls his attention to the fact that he is somebody.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

MUCH-MARRIED DOCTOR

Falls Into the Clutches of the Boston Police

CREDITED WITH FOUR WIVES

Besides Being Suspected of Having Married Two Abroad—Has Served Time For Larceny and Obtaining Money Under False Pretences

Boston, Sept. 17.—Clarence C. Perry, M. D., who, by his own admissions, which are borne out by the records, has entered into at least four matrimonial alliances in this country, and who is believed to have married at least two women abroad, was arrested at 88 St. Botolph street on the charge of polygamy. The specific charge against him is that the crime was committed in Cambridge, Mass., on July 15, 1902, when he was married to Annie M. Britt. Perry was delivered to Cambridge officers and is locked up at police headquarters in that city. Perry's marriages thus far disclosed are:

To Sarah L. Pratt, San Francisco, in 1877. She was deserted in Chicago.

To Isabella J. Wood, New York city, in 1883.

To Adeline C. Colgrove of Boston, in New York, in 1893.

To Annie M. Britt, in Cambridge, in 1902.

There is also evidence to show that Perry was married to a woman in Paris and to another in London. Perry stated to Chief Watts after his arrest that he told the Colgrove woman, when he married her in 1893, that he had been married twice previously, but that his wives had been divorced according to law. The police have been unable to find anything to bear out this statement.

In 1896 the records show that Perry was fined in the New York court for abandoning the Colgrove woman, while in London, in 1901, he was given a month's imprisonment for obtaining money under false pretences. As early as 1880 the New York court records show that he was sent to Sing Sing prison for four years for larceny.

Perry has told conflicting stories as to his place of birth and but little regarding that point has been obtained He has said that he was born in New Bedford, and again has maintained that his native place is Martinique, French West Indies. He had in his possession documents showing that he had graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York, which were signed by George M. Tuttle, M. D., secretary to the faculty. This enabled him to obtain the favor of numerous members of the profession in this city to whom he told pitiful tales of his wife's illness, the necessity for an operation, etc., and from whom he succeeded in obtaining a considerable sum of money in the aggregate.

Perry is 53 years of age and appears active and young in appearance.

Argument For Army Canteen

Washington, Sept. 17.—Brigadie. General Baldwin, commanding the department of the Colorado, in his annual report urges the re-establishment of the army canteen under proper restrictions. He says that if men are unable to get a glass of beer in a decent and orderly manner in the garrison they resort to the vile brothels which cluster around the borders of the reservation where they drink all manner of alcoholic beverages and often sink into debauchery and ruin.

—If we could get a consensus of honest opinions from foreigners we should no doubt be told that our dominant national trait is—bad manners. We probably never shall live down the effect produced by the swaggering, rich "trippers" and shrieking girls who first represented us in Europe. They still are believed to be true American types. "The American vulgarizes all that he touches" has everywhere passed into an adage.—"An American Mother," in the Ladies' Home Journal.

A St. Louis man returned a marriage license obtained a few weeks ago with this notation on the back: "I am too poor to get married; will try again later on." His fiancee, who confesses to be 39 years, says $4 is sufficient money with which to get married, but he insists that $150 is necessary.

HATS AND GOWNS FOR TRAVELING AND GENERAL WEAR.

Surprises That Seem Probable In Modes to Come—Favorite Materials For Building Fall Gowns—Stylish Autumn Hats and Their Birds.

Dress has become immoderately elaborate and there is everywhere an inclination to overstep the laws of refined common sense that usually mark desirable modes. For this reason it is no surprise that fashion authorities find it within the range of possibility that the incoming season will reveal a something unexpected in the way of introducing a more severe style of garment. This may, perhaps, be perfected by a combination of unique style and rich simplicity. Still it is yet premature to anticipate any radical innovation.

COSTUMES IN CLOTH AND SERGE.

For autumn black and white tweeds make useful dresses and plaids promise to be worn. Cloth and serge in styles such as those of the cut, which shows a costume of dark and light brown cloth and another of blue serge with white stitchings, lawn frills and an underbodice, represent some of the various modes.

Head gear is, of course, an important autumn consideration. The French sailor represents a popular and becoming shape. The one shown in the cut is in dark blue felt, flat, the brim turning up and draped with a shot blue and green ribbon. A large puff bow of silk adorns the back of the crown and a dark blue bird rests gracefully on the top. It is a smart confection with a Parisian air.

The predictions are for great use of birds the coming season, but these are said to be "millinery birds" made up of dyed feathers from domestic fowls. They consist of little but wings and head and a flat body, the wings being outstretched and projecting over the brim.

A fawn beaver round hat, outlined with cardinal crushed velvet and garnished with two fancy colored birds, furnishes a desirable bit of stylishness for an autumn traveler.

AMY VARNUM.

They Say.

They say that—

Celery is a foe to rheumatism, neuralgia, diseases of the nerves and nervous dyspepsia.

Lettuce and cucumbers cool the system, and lettuce especially will help insomnia sufferers.

For malaria and erysipelas nothing is better than cranberries.

Fresh carrots and yellow turnips are good for nervous disorders, gravel and scurvy.

Watermelon is excellent for epilepsy and yellow fever.

Tomatoes are good for liver troubles.

Blueberry Roll.

Put a quart of blueberries in a porcelain pudding dish and sprinkle over half a pint of white sugar. Make a dumpling paste of two cupfuls of flour, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, a little salt, a tablespoonful of butter and milk. Roll this out the size of the pudding dish and with it cover the berries. Steam about an hour. Serve with hard sauce.—Boston Cooking School Magazine.

Pie Crust With Buttermilk.

We are asked for a recipe to make pie crust with buttermilk, says Rural New Yorker. Materials required are half a pint of buttermilk, half a teacupful of lard, half a teaspoonful of salt, a third of a teaspoonful of soda and flour enough to make a soft dough. Rub the lard into the flour, add the other ingredients, roll quickly and bake in a steady, even heat.

DEDICATION.

Of Monument to the New Jersey Fighters.

Victory by Force of Arms.

And Victory in Civil Life Were His Subject.

Sharpsburg, Md., Sept. 18.—The dedication of the monument erected on the battlefield of Antietam by the state of New Jersey was rendered notable by the participation in the ceremonies of the President of the United States and of Governor Murphy, the chief executive of the state which was honoring its heroes.

During a 2½-hour drive following the ceremonies a singular fact was developed by the discussion of the battle. It was that throughout the ceremonies of the day, actively participated in entirely by citizens of New Jersey, with the exception of the president, the name of the commander of the Union troops in the great engagement, General George B. McClellan, a citizen and afterward a governor of the state of New Jersey, was not mentioned once. Governor Murphy himself recalled this curious, although quite unintentional, lapse and was concerned deeply about the matter, lest the omission might be misconstrued.

President Roosevelt made the chief speech of the day, as follows:

I thank you of New Jersey for the monument to the troops of New Jersey who fought at Antietam, and on behalf of the nation I accept the gift. We meet today upon one of the great battlefields of the Civil war. No other battle of the Civil war lasting but one day shows as great a percentage of loss as that which occured here upon the day on which Antietam was fought. Moreover, in its ultimate effects this battle was of momentous and even decisive importance, for when it had ended and Lee had retreated south of the Potomac, Lincoln forwith published that immortal paper, the preliminary declaration of emancipation; the paper which decided that the Civil war, besides being a war for the preservation of the Union, should be a war for the emancipation for the slave, so that from that time onward the causes of union and of freedom, of national greatness and individual liberty, were one and the same.

If the issue of Antietam had been other than it was, it is probable that at least two great European powers would have recognized the independence of the Confederacy; so that you who fought here 41 years ago have the profound satisfaction of feeling that you played well your part in one of the crises big with the fate of all mankind. You men of the Grand Army by your victory not only rendered all Americans your debtors for evermore, but you rendered all humanity your debtors. If the union had been dissolved, if the great edifice built with blood and sweat and tears by mighty Washington and his compeers had gone down in wreck and ruin, the result would have been an incalculable calamity for all mankind. The great American Republic would have become a memory of derision; and the failure of the experiment of self-government by a great people on a great scale would have delighted the heart of every foe of republican institutions. Our country, now so great and so wonderful, would have been split into little jangling rival nationalities, each with a history both bloody and contemptible.

I confidently predict that when the final judgment of history is recorded it will be said that in no other war of which we have written record was it more vitally essential for the welfare of mankind that victory should rest where it finally rested. There have been other wars for individual freedom. There have been other wars for national greatness. But there has never been another war in which the issues at stake were so large, looked at from either standpoint. We take just pride in the great deeds of the men of 1776, but we must keep in mind that the Revolutionary war would have been shorn of well-nigh all its results had the side of union and liberty been defeated in the Civil war.

It now rests with us in civil life to make good by our deeds the deeds which you who wore the blue did in the great years from '61 to '65. The patriotism, the courage, the unflinching resolution and steadfast endurance of the soldiers whose triumph was crowned at Appomattox must be supplemented on our part by civic courage, civic honesty, cool sanity, and steadfast adherence to the immutable laws of righteousness. You left us a reunited country; reunited in fact as well as in name. You left us the right of brotherhood with your gallant foes who wore the gray; the right to feel pride in their courage and their high fealty to an ideal, even though they warred against the stars in their courses. You left us also the most splendid example of what brotherhood really means.

There was no patent device for securing victory by force of arms 40 years ago; and there is no patent device for securing victory for the forces of righteousness in civil life now. In each case the all-important factor was and is the character of the individual man. Good laws in the state, like a good organization in an army, are the expressions of national character. Leaders will be developed in military and in civil life alike; and weapons and tactics change from generation to generation, as methods of achieving good government change in civic affairs; but the fundamental qualities which make for good citizenship do not change any more than the fundamental qualities which make good soldiers.

In the long run in the Civil war the thing that counted for more than aught else was the fact that the average American had the fighting edge; had within him the spirit which spurred him on through toil and danger, fatigue and hardship, to the goal of the splendid ultimate triumph. So in achieving good government the fundamental factor must be the character of the average citizen; that average citizen's power of hatred for what is mean and base and unlovely; his fearless scorn of cowardice and his determination to war unyielding against the dark and sordid forces of evil.

As you did not win in a month or a year, but only after long years of hard and dangerous work, so the fight for governmental honesty and efficiency can be won only by the display of similar patience and similar resolution and power of endurance. We need the same type of character now that was needed by the men who with Washington first inaugurated the system of free popular government, the system of combined liberty and order here on this continent; that was needed by the men who under Lincoln perpetuated the government which had thus been inaugurated in the days of Washington.

The qualities essential to good citizenship and to good public service now are in their essentials exactly the same as in the days when the first congresses met to provide for the establishment of the union; as in the days, 70 years later, when the congresses met which had to provide for its salvation.

There are many qualities which we need alike in private citizen and in public man, but three above all—three for the lack of which no brilliancy and no genius can atone—and those three are courage, honesty, and common sense.

Our Capital Preferred to Our Goods

Toronto, Sept. 18.—At the annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' association Vice President Drummond said that the tariff had been the ruination, the Americanization of the Dominion. American goods were not wanted, American capital was welcome. He advocated raising the tariff high enough against the rest of the world to allow of a preference to England.

Democrats Applaud Low

New York, Sept. 18.—A number of prominent independent Democrats have forwarded to Mayor Low a letter, in which they endorse him for renomination on the fusion ticket, declaring his administration was such that all who supported him two years ago should be willing to do so this year and urging him to accept a renomination.

Mrs. Whitman on Trial.

Massachusetts at the Fair.

Massachusetts will have a $25,000 State building at the World's Fair at St. Louis next year, this sum having been appropriated at a meeting of the Massachusetts commission Thursday in Boston, when plans and specifications were approved.

George E. Gay made a progressive report on the educational exhibit.

Miss Helen Whittier of Lowell was selected by the commission to canvass the state and secure articles of historical interest to be placed in the historical hall of the state building. Miss Whittier will have offices at the state house, and at the commission's headquarters, 6 Beacon street, and will have full charge of the collection of this exhibit. The articles will be assembled at the state house, and then sent to St. Louis. Miss Whittier has much experience in this work, having had charge of the state historical exhibits at Chicago and Atlanta. She is a member of several historical societies. She will begin her work in about two weeks.

SEA WORTHY.

Torpedo Boat Destroyer Lawrence in a Storm.

Battled with Hurricane for Eight Hours.

Escape Regarded As Almost Miraculous.

A dispatch of Thursday from Norfolk, Va., to the Globe, tells of the seaworthiness of the torpedo boat destroyer Lawrence, built at the Fore River Ship and Engine Co. plant and its miraculous escape from a hurricane.

After battling eight hours with a hurricane that sent many much larger and stancher craft to the bottom the torpedo boat destroyer Lawrence poked her crumpled nose into Norfolk, Thursday afternoon, with a foot of water in her aft engine room and the quarters of the officers.

The Lawrence, in command of Lieut. A. M. Proctor, ran head first into the hurricane a little south of Atlantic City on her way to this naval station.

The plates on her port bow are badly buckled and smashed, several seams are opened, allowing a liberal leakage, her bridge is carried away, and all over she is badly scarred.

That the boat weathered the gale at all is regarded as being a great victory for the seaworthiness of the craft of her class, and that none of her crew was lost is regarded at the navy yard as nothing short of miraculous.

The Lawrence was carried many miles to the north. She was off Atlantic City when she finally began to make headway on her original course.

Drift of Opinion.

There should be a school of newspaper men established, to educate the graduates of the school of journalism. —Lynn Item.

Catholic priests continue to declare that the trade union oath should be modified, while the leaders of the union say there is no case shown in which the union oath has interfered with loyalty to the church, and that it would have been changed if any such conflict had ever arisen. All hands are gradually coming to an understanding. Loyalty to country, church and industry are not in conflict.—Exchange.

The Lowell Citizen says that Colonel Gaston is not a Governor yet, and "probably never will be unless he emigrates from the strongly Republican State which he now adorns as a corporation lawyer of the first magnitude." Those enthusiastic young gentlemen whose belief is different may struggle to prove their contention, but John L. Bates will continue at the head of this good old Commonwealth for two years more, the Democracy to the contrary notwithstanding.—Lynn Item.

Now teachers, we urge upon you the necessity of instilling in to your charges this school term, the common proprieties of courtesy and politeness. Children are apt to be rude to one another, to their parents, to their elders. They are generally lacking in refinement. You can do nothing better for those who first come to you than labor with them kindly in this way. We have been hoping that something might come from the kindergarten in this line, but after four years are obliged to say that conditions are not improved. They are growing worse yearly. The kindergartens have done nothing to improve them.—Salem News.

THINGS THEATRICAL.

Tyrone Power will play the title role in Stephen Phillips' "Ulysses."

Richard Harding Davis has dramatized his western story, "Ranson's Folly."

Marion Manola is to star in a new musical comedy entitled "The Tinted Venus."

Blanche Walsh has been granted a final decree of divorce from Alfred Hickman.

It is said that Blanche Walsh, not to be outdone by other stars, will appear in a Shakespearean role in 1904.

Johnstone Bennett has been engaged to play the part of Dixie Merryall in Edward Harrigan's new play, "Under Cover."

James K. Hackett's presentation of "Alexander the Great" will demand important changes being made in the various stages on which it will be seen.

Mr. Ziegfeld has engaged for his opera company, which is to produce "The Red Feather" at the Lyric theater, New York, Miss Elsie De Vere, a Parisian actress.

Mrs. Jessie Bartlett Davis recently complimented Mrs. Carrie Jacobs-Bond by singing the Chicago woman composer's ballad, "Love's Sacred Trust," at the Masonic Temple theater in the Windy City.

For Falling Hair.

One of the best remedies for thin hair is homely and malodorous, but inexpensive and unfailing—that of kerosene. It is claimed to grow hair on bald heads. A very little rubbed in the hair roots every night will soon arrest falling hair and promote a new growth. Vaseline is good also. Only as much as the scalp will absorb should be used, so as not to grease the hair. The oil of mace is a powerful hair invigorant. Half an ounce of it added to a pint of alcohol makes a good hair tonic.—Household Ledger.

Flouring the Cake Pan.

It is well worth while to line cake pans with paper and then butter and flour them. Use melted lard or other unsalted fat and brush it on well, then dredge with flour, shake well so it will adhere to every part, invert and give the pan a sharp rap to remove the superfluous flour, leaving only a thin coating. Flouring the pan prevents the cake from sticking, and it also gives to it a smooth undersurface.

"Are you in pain, my little man?" asked the kind old gentleman.

"No," answered the boy. "The pain's in me."

ROBERT EMMETT.

Why Friends of Ireland Will Celebrate on Sunday.

It will be 100 years ago Sunday that Robert Emmett, at the young age of 23, lost his life on the scaffold in the cause of Irish national liberty, and all over this country societies of Irish-Americans will formally celebrate that anniversary. Although history has crowned with undying fame, patriots who in all ages and in all countries have suffered martyrdom for the cause of national liberty and humanity, yet none other so young ever entered the "white army of heroes."

His memory has been enshrined in many ways—in the lyrics and oratory of his passionate admirers and the ardent tribute to his memory and his cause will be only limited by the lack of human speech to convey adequately, the intense love, loyalty and devotion permeating the entire Irish people.

Inseparably linked with his fate in the love of his nation are the two women, widely separated in social rank, who became a part of his memorable history—Miss Curran, his sweetheart, and Anne Devlin, the sturdy and faithful Irish woman, who refused to betray his place of hiding when sought by the English authorities, and preferred to go to prison rather than reveal it.

The Irish societies of Quincy will probably, not be neglectful of the memory of the great patriot, of whose name they are proud. A good meeting has been arranged for Sunday evening at Hancock hall.

Dynamite That Did Explode.

Clarence D. Hopper and Roy Boucher, switchmen of the Michigan Central railroad, were instantly killed by an explosion of dynamite in a car in the yards at West Bay city, Mich., on Sunday. Robert Roblin, engineer, William Noble, fireman, and John Crackle, conductor, were injured, the latter so severely that he may die. All of the trainmen were residents of Bay city.

The explosion occurred as a switch locomotive was making up a train. The locomotive backed down to several cars, the first containing 1000 pounds of dynamite, a consignment of rifles and a quantity of reduced charge shells for indoor rifle practice, and it is said that the force with which it struck the explosive-laden car exploded the dynamite.

Another report has it that one of the shells exploded and set off the dynamite.

Hopper's body was badly cut by flying steel and Boucher was decapitated, his body being terribly mangled.

A big hole was torn in the ground by the explosion, a score of freight cars, many loaded, were demolished, and nearly 300 houses in the vicinity suffered broken windows, and several were so badly wrecked as to be uninhabitable.

Snatched From Death's Jaws

Boston, Sept. 18.—Four men who started from Boston in a 16-foot dory for a day's fishing were capsized just inside Boston light by the terrific gale and high seas, but after clinging to the rigging for nearly half an hour were rescued from drowning by the gasolene launch Nauhaught and the tug Wawenoc.

Next Convention at the Hub

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 18.—The national encampment of the Sons of Veterans adjourned after selecting Boston for the next annual meeting. Arthur B. Spink of Providence was elected commander-in-chief.

—Governor Bates has adopted a new plan in receiving his callers, this being made necessary by the large number of those who wish to see him. Instead of having them sent into the executive chamber one at a time they are admitted by the half-dozen, the Governor then walking about the room and interviewing each in turn.

Salt Rheum
You may call it eczema, tetter or milk crust.
But no matter what you call it, this skin disease which comes in patches that burn, itch, discharge a watery matter, dry and scale, owes its existence to the presence of humors in the system.
It will continue to exist, annoy, and perhaps agonize, as long as these humors remain.
It is always radically and permanently cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla
which expels all humors, and is positively unequalled for all cutaneous eruptions.

BRITISH CABINET BREAKS

Three Members Resign Because Views Clash With Those of Balfour

London, Sept. 18.—The British cabinet is broken up, the long expected split over Chamberlain's protection policy having come. Three members have tendered their resignations. They are Joseph Chamberlain, secretary of the colonies; C. T. Ritchie, chancellor of the exchequer, and Lord George Hamilton, secretary for India. The king has accepted the resignations.

The split has arisen over Chamberlain's advocacy of a policy of protection for England and reciprocity with her colonies. Balfour and a majority of the cabinet have held to the old free trade theory, and Chamberlain and his two colleagues decided to get out.

In some quarters it is said that Balfour may dissolve the ministry and appeal to the country for a vindication of his policy. Others say he will avoid a general election for the present.

Across the Continent In Auto

New York, Sept. 18.—Another transcontinental party of automobile tourists has arrived in New York. E. T. Hammond and L. L. Whitman were the tourists and the machine that carried them was a gasolene runabount, of five horse power and 800 pounds in weight. The journey of nearly 5000 miles from San Francisco was made in 73 days elapsed time, and 57 days in which runs were made. From Omaha the trip to New York was made in 11½ days, which establishes a record between those points.

Maryland Republicans' Ticket

Baltimore, Sept. 18.—The Republican state convention of Maryland nominated Stevenson A. Williams for governor, George Whitelock for attorney general and L. P. Dennis for state comptroller. The platform endorses the administration of President Roosevelt and favors his nomination in 1904; the present Democratic state administration in Maryland is denounced; a reform of the present election laws is demanded.

Detectives Had Long Chase

Kansas City, Sept. 18.—Detectives have arrived in Kansas City with Carey Snyder, whom they had arrested in a small town near Billings, Mont., thus ending a chase that was commenced in May, 1902, and extended over a great part of the United States. Snyder is charged with holding up and robbing O. H. Stevens and his wife on the night of May 1, when it is alleged he secured jewels valued at about $6500.

The Italian legation here received an anonymous letter stating that Italian anarchists had planned an attempt on the queen's life during her stay in Sweden.

Alleged Abuse of Chinese

Washington, Sept. 18.—The Chinese minister has laid before Acting Secretary of State Adee a dispatch detailing an attack made on a number of Chinese at Tonopah, Ida. Mr. Adee wired the governor of Idaho asking for an immediate investigation and requesting that he afford every protection in his power to the Chinese residents of Tonopah.

No Arrests In Postal Cases

Washington, Sept. 18.—No arrests in the postoffice indictment cases are reported. It is said in some quarters that the two persons indicted are now outside of Washington. It is known that Inspector Moyer, who has taken a prominent part throughout the postal investigation, left here last night for New York.

Jews and Christians In Conflict

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

A TIP FROM GERMANY

Bulgaria Will Have No Assistance From the Powers

GREAT MASSACRE REPORTED

Great Concern Over News of Descent Upon Kastoria, a City of Ten Thousand Population—Burning of Villages In Macedonia Continues

Sofia, Sept. 18.—The German representative here has addressed a note to the Bulgarian government, in accordance with the declarations of Russia and Austria, saying that Bulgaria cannot expect assistance from any power in the event of war with Turkey and that the Austro-Russian reform plan will be applied.

The Austrian representative, in insisting on the necessity for Bulgaria remaining calm, declared that if the principality was powerless to prevent the passage of insurgent bands into Macedonia, Austria and Russia would take note of her powerlessness and charge Turkey to exercise her rights, defend her territory against foreign incursions and maintain order in the interior.

The report of a massacre at Kastoria comes from sources admitting of little doubt, though the details are lacking. It was received with the gravest concern by the officials here. The population of Kastoria numbers about 10,000 persons and the massacre of such a number in one place, if the report is true, exceeds anything which has yet occurred in Macedonia. At the present critical moment, when popular feeling is intense, the effect of the report of such stupendous slaughter may be most serious.

Kastoria is situated on the west side of a small lake. Its population numbers 10,000, of whom 4200 were Servians. The remainder were Mohammedan Greeks, Zingars and Jews.

Dispatches from Uskub announce that since the calling out of the Turkish reserves the situation in the vilayet has grown worse. The Austrian and Russian consuls are reported to have asked their ambassadors at Constantinople to demand that the porte disband the reserves or maintain discipline among them. Since the reserves were mustered pillaging and murders have been reported daily. The consuls are powerless. The Turkish authorities receive their complaints and appoint investigating commissions, which never convict.

Reports from Monastir of the burning of villages and the massacre of their inhabitants continue. The Autonomye publishes the names of 13 villages in the vilayet of Monastir which were recently destroyed by regular troops and Bashi-Bazouks and also announces that the monastery of the Holy of Holies near Okride (23 miles from Monastir) has been destroyed. At the monastery Turkish soldiers killed an entire family, the Bulgarian priest, his children and his grandchildren, 35 persons in all.

Trains entering Turkey from Bulgaria are stopped at Moustapha Pasha and the passengers' baggage is rigorously searched and forwarded by another train. The passengers are detained all night and are then sent back to Bulgaria.

The press is assuming a bellicose tone. The Dnevnik complains that the government's partial mobilization of three divisions is utterly inadequate and urges the immediate mobilization of the whole Bulgarian army, pointing out that the experience of other nations—France, the United States and Austria—has proved that it is always necessary to display strength when dealing with Turkey. The paper advises the government to act now, "at a favorable moment, when the people of Europe are evidencing encouragement of Bulgaria."

The government, while steadily proceeding with the partial mobilization plans, is endeavoring to avoid unnecessarily exciting the people and, consequently, has resolved not to mobilize any part of the Sofia garrison.

According to a telegram from Constantinople, the Greek patriarch has complained to the porte that the Bulgarian exarch is helping the revolution in Macedonia and has asked the porte to limit the exarch's authority, keep him under supervision and give the Greek patriarch authority over the Christians in Macedonia.

A letter from Adrianople says 1500 refugees, mostly women and children, have arrived in that city, having escaped from the general burning and massacre in the three villages by the Turkish troops. Many of the children were horribly mutilated. The insurgents have cut the telegraph line between Voden and Ber, in Albania.

Outrages Continue at Beirut

Beirut, Syria, Sept. 18.—Business is still suspended, notwithstanding the change in the governorship, and it will take a long time to restore confidence. Robberies and murders are the order of the night, if not of the day, and the feeling of insecurity on the part of all foreign residents is very great. Some form of outrage against the foreign and Christian population occurs daily.

Correspondent Expelled

London, Sept. 18.—The porte has expelled The Daily Mail's correspondent at Monastir, who has appealed to the British ambassador.

COVERS LONG PERIOD

Officials Working Upon Case of Alleged Counterfeiting at Gardner

Gardiner, Mass., Sept. 18.—The discovery of metals and tools such as are used in making counterfeit money has led the police to hunt for dies and moulds which have not been located and the search will be resumed under supervision of United States Marshal Darling of Boston.

Record Smith was arrested and locked up on the charge of making counterfeit money. Counterfeit half dollars have been circulated periodically in Gardner for a long time, and Smith has been found passing some of them, which he said must have been passed to him by some one, he did not know who. A year ago a house in which Smith had lived was moved, and under it was found a quantity of counterfeit half dollars. The tools and metals found yesterday were in the cellar of the house where Smith now lives.

Bad temper and drink are responsible for Smith's betrayal. Urged by his fear of Smith, Carl Asora reported that Smith, with whom he boarded, had asked him to go into a deal to make counterfeits. Asora refused and says Smith threatened to kill him if he mentioned his plan.

Prohibition Nominations

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 18.—While great enthusiasm marked the entire state Prohibition conventon here the real life and energy developed late in the afternoon when considerable strife came up as to whether or not clauses should be allowed in the platform endorsing an income tax and government ownership. After heated debate the clause concerning the income tax was killed, but the one pertaining to government ownership prevailed.

Dr. Oliver W. Cobb of Easthampton was nominated for governor. The rest of the ticket named is: W. E. Merrill, Marlboro, lieutenant governor; A. L. Cutting, Weston, secretary of state; N. P. Johnson, Milford, treasurer and receiver general; A. E. Steele, Northampton, auditor; H. M. Dean, Hyde Park, attorney general.

Annual Milk Controversy

Boston, Sept. 18.—After a long conference between the Milk Producers' union of New England and the Boston contractors, in an effort to fix the price of milk for the coming winter, an adjournment was taken without having reached an agreement. The producers set their price at 40 cents a can, landed in Boston, and out of which they claimed they have to pay a railroad freight averaging 9 cents a can. This is 4½ cents' advance over the summer price of the producers.

Mauled by Angry Bull

Millbury, Mass., Sept. 18.—Fritz Schiemann, boss farmer for S. H. Colton, was attacked by a dehorned bull in a pasture and sustained injuries which will probably prove fatal. Schiemann was thrown into the air and then was trampled on by the bull. His left side is crushed and several ribs are broken. Other men with clubs drove the bull away and got Schiemann over a fence out of his reach.

Dangerous Target Practice

Littleton, N. H., Sept. 18.—A stray bullet from a rifle in the hands of one of two young men who were engaged in target practice entered the head of William Downes just below the skull and came out under the left ear. Downes was driving by a lot where the shooting was being done. The marksmen, H. Carter and C. Rogers, both summer guests, were arrested and fined $15 each and medical expenses.

Provisional Gift to Church Folks

Greenwich, Conn., Sept. 18.—James McCutcheon of this town announces that he will give to the parish of the Episcopal church of Greenwich a site for a new church, and also a new rectory and parish house providing the parish raises $125,000 before the close of the year. The site to be donated by McCutcheon is valued at $50,000.

Woman and House Burned

Northampton, Mass., Sept. 18.—Miss Mary Drohan was burned to death in a fire that destroyed the house of her half brother, Thomas Drohan, at Hadley. She had been an inmate of the insane asylum here and developments point to the conclusion that Miss Drohan fired the house while suffering a return of mental trouble.

"Now, Johnnie, we've been learning about the changing seasons; how can we tell when Fall is here?"

SCHOONERS WRECKED

Fifteen Lives Lost on Pemaquid Point During the Gale

OTHER DISASTERS REPORTED

Fears That Several Persons Have Perished In Narragansett Bay—Belated News of Casualties Along the South Atlantic Coast

Boston, Sept. 18.—The lively storm which wrought such havoc along the Atlantic coast from Norfolk to New Haven, and then, striking into the interior, raced up the Connecticut river and gave the interior of New England a severe thrashing, reached well down to Newfoundland, but as it was followed within a few hours by another disturbance from the west. Nearly all the New England states were subjected to a continuous southerly gale which lasted fully a day and a half.

A majority of the coastwise shipping hung close to sheltered harbors, but the blow, however, caught a number of small craft off the coast, with the result that numerous wrecks were reported, the saddest of which was the destruction of two small fishing vessel on the grim rocks off Pemaquid point, in Maine, and the drowning of 15 fishermen, 14 of whom sailed out of Gloucester not many days ago.

It is reported that a body has come ashore in upper Narragansett bay and there are indications that several lives have been lost in that vicinity. Other casualties are reported from various points, and as usual there were a number of thrilling rescues.

In the interior the destruction by both storms was limited to the blowing down of what crops remained unharvested and the shaking off of fruit from the apple trees.

Old weather sharps look upon the continued gales as the so-called equinoxial storm, and, while such appelation is discredited by modern experts, the disturbance nevertheless will always be regarded as a particularly memorable and destructive one, and it will probably be many days before the record of the loss in lives and property is complete.

Miscalculated Positions

Pemaquid, Me., Sept. 18.—Fifteen lives were lost and the bones of two staunch schooners were scattered along the rugged shore of Pemaquid point as the result of the terrific storm which swept the Maine coast. The wrecked schooners were the mackerel seiner George F. Edmunds of Gloucester, Mass., and the little two-masted coaster Sadie and Lillie of Machias.

Both wrecks resulted from the sailing masters miscalculating their positions in the thick weather. Captain Poole thought he was making Booth Bay harbor, while Captain Harding believed his course was leading him into the Kennebec river, nearly 40 miles from Pemaquid. When the vessels went on the ledges they were less than 200 yards apart.

The wrecks of the Edmunds and the Sadie and Lillie were pounded to pieces by the waves and their timbers were strewn along hundreds of yards of shore line. The search for bodies met with little success during the early part of the day. Of the 15 dead only three bodies have been washed ashore.

Fishermen Lost In Gale

New York, Sept. 18.—Following Wednesday's hurricane came another severe storm. In New York city the wind blew at the rate of 67 miles an hour, which was stronger than Wednesday's gale. The damage was not so widespread, however, because the storm did not last so long. Fishing schooners that arrived brought tales of disasters from all along the coast. At least half a dozen men were drowned from these boats, and it is feared that many more met a similar fate. Several schooners are missing, some of which are known to have foundered.

Fishermen Probably Drowned

Barrington, R. I., Sept. 18.—The finding of the body of Earl E. Martin, 5 years old, at Nayatt, and the disappearance of the 20-foot sailing boat in which Walter E. Martin, the lad's father, and Harry Goff, the two other occupants, set out on a fishing trip, gives rise to the belief that the craft foundered and that both fishermen have been drowned.

Estimated Loss of $250,000

New York, Sept. 18.—Although no bodies have been washed ashore, there is little doubt that seven lives were lost in the numerous wrecks along the Brooklyn water front. It is estimated that between Canarsie and Fort Hamilton 300 craft of various kinds were lost. The damage is placed at $250,000.

Wrecked on Richmond's

Portland, Me., Sept. 18.—A sloop yacht, supposed to be the Lysette of Boston, was wrecked on Richmond's island, with four men on board. They saved themselves and took a train for Boston. They refused to give their names or that of the yacht, saying that they wished to get home before the news reached there.

Six Castaways Picked Up

New York, Sept. 18.—Steamer Vidar, Captain Sorrenson, arrived last night from Caibarien, having on board six of the crew of the British steamer Mexicano, which foundered during a gale on Sept. 16. The castaways were picked up from floating wreckage. The Mexicano carried a crew of 22 men.

Don't Want Trees Now.

Mr. Buckston, a new resident of Walker street, gave vent to a silent criticism on his new abode by bringing with him two large trees from his former home in Salem. Having planted the stalwart birch, Mr. Buckston was in hopes to arise the following morning and find them as the mythical Jack found the Beanstalk. Instead, only two miserable trunks full of brown leaves met his vision. Whereupon he severed their connection with terra firma and left the front lawn as it was when he moved in all except two round holes to tell the tale of the failure of his arboral enterprise.

FOUR LIVES SAVED.

On the Maiden Trip of the Nauhaught

Rescued Men from Capsized Sloop.

Nauhaught Had Other Excitement on Trip to Portland.

The maiden trip of the naptha yacht Nauhaught proved her a seaworthy boat, and besides resulted in the rescue of four men who were upset from their sailboat in the lower harbor in the gale Thursday while on a fishing trip.

The Globe reports the trip and rescue as follows:

The yacht is a 94-foot launch of 250-horse power, built recently in Quincy for Isaac G. Lombard of Chicago. Mr. Lombard invited four friends to accompany him and his son, Ernest B., on the first trip of the yacht. His companions were H. E. Haass, John C. Neeley and Frank H. Barker of Chicago and John E. Mayo of Colorado Springs. With them were Capt. Lawson in charge of the yacht, a cook and an engineer.

The party left Quincy on Tuesday for Rockland, Me., but on account of the weather did not go far beyond Portland. Wednesday they made Portsmouth, where they remained for the night. Yesterday morning about 8 o'clock they started back for Boston. They had several narrow escapes in the fog and storm, but the real exciting incident of the trip took place yesterday afternoon as they were about to enter the harbor.

Just inside Boston light they saw a small sloop with mainsail reefed, tossed about by the heavy seas, and as they came near to her she suddenly keeled over and sank. Four men had been seen on the deck of the sloop, and Mr. Lombard ordered Capt. Lawson to make all speed to save them. He did so, and the yacht was got as near as safety allowed to the men who were clinging to the shrouds and mast head of the fishing boat.

They were shouting for help and struggling to retain their insecure hold while the seas swept over them and threatened to tear them from the mast. All hands on board the yacht joined in dragging the men on board at the risk of going into the boiling sea themselves. Three of the men were got on board after a long fight when the sailboat disappeared altogether under the keel of the yacht.

The fourth man, who still clung to the mast, was given up for lost, but was heard an instant later shouting for help on the other side of the Nauhaught. He had been carried clear under the yacht, but managed to keep his hold on the mast. He was rescued by the tug Wawenoc of Philadelphia, which had come up while the men on the yacht were rescuing the others and stood by to give assistance if necessary.

The rescued men were taken into the cabin of the yacht and given dry clothing and medical attention. They said they were a party of carpenters, and having a day off thought to pass it in fishing. When they left Dorchester bay the day was comparatively calm, but the storm came suddenly on them, and they had tried to weather it by reefing sail. The waves rolled into the boat and had nearly swamped it before the wind overturned it.

They gave their names as John Sundberg and John Carlson of Roxbury and Fred Olsen of Dorchester. Their companion, who was rescued by the tug, they said, was Matt Soderlin. The men were taken to Quincy on the yacht, and then sent home. Soderlin was brought to Boston on the tugboat.

While coming up the harbor the party saw a three masted schooner ashore on Hardings ledge, but did not get near enough to see her name.

Later in the day the police boat Guardian picked up a sloop bottom up, near Sand Point light, and towed it to the foot of Hanover street, Boston.

Arab Lying.

The following characterization of the Arab penchant for not telling the truth is from a paper by Dr. G. Saint-Paul on the Tunisians: "Arab lying is exasperating. It is absurd and victorious. It triumphs easily over the critical sense and the habit of scientific reasoning. It is sometimes childish. Your native servants will never be taken unawares. You forbid one of them to smoke in your dining room and you surprise him there with a cigarette in his mouth. 'You were smoking.' 'No.' 'I saw you.' 'Impossible.' 'You had a cigarette in your mouth; you are hiding it in your hand; there it is!' 'Then God put it in my hand.' The native denies always. Taken red handed he denies. Beneath blows he denies. Pain is sometimes powerless to make him confess, even at the point of death. This obstinacy is due in part to the high idea he has of his dignity. His pride forbids him a confession, because the avowal of his lying is infinitely humiliating in his eyes. The fear of losing 'face' is all powerful in him. To recognize a fault is more shameful than to have committed it. Hence the peculiar obstinacy of the native in denying, even when it would be to his interest to confess, an obstinacy not manifested in other ways."—Journal of American Folk Lore.

Canine Intelligence.

A native of Peru has vouched for the following: A native pointed out one day a huge white dog that lay before his wattled house. He declared that his dog had intelligence of an almost human order. He said that once, when it had broken a bone in its foot, he had taken it to a surgeon and the surgeon had set the fracture and relieved it of its pain. Some months afterward, in the middle of the night, the surgeon was awakened by a great scratching at his door and by a thumping as of some heavy body. He slipped on a dressing gown and went down, to find the white dog in his garden with a brown dog beside it that held one leg off the ground. The surgeon's deduction was that the white dog had brought its companion there for treatment. Accordingly he dressed the leg of the injured animal, and thereupon the two dogs licked his hands with an air of gratitude and departed slowly into the night side by side.

Rufus Choate and Justice Shaw.

Rufus Choate was sitting next to Judge Hoar in the bar when Chief Justice Shaw was presiding and the Suffolk docket was being called. The chief justice said something which led Mr. Choate to make a half humorous and half displeased remark about Shaw's roughness of look and manner, to which Judge Hoar replied, "After all, I feel a reverence for the old chief justice." "A reverence for him, my dear fellow?" said Choate. "So do I. I bow down to him as the wild Indian does before his wooden idol. I know he's ugly, but I bow to a superior intelligence."—George F. Hoar in Scribner's Magazine.

The Way to Float.

This is the advice of an old swimmer to those who cannot swim: "Any human being who will have the presence of mind to clasp the hands behind his back and turn the face toward the zenith may float at ease and in perfect safety in tolerably still water. When you first find yourself in deep water you have only to consider yourself an empty pitcher. Let your mouth and nose, and not the top of your heavy head, be the highest part of you and you are safe. But thrust up one of your bony hands and down you go—turning up the handle tips over the pitcher." There are reason and logic in this.

Tolerance.

Tolerance is a calm, generous respect for the opinions of others, even of one's enemies. Tolerance is silent justice blended with sympathy. Tolerance always implies wisdom and kindness. It seeks to convert others from error by gently raising them to higher ordeals, by leading them to broader lines of thinking, by patiently helping them to help themselves. Tolerance does not use the battering ram of argument or the club of sarcasm or the rapier of ridicule.—Selected.

Painful.

Johnson—Does your wife speak French?

Thompson—She thinks she does.

"You don't speak it, do you?"

"No."

"Then how do you know she doesn't?"

"I watched a French waiter's face the other day when she was talking to him, and I'll be blamed if he didn't look as if he had the toothache!"

Unreasonable.

Magistrate (severely)—Prisoner, how did you have the audacity to break into this man's house at midnight and rob him?

Prisoner (piteously)—But, your honor, last time I was before you you wanted to know how I could have the audacity to rob a man in broad daylight. When do you expect me to get in my work?

The Baby Humorists.

"Of course," said Mrs. Extrygood, "you are fond of bright, precocious babies?"

"Oh, yes; certainly," replied Old Batch, "but I draw the line on the supposed smart sayings made up by the parents and loaded off on the poor infants."—Baltimore American.

Asking His Advice.

A little girl, aged nine, called her father to her bedside the other evening.

"Papa," said the little diplomat, "I want to ask your advice."

"Well, my dear, what is it about?"

"What do you think it would be best to give me on my birthday?"—London Telegraph.

TROLLEY SLEEPING CAR

Unique Build of Vehicle Designed For Night and Day Use.

EASILY TURNED INTO PARLOR CAR

Head of a Boston Railway Syndicate Believes That Two Years Will See Service Between the Hub and New York—The Run Will Be Made In About Ten Hours.

A through electric service between New York and Boston, in parlor, dining and sleeping cars, will be in operation within two years. This is the confident prediction of James F. Shaw president of the Boston and Worcester Electric railway, says the New York Herald.

Tracks on land owned by a railway corporation are now being built from Worcester to Hartford, a distance of sixty miles. From Hartford this line will be continued to New Haven, forty miles farther. From City Hall square, in New York, a four track line is to run to Port Chester. The line between Port Chester and New Haven will complete the system that will give Boston through service to Gotham.

With the completion of this line it is stated that residents of New York and Boston will be able to take the trip between the two cities in only twice the running time of the present steam railroads at half the expense and in modern sleeping and parlor cars.

Finishing touches have already been put by a Boston syndicate on the first two trolley sleepers ever built, which are to make their first trips during the present month between Indianapolis, Ind., and Columbus, O. Twenty-four more of these cars are in process of construction.

Over the Boston and New York line will run magnificent cars not unlike those that are to be put in operation in the west. The cars are being built by a car company in Indiana which will own and operate these just as the Pullman company owns and operates its cars over the steam roads.

The smallest of the sleeping cars will contain twenty berths. The compartments for each pair of berths are made by dropping mahogany shutters similar to those used in roll top desks. These are drawn out of the sides and floor and dovetail into each other when up, making a perfectly rigid and firm wall with a doorway. The upper berth is let down from the ceiling on the same principle as is used in the Pullman.

Comfortable upholstered chairs, used in the day parlor car, will be combined to make the lower berth bed. Two of these chairs are put face to face. By pressing a spring the arms spread out, the chairs then becoming one box spring mattress bed, four feet wide and seven feet long. Every modern convenience is to be provided for the passengers, even electric hair curlers for women and electric cigar lighters for men. Each compartment will be ventilated separately, and windows will be raised and lowered by pressing a button.

When the night's ride is over the framework of the compartments will be rolled into the walls and into the floor, the beds will be folded into chairs, and the car will be transformed into a vestibuled coach within half an hour.

The combination sleeping and dining cars will have a ten foot apartment added between the berths and the rear dressing room. Temporary tables will be placed between chairs. It is claimed for the sleepers that the sleeping conveniences will be superior to those used in the ordinary Pullman. The cost of riding will be far less than the rates charged in the others. During a night's run from Boston to New York it will be possible to obtain an entire compartment for $2. Single berths will cost $2, but two travelers occupying the same compartment can get it for $1.

Owing to the fact that there will be no cinders and dust will be obviated, the car windows of the sleeper may be left open all night. Over the Boston and New York electric line the cars will be run at about half the speed attained by the steam roads.

Each car will be fifty to sixty-five feet long and will cost $21,000. It will be about two-thirds as heavy as the regulation Pullman sleeper. The power under these sleepers will be four motors, one to each axle, generating 600 horse power and capable of an ordinary rate of sixty miles an hour.

This new development of the trolley is only a natural step in the wonderful progress of electric transportation, and, in fact, has been foreshadowed by experiments in both this country and abroad. Few persons realize that it is only sixteen years since the first "broomstick" car was given a trial.

An Educator's Exploring Trip.

President Harper of the University of Chicago has succeeded in securing from the sultan the right to explore the ruins of ancient Babylon. The university has now obtained permission to excavate in Tel Ibrahim. Application was made to the sultan for permission to explore the ruins of Babylon and its neighborhood in 1900, and after long delays it was granted. But further delays occurred, and the irade was not issued. Then it was discovered that the Germans had received permission to explore the same territory. It is believed that the ruins of the temple in which Nebuchadnezzar offered sacrifices in 580 B. C. and also an extensive library of clay tablets will be uncovered.

She Was Wise.

Miss Romantz—Yes, we are engaged to be married. Ah, he is my ideal!

Mrs. Oldun—Oh, he'll outgrow that.—Toronto Moon.

Struck by Electric.

Michael J. Welch, the driver of one of the teams of the New York and Boston Express Co., had a narrow escape about 6 P. M. Thursday evening. He escaped without a scratch, but his system received such a shock that he is spending today in bed.

He was driving out of a yard on the east side of Hancock street at Norfolk Downs, across the street railway track, when without warning the team was struck by an electric bound toward Neponset.

Welch was thrown out, and was helpless for awhile. The horse was struck but not seriously injured. The wagon was badly wrenched.

Delay on Battleships.

A Washington dispatch to the Herald says: Six months' additional delay in advertising for contracts for the 13,000-ton battleships, Idaho and Mississippi, now seems inevitable, because the question of speed has not yet been settled. It is probable that the board of construction will decide on a type of ship of about 18 knots and of fewer guns than are provided for in the plans first adopted.

As the Fore River Company of Quincy has all the contracts at present that it can conveniently handle, all is well, as a little later the contracts for the Idaho and Mississippi may be wanted.

Christ Church.

The Sunday school of Christ Church, will open Sunday noon at 12.05 in the parish house. When the school year closed in June there was an enrollment of over 250 scholars, and 19 officers and teachers. A steady growth in numbers is looked for this year. Miss Emma Savil will continue as superintendent and William L. Thomas as treasurer and secretary. The first autumn meeting of the vestry of Christ church will take place at the rectory next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

BOSTON THEATRE.

An audience that filled the Boston Theatre, and cordially welcomed Kathryn Osterman as a star and "Miss Petticoats" as one of the best plays to visit Boston in a long time, gave vent to its enthusiasm at the end of the great fourth act when the dignity of a grand ball at Countess Fornay's is disturbed by the appearance of three old New England sailors, with whom the Countess (Miss Petticoats) joins in a lively sailor's hornpipe. The play is one that appeals to all classes. Here is a play that no New Englander should miss. This attraction opened its engagement at the Boston Theatre last Monday evening and will play its second and last week commencing next Monday, Sept. 21. Applause spontaneous and hearty followed every important act and burst fourth into an ovation at the close of the fourth act. Then Miss Osterman was overwhelmed with floral tributes and the dramatist was called before the curtain for a speech. The play follows the book very closely, emphasizing the character of a young girl taken out of a humble life and placed in luxurious surroundings with multi old advantages for improvements, but who becomes the undeserving victim of evil slander. Admiration for her follows her career as she gains strength of character and by force of will and temper redeems herself and triumphs over her defilers.

A SCENE ON BOSTON-WORCESTER TROLLEY AIR LINE AT CHARLES RIVER.

LEGISLATION IN ALASKA

Public Sentiment as to Best Form of Government.

TWO FACTIONS IN A MERRY WAR

One Wants Territorial Government, the Other, Headed by Governor Brady, Opposes It—He Believes the District Should Be More Thickly Settled Before It Becomes a Territory or Dons Garb of Statehood.

A special dispatch from Sitka, Alaska, to the New York Tribune says: The spectacle of a horde of statehood boomers urging the claims of their territory to sovereign rights in the Union is common enough, but Alaska presents the anomaly of not being quite sure that she even wants to be a territory. Agitation there is and of a vociferous kind that the territorial form of government should be conferred by congress at once. But there is a strong party, headed by Governor John G. Brady himself, which believes that the district is a mere infant still and should be left for a time longer in its present swaddling clothes. The knee breeches of territorial government and the manly garb of statehood should not be donned, they say, until their huge land is more thickly settled.

The committee of the United States senate which has been looking into the legislative needs of Alaska this summer has heard a great deal on this particular subject, and its recommendation on this point will be received with great interest. The senators have traveled many thousand miles in the interior and along the coast and have had an exceptional opportunity to learn public sentiment and to examine the facts at first hand.

Meanwhile the merry war between the boomers and the let well enough alone party goes briskly on. The territorialists had a field day at the transmississippi congress which was recently held in Seattle. Poor Governor Brady had no one to back him up, while a dozen or more men identified with Alaska went in hammer and tongs for the change of government.

A. P. Swineford, ex-governor of the district, pointed out some of the abuses of having the laws all made in Washington. "Why," he said, "a woman dressmaker has got to pay a license of $20 a year. I heard of one case where a man who kept a general store sold an official a bottle of arnica liniment. The merchant was thereupon compelled to take out a druggist's license at $500 a year."

John C. Green, for twenty-eight years a resident of Alaska, made these points:

"We feel that we know what laws are best for us and are capable of making them. We don't want to be saddled any longer with the laws of Oregon, which now govern us. We want to elect our own territorial legislature instead of being ruled by cast off politicians."

Don Fletcher of Seattle told how a miner in the interior was attacked with malaria and after much trouble managed to get a bottle of whisky. He paid $5 for it. Information of this coming to a government official, he laid complaint, and the camp of miners which had sold the stuff had to take out a liquor license and to forfeit its whole outfit.

It was further pointed out that Alaska now produced $25,000,000 a year in metals, fish, furs, etc., while it consumed an equal amount of goods from the parent country. If the district were allowed to collect its own revenues of, say, $200,000 a year, half would suffice for expenses and the rest could be used in the internal improvements which were so much needed.

Governor Brady of course believes that Alaska needs more money, but he thinks congress should appropriate it. He pointed out at the Seattle gathering that by the census of 1900 the population was only 63,592, of whom only 30,507 were white. These were scattered over 600,000 square miles. Most of them were in a measure sojourners, as the total number of families was hardly more than 500 or 600.

"The only gain," the governor went on, "would be a delegate in congress. The expense would be much greater, and Alaska is not yet prepared to meet it. Besides, the territorial form of government is unsatisfactory to many of those who live under it."

It must be said that there is considerable support for Mr. Brady among business men. One of them, who has been in Sitka many years, said:

"Of course we should like a delegate at Washington. He would have no vote, but we should feel that we were a little more a part of the country if there were some one entitled to express our needs and wishes. But this we might have without becoming a territory. The merchants generally want to have things continue as at present. We believe that in a few years Alaska will have grown so in people and wealth that congress will gladly take us into statehood without making us pass through the purgatory of territorial government. Some would be politicians are anxious to get offices, and they want the change.

"Just see how difficult it would be to get representative men to go to the legislature. Some of them would have to travel thousands of miles to the capital. The substantial citizens are too much occupied to be able to leave their business for so long. Then Alaska has little taxable property. A simply ruinous tax rate would be necessary to raise the money to run the government. No; we are well satisfied to remain entirely in the hands of congress, especially as the committee of senators has studied the situation for itself this summer."

PRACTICAL DRESS.

Colors For Traveling Wear—The Proper Length For Skirts.

Pale fawn, gray, dark blue and black are favorite traveling colors.

The skirts of traveling costumes fully clear the ground, and this is a most sensible arrangement. They are generally made, too, with a pocket. They sometimes button up the front, with a blouse bodice to match, finished with a neat leather or silk belt at the waist and wash collars and cuffs.

WIDOW'S DRESS.

The best wraps for traveling are after a Viennese model in the form of a coarse silky linen loose sack trimmed with an edging of wash embroidery and big bone buttons. These entirely cover the frock beneath and are ideal for warm weather. For cooler days this same model is admirable in reversible tweeds and thick cloths.

The picture shows a widow's dress trimmed with shirrings and crape bands.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Musical Germany.

According to a famous musician, about 50 per cent of the German nation understands music.

Sprains.

Sprains require prompt treatment. Immediately on receiving the injury bathe the part in water as hot as can be borne and then swathe in compresses of witch hazel, changing as each becomes dry.

The Suez Canal.

The actual cost of making the Suez canal was $121,000,000.

Potted Plants.

Do not water pot plants inexorably every day whether they seem to need it or not. Note if the soil appears dry. If it seems to have retained a fair amount of moisture no water is needed.

Suicides.

The greatest number of suicides occur in those between thirty and forty years of age.

Waltorf Town.

Politically the oddest town in Germany is Waltorf. Of its houses 475 belong to Prussia and 243 to Brunswick. There are two mayors and two sets of minor officials.

Irish Annals.

Most of the Irish annals are stated to have been written by Connaught men.

A City In a Mountain.

The city of Banian, in Bokhara, is cut in the side of a mountain. There are 12,000 artificial caves, some very large, and two statues—one ninety, the other twenty feet high—each hewn from a single stone.

Japanese Etiquette.

It is said that when dressed in the European gowns a Japanese wife precedes her husband in entering a room, while in the eastern dress she must follow him.

Milan.

Milan is in summer the hottest city in Italy, the temperature not being influenced by the ocean or the mountains, as in Venice, Genoa, Naples, Palermo, Bologna, Florence and Rome. Consequently there are few villas near Milan, whose wealthy families spend their summers preferably along Como and the other Italian lakes.

The Mouth.

The mouth is able to bear water of a very high temperature without inconvenience—in fact, water so hot as to cause pain when the finger is inserted in it.

Gray Horses.

As a rule gray horses attain a greater age than those of any other color.

Signatures.

No man can write his signature twice exactly alike, and it is declared by some experts that if two signatures are precisely alike one is certain to be a forgery.

A TRANSVAAL MONOPOLY

Favoring a Few In a Great Discovery of Diamonds

SYNDICATE'S GREAT GRAFT

Lord Milner Accused by Markham of Controlling the Press and Guiding Capitalistic Legislation In the Interest of the De Beers Company

London, Sept. 19.—"The new diamond ordinance of the Transvaal constitutes one of the most scandalous examples of capitalistic legislation ever enacted," writes Arthur B. Markham, M. P., to the London Daily News. "I confidently assert that under Mr. Kruger's government there was never an instance to compare with the injustice inflicted on the general community of the Transvaal as has now been enacted by Lord Milner and his capitalistic council in favor of his friends, the De Beers raiders, who financed the bogus agitation against Mr. Kruger.

"A few months ago a great discovery of diamonds took place in the Transvaal on the farm Elandsfontein, but all notice of this discovery has been entirely suppressed by the capitalistic press in South Africa. The press of this country, which has, for unknown reasons, constituted itself the champions of the monopolists, has also remained silent, and the value of the discovery has been kept a profound secret.

"A diamond mine containing, approximately, 2000 claims, a few months ago was proved by a private syndicate on the farm Elandsfontein, and under the law of the late Boer government the syndicate, as owners of the farm, are entitled after proclamation to one-tenth of the claims (that is, 200), the balance of 1800 claims being open to the general public to peg and work.

"The syndicate owning the property is known as the Premier company, and they have, by sinking numerous shafts to a depth of 70 feet, proved soft blue ground, this being the same depth as the blue ground proved at Kimberley. The surface, or yellow ground, has so far yielded 2½ carats per load, and the cost of washing this ground could not have exceeded 2s. per load. Diamonds, owing to the De Beers monopoly, are worth 45s. to 50s. per carat, so that a huge profit was assured to the syndicate. The Kimberley mines, owing to their great depth, cannot be worked under a cost of 8s. to 10s. a load, and the yield is considerably less than one carat per load.

"By the bill introduced into the legislative council by the government this great discovery will be dealt with in the following manner:

"First—One-tenth of the claims is to go to the prospector.

"Second—Four-tenths to the owners of the property.

"Third—Five-tenths is supposed to remain the property of the government.

"As the prospectors and owners are the same parties, the syndicate will, therefore, be allotted one-half of the mine, or 1000 claims.

"It is clear that the terms of the bill have been pre-arranged, and that, instead of this great diamond mine being worked for the public good, it will by the force of circumstances drift into the hands of the De Beers company, and will be worked for the especial benefit of the monopolists. Under the late Boer government pauper or millionaire had an equal right to peg claims and work the same; but Lord Milner's affection for the monopolists, and the fear that the De Beers monopoly would be broken, if the ground was thrown open to the public, has no doubt caused him to reflect that the press of South Africa (which is owned and controlled by these same monopolists) would at once have led an agitation against him, and exposed the absolute failure and farcical proceedings of his administration. Lord Milner, it will be seen, has increased the privileges of the mine owners by no less than 40 percent, and this at the expense of the general community.

"All criticism against Lord Milner's action is impossible in the Transvaal, for under a law he has himself enacted he has the power to give three days' notice to any one in the Transvaal who is objectionable to him to clear out of the country, and if the person objects he is put into prison without trial, and then at once deported over the border without any right of appeal to the high court."

Poor Showing of Failed Banks

La Grange, Ind., Sept. 19.—An examination of the affairs of the Topeka and La Grange banks, which closed their doors a few days ago, shows a more serious condition than was at first expected. The total assets are estimated to be $246,893, while the liabilities are $313,514. Figured in the assets is $101,500 in stocks and bonds, the value of which is problematical.

Present War Rules Stand

Paris, Sept. 19.—Reliable information has been received here to the effect that the proposed congress of the powers, for the purpose of revising the Geneva convention, establishing the rights and treatment of prisoners of war, neutrals, wounded, etc., which was to have taken place shortly, has been indefinitely postponed.

Assassination Rumors Untrue

Paris, Sept. 19.—A dispatch from Belgrade states that the report of the assassination of King Peter of Servia is without foundation.

MANY JEWELRY ORDERS

Remain Unfilled Because of Arrest of a Supposed Swindler

Boston, Sept. 19.—A man who at first called himself H. Cohen of Canton, O., but later claimed to belong in Columbus, O., selected $520 worth of jewelry at the store of Jason Weiler & Son, wholesale jewelers, which he desired shipped to Canton, O. He then gave another order for $210 worth of goods, of which he desired immediate possession. This aroused a suspicion in the mind of the salesman, and the jewelry was not delivered. After some talk Cohen agreed to pay for the latter goods by draft the next day.

On Thursday he called at the store again and offered a draft for $210 on a bank of Columbus, O., in settlement of the bill, and apparently acquiesced in the suggestion that the goods should be retained until the genuineness of the draft was ascertained. He then left the store, promising to return after dinner, which he failed to do.

Mr. Weiler learned that there was a merchant in Canton named H. Cohen, and upon communicating with him received a reply that if any person was purchasing goods in Bston in his name the man was an impostor.

A watch was set for Cohen and he was arrested last evening as he was entering the Jewelers' building on Washington street. After his arrest he still maintained that his name is Harry Cohen, but said that he belonged in Columbus instead of Canton.

He had no money whatever on his person, but had several blank checks in his possession.

It is learned that he had ordered jewelry from other local firms, which was to be shipped to Canton and which he was to pay for by drafts, but the arrest came just in time to intercept the shipments. Cohen is about 26 years of age.

Repairs on Maine Completed

Philadelphia, Sept. 19.—The battleship Maine, which has been undergoing repairs here for structural weakness which developed under tests of her heavy guns, left the works of her builders and proceeded to the League Island navy yard to take on a supply of provisions and coal and have her magazines stored with ammunition. She will then sail for Culebra, West Indies, where she will participate in the fall maneuvers of the Atlantic coast squadron. The Maine will also undergo an official speed test.

Detective's Havoc With Gun

Evansville, Ind., Sept. 19.—After fatally wounding Chief of Police Houke and Police Captain Brennecke, and seriously injuring Councilman Lutz, Detective Thomas Hutchens last night turned his gun on himself and committed suicide. The shooting was the result of an old feud between Brennecke and Hutchens. The affair occurred in the presence of about 100 people.

Blame Laid Upon Dead Man

Washington, Sept. 19.—The report of the board of officers appointed to investigate the recent accident on board the cruiser Olympia at Norfolk finds that Corporal Yerkes of the marine corps, who was killed in the explosion of alcohol, was mainly responsible for the accident. The court martial of two of the enlisted men has been ordered.

Stole From Appraiser's Office

New York, Sept. 19.—Alfred Hausbeck, an employe at the general appraiser's stores, was arrested here, charged with the theft and sale of imported jewels which were being held for appraisal for duty. Hausbeck has been employed at the appraiser's stores for 17 years. The stolen goods were valued at $2800.

Thirty Lives Probably Lost

New York, Sept. 19.—Since the gale of Tuesday nothing has been heard of the fishing steamship Beatrice, which carried a crew of 30 fishermen and was on the fishing grounds off Cape Charles when last seen. It is believed that the Beatrice went down with all on board.

Wants Joint Debate With Hanna

Norwalk, O., Sept. 19.—John P. Clarke, Democratic candidate for United States senator, in a speech here last night, formally challenged Senator Hanna to meet him in joint debate on the issues of the campaign.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

HOW THE

Rabbit Trap Worked

When the rabbit family strolled through the field one day they came across a trap that had been set to catch them. Mamma Rabbit and little Charlie Rabbit didn't know what it was, but Papa Rabbit did, for he had lost a first cousin through one of the things when he was quite a young fellow.

"Don't go near it," he said to his family.

"What is it?" asked Charlie Rabbit, sniffing around the sides, for he could smell the bunch of fresh celery with which the trap was baited, and he was just dying to make a meal of it.

HE PITCHED INTO JIMMY.

"It's a trap set to catch you by Jimmy Jones, the farmer's son. Jimmy's father likes rabbit meat, and Jimmy wants to please him, so he thought he would get us in his trap and give us to his father to eat. But instead of getting in we will wait out here until the farmer comes along and see what happens."

So they hid in the tall grass until they saw the farmer and his son coming across the field. Jimmy thought that by this time there must be something in his trap, so he said to his father:

"Pop, I've got something for you over there in the grass. Go over and get it."

"What is it?" asked his father.

"Never mind; you go over and see for yourself," said Jimmy, for he wanted to surprise his father. Mr. Jones walked along through the grass, but he didn't see the trap until the toe of his shoe struck it, and away he went heels over head on his nose on the ground. He scrambled to his feet, as mad as he could be, and reached out and grabbed Jimmy by the collar.

"So you hid an old box in the grass for me to stumble over and hurt myself, did you?" he cried angrily. "Well, I'll teach you a little lesson that you will never forget."

And with that he pitched into Jimmy and gave him such a lambasting that he will never forget as long as he lives to tell the tale.

And all the time the rabbit family sat over in the tall grass and snickered as they thought what a terrible fate they had escaped and how sorry little Jimmy must feel that he had ever tried to catch them to make a meal for his father.—Chicago Tribune.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

WAR MAY BE AVERTED

By Powers' Declaration That Massacres Must Stop

SULTAN IS SO INFORMED

Situation Regarded as Distinctly Better—London Newspaper Correspondent at Monastir Sends Authenticated Tales of Terrible Atrocites

Sofia, Sept. 19.—A distinctly optimistic tone now pervades government and diplomatic circles here and hopes are again expressed that war may after all be averted. From London and Constantinople encouraging news has been received. From London it is reported that the British government will send a fleet to Turkish waters, while reports from Constantinople state that Great Britain, France and Italy have intervened to prevent the continuance of massacres in Macedonia.

It is said that yesterday the representatives of these powers notified the sultan of their dissatisfaction with the methods of suppressing the outbreak and declared that the massacres must be stopped. It is stated that they made special reference to the excesses committed by the Turkish troops in the vilayet of Uskub, where the revolutionary outbreak is insignificant and affords no excuse to the soldiers for pillaging and burning the villages and killing the inhabitants.

The porte is said to have replied that Turkey is simply carrying out the wishes expressed by the powers, which urge the sultan's government to adopt energetic measures to suppress the revolution as speedily as possible.

The report that these powers have taken such action has been received with great satisfaction by the Bulgarian ministry. The diplomatic corps here also appears to be more relieved that Turkey has taken the news of Bulgaria's mobilization steps much more quietly than was anticipated. At the present moment the whole situation is regarded as being distinctly better than at any time for some weeks past.

A special dispatch from Rila says several Bulgarian bands under Captain Scoyanoff attacked Melnik, 65 miles northeast of Salonica. Two regiments of infantry, with cavalry and artillery in support, were sent from Djoumaia to relieve the garrison and they forced the insurgents to retire to the mountains, where they are being pursued by the troops.

Desperate fighting is reported to be proceeding in a defile of the valley of the Struma between Turkish troops and bands under General Zontcheff. Reinforcements of troops have been sent from Seres.

Nazir Pasha, the Turkish commander at Monastir, is reported to have declared to the consuls there: "We have had one insurrection. It will be the last in this territory."

The Young Men's Christian union in Sofia has issued an appeal to the Christian unions in Europe and America, asking them to make Sept. 27 a day of general intercession on behalf of the Macedonians.

The Dnevnik, in publishing the news of Mr. Chamberlain's resignation, remarked that he always led the anti-Macedonian policy.

Authenticated Tales of Atrocities

London, Sept. 19.—As a result of the intervention of the British ambassador the decree of expulsion has not been enforced against The Daily Mail's correspondent at Monastir, who telegraphs:

A veritable reign of terror exists here. Suspected Christians vanish utterly, presumably to prison. Spies abound on every hand. The following are some tales of atrocities which I have thoroughly authenticated: The Turks burned 18 children to death in a baking oven at Pisader, near Armenisko, on Sept. 12. They massacred 200 women and children at Jervan in revenge for a defeat at the hand of the insurgents. Fifty women and children, returning starved from the mountains to their devastated homes, were murdered by soldiers. Between Sept. 10 and Sept. 12 the Bashi-Bazouks destroyed four villages near Krushevo in the presence of the administrator of Krushevo in person, massacreing and mutilating the inhabitants.

Bulgarians Fare Badly

Salonica, Sept. 19.—Three hundred Bulgarians have been killed in a fight between insurgents and Turkish troops between Okrida and Dubra. The Bulgarian dead included many officers, one of whom wore a Russian decoration. A battalion of Redifs attacked the Christian gendarmes at Mitrovitza an several of the latter were killed and wounded. The rest of the gendarmes took refuge at the Russian consulate.

Great Demand For Weapons

London, Sept. 19.—A dispatch from Samakov to The Times says the number of Macedonian emigrants and refugees along the frontier is daily increasing and it is calculated that there are now 20,000 in the various towns villages and border districts from Burgas to Kostendil, all eagerly looking forward to the day of reckoning wih the Turks. Many are compelled to remain inactive through the insufficient supply of arms and ammunition. The committees find difficulty in keeping pace with the demand for rifles, as the weapons arrive slowly and irregularly, owing to the various obstacles encountered in transit.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

General Conditions Handicapped by This Week's Unfavorable Weather

New York, Sept. 19.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Business has made moderate progress during the past week, despite unusual opposition from the elements.

Textile mills are rather more fully employed, on the whole, although additions have been made to the idle cotton machinery, partially offsetting the increased activity of other spindles. No developments of importance occurred in the drygoods market. Jobbing trade continues satisfactory. Mills are behind with deliveries, the increased production being on orders already booked.

Salesmen have gone out from the New England footwear factories with full lines of samples. There are fewer complaints of late deliveries, except on hevy split and grain shoes, for which the manufacturers have large orders on hand and a scarcity of skilled labor. Prices are not affecting the situation.

Weather conditions have been adverse for the great staples during the past week. Cautious estimates of the total crop made allowances for damage by frost and heavy rains, since the tardiness of the corn and cotton crops made injury almost inevitable.

The expected has happened and prices are firmer but there is no reason to anticipate famine conditions. That much corn will not be up to contract grade is certain, but its value as fodder is not destroyed and the good prices that will be secured for the mercantile grain promise to return large profits to agricultural communities.

Woman Murdered and Robbed

Chicago, Sept. 19.—Lying face downward in a pool of blood, with her skull crushed in two places, the body of Mrs. Mary Spilka, 49 years old, was found last night in the attic of her home. A heavy cobblestone was the weapon used by the assailant. Investigation proved that robbery was the motive for the crime, as the pocket of the woman's dress had been cut and more than $200 which she is known to have had in her possession is missing. The husband of the woman made the discovery. There is no clue to the murderer.

To Keep Expenditures Secret

Columbus, O., Sept. 19.—Chairman Dick of the Republican executive committee declines to entertain a proposition submitted by Chairman Salem of the Democratic state committee that itemized statements of expenditures incident to the campaign be kept by each committee and that the same be published under affidavit on the Saturday preceding the election. Salem's proposition also provided that similar sworn statements be published by the respective candidates for governor and United States senator.

China to Enter Complaint

Washington, Sept. 19.—The Chinese government will make a claim against the government of the United States on account of injuries inflicted by residents of Tonopah, Nev., upon Chinese residents of that place last Wednesday. A telegram was received at the state department from the governor of Navada saying that he has ordered an investigation and will take every action looking to the safety of the Chinese residents of Tonopah.

Austro-German Friendship

Vienna, Sept. 19.—At a state dinner last night Emperor Francis Joseph proposed the health of the German emperor, whose visit, he said, would impart greater strength to the bonds already firmly established between the two empires. Emperor William, in responding, said the armies of Germany and Austria sanctify and strengthen the alliance existing between the two nations for the welfare and peace of Europe.

Commerce Again Tied Up

New Orleans, Sept. 19.—The strike of the longshoremen has been revived. Not a ship is being loaded. A contract between the ship agents and the longshoremen was signed Monday night, and it was believed settled the strike permanently. The rank and file of the longshoremen now refuse to abide by the contract and accuse their committee who brought about Monday's settlement of treachery.

Lipton's Condition Favorable

Chicago, Sept. 19.—The condition of Sir Thomas Lipton is pronounced by his physicians to be entirely satisfactory and it is believed that all danger has passed, though the doctors say it will be several days before they will be able to make that statement with entire confidence. It is not expected that Lipton will be able to leave his bed for the greater part of a week to come.

Veteran Letter Carrier Falls

New York, Sept. 19.—William Moore, for 24 years a letter carrier, is charged with having tampered with the mails. Two "test" letters, containing marked money, were found in his possession, together with nine others which he had not as yet opened. Moore was remanded to jail pending examination.

Favors Army Canteen

Washington, Sept. 19.—The annual report of General Grant, commanding the department of Texas, favors the canteen and discusses the question of maintaining strong military stations along the Mexican border.

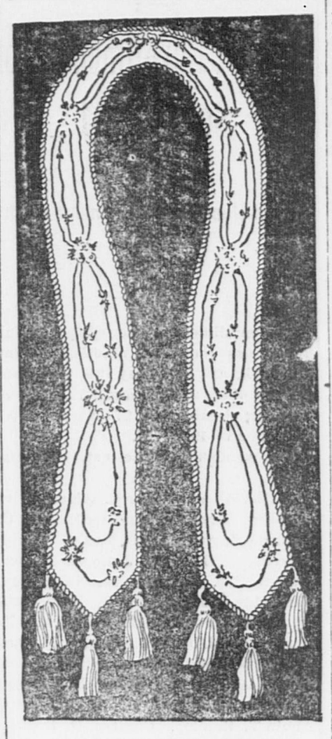
NEW FANCY WORK.

KINDS ADAPTED TO CHARMING DRESS ACCESSORIES.

Easy Embroidery For Leisure Moments—A Very Stylish Cloth Stole In Gold and White—An Excellent Idea For the Decoration of Blouses.

Among the feminine pleasures of an autumn vacation season for many women is certainly to be reckoned the opportunity it affords for the fancy work



AN EMBROIDERED STOLE.
[Gold braid, cord and ribbon on white cloth.]

which is crowded out of the ordinary employments of a busy life. To many a feminine mind there is something eminently soothing and restful in plying the needle, especially when the work is undertaken without fear of the irritating interruptions that often prevent its satisfactory completion or result in marring its prettiness.

The embroidery here illustrated is thoroughly suitable for pick up work, light, easily and quickly executed, just such as to serve the purpose of filling up the leisure moments which every one is likely to have at command during the next few weeks. The stole is of very fine white cloth. The interlacing lines of the pattern are laid down in narrow gold braid, the little posies and sprays of flowers being in delicate ribbon work, the whole lined with white silk and finished with a fine silk cord and tassels. It is a charming idea, well worthy the attention of those who are about to make a round of visits, for which a novel and tasteful piece of embroidery is always a satisfactory part of one's equipment.

The second illustration appears at first sight to be a considerably more ambitious undertaking than the first, though in reality the piece of work represented is perfectly simple. It is one of the embroidered blouses which have had such success. These delightful blouses are carried out in linen, canvas, cloth, flannel or other materials, cut out after any good pattern and traced ready for working. The model illustrated is embroidered in scarlet and blue washing cottons with capital effect. The various parts are worked and put together after the embroidery is finished. Silk embroidery and spangle work are also used on appropriate materials.

EMBROIDERED BLOUSE.
[Light cloth worked in scarlet and blue.]

Fashion Echoes.

A skirt made in deep double flounce effect is one of the noveities.

For street wear a black kid tie with taffeta ribbon bow and high Cuban heel is strictly correct, and slightly more dressy is a patent leather tie of the same order for street or house.

Petticoats are an all important item. They should be fitted with as much care as the dress skirt, and the bottom is a mass of frills and flounces.

With the low evening bodice a band of tulle is drawn around the throat, with a smartly tied butterfly bow at the back.

Fancy stockings are very much in vogue.

Green will retain its prestige, especially in millinery.

Brown is one of the very fashionable colors.

Mohair now makes fashionable walking suits.

Shoes must be smart and adapted to the occasion.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 20—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Why and how we should bear witness for Christ.—Acts v, 27-32.

Times change with the passing years and centuries. Witness bearing for Christ is very different today from what it was in the time of the apostles in the early Christian centuries and amid the denominational controversies and antagonisms of the later centuries. Then to bear witness for Christ meant the possibility of serious persecution and even martyrdom. But Christian men and women did not falter in their witnessing for these reasons. The apostles, when commanded not to teach in the name of Jesus, kept on teaching, and when brought to task for their disobedience calmly but boldly replied, "We ought to obey God rather than man."

Today we are not called upon to witness for Christ under the same circumstances or at the risk of the apostles and early Christians, and yet the duty of witnessing for Christ is just as incumbent upon us as upon our ancestors in the faith. Methods have changed, but the thing itself has not changed. 1. We should bear witness for Christ because we have been divinely commanded to do so. Christ has commanded us to let our light shine, to confess Him before men, and we also ought to obey God. While there are no men today to command us not to teach in His name, there are often other things to discourage us in our witnessing, but they should not be allowed to have dominion over us. 2. We should bear witness because of what Christ has done. He has died on the cross to save the world from sin, and the world needs to know the facts of His life, death, resurrection, ascension and of His power to save. And, if the world does know, the church must give forth this knowledge, and every Christian should do his part as a witness bearer. 3. We should witness for Christ because we will want Him to confess us. He has promised to confess us if we confess Him, but declares that He will not confess us before our Father in heaven if we do not confess Him upon earth.

As there are different reasons for confessing Christ, so there are different ways of confessing Christ. 1. There is the confessional method, the confessing of Christ by uniting with the visible church of Christ. All who believe in Christ should confess Him in this way, take their stand among the people of God and let the world know where they stand. 2. The conversational method. This is presenting Christ to those who have not accepted Him. We should witness for Him by telling others what He has done for us and leading them to accept Him. 3. The epistolary method. This is the living method, being "living epistles read and known of all men" that we are Christians.

BIBLE READINGS.

A Plea For Larger Fellowship.

The following petition had unanimous adoption at the Denver convention and is being largely signed. Any reader of this paper who sympathizes with its suggestion and desires to attach his name, residence and denomination may do so and mail to Dr. F. E. Clark, Tremont Temple, Boston, Mass.:

A Plea For the Larger Fellowship of Protestant Christianity Through the Christian Endeavor Movement and a Petition From the Christian Public.

We, the undersigned members of churches and Christian Endeavor societies and lovers of concord and Christian fellowship, earnestly petition all ecclesiastical governing bodies to allow full and untrammeled liberty to their young people to unite together in the interdenominational and international Christian Endeavor movement.

This movement, as the history of more than twenty-two years has proved, promotes thorough loyalty to the church and denomination as well as fraternity between all churches and denominations, and we only ask that in the future the young people may be allowed freely to have both the interdenominational fellowship and the Christian Endeavor name either alone or in connection with their denominational name.

No one can measure the good that has been accomplished in the past by this united movement of millions of youths for good citizenship, pure politics, worldwide missions in home and foreign fields, in prisons and upon the sea; for the unevangelized of our great cities, for promoting confession of Christ and active service among the young people of all churches and a cordial fraternity with all who love the Master, thus in part fulfilling His dying prayer "that they all may be one." Much has been accomplished, far more can be accomplished, by the constantly increasing hosts in the future if no ecclesiastical barriers to their fellowship are put in the way.

No other organization has ever done the work of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor. No new organization could do it, since the Christian Endeavor society for a score of years has won the affection of the young and the confidence of the old and already embraces within its ranks nearly four millions of members in eighty evangelical denominations and more than forty nations.

Not only may the society be an increasingly important link between the denominations, but between the Christian forces of all the nations as well, especially the English speaking nations, where it is already so thoroughly established. It brings the younger forces together in their great international conventions, promotes their sympathy for and interest in one another, helps to make war impossible and a lasting peace, based upon the principles of the Prince of Peace, ever more and more pure.

In missionary lands, where the unity and not the divisions of Christianity should be particularly emphasized, this union of forces is still more important and any unnecessary separation of forces still more deplorable.

We therefore earnestly implore all those who have authority or influence not only to remove restrictions where any exist, but to promote the reunion of Protestant Christendom the world around, so far as it may be accomplished by the common methods, the united prayers and the concerted work of the Society of Christian Endeavor.

Good Afternoon

The Boston Democrats, who for political reasons are inclined to criticise State appropriations for which Democratic legislators must share the responsibility, should not forget that it was the Republicans who defeated a $447,000 loan order in the Boston common council on Thursday evening. Every Democrat voted for the loan.

The general public should know why there has been a delay in the enlargement of the much over-crowded High school building. There are now 591 High school pupils but the building was only designed for 350. The old High building which was not large enough for 100 pupils is again in use but then both buildings are inadequate. Pupils occupy small rooms and corridors, some in the attic, and the school is working to a great disadvantage.

The delay seems to be caused by the minority on the committee of the Council who have been shown too much courtesy by the majority. The majority favor the plans of Aaron H. Gould which were early submitted with complete specifications, but the minority have favorities. By request of the School Committee the Gould plans were very promptly changed in some particulars, but one thing and another has caused delay.

Some have discredited the architect, but the city of Everett has accepted plans of the same architect for a brick schoolhouse and proposals have been asked which will be opened Sept. 26. They are highly recommended.

One of the reasons advanced for the delay was that there was not sufficient margin within the city debt limit, but if that was the case at the beginning of the year it has not been for several weeks.

The Gould plans will give Quincy a grand High school building at small cost, and there should be no further delay.

Drift of Opinion.

☞We met a man the other day who was formerly in the liquor business for six years. He said he had to get out—he couldn't stand it. Each day he saw his customers growing more shabby, more blear-eyed, nearer the grave. And for doing it he received the pennies, the nickels, and dimes that he knew should go for the support and comfort of wife and babies. It was hell, he quit. —Wisconsin State Journal.

☞It is evident that employment conditions for old men are getting harder all the time. They are not wanted in any kind of business. A man of fifty-five or sixty years of age who fails in business, or is thrown out of employment, is in a very unfortunate position, particularly if he is without means and has a family dependent on him. The action of the great corporations relative to the age limit contains a warning to young men who are inclined to be extravagant and indifferent to the interests of their employers.—Savannah News.

Farewell Reception.

Last evening a farewell reception was given in honor of Miss Elizabeth Norrie of Aberdeen, Scotland, at the home of Mrs. Alexander Philip, Cross street, West Quincy.

The entertainment of the evening consisted of games and vocal and instrumental music.

Among those present were Miss Mabel Ripley, Miss Olive Grant, Miss Nellie Moire, Miss Sadie Williams, Miss Norrie, Miss O'Hara, Mr. and Clarence Trask, Mr. and Mrs. J. Cheever Carley, Mr. George Ripley, Mr. Edward Trask, Mr. Alex. McGregor, Mr. Will Williams, Mr. Harry Trask, Mr. George Farquhar, Mr. John Norrie and Mr. John McGregor.

The guests left at a late hour and all joined in wishing Miss Norrie a safe and pleasant voyage to her home for which she sails next Tuesday.

Crack Band Expected.

There is a strong possibility that the "Kilties," Canada's crack military band may give a concert in Quincy this fall. The organization, which is made up of Gordon Highlanders who did service in Egypt and South Africa, is about due in Boston, having travelled 23,000 miles since performing in Tremont Temple last year, during which time they visited every state in the union and gave concerts in all the cities of any importance north and west of here.

There are forty members in the company besides pipers and dancers. They are dressed in Gordon tartan with the British military coat. They make quite a spectacular appearance, every member being above the average in size and the drum major seven feet in height. The amusement committee of Clan McGregor are considering the proposition of the "Kilties" to perform here.

Law and Order.

The fourth of a series of meetings under the auspices of Law and Order Committee of the Washington street Congregational church, will be held on Sunday evening, at 7.30 o'clock. The speaker is Mr. Frank E. Parlin, Superintendent of schools, whose subject is Good Citizenship. Singing furnished by the following trio: Mrs. George K. Carter, Miss Bessie L. Drew, Miss Nina B. Gage. Organist, Miss Sara Kelly. All are cordially invited.

For the Ledger.

Duties of the Day.

Mr. Editor:

The serious duties of the day should arrest the attention of all souls. This poor ignorant woman, Selma Aekenson, has been found guilty of a shameful act. Where is her associate in this crime? Gentlemen of jury, lawyers and judges, there was a guilty crime previous to this last act, pray ferret him out that his name may shine in guilt in the same category as Selma Ackenson Let us have mercy mingled with justice.

Mrs. Caroline A. Spear.

Thayer Academy.

The chapel of Thayer Academy had nearly all its seats filled with pupils Wednesday morning, the 16th, when the sessions of a new school year began.

Rev. George A. Thayer of Cincinnati, Ohio, the senior member and president elect of the board of trustees, made a brief address to the school, as he has been accustomed to do for many years. He referred to the men of distinction in various fields of life who had, from time to time held the office of trustee, and dwelt in particular upon the honorable service of Judge Asa French, who, as resident trustee, had watched over the welfare of the institution with great fidelity and wisdom.

He intimated that the succession to the vacancy created by Judge French's death would be given to the son, Asa Palmer French, a graduate of the school, and thus the precedent might be established of eventually confiding the management of the academy, when all the old trustees had passed away, to its alumni.

Some good advice was given to the scholars to try to fit themselves to be leaders of whatsoever community they might make their home, in the ways which make for justice, righteousness and a lofty public spirit.

Lieut. Bumpus.

The remains of the late Lieut. Edward A. Bumpus, U. S. A., were received in Quincy on Aug. 26th, and placed in the receiving vault of the Mt. Wollaston cemetery to await the return of Judge Bumpus who is now in Europe.

The remains of Lieut. Bumpus came via the Pacific to San Francisco, and from there direct to Quincy and not as stated in Sunday's Globe.

Capt. Mehaffey.

The Yachting editor of the Post says: A number of friends and acquaintances along the water front were grieved to learn of the passing away of Captain J. B. Mehaffey, familiarly known as Joe, the master of the ill-fated three-masted schooner Hattie A. Marsh, wrecked off Delaware Capes on Wednesday.

He was one of the best known skippers sailing out of this port, and belonged to a family of sailors, as three brothers and two cousins are masters of large schooners in the numerous fleet of sailing craft often seen in these waters. Previous to taking command of the Marsh, he had sailed the small three-masted schooner Fannie and Fay for a number of years.

SHOULD WIN THIS YEAR.

Edward J. Sandberg a Candidate for the Republican Nomination for Representative.

The multiplicity of Republican candidates for the Legislature last year, when two Independent Republicans as well as two Regular Republicans run against two Democrats, divided the vote and resulted in the defeat of one of the Regular Republicans, Mr. Edward J. Sandberg of Ward Four.

Mr. Sandberg received such a flattering vote that his friends have insisted that he again be a candidate, and are confident of the result.

There is no sham about Mr. Sandberg. While he is not as polished, perhaps, as some professional men, Mr. Sandberg is a worker and a successful contractor, who believes in good government.

Since coming to this city from Sweden in 1886 he has shown that he is made of good material and has prospered in his undertakings. He handles large and difficult contracts in Boston as well as Quincy and vicinity, some in connection with the new subway to East Boston.

He has served on the Republican Committee for several years, and is a firm supporter of its principles and its candidates. He is also identified with the Swedish Lutheran church, the Master Builders & Traders' Association, the Scandia Granite Works, Mt. Wollaston lodge of Odd Fellows, Manet Encampment, the George L. Gill Rebekah lodge, Canton Shawmut and other societies.

Mr. Sandburg is in his 37th year, was married in Quincy in 1891, and is a property holder and resident of Buckley street, Ward Four.

Let all his friends rally to his support at the Republican caucuses next Wednesday evening.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The management of the Castle Square Theatre announce an elaborate production of Mr. Edward E. Kidder's melodrama "Shannon of the Sixth" as an attraction next week. This play has enjoyed great popularity throughout the country in the last half dozen years and its earlier Boston performances were eminently successful. The plot deals with the adventures of one Lieut. Lawrence Shannon during the Sepoy rebellion in India in 1857. Shannon is a young Irish officer in Her Majesty's service, and the play revolves around his heroic deeds and gives him a chance to make love to a charming girl as well as to fight for the flag. A number of thrilling incidents are introduced, the climax of the third act being especially startling. In this scene the heroine is tied to the mouth of a cannon and is rescued by the hero the instant before the cannon goes off. A very interesting scene is one which takes place in the Temple of Delhi, where Mr. Kidder has introduced hypnotism, theosophy and kindred sciences in a thoroughly original and impressive way. "Shannon of the Sixth" is announced for only a single week and the usual distribution of boxes of chocolate bonbons will be made at the Monday matinee.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Patrons of Keith's will be offered another excellent bill for the week of Sept. 21, surrounding the big novelty act, Ned Wayburn's minstrel misses, which has scored a pronounced hit. Some of the prominent entertainers will be Sager Midgeley and Gertie Carlisle, in one of their amusing "Sammy and Sarah" sketches; the Three Rochards, acrobats and tumblers; Mark Sullivan, mimetic comedian; Wilmat Robert Schmidt, the noted Janko pianist; "Jim" Harrigan, the "tramp" juggler, and Edwin Baker and company, in a delightful Japanese operetta. Another novelty will be a race on rollers between a horse and a bicyclist, in which the mechanicism of the "County Fair" is put into vaudeville use. A remarkable motion picture, entitled "Fairyland," will be exhibited in the bioscope.

BOSTON THEATRE.

With the engagement already extended from three weeks to four owing to the great advance interest manifested in the approaching run the out-look for the visit of "Quincy Adams Sawyer" at the Boston Theatre one week from Monday is most auspicious. No attraction in the past three seasons at this house which has given greater general satisfaction and at the same time, drawn such an unbroken succession of "standing-room only" audiences. This big New England play has had a career which is unique in theatricals, for it was built on such unconventional lines, for a bucolic drama, that nobody predicted success for it when it was originally introduced three years ago; yet it is still before the public, proving more popular than ever this season and rated as easily the most successful attraction of its class.

CHAPTER FIVE

By Izola L. Merrifield

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

Half way between the Crescent ranch and the schoolhouse lay the western border of the Black Hawk range. If Don Easton happened to ride to the ridge of low, ragged buttes above the little valley trail he could catch a glimpse of the new schoolteacher's hat with the violets on it when little Sammie Trent took her to and fro in the buckboard from the ranch to the school.

One day Sammie rode out on the range on his own pinto, Buckeye, and told Don the news.

"We've got the new teacher at our place, Don. She's a Jim Dandy too. Pop let me go to school with the rest of the kids just because she said I was wasting my talent hoeing round. She ain't a real teacher either. She's studying us folks. Jumping Moses, Don, you ought to hear her talk. And she's going to study you pretty soon. You're chapter 5—on herders."

"Is she homely, Sammie?" Don asked gently.

Sammie shut one eye and clucked his tongue hungrily.

"Gimme two crackers and a dried herring and I'll tell," he said.

Don bargained and handed over two crackers with the herring laid between. Sammie munched contentedly. It was a long way from the ranch.

"Her hair's kind of pretty. It don't curl up exactly, but it kinks a little when the wind blows. And it's brown, kind of. And she smiles sweet as anything, and her eyes are blue, kind of, and she's awful gritty. She's learning to ride, and she fell off once and never yowled a bit."

A week after this the buckboard was discarded, and Don saw Sammie ride by on the pinto, while the schoolteacher was on a small lightweight black and white pony. Sometimes she went by alone, as the days passed and her confidence grew. Don would leave the sheep with the dogs and watch for her at sunset, lying face downward in the soft, thick grass on the edge of the buttes. He could see her from the time she passed the cottonwoods that fringed the divide until she turned the corner of Big Butte far down the valley, and beyond the way was clear to the ranch.

There was a secret satisfaction to him in this self imposed sentinel duty over her lonely ride. It was a welcome break in the monotony of his life, and he dreaded the time when the grass and water would give out and he would have to move farther on to new range.

When the spring days came and the wild flowers lay like a royal carpet for the feet of the black and white pony the schoolteacher would dismount and gather them on her way through the valley. Then came a day when the sentinel saw from his post that she was in trouble. The black and white pony had wandered ahead of her, cropping the grass and new clover, when suddenly he pitched forward, one fore leg sinking deeply into a beaver hole. With his heart aflame, Don had gone to the rescue and pulled the pony out. The ankle was sprained, and she limped badly. Flushing beneath his tan, he had told the schoolteacher who he was, just one of the Crescent herders, and had offered her his horse to ride home on. She had accepted thankfully, and Sammie was sent after the lame pony the next day.

"Ain't she a thoroughbred, though?" he asked, chewing on a bit of flag root he had found down near the creek. "Her name's Marjorie Allan."

"When is she coming to study chapter 5?" asked Don carelessly.

"Guess she hasn't got that far yet," returned Sammie seriously. "She's studying flowers and bees and birds and things now."

"Sammie"—the herder's voice was gentle and persuasive—"don't you want a job herding sheep along about sunset?"

"What you got that's better than herrings?" asked Sammie in mild interest.

"A whole nickel a day."

"I'll come tomorrow," said Sammie.

The new arrangement lasted a month. Every afternoon at sunset Sammie herded faithfully, while Don and the schoolteacher rode slowly from the cottonwoods to Big Butte. Then one day Don told him he need not come any more, and his face was grim and hopeless. Sammie looked at him shrewdly while he cracked a switch at a few mosquitoes that were feasting on the pinto's mottled hide.

"She's just a girl, even if she did come from Kansas City and writes books and things," he said pleasantly. "Did she throw you down, Don?"

The herder was silent.

"'Cause you're just a herder?"

"Go home," said the other gently without looking at him, but Sammie saw the clinched hands and he rode away whistling.

Three weeks later there came news to the ranch. The herder on the Black Hawk had moved his sheep eight miles northward toward the Big Horn country, and there were growlings among the cattlemen up there over his encroaching on their territory.

"But isn't the range free?" asked the schoolteacher when Sammie explained matters to her.

"You dassent say so nowadays less 'n you've got a gun to back it up," said Sammie. "Pop thinks Don will get all the trouble he's looking for."

Miss Allan looked at him, her blue eyes grave and anxious.

"What will they do to him?"

"Chase him off and scatter the sheep. Maybe let a little daylight into him if he stops to argue."

"Are we far from him?"

"He's about four or five miles northeast I guess. We could see the smoke if they fired the grass or his wagon," he added encouragingly.

Miss Allan was silent, and Sammie smiled at the pinto's ears. She was getting to chapter 5, he decided, on herders. And he saw, too, that she rode out of her way every day to get a view of the range. And every night at the ranch she asked if news had come from the cattlemen.

But all was quiet until one day the schoolteacher had remained later than usual. Sammie did not question when she turned away from the home path and rode up the hill until they reached a spot where the range lay before them. Far to the northeast a faint line of smoke trailed lazily up to the clouds, and she held her breath as she watched it.

"Sammie," she cried, her hands gripping the pony's bridle tightly, her face paling, "Sammie, what is it?"

"Just smoke," said Sammie shortly, knowing what lay behind the appeal. "I guess we can make it in an hour. Less 'n they've fixed him already."

But she rode on beside him fearlessly until they had passed scattered, frightened groups of what sheep were left, and halted beside the smoking ruins of the herder's wagon. It was she who found him first, lying unconscious a dozen yards from the wagon. There was a wound in his forehead. While Sammie stood with wide, scared eyes, she told him to run to the creek and bring water, then to ride on to the ranch for help.

With the water Sammie had brought her she bathed the wound and kept his parched lips moist, and the black and white pony moved up and down like a restless shadow between her and the charred wagon.

Once he opened his eyes and stared up at her in wonder, and she laid her hand lightly on his hot forehead.

"I am sorry," she said softly, and the pony moved out of hearing as he answered her.

A little after moon rise there came the thud of hoofs on the ground and the lone vigil was ended. Next morning Sammie's freckled face looked cautiously in the open window of the room at the ranch where the herder lay.

"Hello, Don," he said cheerfully. "Ain't she got grit, though? Ain't she a thoroughbred?"

Don smiled at him in proud assent, and moved his bandaged head in a half nod.

"How's chapter 5—on herders?" asked Sammie in a whisper.

"All done," said Don, his eyes bright with happiness. "Next one's on weddings, but there's a herder in it, too, and she's going to take the leading part."

The Wily Heathen.

An Englishman who was appointed to an important post in China got married soon after. Among the recipients of the usual little cardboard boxes containing a piece of wedding cake was a Chinese merchant with whom the bridegroom had an outstanding account for goods supplied. After the honeymoon one of the first persons the newly wedded husband met was his Celestial creditor.

"And how did you like the cake?" said the Englishman laughingly after the usual congratulations.

"Ah, ha!" returned the Chinaman, with a cunning leer. "Me no such big fool to eat him, sah. Me put cakee in fire. Burn him up. He, he!"

"Oh, that's too bad!" said the Englishman, very much hurt. "You might have tasted it, at least, out of compliment to my wife and myself. Why didn't you?"

"Me too clute, sah," said the Celestial, with the same cunning smile. "You owe me monee, sah; sendee poison cakee; I eat him; I die; you no payee up. Houp la! He, he, he! I know you Ingleesh!"

Love Letter Romance.

Half a century ago a young Englishman while traveling met a beautiful girl and promptly fell in love with her. A few days later he returned home, and his first act was to write her a love letter. In it he told her that he could not be happy without her and that if she regarded his proposal favorably he would expect a reply by the next mail.

To this letter he received no answer, and so disappointed was he that from that time until his death, which occurred recently, he shut himself up in his home and lived like a hermit. Most of his time was spent in reading, and the day after his funeral the heirs began to search the books in his library, for they thought it quite possible that the eccentric old man might have hidden some bank notes in them.

They found none, but in a tattered old pamphlet they found another kind of note, the love letter which was written fifty years ago and which the writer had forgotten to mail.

The Successful Physician.

During the time spent in this hospital I learned many things that no textbook teaches, among them the secret of the successful physician. I discovered that while knowledge was a necessity it was not the only thing; tact, energy, sympathy and kindliness counted for more. The most competent physician was not inevitably the most prosperous, while the assiduously attentive ignoramus who made up in care what he lacked in skill kept the hospital crowded and in the fullness of time had his own sanitarium.—Everybody's Magazine.

Gave Him a Rise.

"Books that have helped me!" chuckled Tommy as he piled enough bound volumes of the Congressional Record on a chair to enable him to reach the shelf where his mother kept the marmalade.

MACEDONIAN SITUATION

Greek Editor's Explanation of the Eastern Trouble.

BEGINNING OF THE INSURRECTION

Constantine D. Phassoularides Says Reliance on Russia Is Responsible For the Revolution and That Macedonians Are Satisfied With Turkish Rule—Greek Population and Interests Far Exceed Bulgarian.

"The New York newspapers do not seem to understand the Macedonian situation," said Constantine D. Phassoularides, the editor of Thermopylæ, the Greek newspaper, recently to a reporter of the New York Commercial Advertiser.

"The trouble in Macedonia began about two years ago, when the Bulgarian revolutionary committee of Sofia was organized. Its object was to expel the Greeks from Macedonia. To carry on the conflict they obtained from wealthy Greeks, by force and blackmail, revolutionary funds. To quote from a pamphlet issued last May by the Society of Hellenism of Athens, 'From December, 1901, to the end of 1902 the Bulgarian committee assassinated about 600 Greek merchants and other wealthy Greeks of Macedonia, and from others by threat and blackmail they raised from £50 to £1,000 ($250 to $5,000) each.'

"By the latest statistics which the Greek government sent to the powers about the racial population of Macedonia, as reported in the Nea Hemera of Triest, Austria, on Aug. 29, the total population in the vilayet of Monastir, which consists of the districts of Koriza, Dibra, Seres and Elbasan, is 859,109, of whom there are 309,782 Greeks, 174,011 Bulgarians, 14,600 Servians, 12,000 Roumanians, 344,766 Mussulmans and 4,950 Jews.

"The vilayet of Salonika, which consists of the districts of Serra and Drame, has a population of 1,040,220, of which number there are 348,050 Greeks, 205,886 Bulgarians, 225,514 Mussulmans and 60,770 of other nationalities, of which number there are 51,000 Jews. Thus it is seen that although the Bulgarians lay claim to Macedonia they are decidedly in the minority.

"According to the statistics of the Bulgarian exarchate itself, there are 55,633 Greek pupils attending the schools in Macedonia and 19,344 Bulgarians. According to the statistics of the Turkish government, fifty-three Greeks to one Bulgarian pay taxes.

"The Greek population is not only the largest, but the most progressive. The British consul in Salonika, writing to his government, said: 'Generally the Greek population in Macedonia is higher in numbers and education than the Bulgarians. They also surpass the Bulgarians in business and commerce. The Greeks, however, are quiet and avoid trouble, hoping that they will get benefit by peace, while the Bulgarians are always ready to commit any crime for their own benefit.

"Of the Bulgarians fighting in Macedonia today not one has been born in Macedonia. They all make inroads from over the frontier. The people generally are peacefully inclined and prefer to remain under the Turkish protection rather than under the criminal rule of the Bulgarians.

"'Of course behind Bulgaria is Russia, who wants to grab everything,' to quote from an article written by Prince Mestsersky in the Graschdaum of St. Petersburg. 'If there were not Russian consuls in Macedonia there never would have happened these pitiful things. I am very sure that the revolutionary movement would never have risen so strong in the absence of Russian consuls. We must not forget that Macedonia, Albania and Bulgaria are using every means to force Russia to go to arms against Turkey. I am asking our government, when things are in this condition, what is the use for us to have consuls in Macedonia. If I had the power in the government I would recall all our consuls from there.'

"When the actual revolution began about a month ago in Krushevo, according to the Acropolis of Athens and other Greek newspapers, 400 Greeks were slain and the city was ruined. According to the same paper, about thirty Greek villages were destroyed in the vilayet of Monastir. During the conflict of course some of these villages were destroyed by the Turks, who found it necessary to bombard them in order to drive out the Bulgarian revolutionists who were defending themselves there.

"According to the papers published in Philippopolis, none of the Greek merchants there can easily escape the blackmail of the Bulgarians who are practicing the 'money or your life' game.

"We find, then, that the Bulgarians have no right to Macedonia by either numbers or commercial interest. The real wealth of the country is with the Greeks."

Swiss Guard For Servian King.

King Peter of Servia does not feel that he is in security at the konak (royal palace) and intends to establish a Swiss guard on the model of that existing in France at the time of the French revolution, says the Vienna correspondent of the New York World. This project is criticised by the inhabitants of Belgrade, but as a measure of precaution it appears to be justified. Unflattering rumors circulate on the conduct of the army. The officers of the school of war have had some secret meetings lately, and General Lazarevitch, the most popular chief of the army, is said to be on the eve of making a pronunciamento.

SIRES AND SONS.

Russell Sage, still the largest lender in Wall street, is said to have more ready money than any other individual in the street.

William Jennings Bryan's latest acquisition is a $1,200 team of horses which were prize winners at a recent Milwaukee horse show.

Captain C. W. McRae, who succeeded Rear Admiral Melville as chief of the bureau of steam engineering, is the first Annapolis graduate to fill the place.

Professor Carl E. Myers, the aeronautical engineer, who has established a "balloon farm" in Herkimer county, N. Y., declares that the safest voyaging is in balloons.

Among August birthdays was that of Mr. Otto Goldschmidt, who married Jenny Lind. The relict of "the Swedish Nightingale" is now seventy-four years of age, and his romance is more than half a century old.

William Durant of Boston, who recently celebrated his eighty-seventh birthday anniversary, will in February next complete seventy years of active service in the office of the Boston Transcript. He is now the treasurer of that publication.

It is believed that there are but two survivors of the volunteer army that served in the Black Hawk war. These two veterans are John T. Knox of Los Angeles, Cal., and A. T. Sullenger of McLeansboro, Ill. The former has passed his ninety-third birthday, and the latter is nearing the ninety mark.

Chief O'Neill of the Chicago police department has for many years been collecting Gaelic folk songs and other Irish music, and his collection is now published in book form. It includes 625 songs and 380 reels among other compositions. The chief was assisted in his work by Patrolman James O'Neill.

Judge William Penn Lyon, the "grand old man" of Wisconsin, former chief justice, civil war colonel, statesman and institutional manager, is going to California, where he will live the remaining years of his life. He is eighty-one years old and has figured prominently in the history of the state of Wisconsin.

THE ROYAL BOX.

The dates for the czar's visit to Rome have been fixed for four days between Oct. 16 and 25.

King Peter of Servia will rebuild his ancestral home at Topria. He has presented the church of the town with a valuable silver cross.

Mailuta, the last of the Maori kings, lapsed far from royalty when he accepted a seat in the upper house in New Zealand. He has now gone further and signed the pledge.

The little Prince Edward of Wales takes kindly to the highland dress. On a recent Sunday he walked two miles, from Abergeldie castle to Crathie church, in kilts. The delight of the parishioners was great.

As a memento of his visit to the Benedictine monks at Monte Cassino last March Emperor William recently sent them his portrait in the uniform of the gardes du corps and also a set of the complete works of Frederick the Great.

ALBANIAN PROVERBS.

Words are feminine; deeds masculine.

If you fear God you will not fear man.

The devil was not long in finding man.

You cannot have harmony without noise.

THE EDUCATORS.

Dr. Maurice Bloomfield, professor of Sanskrit and comparative philology at Johns Hopkins, is spending his vacation in reading the proof of a glossary of words found in the ancient Vedas of the Babylonians.

Leon C. Marshall, who has recently been called to the chair of economics in the Ohio Wesleyan university, is probably the youngest man to occupy such a position anywhere. He is now twenty-four years of age.

Miss Ellen Douglass of Cape May, N. J., has been appointed professor of Romance languages in the University of Missouri, to take the place of Professor Bassett, who recently resigned to accept a similar position in Kansas university.

Bad Dreams
Too often seemingly trifling complaints of children are put off as things of no consequence. Every unnatural action is a symptom of disorder and deserving of careful investigation. Worms more than anything else are the cause of childhood sickness. Attacking, as they do, the stomach and bowels, the effect of their presence is felt throughout the whole system and made known by nervousness, peevishness, disturbed sleep, erratic appetite, weak stomach and general lassitude.
Dr. True's Elixir
is the surest and safest worm remedy ever compounded—but it is more than that. As a tonic and general corrective it is unexcelled. It tones stomach and bowels, cleanses and enriches the blood and sends renewed health tingling through the veins. For over 50 years the most popular home remedy. Sold at all druggists, 35c. Write for free booklet on "Children and Their Diseases."

CHAMBERLAIN'S PLANS

Are Accepted In Spirit by Premier Balfour

POLITICAL SPECULATION

Former Colonial Secretary's Son Slated For Cabinet Position, Notwithstanding His Activity In Organizing Preferential Tariff Agitation

London, Sept. 19.—The persistency with which it is rumored that Austen Chamberlain, the postmaster general, will succeed Ritchie as chancellor of the exchequer emphasizes the extraordinary nature of the relations which Balfour still maintains towards his colleagues. The Liberal organs point out the fictitiousness of any supposed change on the part of a government which includes Chamberlain's son, who has been almost as active as his father in organizing the preferential tariff agitation. Balfour's frank declaration in his letter accepting the colonial secretary's resignation, that he shared Chamberlain's ideas of a closer fiscal union with the colonies, also creates doubt as to how even moderate free traders such as the Duke of Devonshire can remain under Balfour's guidance.

The criticism of the small effect upon the government policy caused by Chamberlain's withdrawal and of the retention of his son is not confined to the opposition. The St. James Gazette, which warmly supports Chamberlain's program, declares that the result is that the Unionist party will face the electors disunited and open to all the attacks of the free fooders, as it will be perfectly apparent to the electors that the return of Balfour involves sooner or later the return of Chamberlain and the triumph of his policy.

Mr. Balfour has reiterated to his friends that his letter to Chamberlain (accepting his resignation and sying he shared the latter's idea of a closer fiscal union with the colonies), was not a formal expression regarding Chamberlain's policy, but that he meant what he said. On the face of it Chamberlain and Balfour will continue to work together, but the former colonial secretary is free from governmental obligations and will be able to conduct his educational campaign along the line that he has all along advocated.

Chamberlain Invited to Chicago

Chicago, Sept. 19.—The first notable public address by Joseph Chamberlain, following his resignation from the British cabinet, may be given an international character, Mr. Chamberlain coming to Chicago to deliver his views. An invitation to him to do so has been forwarded through the department of state at Washington from the Illinois Manufacturers' association, which sent the following cable message last night:

"Earnestly hope your freedom from public duties will assure your acceptance of invitation of Illinois Manufacturers' association."

The invitation referred to was made public last nigt for the first time. It was extended on July 24, its text being as follows:

"The Illinois Manufacturers' association extends to you an invitation to be its guest and would respectfully ask that you address its members at Chicago at such time in this year as will be suitable to your convenience.

"The presentation of your views in Chicago will attract world-wide attention, cause wholesome discussion and result in a better understanding of the trade relationship between our respective countries.

"The meeting will be attended by the representative manufacturers of the United States. In accepting this invitation you will not only honor the members of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, but the progressive business men of all commercial pursuits on our side."

Bodies From Wrecked Yacht

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 19.—The yacht Red Dragon, which left here on Tuesday on a long fishing cruise, was wrecked in the storm. FEWER IDLE SPINDLES

Practical End of Curtailment by Fall River Mills

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 19.—Improvement in the cotton industry which began a week or two ago, ater the several months of curtailment, continued this week, and on Monday next only one mill of those which shut down will remain unopened. The American, Cornell, Stafford and Luther mills will not be opened for business, but this will be by reason of repairs which are now under way and which it is believed will not consume more than two weeks.

Next week 100,000 more spindles will be operated, 700 more hands will find employment, and $6000 more in wages will be paid. The mills which resume business on Monday will be the American Linen, the Barnaby and Sagamore mills. All three of these have been closed because of curtailment.

The demand for cloth during the week was not as free as in the week previous, but there has been a fair amount of small trading, and it is estimated that 40,000 pieces of regulars were sold for delivery in the next three months.

The stranger then made his escape in the darkness. The doctor was taken to a nearby house, where he received surgical attention and later was removed to his home.

Waldoboro, Me., Sept. 19.—Errol Kaler, aged 13, committed suicide at his home here by hanging. He was a very sensitive boy and for that reason was subjected to more or less annoyance from companions, which fact is supposed to have led up to the rash deed.

The city bath-house closed for the season this morning to the great regret of the newspaper men, lawyers, doctors, policemen and others who have been its most frequent patrons while open. The water has not yet become cold or brackish and they would like to continue taking their dips.

John H. Starr, the obliging attendant, will secure the doors and windows for the winter against the storms and the stone-throwing youngsters. Jack has been a great favorite with the patrons of the place and they avow that until next season he can have anything he wants, whether it be newspaper notice, legal advice, medical treatment of police protection.

Lives in Danger.

The electric signals holding back trains failed to work at the Quincy depot Thursday about 6 P. M. and the Cape express inward bound attempted to pass the station while passengers were alighting from the train due at 6.19. Many thought that it was a narrow scape for themselves, and it certainly was.

CITY MEMBERS.

In Hopeless Minority in Halls of Legislation.

Expectant Speaker from the Country.

Most of the Leaders Are from the Rural Districts.

Washington, Sept. 21.—It is notable, as congress preparations draw near, how adequately the farmer and his interists is represented in congress in spite of all populistic anxiety over the dominance of the capitalistic classes. The great cities, where corporate power usually resides, furnish a dismally disproportionate number of the men who "do things."

The expectant speaker of the house is from a country district. Mr. Cannon, in fact, takes pride in his farmer phrases, and all his illustrations and personal inerests savor of a rural bringing up. He is the most powerful single personality in the popular branch of congress. The chairmanship which Mr. Cannon resigns—perhaps the most important of the house—that of the committee on appropriations, falls to J. A. Hemenway, who comes from one of the most rural listricts in Indiana. It embraces the famous county of Posey, also Pike, Gibson and Spencer. Hemenway himself comes from the village of B[illegible]ville. The house committee on foreign affairs has long beea presided over by Robert R. Hitt of Mount Morris, Ills. He is a native of Ogle county, and represents one of the richest farming districts in the Mississippi valley.

Other men whose names are familiar to the public—and that is a fair test of influence in congress—are the following-named representatives of essentially country districts. Payne of Auburn, N. Y., chairman of the ways and means committee, and floor leader of the party; Richardson of Tennessee, leader of the minority; Littlefield of Maine, Tawney of Winona, Minn., an independent spirit of the committee on ways and means, and Hepburn of Iowa, who is a potent influence.

This list might be greatly multiplied. Few of the more conspicuous figures in public life in this generation have come from the great metropolitan centres. McKinley, Blaine, Reed and Dingley were all sent by rural constituencies. The New York city delegation emphasizes the story. Those in the last congress were: Storm, Fitzgerald, Bristow, Lessler (of naval scandal fame), Creamer, Goldfogle, Swann, Sulzer (better known), and McClellan. Belmont, Douglas and Ruppert. The delegation from Chicago, with the exception of Mann and Boutelle, is notoriously weak. Its other members were Feely, Wilson, Foster, McAndrews and Mahoney.

There are exceptions, of course, to the rule that city member does not count for much, but they are not overpowering. The farmer has no reason to complain of his share of representation in congress, either in senate or house. Country congressmen are much closer to their constituents. A country district acquires a personality, like an old regiment, while a city district is so many blocks marked off at each enumeration time; the city boss assigns his candidates to these squares of patchwork oftentimes when they have little identification with district life.

The country congressman sends out much more government "literature" to his district than is sent out by urban congressmen. Thousands of residents of the great cities do not know the number of their district or who their congressman is; in the country every farmer has more or less of a personal acquaintance with his congressman, through the receipt of packages of seeds and tariff speeches.

The country districts, as a result of this familiar acquaintance with their congressman, keep him in Washington long enough for him to work up to a position in the legislative organization where he has some power. The cities, passing around the honor as a reward to members of political "machines," are practically not represented. No man is allowed to remain long enough, even if he has ability, and it must be admitted that in a majority of instances the city member is no match for his rural colleagues in education or native talent. The best intelligence of cities is not represented by the men who are picked out by the politicians to come to congress, while in the rural districts a nomination is still something of a prize.

The salary and allowances seem more nearly adequate to the rural aspirant for fame than for the successful urban lawyer or business man. This underrepresentation of the great cities shows itself when currency reform and similar issues come to the front; the strongholds of business do not possess the strongholds of legislation.

A Polo Fatality

Chicago, Sept. 21.—Nathan Swift, son of Louis F. Swift, the packer, died from the effects of a blow on the temple with a polo ball at Onwentsia field during a game. The accident was at first thought to be trifling.

Drowned Men Washed Ashore

Lewes, Del., Sept. 21.—Three drowned men were found at the three life saving stations near here by surfmen, one near Lewes station, one near Henlopen station and one near Rehoboth station.

Anderson—Anderson.

A happy event took place in Boston on September 16, when Mr. Aaron Anderson and Miss Jennie Anderson, both of Hingham, were united in marriage.

After the ceremony the happy couple returned to their home in Hingham, at the residence of Mrs. Scott, where Mr. Anderson has made his home for the past ten years, and held a grand reception, many friends of both parties being present from Hingham, Quincy and elsewhere.

The bride was attired in a white satin dress and never looked more charming. After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Anderson left on a short tour, after which they will return to Hingham and will be at home to friends after October 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson were the recipients of numerous and costly presents, among which was a handsome silver service from Mr. Anderson's brother.

Going to China.

A very able sermon was delivered by Rev. Ellis Jones at the Wollaston Baptist church Sunday. On Tuesday afternoon at the Baptist church, Wollaston, Rev. Ellis Jones will appear before the church council, and on Tuesday evening he will be ordained as minister of the gospel. He is to sail on Sept. 31 to North China where he is to carry on the missionary work in connection with the Baptist church.

BASE BALL NIGHT.

Merrymount Club Entertain the Merrymount Base Rall Nine.

The management of the Merrymount Base Ball Team entertained the Club Saturday evening with a "Base Ball Night" in the club rooms.

The original schedule of games ended with the last game in the Quincy League, but owing to the team having won and lost one game with the Braintree team it was decided to accept the invitation from the Weymouth Fair to play the third game with Braintree for a purse of $35.

This game proved one of the best played by the Merrymounts this season especially so in view of the fact that Braintrees put in the field an all star team with such men as Martell of the Wellingtons, Townsend formerly of Wesleyan and Jason of the New England league. The result was a victory for Merrymount with a score of 1 to 0.

Saturday the team played an All Varsity team and were defeated by a score of 11-4.

After the game a lunch was served to the college boys some of whom stayed to the evening entertainment.

Among features of the evening were piano solos by Mr. Norrie, Mr. Ripley and Mr. Bennett. The selection of Mr. Bennett's receiving most attention was a march of his own composing but recently published entitled "The Merrymount" and dedicated to the Merrymount club.

Vocal solos by Fenton Fowler.

Violin solos by Wallace Bennett.

Cornet solos by Mr. Whitehouse.

Buck and wing and clog dances by Frank Merrill.

Monalogue by Linde Fowler.

Cake walk by Joseph Mullen and Mr. Merrill.

Piano duets by Messrs. Bennett and Chadbourne.

To Johnnie Kolson in appreciation of his services in the box and because he is an all round good fellow—a purse, subscribed by members of the club and a ring properly inscribed were presented by President R. R. Freeman.

The team was cheered individually and collectedly, also the Manager and "Rooter" Parker.

Refreshments and cigars were in order throughout the evening.

The occasion closed with enthusiastic anticipation for the coming foot ball season which starts the first Saturday in October.

CENTENNIAL

Of the Execution of Robert Emmett.

The Hero and the Martyr.

Regarded as the Washington of His Country.

Hancock hall was crowded Sunday evening on the centennial of the execution of Robert Emmett, the Irish martyr, the anniversary being observed by the Emmett club and Divisions 5 and 18, A. O. H.

A picture of Emmett was conspicuous on the platform in front of the desk and on either side was an American flag and a flag of Erin.

On the platform beside the speakers were: John M. O'Brien, president Div. 4, A. O. H.; Peter J. Lane, president Div. 22. A. O. H.; Bartlett McLane, Div. 17, A. O. H.; James O'Donovan, president Div. 5, A. O. H.; Patrick Ferguson, president Div. 18, A. O. H.; Hugh P. Tracey, grand ranger, K. of C.; James F. Burke, past grand knight, K. of C.; William T. Shea, grand knight, K. of C.; Rev. Fr. Coan, Rev. Fr. Cuffe, Rev. Fr. Casey, Representative Peter T. Fallon, John Cavanagh, Daniel J. Reidy, Norfolk county president, A. O. H.; representatives of the press and others.

Patrick J. Tangney, president of the Emmett club, called the meeting to order and spoke briefly, declaring belief in the principles for which Emmett fought, and the hope of an Irish republic in Ireland soon.

Mayor Charles M. Bryant was introduced as chairman, and "was glad to say I am with you." He was glad to be present and to preside. He liked to see people who have a principle and are ready to stand by it. As in the days of old there were patriots and heroes today.

Thomas Clifford of Boston contributed a solo "The memory of the dead," which was so well received that he responded with "The Wearing of the Green."

Rev. Fr. Johnson was introduced as the first speaker, and told eloquently of the life and ambitions of Robert Emmett. One hundred years ago tonight he was executed for a cause he loved more than himself. He was an illustrous martyr and Ireland's idol. His life was metoric in splendor, but early quenched in a cold eclipse. He lived for liberty, fought for liberty, died for liberty. Liberty, however, cannot be crushed out; it is endowed with immortality.

Emmett has been condemned as a rash enthusiast and a rebel. His insurrection was a failure; had it been successful he would have been called the saviour of Ireland, and would have stood with Washington.

Emmett's defeat was because of traitors. His plans were noble, grand, and the time was opportune. The speaker reviewed the plans to overthrow Dublin castle and told of the work of traitors which frustrated it.

Such an uprising for a high motive was not a rebellion, but was for the freedom of thousands and justifiable. Emmett's life was lived purely. He offered it as a sacrifice, and Ireland today loves, laments and mourns for him. May Emmett always be a hero to Ireland and people of Irish descent.

Thomas F. Horan sang "Why did they sell Kilarney?" and for an encore "The Shamrock."

Rev. E. C. Butler pastor of the Unitarian church was introduced and kept the audience in good humor, his address being replete with stories. He predicted better times for Ireland.

After two more songs by Mr. Clifford, Congressman McNary was introduced. He spoke of the momentuous century which produced Emmett, and in enlogy of the hero.

Mr. Horan sang again, and the concluding speaker was Matthew J. Cummings, the county president of Suffolk, who regarded Emmett as the Washington of Ireland. He spoke of the hopes of the island, and of the important part the Irishmen had played in different countries. It was a good time to renew those inspirations for the liberty of Ireland. He hoped to see it an independent nation.

Drift of Opinion.

The secret of success—if there be any one secret—is to learn to find in work a greater attraction than in the things which draw one away from one's work.—Zion's Herald.

The meteorologist may explain to the end of time that there is no such thing as the "line gale," but they will not make the Atlantic coast dwellers believe them.—New Bedford Standard.

Hand in hand with new inventions go new ways of meeting death. Who would have dreamed, for instance, a quarter of a century ago, of being killed by the explosion of an automobile tire while watching a race?—Waterbury Post.

It is now claimed that the putting of a dynamite bomb on the rails in Gloucester was only a joke. If the funny man who evolved such a piece of humor can be discovered he should be sent to Charlestown for a term of years, where he might enjoy the recollection of his joke with small possibility of any one interrupting his hilarity.—Lynn Item.

It is the duty of every voter who wants to improve the character of the public service to attend his ward or town caucus. If he does that, and strives to secure the nomination of honest, capable men, he may feel privileged to criticise and condemn and attack if proper men be not placed in nomination. But the man who never attends a caucus should studiously refrain from all criticism of officeholders. He, and those like him, are responsible for the very conditions of which he complains.—Springfield Union.

Mayor Johnson is infusing spirit into the Ohio campaign by calling the justices of the state's supreme court "country lawyers," and saying that not one of them ever had on his hands while practicing a suit involving over five thousand dollars. The funny thing about it, too—funny to all but the judges and their friends—is that the allegation is true. We don't know that that proves that the judges are not competent men for their place, but it does raise some doubt as to whether they are the most competent men that could be found in the state. Nor is it any proof that the Ohioans ought to choose Mr. Johnson to be their governor. But he helps make the campaign talkative, if that is any advantage.—New Bedford Standard.

CHAMPIONSHIP

Of the Quincy League Won by the Quincys.

Defeat Wollastons Seven to Three.

The Wollastons Were Second in the Race.

The Quincys and Wollastons who were tied for first place in the Quincy base ball league, met on Saturday for the final game, to decide the championship. For a few innings it looked like a close, hard-fought contest, neither club scoring until the third innings.

Not until the fifth inning did the Quincys get a good lead, the score then being 5 to 0.

When the Wollastons closed the first half of the seventh the score was 5 to 3 in favor of Quincys, who shut out the Wollastons after that and added two to their own total.

Honors were nearly equal between the batteries, both Dunn and Fountain striking out 10. The former allowed but one base on balls to three by the latter. The Quincys made 12 safe hits with a total of 15, while the Wollastons made 11 hits, all for one base only.

It was the errors of the Wollastons which resulted in their defeat by the score of 7 to 3.

THE KIRBY MURDER

New Bedford Police Think That Love Was Motive For Crime

New Bedford, Mass., Sept. 21.—A quarrel over a woman, so the police allege, explains the murder of aged Tillinghast Kirby at Westport and charged with whose killing Angles Snell is under arrest in this city.

Snell is said to have been deeply in love with Mrs. Sarah Sherman, who was housekeeper for Snell, Kirby and one Burton Head. Snell and Head, who was also a fisherman, ran the house, while Kirby boarded with them.

A year ago Snell brought Mrs. Sherman, a good looking woman of 40 years, to the house to act as housekeeper. Shortly after she came Head began to show her some attention, whereupon Snell became jealous. Snell and Head constantly quarrelled over the woman.

Mrs. Sherman sided with Head, and Snell endeavored to win back her affections. About a week before Kirby disappeared Snell came to Mrs. Sherman with an appeal to her to elope with him and get married.

Mrs. Sherman twitted Snell about not having any money, and Snell declared that he would have money soon, enough to support both. He knew that Kirby had money in the bank, and asked the old man to lend him some. Kirby refused and the two had a quarrel.

Snell, anxious to take Mrs. Sherman away, believing that she would elope with him if he had any money, made a desperate attempt to obtain some. This, the police believe, explains the motive for a crime.

Clients Left In the Lurch

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 21.—Attachments to totalling almost $10,000 have been filed against William T. Tupper, a real estate man of this city, who is reported to the police as being missing. One of the principal claimants is the Cambridge Methodist Episcopal society, which is connected with the Harvard Street Methodist Episcopal church of this city, where Mr. Tupper was superintendent of the Sunday school. The police announce that Tupper is charged with misappropriating $20,000 from his clients and insurance companies for which he was the agent.

'Phone and Telegraph Combined

Utica, N. Y., Sept. 21.—An innovation in the line of railroad telegraph service has been put into use on the New York Central railroad between Utica and Albany, a single wire being used for telegraph and telephone messages at the same time. While the operator is ticking away a telegram in Morse code another person can telephone a message without the slightest interference.

More Ministerial Resignations

London, Sept. 21.—Lord Balfour of Burleigh, secretary for Scotland, and Arthur R. D. Elliott, financial secretary to the treasury, have resigned, and their resignations have been accepted by the king. Elliott was not in the cabinet. With the resignation of Balfour and Elliott, both strong free traders, it is understood that the ministerial resignations are completed.

Flight of Jailbirds

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 21.—Squire Hibler, Clayton Day and Frank Chenault, negroes, all awaiting sentence to prison terms for murder and robbery, made good their escape from jail here. To accomplish it Chenault split the head of Deputy Jailer Williams with a bottle, seriously injuring him, and opened the doors for the others.

Chamberlain Can't Come This Year

London, Sept. 21.—Replying to an inquiry as to whether he anticipated being able to accept the invitation of the Illinois Manufacturers' association to visit Chicago as the guest of the association and deliver an address on his fiscal proposals, Chamberlain telegraphed that he shall not be able to leave England this year.

Lion Ought to Be Killed

East St. Louis, Ills., Sept. 21.—During the performance of a street carnival company an angry lion sprang upon Keeper Ricardo, who was in the cage, and tore off his right hand. Only the prompt work of attendants saved the keeper's life. The lion has killed three keepers.

Waiting to Hear From Dick

Cleveland, Sept. 21.—Senator Hanna states that he will pay no attention to the challenge to debate of the Democratic candidate for United States senator, John H. Clarke, until he has heard from Chairman Dick, to whom Clarke's challenge has been referred.

Double Murder by Robbers

Paris, Sept. 21.—Eugenie Fougere, a music hall singer, was murdered in her villa at Aix les Bairs. A female servant was also murdered and another was so maltreated that she has lost her reason. Robbery was the motive for the crime.

Bribery Charges Preferred

Minneapolis, Sept. 21.—Charles R. Hill, captain of police during the Ames administration, was arraigned in the district court under charges of accepting and soliciting bribes. His bail was fixed at $5000.

Quincy League Standing.

The victory of the Quincys over the Wollastons on Saturday puts a wide gap between the two clubs, the former winning the championship penant with 83 per cent while Wollaston is second with 66. The Merrymounts and South Quincys have one unplayed game with each other, but probably it will not be played as it will not effect the position of any of the clubs.

FORGED TRANSFER CHECKS

Have Caused Loss to Railway Company of at Least $100,000

Boston, Sept. 21.—All day yesterday and far into the night the agents of the Pinkertons, the officials of the Boston and Northern railroad and Chief Watts' men were busy trying to round up more members of the gang which in the past two years has beaten the road out of at least $100,000 by means of forged transfer checks, but up to the hour of going to press this morning but two additional arrests were made, the prisoners being Lynn employes of the company. It was surmised that several of the suspected men had gotten away through the timely warning given by the story in the Sunday papers.

During the day three more men were taken to headquarters and put through the "third degree," two being immediately released because of the failure of Clarence C. Mitchell and a boy named Collins, the former the real head of the gang, to identify them, while the third, after being held some hours, was released because of the failure of the detectives to corroborate the statement of the men under arrest.

The men under arrest in Lynn are Herbert E. Sherman, janitor of the company's offices, and Herbert Morris, a conductor. Their arrest developed the fact that the company was being robbed by still another gang by means of cancelled transfers stolen from its Lynn office. The total number under arrest so far is seven. Mitchell has given the police every detail of the plot to swindle the company.

Ravages by Gypsy Moth

Medford, Mass., Sept. 21.—That part of Medford bounded on the south and west by the Mystic river is one bed of gypsy moth eggs. During the past year the moths have increased at a ratio of 15 to 1 and with each and every one of those depositing at least 300 eggs in each cluster. The authorities upon gypsy moths say that unless active measures are taken to rid the district at once of the pest, nearly $250,000 will be necessary if the extermination is postponed until next spring.

Highwaymen's Big Haul

Woonsocket, R. I., Sept. 21.—Woonsocket and Providence officers are active in the search for the three Italians who on Saturday, on the "towpath" between Woonsocket and Waterford, held up Paymaster Sherman of the Saranac mills of the American Woolen company and robbed him of a sack containing the weekly payroll, amounting to $2966. The authorities believe that the robbers have divided the money, have separated, and will eventually turn up in New York.

Hebrews Shut Out by Religion

Boston, Sept. 21.—A peculiar complication has arisen by which it is feared fully 6000 Hebrews may lose their votes in the primary election, which takes place in this city tomorrow. No orthodox Hebrew is permitted to write during the three days of the festival held in observance of the New Year and Tuesday happens to be one of these days. It is feared by the Hebrew leaders that the votes of their followers will be lost.

Coupe Knocked Forty Feet

Boston, Sept. 21.—While running at a high rate of speed an electric car crashed into a coupe containing Frederick L. Walker and wife of Dorchester and drawn by two spirited horses. The coupe was thrown 40 feet and Mrs. Walker was badly injured. Walker and Michael Fallon, the driver, escaped with slight injuries and the horses were unhurt. The accident occurred on a sharp down grade.

Double Fatality on Crossing

Great Barrington, Mass., Sept. 21.—While returning to their home in New Marlboro from this city Amos Brewer, a farmer, aged 84, and his hired man, Ernest Bailey, 18, were killed by a train at a crossing. The wagon was struck squarely on the side and both its occupants were instantly killed, while the body of the horse and the wrecked wagon were carried down the track for a long distance.

Killed Himself When Pursued

Livermore Falls, Me., Sept. 21.—For some reason that is not made clear William Ballard forced his way into Mrs. Wadsworth's home at Moose hill and threatened her with a revolver. She ran from the house, with Ballard in pursuit. Mrs. Wadsworth's son grabbed a gun and started after Ballard who, turning upon his pursuer, seized the gun and with it shot and killed himself.

Discrepancy In Bank Funds

Marblehead, Mass., Sept. 21.—The fact that a discrepancy of about $19,000 exists at the Marblehead National bank between the amount which the bank actually holds and the amount reported in the books has become known. The bank's books are in the hands of Bank Examiner Ewer. William Reynolds was until Aug. 31 the cashier of the bank. At that date he resigned.

Torpedo Boat Torpedoed

Newport, R. I., Sept. 21.—Another test of the efficiency of the submarine torpedo boat destroyer was made in the outer harbor when the torpedo boat McKee was torpedoed in her most vulnerable point—her engines—by the Moccasin, and the latter succeeded in escaping the shots fired after her by the defending vessel.

BARNES UNDER ARREST

Farmer Charged With Assaulting Wife and Boarder

LATTER MAY NOT RECOVER

Accused Man Said to Have Been Jealous of Attentions Paid His Wife by Ashael Dunton—All Three Are Past the Three Score and Ten Mark

East Sullivan, N. H., Sept. 21.—The circumstances surrounding the assault at the home of Malachi Barnes, a farmer living two miles from the village, Saturday night, when Mrs. Barnes was brutally beaten and Ashael Dunton, an aged boarder in the family, pounded into insensibility from which he has not yet recovered, assumed a new phase when Sheriff Tuttle placed Barnes under arrest and removed him to the county jail at Keene, where he is held on suspicion of having committed the assault. Frequent quarrels between Barnes and Dunton over Mrs. Barnes, of whom the husband is said to be jealous, strengthened by statements made by the woman to the sheriff, are the bases upon which the arrest was made. Barnes stoutly denied any knowledge of the crime and maintained that he was in his barn when it occurred.

When Sheriff Tuttle arrived at the scene of the assault Mrs. Barnes gave him to understand that the house had been visited by a tramp who committed the double assault. After several hours' investigation and following further statements by Mrs. Barnes, Tuttle placed her husband under arrest Sunday morning. He was immediately taken to Keene and locked up.

Sheriff Tuttle returned to this village later and visited Mrs. Barnes. He received a formal statement concerning the assault and the domestic relations of the three people involved. He refused to make public the statement, but said he felt thoroughly justified in making the arrest.

In the Barnes yard he discovered what is believed to be the weapon with which the bloody work was done. In the grass a short distance from the house he found a bark peeler having a blade two feet in length and a wooden handle of the same length. On the blade of the bark peeler were blood stains and human hair. He discovered absolutely no evidence of a tramp having been in the vicinity.

The principals in the case are aged people. Dunton is 75, Barnes 72, and his wife 71 years of age. Dunton has been a boarder in the family for several years, although he has near relatives, including a son, living. The two men are said to have quarreled frequently, Barnes showing jealousy of attentions alleged to have been paid to his wife by Dunton. Barnes is regarded by his neighbors as somewhat eccentric.

Mrs. Barnes is rapidly recovering from her wounds which, though severe and painful, are no longer regarded as dangerous.

The condition of Dunton is practically unchanged. He has not regained consciousness. Drs. Proctor and Whyland performed an operation on his skull, which had been crushed with three blows from a blunt weapon. The physicians hold out no hope for the man's recovery, but it is hoped that he can be sufficiently revived to make it possible to obtain from him an ante-mortem statement. The chances are against his ever recovering consciousness.

Bunch of Filipinos Held Up

San Francisco, Sept. 21.—Thirty-one Filipinos who arrived here on the transport Sherman on their way to St. Louis, where they were to be employed in the construction of the Philippine houses and other buildings at the exposition, are detained by the immigration authorities because they are apparently liable to become public charges. They are all in poor financial straits and appear poorly equipped to continue on their journey to St. Louis.

Many Farms Under Water

Portage, Wis., Sept. 21.—The city levee on the west side of the Wisconsin river has broken and a district covering a space of six miles is one sea of water. Seven hundred feet of newly built city levee was washed away. Farm residences in the district are entirely surrounded. Hundreds of acres of potatoes, corn and millet are ruined.

Boers to Settle In Mexico

Monterey, Mex., Sept. 21.—General Snyman, one of the leaders of the Boer army during the recent Boer-British war, has moved his entire family to the new colony site purchased near Ortiz and announces that 50 families are on the way from South Africa to become residents.

Resignation Pleases Russia

London, Sept. 21.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg says Mr. Chamberlain's resignation is regarded by the Russian press and public with satisfaction, as it is considered that with Chamberlain disappears one of the most dangerous political factors for European peace.

Murderer's Lame Excuse

Chicago, Sept. 21.—Louis Pesant has confessed to the murder of Mrs. Mary Spilka. He lived in the rear of the Spilka house. He gave no reason for committing the crime, except that a notion got into his head to do so.

GOATSKIN IN DEMAND

New Industry Offering Itself to Farmers of United States

Washington, Sept. 21.—A new industry is offering itself to the farmers and manufacturers of the United States. The fact that $25,000,000 worth of goatskins are now annually imported into the United States, and that her enterprising manufacturers are now obliged to send halfway around the world for a large share of them, suggests that the farmers of the country have a great opportunity to put a large share of this sum into their own pockets, and that the entire sum may be divided between our producers and manufacturers.

A statement presented by the department of commerce and labor, through its bureau of statisties, shows that importations of goatskins into the United States are now running at the rate of $25,000,000 per annum, and that a large share of these are brought from India, China, Arabia, and southeastern Russia. The increasing popularity of certain classes of kid footwear, as well as gloves, has increased very greatly the demand for goatskins in the United States within recent years. In 1885 the value of goatskins imported was about $4,000,000; by 1890 it had grown to $9,000,000, by 1898 it was $15,000,000, in 1900 it was $22,000,000, and in 1903 $25,000,000, in round numbers.

From India, which took less than $5,000,000 worth of merchandise of all kinds from the United States last year, and has increased her purchases from us less than $2,000,000 in a decade, we have increased our importations of goatskins alone from $2,000,000 in 1892 to $7,500,000 in 1902. From Brazil, which has reduced her imports from the United States from $15,000,000 in 1895 to $10,000,000 in 1903, our purchases of goatskins last year were $1,500,000. France, Russia, the United Kingdom, Turkey in Europe and Turkey in Asia, Arabia, China, southern Africa, Argentina, and Mexico also contribute liberally to the supply of goatskins to make up the $25,000,000 worth of this product brought into the United States annually.

The farmers of the United States are apparently making no effort to reap any part of this golden harvest to themselves. The census of 1900 showed the total number of goats in the United States to be less than 2,000,000 in number.

Death Rather Than Face Trial

San Francisco, Sept. 21.—W. P. Gamble, the United States deputy marshal who confessed complicity in a plot to substitute old Chinese for young Chinese who had been ordered deported, committed suicide in Buena Vista park by sending two bullets into his brain. Gamble had thought that by assuming the role of states evidence he would save himself from punishment.

Peace For Three Years

New Orleans, Sept. 21.—All labor troubles on the river front have been adjusted and screwmen, longshoremen and freight handlers have gone to work under a three years' contract. Parties interested in shipping are now confident that there will be no further labor troubles on the levee.

Marble Workers Shut Out

St. Louis, Sept. 21.—Seven of the principal marble works in St. Louis have shut down and 700 thrown out of employment as the result of the refusal of the National Association of Marble Dealers to further recognize the labor unions.

An Unusual Lynching Bee

Luxora, Ark., Sept. 21.—Negroes overpowered the sheriff here, took a negro named Hellem and hanged him to a water tank, where his body was left dangling. Hellem was charged with assaulting two negro girls, aged 5 and 10 years.

A QUINCY BOY.

Appointed Master of High School at San Juan.

Graduate of the Quincy High.

And Also of the Boston University With High Rank.

Donald Mackenzie of Quincy, aged 24 a well-known graduate of Boston university, is receiving the congratulations of his friends on his appointment to a mastership in the high school at San Juan, Porto Rico, says the Herald. He is considered by his friends to be especially fortunate, as the position is one that has been earnestly sought for by many competitors. The institution is one of excellent standing, ranking in the forefront of all those on the island, and is considered to be a sure stepping stone to a district superintendency in a few years.

He started on his long journey Saturday leaving for New York, from which he will sail direct for Porto Rico.

Mr. Mackenzie took his first appointment on the island last year, when he was assigned to a town about 10 miles north of San Juan. There he spent the school year as instructor and inspector of English in the common schools of that place. There he met with marked success, and he was rewarded by Commissioner Everett W. Lord with his present appointment in the city of San Juan.

His duties for this year will include the instruction in Greek and Latin and also courses in English.

Regarding educational conditions on the island, Mr. Mackenzie says that the young people are quick and eager to learn the English language and are easily amercanized. The opposition, he says, is encountered among the older people of the federalist party, who are still at heart loyal Spanish subjects. In point of intelligence, he says, the Porto Rican children stand high, and may well rival our own young people in their desire for knowledge.

Mr. Mackenzie was graduated from the Quincy High school in 1897 and it will be remembered that he was that year the winner of the first prize in the prize speaking contest, and that he also took first prizes for translations from Xenophen, Cicero, and French, and also for an English essay. He also took several prizes in other years.

Good Citizenship.

The attendance at the law and order meeting at the Quincy Point church Sunday evening was the largest yet. The address of Frank E. Parlin, the superintendent of schools on good citizenship made many good points and was of interest. The singing of the trio composed of Mrs. George K. Carter, Miss Kessie L. Drew and Miss Nina B. Gage was also enjoyed.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

UP TO LAST MOMENT

Bulgaria Intends to Maintain Her Neutrality

HAS MADE NO ULTIMATUM

Last Note to Powers Appealed For Intervention Before It Should Be Too Late—First American Diplomat to Bulgaria Dined by Prince

Sofia, Sept. 21.—Some apprehension having apparently been cerated owing to a misunderstanding regarding the precise meaning of Bulgaria's last note to the powers, explanations have been given to some diplomatic agents here that the memorandum was not intended as an ultimatum, but was rather in the nature of an appeal for the intervention of the great powers before that intervention should be too late. The Bulgarian ministry, it was stated, was determined to maintain its attitude of neutrality up to the last moment, but it felt the impossibility of standing by indefinitely while the Turks exterminated the Bulgarian element in Macedonia.

The government's position is rendered increasingly difficult by the attitude of the Macedonian population in Bulgaria, which, vigorously backed up by the revolutionary committees, is persistently endeavoring to force the government's hand and provoke hostilities with Turkey.

A special dispatch from the monastery of Rila, Bulgaria, says the condition of the Turkish garrison of Melnik, 65 miles northeast of Salonica, is believed to be extremely critical. It is besieged by bands of insurgents under the leadership of four former Bulgarian officers. The insurgents number 1500, while the garrison is believed to consist of only one battalion. Melnik is a very important strategic point in the mountains, commanding the road between Demirhissar and Razlog. The Turks have withdrawn nearly all their forces from the districts of Danoumaia and Razlog to send them to the relief of Melnik. As a consequence unusual tranquility prevails throughout the district of Razlog, where the authorities, lacking the support of the troops, have ceased their policy of persecution and the beys are even furnishing bands with food. The Turkish population is described as being in a state of great consternation.

A company of Turkish soldiers and Bashi-Bazouks recently found the hiding place of 100 families of refugees from the villages of Dupeni and Echla, near Resen. They captured the party, violated the women and committed other atrocities.

Prince Ferdinand gave a dinner party at the palace in honor of J. B. Jackson, who had presented his credentials as the first American diplomatic agent to Bulgaria. The guests included F. R. R. Elliot, the British diplomatic agent, and the Bulgarian ministers and high officials. Prince Ferdinand proposed the health of President Roosevelt, speaking in English, and the court band played a selection of American airs.

Great satisfaction is expressed not only in official, but also commercial circles, at America's action in establishing diplomatic relations with Bulgaria. The belief prevails that a great opportunity exists for developing a profitable export and import trade with the United States.

Sultan's Customary Regret

Boston, Sept. 21.—A largely attended meeting of the Greeks of Boston made strong protests against the Bulgarian incursions into Macedonia. The Bulgarians were charged by the speakers with stirring up insurrection and thereby causing the slaughter of Greeks in order that ultimately Bulgaria might annex Macedonia. A contribution of nearly $1000 was raised to assist persecuted Greeks in Macedonia.

Cotton Reports Peace at Beirut

Washington, Sept. 21.—Rear Admiral Cotton reports that the situation at Beirut continues quiet. There has been a delay in the filing of the governor of Beirut's report on the case of the American vice consul, but Admiral Cotton says he expects it will be forthcoming in the next few days.

Protest From Boston Greeks

Constantinople, Sept. 21.—In an audience with M. Zinovieff, the Russian ambassador, the sultan expressed his regret at the excesses committed by the Turkish troops in the vilayets of Monastir and Adrianople. He said that orders had been sent to the authorities concerned to prevent their repetition. The German ambassador also had an audience with the sultan, who declared that the insurrection was drawing to a close.

Each Side Claims Victories

London, Sept. 21.—The Balkan situation presents few new features this morning. The German emperor's influence at Vienna is said to have been thrown in favor of allowing the sultan the utmost freedom in suppressing the insurrection. Both Turks and Macedonians claim the victories in the daily encounters.

Leopold Rejects Arbitration

Brussels, Sept. 21.—King Leopold's reply to the note of the powers concerning the Congo state contends that the alleged cruelties are based on untrustworthy testimony and repudiates the idea of arbitration as incompatible with his sovereign rights.

OBEY THE LAW

The Secret of Our Civilization and Our Safety.

Wilful Participants are Murderers.

Chief Justice Lore Would Suppress Lynching in Delaware.

Wilmington, Del., Sept. 22.—Chief Justice Lore of the Delaware supreme court delivered a strong charge to the grand jury which is considering the criminal work of the county courts. After reciting the details of the murder on June 15 of Helen Bishop by George White and the subsequent lynching of White by a mob, Justice Lore said:

"The crime of George White and his punishment are not before us. Upon his body human vengeance has done its work. If the matter concerned George White alone, there would be nothing left for our consideration. But for the first time, the lawless and revolting crime of lynching has invaded this state.

"We have heard of lynching as a punishment for horse stealing in the south and west, and for homicides, rapes and other crimes elsewhere; but we flattered ourselves that such scenes could not occur in our community, composed, as it is largely, of that good old English stock whose obedience to law has been one of the secrets of our civilization and of the safety of our people. We are now confronted, however, with this crime, and must meet it. Shall we invite its visitation in the future by acquiescence to its perpetration, or make such crime hereafter improbable, if not impossible, by dealing out adequate punishment?

"No good citizen, we are persuaded, can regard the lynching of George White in any other light than as a brutal crime and as a flagrant violation of laws.

"In this country we make the laws; they are our will formally expressed. It is the duty of every good man to obey the law himself and to see that it is obeyed by others as far as he may. Lynching is a crime against the law of both God and man. Every wilful participant in such an act is a murderer. No man has a right to commit that crime because he believes or fears that some other person who is entrusted with the execution of the law will fail, or has failed, in the performance of his duty.

"Under the law we know what our rights are, and, in the main, we find that they are fairly attained and enforced. No human laws or human institutions are perfect. This no reasonable man will expect.

"Lynching and mob law, their promoters and encouragers, whether they be of high or low degree, should receive no favor at the hands of thoughtful and patriotic men. There must be government or no government. The line of cleavage is clear. All history teaches that the prevalence of mob law is the end of free government. Obedience to law is the life breath of our republic.

"In obedience to the oath you have taken and to your duty to your state, we ask you to so act that the crime of lynching may be suppressed in this state, so far as by your action that end may be attained, and that the perpetrators of this crime and the authors of the disgrace that has come upon us through their crime shall be dealt with according to their just merits.

"To you the people look for the faithful, fearless and honest discharge of your duty. They ask nothing more and expect nothing less."

NO PUBLICITY.

Democrats to Keep Their Candidates a Secret.

The names of the men nominated for the Democratic caucuses will not appear in the Ledger, and the reason is amusing.

Secretary Wilson of the committee says the Ledger cannot have them, because the Ledger has sat down on the committee.

The Ledger has refused to do any more printing for the committee until the bill of 1902 is paid, and propose to adhere to it.

If committees desire to keep the voters in ignorance of candidates until they enter the booths on caucus night, it matters little to the Ledger. It is only another argument in favor of the adoption by the city of the Caucus Act, and also the new Lucé act, which goes with it. These will give publicity which politicians do not seem to desire, and will prevent the packing of the caucuses by one party, by voters of other parties.

It would not be difficult for the Ledger to get the nominations should it make the effort. It is understood that the candidates for the Legislature are: Peter T. Fallon, Walter B. Wilson, James F. Cleverly, Stephen H. Edwards, Walter M. Packard and John Smith.

—While lauding the young men of his country an English clergyman uttered this mixed metaphor: "The young men of England are the backbone of the British empire. What we must do is to train that backbone and bring it to the front."

A NEW DEPOT.

And Other Improvements Wanted at West Quincy.

A Society Organized Last Evening.

Committee Appointed to Secure Reduced Fares.

Rev. A. F. Roche has initiated a movement for the improvement of West Quincy, which shall be non-sectarian and non-political.

At his request a meeting was called at St. Mary's hall on Monday evening for the organization of an improvement society, and there was an attendance of about 200 gentlemen, a number which augurs for the success of the movement.

Fr. Roche called the meeting to order and spoke briefly on the objects to be obtained—the improvement of West Quincy, lower fares on the N. Y., N. & H. R. R., a new depot, better street railway service, etc., etc.

An organization was effected by the choice of William E. Badger as president and James L. Fennessey as secretary. The attractive estate of Mr. Badger and his interest in public affairs make him a good man for the place.

After the views of several of those present had been expressed, it was voted that a committee of three be appointed to visit the officials of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. and urge them to build a new up-to-date depot at West Quincy; and also to issue a 12-ride book between West Quincy and Boston for $1.

The committee are: William E. Badger, Representative Fallon and James F. Burke.

It was also voted that the committee secure, if possible, the cooperation of Mayor Bryant.

The importance of an early start on the Furnace Brook parkway between the Blue Hills and Merrymount park was also urged. It was felt that the Metropolitan Park Commission, which now has available money, should at least make a beginning early in 1904.

One of the speakers was of the opinion that West Quincy should have fifteen-minute service on the street railway, and an improved service.

It is the intention of the society to hold frequent meetings.

Good Afternoon

Our Mayor and the chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Thomas Crane public library have taken a prominent part in the Robert Emmett centennial, to which no one objects, but attention has been called to a centennial which comes nearer to our city and the chairman of the Library board, and there is a surprising indifference. We refer to the centennial birthday of a benefactor of Quincy, who gave us the Thomas Crane memorial hall for our public library, and whose family continue to show great interest in Quincy. The birthday anniversary of the late Thomas Crane comes October 18, 1903, three weeks from Sunday, and we know it would be pleasing to the family to have the date observed.

Although Mayor Bryant has not announced his candidacy for a renomination, it is generally believed that he desires once more to be the Republican candidate for Mayor. All efforts up to a recent date to get a man to stand against him have been unsuccessful, but now ex-Councilman Arthur W. Newcomb of Ward Two has announced his candidacy, and informs the Ledger that he will make an aggressive campaign.

Few gentlemen in the city have served longer in the City Council than Mr. Newcomb, who has five years to his credit—1898 to 1902 inclusive. For two years he was chairman of the Street committee, and for two years on the Finance committee. He also was on the License committee three years, two of which he was chairman, and three years on the Sewer committee. No one ever gave more faithful attention to public duties than did Councilman Newcomb, and he is well posted on city affairs.

Ward Two owes many improvements to Councilman Newcomb, but his efforts were not confined to the ward in which he resides. He was a good man for the city at large.

Candidate Newcomb's platform is brief and unique:

"Civic Purity."

"Office Holding a Sacred Trust."

"A Wise, Careful Administration of Public Affairs."

It must be admitted, however, that there is considerable in the platform, especially when uttered by a gentleman like Mr. Newcomb, and the belief is that he would if elected conscientiously discharge the duties along those lines.

Drift of Opinion.

☞The moral effect of every triumph of civic decency is tangible; it cannot be measured. But it is none the less powerful. The defeat of Tammany this autumn would mean good government for other cities besides New York. —Kansas City Star.

☞The cost of newspaper making grows yearly. It is astonishing that publishers find themselves able to go on selling for a penny the papers which find every element of production increasing its expense. Every large business complains of the tendency, and the publisher has not escaped. It is no wonder that papers in overcrowded fields fall by the roadside. The pace is fast and furious, and the expense is increasing, while the income cannot keep the pace. The inevitable result must be the weeding out of the weaker and the continuance only of the stronger. —Lowell Citizen.

☞So Senator Carmack of Tennessee has decided to make a political specialty of agitating for the repeal of the Fifteenth Amendment. A newspaper man of more than a dozen years standing should have more sense. The senator lives in Memphis. We believe there are brick walls in Memphis. If the senator will pick out one of them and butt his head against it, he will accomplish just as much; and he will be employing himself in a far less foolish and harmful manner.—Hartford Courant.

—New York now has night banks. Of course it has had from time immemorial a certain kind of night banks, but it now has commercial banks of the night.—Havana Post.

MANY LAID OFF.

Because of Scarcity of Material at Fore River Plant.

The report that 500 men employed by the Fore River Ship & Engine Co. were discharged Saturday night is probably exaggerated. President Watson of the company informs the Ledger that the number was between 250 and 300, and that the men were laid off because of scarcity of material.

The reduction of the force came largely in the Hull department. Even now the force is probably larger than on the first of August, as many additions have been made of late.

Harris--Porter.

Sunday afternoon at two o'clock at the home of Mr and Mrs. Joseph W. Hayden, 67 Curtis avenue, a quiet and pretty home wedding took place. The contracting parties were Mr. James Harris of Pittsburg, Pa., and Miss Margaret Porter of Quincy.

The bride prettily gowned in light silk, was given away by her brother Mr. Thomas Porter. The bridesmaid was Miss Lilian Cains of Weymouth and the best man Mr. William J. Porter of Quincy, brother of the bride.

Relatives and friends to the number of thirty-five from Haverhill, Newport, Brighton, Natick, Weymouth and Quincy, witnessed the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Leon H. Austin of Quincy.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris go to Pittsburg, Pa., in which city they will make their permanent home.

Brockton Fair.

The Brockton Fair is a strong feature of the early Fall of every year, as it is a permanent institution, and not a money making affair for the pockets of the officials. They give their services for the improvement of the whole show.

Those who have never attended the Brockton Fair, ought not to fail, this year, even though they may never go again. There is no other Fair just like it, and no money is handled more skilfully for the good of those who favor them with their patronage.

President Henry W. Robinson has long been honored as the chief official, which has extended over a quarter of a century, while Mr. E. M. Thompson, the treasurer, is one of the master hands in conducting the Fair so successfully.

Read the dates—Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, September 29, 30, and Oct. 1, 2—and if you go, you will say that you have seen a Fair.—Randolph.

Cigar Men Are Indicted.

Lancaster, Pa.—S. R. Ross, manufacturer of cigars in Lancaster, and his factory manager, H. S. Ryder, have been indicted by the Grand Jury (two indictments being found against each) for manufacturing and selling cigars under counterfeit labels and trade marks, all of the brands being celebrated and used by owners of imported Havana goods.

One of the brands was "Manuel Garcia" and one was "La Carolina," both of which are the property of the Havana Commercial Company. Another was "Henry Clay," belonging to the Henry Clay and Bock & Company, Ltd.

Excursion to New York City.

Thursday, October 8, is the date of the celebrated New York Autumnal Excursion over the Boston & Albany R. R., Hudson River Steamers, Fall River Line and the N. Y., N. H. & H. back to Boston, arriving Saturday or Sunday, October 10 or 11. From points west of Boston, October 7. Send for descriptive leaflet. A. S. Hanson, Gen. Pass. Agent, Boston.

BOGUS CHECK FRAUDS

Appear to Be Far Below the Amounts First Estimated

Boston, Sept. 22.—The courts have become the point of interest in the transfer check frauds which have been perpetrated upon the Boston and Northern Street Railway company. In the municipal court Clarence Mitchell, Frank E. Collins, George H. Morse, Fred A. Morse and John E. Maxwell were arraigned and held in $1000 each.

In the Lynn court Herbert E. Sherman, the janitor of the railway office in Lynn, who was arrested on a charge of stealing $4000 worth of uncancelled 8 cent transfer checks, was arraigned and held in $3000. Herbert Morris, a conductor, charged with receiving stolen checks to the amount of $267, was also arraigned and was held in $500. Both pleaded not guilty to the charges.

It is claimed that the discoveries made by the detectives in Boston and the arrests in Lynn have caused much disquietude among the conductors of the divisions in and about Lynn, and that some of them have failed to report for further duty. It is stated that at least four conductors have left town for parts unknown.

In an interview President Sullivan of the Boston and Northern road said that the loss of the road from the check frauds has been very much over-estimated. He said that he thought that $10,000 would be a large estimate of the total loss.

Sequel to Polish Wedding

New London, Conn., Sept. 22.—Bronislaw Swetzky, aged 22, one of a party of Poles who were celebrating a wedding here last night, has a pistol wound through his windpipe and will probably die. He was shot by a Hungarian who attended the fete uninvited and aroused the jealousy of the Polanders. Several of them chased the Hungarian into the street, where he drew a pistol and fired, hitting Swetzky. The man who did the shooting is unknown. He got away.

Building New Preachers' Fund

Boston, Sept. 22.—Excellent progress is being made to build up another fund in place of that which Willard S. Allen lost in speculation while treasurer of the Methodist Preachers' Aid association. Among those who have given to the new fund are persons in other denominations. The amount of the original fund was $75,000, and when Allen disappeared nearly the whole of it disappeared with him.

Four Complaints Against Oliver

Bangor, Me., Sept. 22.—Charles R. Oliver, who was arrested in Portland at the request of Bangor officers, was arraigned here on four complaints alleging obtaining of money under false pretenses. He was bound over to the February term of the supreme court. Oliver formerly did a large collection business in this city, but suddenly disappeared. He was unable to furnish the amount of bail required.

Alleged Swindler In Custody

Portland, Me., Sept. 22.—Deputy Marshal Frith has arrived here from Memphis with Henry Bishop, who was arrested in the southern city a few days ago on the charge of having defrauded Mrs. Charles York of this city of $4000. The alleged fraud occurred while Bishop was practising as a clairvoyant here. Mrs. York accompanied Deputy Frith to Memphis and identified Bishop.

Will Not Deny Guilt

Hartford, Sept. 22.—It is learned that when Oliver T. Sherwood, the defaulting cashier of the Southport National bank, is arraigned at New Haven, he will plead guilty. There are five counts in the charges against Sherwood, but it is probable that only one of them will be pressed. The minimum sentence on each count is five years in the state prison.

Eayers Took Poison

Boston, Sept. 22.—It has been determined by Medical Examiner Draper that Julius S. Eayres, the man found dying in Franklin park, came to his death by the use of cyanide of potassium, with suicidal intent. It is said the poison was purchased at a well known drug store, but that Eayres had not signed his correct name for it.

Forgery and Larceny Charged

Salem, Mass., Sept. 22.—On two indictments, one charging the uttering of a forged note for $900, and the other charging the larceny of $750, Chief of Police Oakes of Revere was arraigned before Judge Bell in the superior court. He pleaded not guilty and was ordered to furnish bail in the sum of $2500, which he secured.

Four-Foot Fall Caused Death

Lewiston, Me., Sept. 22.—Mrs. Fraconia Gaudette of New Auburn was standing upon a piazza in front of her home and leaned heavily upon the railing, which suddenly gave way, precipitating the woman headforemost to the ground, a distance of four feet. Her head came in contact with a stone and she was instantly killed.

Rare and Antique.

Some of our citizens who have been to Boston this week to examine the magnificent display of antique and rare rugs, at the store of John H. Pray & Sons Co., pronounce it the best they have ever seen.

Charles F. Bacon, manager of the rug department, who has returned from Europe, says he has brought back over 100 bales of the best selected rugs he could find, and he had his choice in selecting; and at lower prices than ever, owing to immense quantity produced this season.

Every inch of the 20,000 feet of floor space is covered with choice Turkey, Persian and Indian rugs; and there are piles of Persian hall stripes, antiques every one of them, and of colors and designs to rave over. Most graceful of design and of the softest colors of all the eastern rugs are the Kermanshah carpets and rugs, some of them 15 by 23 feet. One feature of the new lot of rugs shown is the fact that so many of them are of unusually large sizes, running as large as 16 by 24 feet.

MUST LET PROPERTY GO

Consolidated Lake Superior Company Cannot Raise Funds

New York, Sept. 22.—The directors of the Consolidated Lake Superior company, after a two hours' meeting, gave up in despair the attempt to find some plan for saving the properties of the company, which are in the hands of Speyer & Co. as collateral for the loan of $5,050,000 made by the banking house to the company some time ago, and announced that the stockholders of the company are entirely at the mercy of the banking firm, which can sell out the stock and bonds of the operating companies in the Consolidated Lake Superior company at any time they see fit. With the announcement of this decision came also a practical acknowledgment that they believed that their plans for financing the company to a sound position had been blocked at every point by the great financial interests that are behind rival steel companies in the United States.

New York, Sept. 22.—Charles H. Tweed, representing the Speyer syndicate, referring to the action of the directors of the Consolidatd Lake Superior company, says: "We have been very lenient with the company. We will probably foreclose the loan, selling the collateral pledges with us at auction. The syndicate will seek reimbursement for its outlay."

New Charges Against Stern

Toronto, Sept. 22.—Leopold J. Stern, wanted in Washington on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the United States government, appeared in court yesterday afternoon. Two officers from Washington were present with a new warrant certifying a charge different from that first served and in order to give the prosecution time to prepare their case on the new charge adjournment was taken until today. The warrant upon which the case against Stern is based, charges him with having wrongfully obtained two money warrants from the United States postoffice department, one for $5029.11 and one for $8272.82.

Democrats Will Support Low

New York, Sept. 22.—At a meeting of the leaders of the greater New York Democracy, held last night to determine whether the organization should oppose Mayor Low and the fusion ticket or make up a slate of its own, W. H. Russell, who resigned last night as commissioner of accounts, protested against the endorsement and denounced his administration as being principally Republican. It was finally resolved, Russell being the only dissenter, to heartily sustain the action of the fusion conferees on the selection of Low, Grount and Fornes to head the ticket.

Important Coal Discovery

Sydney, N. S., Sept. 22.—The government cable steamer Tyrian reports the discovery of an extensive deposit of hard coal of excellent quality at Fortune bay on the Labrador coast. The discovery was made by Captain Reid, who is trading along that coast. Captain Reid has taken possession of the deposit discovered. The existence of coal this far north has until now been unknown, the belief being that there was none.

Hoke, an advertising and poster agent of this city, has filed a complaint in the United States circuit court against the Associated Billposters and Distributers of the United States and Canada, in which he claims $60,000 damages from them on the ground that the association is an illegal trust and combination, operating in violation of the federal anti-trust law.

MUST END MASSACRES

Turkey May Then Talk Peace With Bulgaria

TWELVE HUNDRED CORPSES

Said to Be Lying Unburied In Fields and on Roadsides Around Kastoria—Promotion of Reshid Pacha Considered a Challenge to the Powers

Sofia, Sept. 22.—The unfavorable replies of Austria and Russia to Bulgaria's last note and the fact that none of the other great powers has yet replied, coupled with the allegations that one of the powers is encouraging the military party at the sultan's palace, tend to create a less hopeful feeling here. There is, however, no perceptible change in the situation. Various reports are in circulation regarding negotiations between Turkey and Bulgaria looking to a solution of the Macedonian difficulty.

The Dnevnik says Turkey has presented a note to Bulgaria asking for the latter's assistance in reaching a peaceable solution. Bulgaria replied that Turkey must end the massacres, withdraw her frontier forces, guarantee peace and protection to the villagers desiring to return to their homes, amnesty to the political offenders and introduce such governmental reforms as will pacify Macedonia and Adrianople. The Bulgarian reply concluded:

"If the present situation continues the Bulgarian government will be compelled to yield to public opinion and send an army to the frontier."

It appears doubtful that the government has sent such an answer, but the statement published represents in some degree the government's attitude.

According to information received by the revolutionary headquarters from Monastir, 120 persons perished in the flames of their burning villages near Kastoria. Over 1200 bodies of women and children are said to be lying unburied in the fields and on the roadsides around Kastoria.

The Servian government's reply to the porte's representations says measures have been taken to prevent bands entering Macedonia and that a strong band which was preparing to cross the frontier has already been dispersed. The reply adds, however, that if the persecution of Christians and the excesses of the Turkish troops continue, and serious reforms are not introduced the government would not be able to restrain the popular agitation in Servia.

The unfavorable comment aroused by the appointment of Reshid Pacha, the former vali of Beirut, to be vali of Brusa, which is really a promotion, continues. The action of the porte in this connection is regarded as a challenge to the representatives of the powers, especially to the American minister, who, it is thought, is likely to protest and may possibly demand Reshid Pacha's recall from Brusa, in the interests of the American educational establishment in that village.

Reports from Beirut say the appointment of Halil Pacha is to vali of Beirut has caused much disappointment. The inhabitants expected that Nazim Pacha, the vali of Syria, who inspired confidence by his conduct when he became acting vali after Reshid Pacha's removal, would be made vali.

A special dispatch from Rila gives the following details of the fighting at Perin: On Sept. 16 1000 Turkish troops surrounded the village and attacked the bands under Stoinoff and Dervingoff, who had taken up a position there. The latter were reinforced by the bands commanded by Yankoff and Zontcheff, turned on the Turks and completely annihilated them. One Turkish commander was captured.

Turkish Army Shy on Officers

Salonica, Sept. 22.—Orders have been received here from Constantinople to promote all sergeant majors to the rank of sub-lieutenants, owing to the scarcity of officers in view of the complete mobilization of the Turkish army.

Deputy Marshals Arraigned

San Francisco, Sept. 22.—Deputy Sheriffs Dasha, Burnett and Dempsey, who confessed to duplicity in the Chinese substitution scandal, were arraigned before Commissioner Heacock for identification. The federal officials declare that no white men other than the late Deputy Marshal Gamble and those under arrest were implicated in the plot to substitute Chinese prisoners ordered deported.

School Law Unconstitutional

Trenton, Sept. 22.—The court of errors and appeals has rendered a decision holding the general school law of the state to be unconstitutional. This law was planned to be a general revision of the school laws of the state. The decision in effect sets aside the general school law of the state and compels a recourse to the laws that were in exercise before this general law was introduced.

Got $2,500,000 Estate For $315,000

London, Sept. 22.—The Duke of Manchester has purchased for $315,000, Kylemore castle and estate, comprising 13,000 acres, situated on Lough Kylemore, Connemara. The late Mitchell Henry, M. P., built the castle, which is one of the noblest and most romantically situated residences in Ireland. It is estimated that Henry spent $2,500,000 on the property.

IN THIRTY-MILE RELAYS

Trooper Covers Two Thousand Miles on Horseback In Thirty-Nine Days

Newburg, N. Y., Sept. 22.—Trooper Davis of the Eighth United States cavalry has reached West Point, being the first of a detachment of 12 troopers who started from Oklahoma 39 days ago on a test ride of 2000 miles. The men were allowed to eat and sleep when they pleased, relays of horses being provided every 30 miles, the object of the ride being to cover the distance in the shortest practicable time.

Davis, being the lightest man of the party, led his comrades at the start and thus had the advantage of getting the pick of mounts at the relay stations. He rode up to the east bank on the Hudson after reaching New York until near Garrison, where his horse gave out. The ferry having stopped running he reported his arrival by signalling across the river to West Point. Then he came on to this city and thence proceeded to his destination.

Davis weighed 137 pounds when he started and now weighs but 108 pounds. He was very tired, but happy to think he had broken the record for the distance, which is 45 days. The ride is one of the several taken to test the stamina of men and horses, made at the suggestion of General Young, the new chief of staff.

Servia's Disgrace

London, Sept. 22.—The Times correspondent at Belgrade sends a review of the situation in Servia, saying that of a total of 1500 officers, 1000 are said to be concerned in the military conspiracy against the regicides. The clique of assassins, however, hold all the chief civil and military offices, the keys of the arsenal and the treasury, and any one crossing their path is doomed. The king is under the rule of the assassins and many doubt if he will ever shake himself free. An incriminating letter is said to be kept hanging over the royal head.

Laborer Killed In a Riot

Cooperstown, N. Y., Sept. 22.—A riot by Italian laborers on the Oneonta, Cooperstown and Richfield Springs trolley road resulted in the death of one Italian and the wounding of General Manager Tilton and a deputy sheriff. The trouble grew out of the fact that there is due the Italians two months' wages for work done beore the road went into the receiver's hands, but which he cannot pay while the road is in litigation. The laborers have been paid for all work done since the receivership began. Seven of the rioters were arrested.

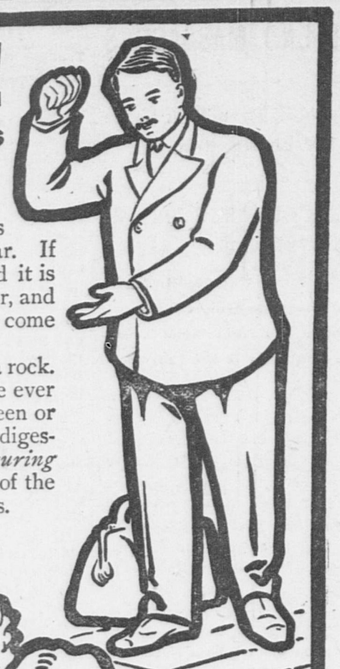
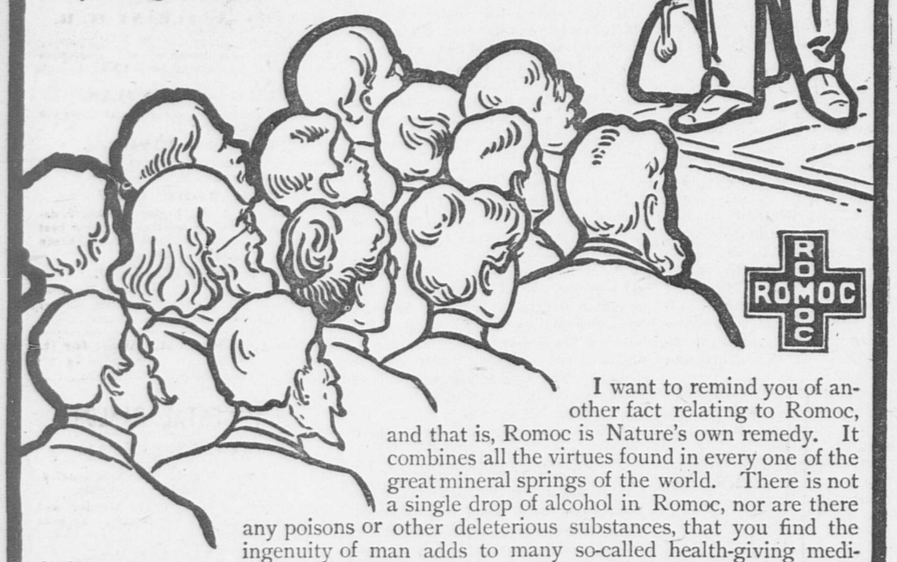
HERE HE IS AGAIN!

Once more the Romoc man expounds the Theories of Health. This is What He Says:



SEE here, good people, I have only a few words to say in making my appearance again this year. If you need my advice, you probably need it badly, and it is simply this: start in with Romoc, the sooner the better, and fortify yourself against the ills that are bound to come during the next few months.

Remember that Romoc is the medicine made from a rock. There is nothing in this whole, wide world that I have ever found in my travels, or that any of you have ever seen or heard of, that will so effectually cure Rheumatism, Indigestion, Nervousness, and all Blood Troubles, and besides curing these ills, that will absolutely make you well of any of the many derangements that are a result of such affections.



I want to remind you of another fact relating to Romoc, and that is, Romoc is Nature's own remedy. It combines all the virtues found in every one of the great mineral springs of the world. There is not a single drop of alcohol in Romoc, nor are there any poisons or other deleterious substances, that you find the ingenuity of man adds to many so-called health-giving medicines to their detriment, and the danger of the people who use them.

Ask for ROMOC LAXATIVE TABLETS—SURE CURE FOR CONSTIPATION.

We have investigated Romoc. We know that all that is said by the Romoc man pertaining to this wonderful remedy is true, and we will refund to anyone the price of the remedy not satisfied with the results obtained. Remember, Romoc is guaranteed and sold by

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

RACE ISSUE.

To Be Favor in Coming Election.

President Blamed for the Agitation.

But Friends Say Charge Will Not Bear Analysis.

Washington, Sept. 23.—John S. Williams of Mississippi, who will without much doubt be the Democratic leader of the house of representatives this winter, severely criticises President Roosevelt in an interview published for his action in the Indianola postoffice case, and declares with considerable asperity that the incident is by no means ended.

Arthur P. Gorman, the Democratic leader in the only doubtful state which elects a governor in November, and a possible Democratic candidate for the presidency, led the convention, of which he was the master spirit, into adopting a resolution which declared that "the political destinies of Maryland should be shaped and controlled by the white people of the state."

Senator Carmack of Tennessee has announced his purpose to introduce resolutions looking towards the repeal of the 15th amendment. While no one expects him to succeed, since our constitution is not easily amended even where it ought to be, the hearty endorsement which the south is giving to the proposal, compared with the seeming indifference of the northern press, indicates that a stage has been reached in the history of the race question in American politics where southerners feel that they can afford to take the aggressive.

The north is keeping quiet on the race question. This may be due to a feeling that, since all the fuming and raging of the south will have no real effect upon our national policies, the thought of the north may safely be given to more important concerns. Or it may be accounted for in the words of Justice Harlan, a Kentucky Republican, when he said at the Loyal Legion banquet that the heart of the north has grown cold toward the black men whom it had liberated from bondage. But however accounted for, there is a coolness in the north, contrasting strongly with the warmth of the southerners; they clearly feel that the time has come when they may proceed to undo such of the permanent results of reconstruction as were distasteful to them.

President Roosevelt is regularly blamed by the southern press and public for setting this agitation into motion, but such a charge will not bear anaylsis. He has appointed fewer negroes to office than his predecessor; Republican presidents in fact have steadily been able to do less and less for the race which constitutes an overwhelming proportion of the Republican party of the south. McKinley could do less than Arthur, and still less than Grant. Roosevelt's negro policy has fallen upon troublous times.

The president has done three things in particular upon which the south bases its attack: he invited Booker T. Washington to his table; he appointed Dr. Crum, a negro, to an office paying $1100 a year in Charleston, and he closed the Indianola, Miss., postoffice because the people of that town attempted to rid themselves of a colored woman, already in office as postmaster, by intimidation. He has not to any extent appointed negroes to postoffices, or to places under the department of justice, in deference to the two distinctly expressed wishes of the south. It is regarded there as fundamental that no negro should have an office which brings him into contact with southern women, like a postoffice, or a place where he becomes a part of the administration of justice.

While President Roosevelt has done less for the negro than his predecessors, it is doubtless true that he has done at least one thing which is somewhat more dramatic, and that was his invitation to Booker Washington. Already his enemies have executed badges representing the two at the table and these have been put on sale in Chicago. The idea is obviously to get the negroes to wear them in order to disgust the whites.

Getting Into Working Trim

Kansas City, Sept. 23.—At a meeting of the promoters of the Independent Packing company, which was incorporated recently to fight the alleged packers' combine, the general plans for the organization and financing of the company were discussed and a board of directors was elected. The company is capitalized at $5,000,000. The board of directors comprises cattlemen from almost every state in the west.

Neglect of Duty Charged

Pittsburg, Sept. 23.—Charges have been preferred by Iron City lodge of Pittsburg against President Shaffer of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers. He will be tried by a committee as provided for by the constitution. Among the charges is neglect of duty.

Ching Seeks Conger's Advice

Pekin, Sept. 23.—Prince Ching, president of the foreign office, had an interview with United States Minister Conger yesterday. It is understood, in connection therewith, that China's compliance with Russia's latest demands is not anticipated.

Swithin Bros. are soon to vacate their office in the Daily Ledger building, and the store is to let.

BEST TWO IN THREE.

Will It Be Sandberg, Freeman or Hall at Caucuses?

The prospects that there will be a close contest at the Republican caucuses for the two candidates for the Legislature. There are good reasons why all three candidates will receive large votes, that is if the caucuses are well attended. Inasmuch as the caucuses have not been well advertised the prospects are that the total vote will be small.

There are no good reasons why Representative Freeman should not be renominated, but the personal choice of the voters will count this year. Edward J. Sandberg has a big following, and will probably be the leading candidate at the caucuses, as he was last year. The prominence of ex-Mayor Hall in city affairs from the organization of the city government, make him the best known candidate, and he always did poll a big vote, so that it will be close between all three candidates.

Birthday Party.

Miss Eva Marden of Coddington street fittingly observed the nineteenth anniversary of her birth, by entertaining a few of her friends at her parents' home Tuesday evening. The house was beautifully decorated with fall flowers and colored lights. Social intercourse, parlor games and music were enjoyed. Miss Eva was the recipient of many handsome and useful gifts. A fine collation was served in the dining room, after which the merry party took their departure, as the wee small hours were approaching, all wishing Miss Marden many happy returns of the day.

TANK EXPLODED.

An Expressman Severely Injured at Brewers Corner.

Napoleon Fountain, a driver of Evans express, had a narrow escape from fatal injuries at Brewers corner on Tuesday afternoon.

He was carrying a tank of soda into the cellar of a store, when for some reason it exploded. Pieces of the tank were blown in all directions. Mr. Fountain was knocked down and severely bruised. He also received a cut on the right arm, that required three stitches; a cut on the eye lid, that required four stitches, and several smaller cuts on the head and arms.

Dr. Ash was called and dressed the wounds, after which the man was taken to his home on Old Coach road off Quarry street.

Coliseum Hall.

A gala season is promised at the Coliseum hall the coming winter. For several years the building has been used as a furniture store, but it was built for a skating rink and has a good floor. It is the largest hall in the city, and has been the scene of many large gatherings. Mr. Baker announces that Saturday night assemblies will begin next week; that he will have adult classes on Tuesday evenings, and children's classes on Saturday afternoons, and that on Thursday evenings there will be basket ball and dancing. On other evenings the hall will be let for entertainments and dances.

Sam Parks a Stumbling Block

Kansas City, Sept. 23.—The credentials committee appointed by President Buchanan of the International Bridge and Structural Iron Workers has not yet broken the deadlock which developed soon after beginning its work. It is believed that the seating of Samuel Parks and his friends of the rival delegation from New York is the most serious difficulty which the committee has to contend with.

Jett Convicted of Murder

Cynthiana, Ky., Sept. 23.—After a trial lasting eight days the jury in the case of Curtis Jett, charged with the murder of Town Marshal Cockrell at Jackson, rendered a verdict of guilty and fixed the punishment at death. This was the second trial of Jett on the charge of murder. In the first trial for the murder of J. B. Marcum, Jett and Thomas White were sentenced to life imprisonment.

Murdered For Thirty-Six Cents

Hartford, Sept. 23.—Angered over the loss of 36 cents, Paul Missik, employed at a stone quarry in Newington, shot and killed Charles O'Brien, a brakeman employed on a work car of the Hartford Street Railway company. O'Brien was standing on the front platform of his car at the quarry when the Pole approached and asked "What about that 36 cents I dropped last night?" O'Brien replied that he did not know anything about it, whereupon the other began shooting. He has escaped.

Seventeen Horses Burned to Death

Woonsocket, R. I., Sept. 23.—Henry W. Whipples had a narrow escape from death by fire, which broke out in his stables early this morning, gutted the building and burned 17 horses. The loss will exceed $12,000. The fire is believed to have been of incendiary origin. When the flames were discovered Whipples was sleeping in the second story of the stables and the flames spread with such rapidity that he was rescued by the firemen with difficulty.

Trio of Burglars Jugged

Millers Falls, Mass., Sept. 23.—Three men who the police believe were concerned in the burglary committed at the South Hadley postoffice, where $1000 worth of stamps was secured, were arrested last night after a desperate struggle by local officers. All three were not only well armed, but carried a complete outfit of burglars' tools, including a quantity of nitroglycerine. The men were locked up in the local jail.

Good Afternoon

The consensus of opinion seems to be that the Democrats missed an opportunity to get their candidates advertised free. Perhaps no list of nominations were filed.

The corn crop promises to exceed two billion bushels. Wall street cannot hurt the prevailing prosperity under such conditions, much as it may hurt New York's pride to admit the fact.

Prophet Dowie has a rule which reads, "Do not talk about things you know nothing about." A strict application of the maxim would prevent Dowie's talking theology, and would destroy the art of conversation, generally.

A New York tobacconist declares he will go to jail rather than "surrender his freedom" to do as he pleases. His freedom in this instance consists of desecrating the United States flag which he persists in using for advertising purposes. It is a wise man who can distinguish freedom from license.

It will be eighteen years tomorrow that Quincy accepted the gift of Merrymount park with its eighty acres from Charles Francis Adams, and Faxon park with its thirty acres from Henry H. Faxon. The former is accessible and is appreciated by thousands, and the latter is destined to be more and more popular with years. There should be a playground, however, half way between.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The interests of the old soldiers are always well cared for by congress, but they are certain not to be neglected in the 58th congress. Although the civil war ended over 38 years ago there will be 77 men in congress who fought in it. Forty-seven fought on the union side and 30 served in the confederate army. In the senate there are 13 union soldiers and 13 ex-confederates. But in the house, where the representation is more fairly apportioned, there are 34 union veterans and 17 ex-confederates. The Grand Army has declared in favor of a service pension for all union veterans over 62 years old, and an effort will be made to pass such a bill. But as any veteran who needs help gets it now, regardless of age, there is a poor prospect of the success of such a measure.—Philadelphia Press.

☞ It is often claimed by outsiders that having a profession dulls a woman's sympathies; but I cannot believe that this is true in the practice of medicine, where one side of the work is so immeasurably sad. I have seen a baby that came after fifteen years of waiting and hoping, and was rejoiced over daily and hourly for a wonderful year, suddenly struck down and gasp its little life out in a day with pneumonia. These are the times when it hurts to be a doctor, to find that all the knowledge that you possess, all the skill at your command, is as so much chaff before the wind. To have a woman cling to you, begging you to save her baby, is an ordeal to which no human being can grow callous. You must feel as though the brand of Cain were upon you when, with all your efforts, you cannot save the little life. Not years nor experience can lighten such as these.—Everybody's Magazine.

The regular meetings of the Hospital Aid Association will be resumed Thursday, September 24, at 2.30 P. M., in the chapel of the First church, City square. A large attendance is particularly desired.

WORKED SMOOTHLY

New Election Law Put to the Test by Voters of Boston

Boston, Sept. 23.—The new Luce election law, providing for direct nominations in joint caucus, was first tried in this city yesterday. The weather was perfect and nothing hindered the testing of the new law by every voter. But few mistakes occurred and these were speedily remedied.

The day passed off very quietly, and there was no attempt at repeating, nor was there disturbance of any sort.

President Pierce of the Republican city committee expressed his entire satisfaction. He said: "The law is sound, is equitable, and the public evidently likes it. It means purity in politics."

President Fitzgerald of the Democratic city committee was equally satisfied. "We have nothing to complain of," he said. "Our party adapted itself to the situation and the vote we got out shows that there are plenty of Democrats."

Representative Luce, framer of the measure, was really pleased at the general satisfaction expressed. "It shows that it is right," he said. "It does what it was designed for, furnishes complete protection to all contending interests."

The total vote cast throughout the city was a trifle less than 50,000. Of the total number the Democrats exceeded the Republicans 3 to 1.

Liquor Men to Fight Republicans

Schenectady, N. Y., Sept. 23.—The state convention of the New York Wine, Liquor and Beer Dealers' association, now in session here, for the first time in its history became a partisan organization. President Dolan advised all members of the organization to array themselves against the administration of Governor Odell and later on the convention adopted resolutions against the license legislation enacted by the last legislature. The resolutions further call upon every member to renounce the Republican party at the coming election.

Hall to Resign Presidency

New Haven, Sept. 23.—In the annual report of the affairs of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company the announcement is made officially that President Hall has given notice that the condition of his health will not permit his serving as president beyond his present term. The board of directors has recommended the appointment of Judge Hall as general counsel for the company, and requested him to accept a vacation of six months for rest.

Palatia's Tedious Voyage

New York, Sept. 23.—Steamer Palatia has arrived from Hamburg and Boulogne after a voyage of nearly 18 days. The Palatia broke the tail shaft of her starboard engine on Sept. 9, shortly after leaving the English channel. Captain Magin decided to proceed to his destination, using the port engine. There was no excitement among the passengers, beyond impatience at the delay.

Flour Mills to Be Idle

Minneapolis, Sept. 23.—Certainty of a general strike in the Minneapolis flour mills was established when the millers issued a statement severely criticising the flour loaders for making unjust and unreasonable demands and pressing the determination of the millers to close their mills rather than grant the eight-hour day at a 10-hour wage scale demanded by the flour loaders.

American Miners Blocked

Port of Spain, Sept. 23.—Advices from Caracas state that a government decree has suspended the operation of the mining code for an indefinite period. This decree will render new acquisitions of mines in Venezuela impossible and will cause detriment to the American mining parties who are now engaged in surveying several mining claims.

Thirty-Five Lives Probably Lost

Norfolk, Sept. 23.—Advice from Cape Charles is to the effect that there is no foundation for the report that the fishing steamer Beatrice has made Delaware breakwater with a loss of two men. This practically extinguishes the last spark of hope for the steamer and her crew of 35 men.

Nothing New In Stern Case

Toronto, Sept. 23.—Leopold J. Stern, wanted in Washington in connection with the postal frauds, was again before Judge Winchester, but nothing was done save the arranging of the formalities of the procedure. The merits of the case will be investigated next week.

Sherwood, the former cashier of that institution who was brought back from Panama, was sentenced by Judge Platt to 10 years' imprisonment. The prisoner entered a plea of guilty, retracting his former plea of not guilty.

Lost Fishermen Rescued

Boston, Sept. 23.—After being adrift for 18 hours without food or water, Ernest Garron and Everett Newell, dory mates from schooner Blance of Gloucester, from which they strayed during a thick fog, were brought to port by schooner Viking, which picked them up off the Georges a week ago. The men have recovered from the effects of the exposure.

Boston, Sept. 23.—The aged schooner Rising Sun, 80 tons register, of Bangor, Me., sank at her moorings near the Cambridge end of the West Boston bridge. She has a cargo of lumber and was waiting for a berth. It is feared that a sunken spile has penetrated her bottom, as a wrecking tug could not float her.

To Look For Uncharted Rocks

Wanted In Louisiana

Gardner, Mass., Sept. 23.—Chief of Police Allen captured Tom Stacey, who escaped from the Louisiana state penitentiary at Baton Rouge, on Pine street, and locked the man up. Stacey admitted he had escaped from the Louisiana penitentiary. When searched at the station he had a big revolver fully loaded in his belt. He said he would have used it if he had got a chance.

New Clew to Bandits

Woonsocket, R. I., Sept. 23.—The three Italians who held up and robbed Paymaster Sherman of a satchel containing nearly $3000, the weekly payroll of the American Woolen company's Saranac mill, are now believed to be hiding in Boston. The police have obtained a new clue, which, they believe, may lead to the arrest of the men in that city.

Food For German Thought

Berlin, Sept. 23.—The mission of Mr. Skinner, United States consul general at Marseilles, to King Menelik of Abyssinia, is the subject of lively comment here. Not one of the newspapers profess to understand what it means, but most of them aver that it is "a fresh indication of the United States' ambition abroad."

Alliance on a Rock

New London, Conn., Sept. 23.—The United States training ship Alliance is aground upon Race Rock. Although she is apparently hard and fast, unless there is a sudden change in weather conditions the ship will be safely floated. A United States monitor is standing by the stranded vessel.

THE DEATH OF DUNTON

Will Cause Barnes to Answer to Charge of Murder

FIGHT PRECEDING ASSAULT

Arose From Murder Suspect's Alleged Ill-Treatment of Wife, Who Was Defended by Aged Boarder—Pocketbook and $1000 Said to Be Missing

Keene, N. H., Sept. 23.—The terrible assault on Ashael Dunton and Mrs. Malachi Barnes at East Sullivan on Saturday night last developed into a murder last night in the death of Dunton just before midnight. The aged farmer did not regain consciousness after having his brains well nigh battered out by the blows of the assassin, and he died without giving any clue to the perpetrator of the deed.

The police, after waiting nearly two days in the hope that the brief and somewhat contradictory statement of Mrs. Barnes might be made sufficiently clear through a short period of consciousness on the part of Dunton as to lead to the identity of the assailant, gave up such hope yesterday and turned their attention to a rigid examination of such facts and clues as have already been collected.

A brother and sister of Dunton visited the hospital and the brother added a new feature to the case when he insisted that at the time of the assault Dunton had been robbed of a pocketbook containing $1000. He says that he knows that his brother possessed between $3000 and $4000; that he carried two pocketbooks, one of which contained 10 $100 bills. This pocketbook has not been recovered, though a search of the premises was made by Sheriff Tuttle.

Much of importance bearing on the case has been learned, however, by the sheriff. The neighbors agree that quarrels between Barnes, his wife and the boarder, Dunton, had been frequent. In these Dunton has figured as taking sides with the woman, who was often the victim of Barnes' ill temper. Saturday afternoon, it is said, Dunton came home and found Barnes and his wife digging potatoes. The woman was doing the harder part of the work. Dunton interfered, persuaded Mrs. Barnes to go to the house and took her place beside the husband. The two men worked together until night and while they worked Dunton roundly scored his companion for compelling Mrs. Barnes to work as he did. The quarrel continued as the men went to supper. An hour later the assault in which Mrs. Barnes was terribly beaten and Dunton pounded into insensibility took place.

Little had been known of Dunton's relatives until the brother and sister, George O. Dunton, a farmer of Fitzwilliam, and Mrs. Mary Boyce of Winchendon, Mass., called at the hospital. From them it was learned that Dunton had another sister, Mrs. Lucy T. Derby of New Holland, Mich., and two children. He has a son Herbert, a soldier in the regular army stationed in the Philippines, and a daughter, who is the wife of Dr. A. Perkins of Ogden, Utah. Dr. Perkins formerly practiced in Boston.

The physicians of Elliott hospital said last night that Dunton gradually sank all day and that it was surprising that he lived so long. At no time since the assault did he regain consciousness, even momentarily.

Barnes, who is confined at the county jail, still refuses to talk of the case. He has retained an attorney to defend him. He was held only on suspicion, but will now be charged with murder.

Relatives Contest Peabody Will

Boston, Sept. 23.—A contest has begun in the probate court over the will of H. O. Peabody, who left $400,000, nearly all of which was devised to found a school for girls. He died June 28. After small bequests, a fund of $30,000 was left, the income to be divided between two brothers, a neice and two nephews or testator. Undue influence and unsoundness are alleged.

Trip to Boston Postponed

St. John, Sept. 23.—Murray Scott, aged 18, was arrested here last evening on strength of a telegram from Halifax for the theft of $600. The police found $511 in bank bills wrapped around his ankles and when this discovery was made he confessed. He was timekeeper on railroad work and the money was the men's wages. Scott was making for Boston when caught.

Confidence Man Put Away

Boston, Sept. 23.—W. A. Cranston, known all over the country as a confidence man, was sentenced to from 10 to 15 years in state prison for forgery, he having obtained large sums from Boston brokers by means of cleverly arranged schemes and forged checks.

Baltimore Bicycle Track Condemned

Baltimore, Sept. 23.—Building Inspector Preston has condemned the Coliseum bicycle track in this city and the bowl will be demolished. Joe Nelson and DeGuichard were scheduled for a 20-mile motor-paced championship race on the track today.

American Farmers For Cuba

Havana, Sept. 23.—Thomas J. Anderson, general passenger agent of the Southern Pacific railroad, announces that he has come to Cuba with the idea of arranging for the immigration of American farmers to settle on Cuban soil.

TIME IS UP

Panama Canal Treaty Dead, as Far as Colombian Congress Is Concerned

Washington, Sept. 23.—When the state department closed last evening it was agreed that the Panama canal treaty was dead, although eight hours yet remained within which the Colombian congress might take affirmative action upon it. Nothing, however, had been received during the day, either from Minister Beaupre at Bogota, or from Mr. Herran, the Colombian charge here, which gave the slightest hope of a favorable issue.

A report is current here that the Colombian congress, in secret session, has clothed President Marroquin with full power to negotiate a treaty. If this report should turn out to be true, President Marroquin, who is counted a friend of the treaty, could proceed untrammelled by the fear of future reckoning with his congress.

In any event President Roosevelt must now take the next step. He can elect to proceed under the Spooner act and take up the Nicaragua route or he can allow matters to drift for the present in the hope that a way may yet be found to straighten out the present difficulties in the way of the Panama route.

Easy Pickup For Stranger

Montpelier, Vt., Sept. 23.—O. B. Gillett of Jonesville, who runs a store and who is also postmaster, says that he left a bag containing $200 in silver and $500 in checks on a counter while he was engaged at the telephone. Meantime a stranger entered the place, but left almost immediately and while the postmaster was still busy. Later the bag containing the money and checks was missed. A man answering the description of the stranger later boarded a train for Montreal.

Didn't See the President

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 23.—A suspicious character, giving his name as Samuel Swenyon, was held up by the secret service officers at Sagamore Hill while making an effort to see the president. He was turned back to the village, stopped in Oyster Bay and searched, and later placed on a train for New York. He was unarmed and appeared to be a harmless crank, possibly a religious fanatic. Swenyon is a slightly built man, about 35 years old.

Bullets Warn Salvation Army

Prestonburg, Ky., Sept. 23.—The Salvation Army cavalry band stirred up a nest of moonshiners on their ride from Saylorsville here. Two shots were fired by the moonshiners meant as warning. When confidence had been restored Colonel Holtz of the army conducted a prayer service. Through the feud country the salvationists stop at every appearance of a crowd and hold meetings, all joining in.

THE ZEIGLER EXPEDITION

Letter From Captain Coffin Reports All Well on July 20

Edgartown, Mass., Sept. 23.—Authentic and favorable news from the Ziegler expedition, which is exploring the Arctic regions, is contained in a letter received by Mrs. Edwin Coffin from her husband, in command of the expedition's boat America. The letter came by way of Hammerfest, Norway, under date of July 20, and in the course of it Captain Coffin says:

"There is a vessel right ahead and I will send this by her to you. I came up to the ice the 14th and have been trying to find a lead in the ice ever since. Reached the shores of Nova Zembla last night at 2 p. m. and then turned back and will wait to push in the ice, long. 45.30, lat. 75.32. This is the farthest north I can get without going into close ice. I am well and so are all hands, even to the dogs. I am afraid we won't get through until quite late, as it is a bad year for ice. I have just written a short letter to Mr. Ziegler. Everything works well on shipboard and I find the America a fine sea boat."

Fifty-Six Firemen Overcome

Boston, Sept. 23.—Fifty-six firemen were overcome by heavy smoke and noxious fumes at the second outbreak of a fire at the wholesale and retail drug store of C. W. Badger & Co. on Union street. None of the affected were seriously injured, although a few had to leave the lines after recovering. The flames seemed to emanate from the cellar, where great quantities of oils and drugs were stored. Smoke came out in great clouds, accompanied by puffs of ammonia and other overpowering fumes. The loss will approach $75,000.

New York City Excursion.

Everybody desires to visit New York city, and a trip once a year to the great metropolis is well worth taking. The numerous buildings of interest, the parks and monuments, the theatres, the Bowery, and the hundreds of interesting places serve not only to amuse but to educate the visitor.

Every year in the early autumn the Boston & Maine railroad runs an excursion to New York city. Besides the trip to the city this excursion provides an opportunity for enjoying one of the most delightful journeys in the East.

Leaving Boston the route is via the Hoosac country and Deerfield valley, a section famous on account of its scenic beauty; a visit to the city of Albany, N. Y., where the magnificent Capitol and otner interesting places will busy one, is next.

Then a sail down the beautiful Hudson river on either the day or night steamers, passing Poughkeepsie bridge, the old town of Newburgh, West Point, Stony Point and other places of interest. Leaving New York city the return trip is via the Fall River Line steamers to Boston.

This round trip is only $5.00. The date is Oct. 1. Send to the general passenger department, Boston & Maine Railroad, Boston, for their illustrated descriptive booklet, giving a description of the trip and some beautiful scenes of interesting places along the route.

This book will be mailed free to any address.

Headache Cure.

For headache make the following solution: Mix a handful of salt in a quart of water, adding one ounce of spirits of hartshorn and half an ounce of camphorated spirits of wine. Soak a cloth with this and apply to the forehead, wetting it as it becomes dry.

A Great Pendulum.

The longest clock pendulum in the world is at Avignon, France. It is sixty-seven feet long and requires four and a half seconds to swing through an arc of nine and a half feet.

To Revive a Fire.

To revive a dying fire scatter over it a little granulated sugar. Another good plan is to hold a sheet of paper over the opening above the grate, so that all air that passes up the chimney must first be drawn through the fire.

Salty Gravy.

Too much salt in the gravy may be remedied by putting a pinch of brown sugar in it. This does not hurt the gravy in the least.

Macedonian Problem Is Discussed by Diplomats

THE BULGARIAN PROPOSALS

Ask Porte to Grant General Amnesty, Stop Persecution and Inaugurate Reforms—Turkey Said to Have Accepted In Principle, but Proofs of Good Faith Will Be Required

Sofia, Sept. 23.—Within 48 hours the question of peace or war will probably be settled, according to authoritative opinions here. Premier Petroff had an interview with Ali Feruh Bey, at which the whole of the situation in Macedonia was discussed. As a result of this conference a much better feeling prevails and confident hopes are expressed that a satisfactory adjustment will be reached. This view is strengthened by a report from Constantinople that the council of ministers, after several days of discussion, are within measurable distance of an agreement on the chief points at issue.

The premier complained to the Turkish diplomatic agent of the situation created by the arrival at Burgas of thousands of destitute and starving refugees from the district of Losengrad. After a discussion an understanding was practically reached that Turkey should guarantee the safe protection of the refugees and take steps to reinstate them in their homes.

The general effect of these conferences in Constantinople and Sofia has induced a much more hopeful feeling here, although in Balkan affairs it is always possible that the next day's happenings may change the entire situation.

The following is the position of the Turko-Bulgarian negotiations: The porte recently manifested a disposition to consider proposals for a direct understanding and Bulgaria advanced the following conditions: First, the porte to grant a general amnesty and stop the persecution of the Bulgarians in Macedonia; second, a mixed commission to be formed, the Bulgarian members of which should be nominated by the Bulgarian exarch and never be in a minority on the commission, to elaborate administrative reforms, arrange for an extension of local administrative autonomy, insure the safety of the highways and the equality of Christians and Mussulmans before the courts, reform the taxation and gendarmerie and provide for personal security.

After the accomplishment of these tasks the commission, which would probably sit at Salonica, would become the council of the inspector general and would depute one of its Bulgarian members to report to the sultan on the progress of affairs.

Bulgaria also asked that the burned villages be rebuilt with government assistance, the refugees repatriated, an especial ordinance issued providing for the organization and administration of the Bulgarian schools and churches.

These proposals seem to have been accepted in principle, although nothing definite has yet been decided. Even in the event of an agreement being arrived at proofs of good faith would be required as a guarantee of the execution of the reforms and if not forthcoming the Macedonians would continue their agitation.

A list compiled from official sources is published giving the names of and details regarding 48 villages which have been the scene of pillage, murder and outrages by Turkish troops.

The war ministry has taken steps to strengthen the Bulgarian frontier forces and it is reported that troops will occupy all the commanding positions, thus making it almost impossible for bands to cross the frontier. Some regiments have been ordered to Adrianople frontier, where the Turks have massed strong bodies of troops.

Revolutionary bands are reported to be active in the district of Raslog, province of Seres, where they hold all the mountain passes. The Turkish population is fleeing towards Salonica.

Singular Indeed

London, Sept. 23.—The Sofia correspondent of The Times affirms that a singular communication has been made to the Bulgarian government from Count Lamsdorf, the Russian foreign minister, who observed that, in the opinion of Count Von Buelow, the German chancellor, Turkey has the right to send troops into Bulgaria to preserve order. This interesting disclosure, continues the correspondent, was coupled with a gentle recommendation to observe caution. At the same time Count Goluchowsky, the Austro-Hungarian foreign minister, expresses the opinion that the slaughter of 2000 Macedonian peasants does not warrant complaints of the extermination of the Bulgarian race in Macedonia.

To Reduce Trolleymen's Wages

Gardner, Mass., Sept. 23.—The Templeton street railway has given notice of a cutdown of 2½ cents an hour for motormen and conductors, to go into effect Oct. 1. There is talk of a strike.

Santiago, Cuba, Sept. 23.—Rural guards have captured Juan Lopez, the leader of the recent insurrection, and another man.

Cruiser Cleveland.

A race against time is going on at the Bath iron works this week, says a dispatch to the Globe, where the men are rushing to complete the cruiser Cleveland so she will be ready for delivery to the government on the first day of next month.

Big Machinery.

Some of the large and powerful machinery for the power plant of the Old Colony street railway has arrived on cars at South Quincy from the General Electric company. Some of them weigh upwards of forty tons. W. F. Loud is transporting the machinery to the plant.

Belgium's Street Law.

Improper street cries, songs, speeches and lectures are forbidden in Belgium by law.

Batter Cakes.

The secret of having good flour batter cakes is to make them about two hours before they are to be used, beat thoroughly and then let them alone, dipping out a spoonful at a time.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.
